OUR first Week of Prayer in 1973 begins today. May we urge all our friends to seek God's face both individually and in the fellowship of the churches.

We publish in this issue a thought-provoking article by William J. Maybin. In submitting it for your consideration, I fully realise that not all will subscribe to the views on prophecy included in the articles. The entry of the United Kingdom into the Common Market is an epoch-making event, however, and the article will serve to stimulate thought and consideration.

It has long been my view that our opinions on prophecy can become too stratified. Young people have undoubtedly been very confused by the seemingly expert references to the different and differing schools of prophecy, so-called. We have taken far too much for granted and have perhaps been in danger of clouding issues which needed clarifying.

It cannot be otherwise than that such a fundamental change as the enlarging of the so-called European Community should come to the forefront of our thinking and study. The definite reduction of national sovereignty is of great significance. The feared domination of the Roman Catholic Church is another, though it must be seen that notably in France the influence of that Church has declined.

For the time being and for better or worse, Great Britain is now in the Community. It is to be hoped that we change our attitude. Our politicians, if they have made any attempt much to "sell" the idea of the Common Market, have plugged the theme that they need us and look to us for our leadership. Does it seem possible at this late stage that they are really thinking that the original six, and especially Germany and France, are going to let the good old British Raj take over? The arrogance of the proclamations of some of our politicians must make strange reading on the other side of the Channel.

We hope and trust that we shall be brought very much closer to our fellow-believers in the rest of Europe and especially in the nine as it has now become. We pray that we shall develop many useful contacts with our Pentecostal brethren. Whatever your opinion of the rights and wrongs concerning entry into the Common Market, you will surely agree that we should be alert and alive to every effort we can make to co-operate in extending the Kingdom.

Church Reports

WATFORD Pastor: R. Rees

AS traffic roared past in busy St. Albans Road, Watford, a crowd of people overflowing the pavement into the street saw their new Elim Pentecostal Church opened.

In bitter cold the congregation and the Mayor of Watford watched a former Watford minister, Rev. Leon Quest, cut the white ribbon across the church doors, his words drowned by the noise of traffic.

The outside of the church, near Leavesden Road, still looks much as when it was owned by the Methodists, but inside there has been a transformation.

Some members of the congregation gasped as they went from the slightly forbidding outside of the building to the beautifully redecorated interior.

The church, with its walls of primrose yellow, ceiling of light blue with contrasting grey pillars, and royal blue chairs and carpets, was not finally ready for the dedication service until the early hours of Saturday.

From a centre pulpit the minister, Rev. Robin Rees, opened the first service in the new church, a service in the new church, a service full of memories of Elim Church's past in Watford.

Rev. James Kennedy, a former Minister, in an opening address, spoke of the early days when the church met in an old hall in Penn Road, a cul-de-sac off St. Albans Road.

"During the depression of the early thirties I don't think our offerings ever raised above fifty shillings, and we had to do an awful lot with that: but I suppose fifty shillings was worth more then that it is today," he said.

He hoped the congregation would "make its mark and everyone in the town will know you are here."

The Mayor of Watford, Alderman Robert Caton, referring to the large number of representatives of other churches who attended the service on Saturday, said: "I think it is quite magnificent the way all you gentlemen have come from all over the south of the country, and we thank you for coming on this very great occasion for all the people in this church."

He repeated two lines from a hymn which was sung when Watford gained its charter, and again when charter day was celebrated this year: "Now thank we all our God, with heart and hands and voices."

Another former minister, Rev. Frank Shadlock, recalled that the first wedding service he ever conducted was in the new Elim church thirty years ago. The building then belonged to the Methodists, but the wedding could not take place at the Penn Road Elim Church as it was not licensed.

Pastor L.C. Quest cuts the tape.

Mr. Shadlock was delighted when he asked the congregation on Saturday if the couple he married on that day were present, and a woman in the gallery called down that she was the bride of thirty years ago!

Attending the opening was the Superintendent Minister of the West London Presbytery, Rev. Eldin Corsie.

Earlier the congregation held a final thanksgiving service at their former church in Hillrise Avenue. The speaker was Mr. Quest, during whose ministry the building was opened in 1953.

Then a motorcade of about twenty cars and two coaches, headed by a police car, took the congregation to the new church – and by coincidence joined up with the Mayoral car taking Alderman Caton to the opening!

At an inaugural rally during the evening, and on Sunday, the speaker was Rev. P.S. Brewster, minister of the City Temple, Cardiff, and editor of the World Pentecost magazine.

Saturday's service was videotaped, and was also shown by closed circuit television in the new youth hall behind the church. The youth hall was decorated by young people of the congregation.

EALING Pastor: F.F.L. Frost

THE Elim missionary pageant arranged by the West London Presbytery with Dr. Henry Joseph as the speaker, was anticipated with great interest. Last minute re-arrangements had to be made as the pageant equipment did not arrive owing to a transport hitch, and because Dr. Joseph had been advised to rest owing to the effects of a strenuous itinerary coupled with the illness of his wife.

Pastor G. Hillman, who convened the meeting, said that God was able to bless through the rearrangements and this proved to be true. We were pleased to welcome many visitors from other Elim churches. A greater realisation of what our missionaries are doing against tremendous odds and at great personal sacrifice and a greater vision of the need for Christ on the mission fields resulted from the meeting.

Mr. Ravenhill (of Kensington Temple) spoke of his recent visit to the Far East to Miss V. McGillivray in Hong Kong and Pastor and Mrs. K. McGillivray and Pastor K. Brotton in Taiwan.

Pastor L. Wigglesworth (Elim Missionary Secretary) gave details of what Dr. Henry Joseph had accomplished in Madras where the number of churches has increased from ten to thirty two in the past three years. Pastor and Mrs. John Prentice are co-workers in Madras. The church in Bombay, recently vacated by Pastor and Mrs. J. Troke who, after long service, are retiring to New Zealand, will be incorporated in the fellowship centred on Madras.

Pastor G.L.W. Ladlow, who willingly came from Salisbury at short notice, and who wore native costume, gave an interesting and encouraging talk entitled "Ghana revisited". We heard of the exacting work Pastor and Mrs. David Mills are doing in training pastors to take responsibility for churches. We rejoiced to hear of the moving of God's Spirit throughout the south of Ghana among the over 1,200 churches with which our work is linked.

Pastor Wigglesworth gave a resume of the Elim mission fields with coloured slides, accompanied by a running commentary by our Pastor, interspersed with song and recitations by the Kensington Singers, a talented young ladies' group, accompanied by Pastor E.R. Corsie on the piano and by Mr. Colin Reed (soloist), the recitatiosn being by Mrs. Pat Khanna and Miss Deborah Morrell (Ealing Crusaders). Other Crusaders represented each missionary and mission field by exhibiting sashes. Our Pastor closed in prayer.

H.J. SILLENCE

West of England Presbytery Sunday school Rally.

A VERY successful rally was held at Bristol City Temple, the visiting speaker being Pastor I.R. Moore known hereinafter as "Uncle Scissors" for his own unique way of gospel presentation. Two services were convened by Pastor W. Ron Jones who soon set young hearts at ease with his homely manner. Some hundreds of children gathered in expectancy of good things to come. The Keynsham group sang to the accompaniment of Bells, followed by a special feature "Take Your Pick", the inevitable rousing chorus singing, and "Uncle Scissors", folding and snipping his paper to illustrate Redemption.

At 5.45 the City Temple was really crowded. The Bath school depicted, in colourful costume, the story of the healing of Naaman, closing with the chorus "Cleanse me from my sin, Lord". Those from Swindon gave a hearty chorus selection and items by the Evans trio – Rachel, Faith and Philip. "Snakes and Ladders" led by "Uncle Ron" roused great enthusiasm. The Bristol Junior Choir sang, with some really budding soloists taking part.

Then "Uncle Scissors" got the children involved in his story of the marriage of the King's son, while folding and snipping his sheets of paper. When unfolded, they revealed the wedding dress of the bride, "Princess Julie". It was a rare moment when a little girl was placed on a chair, and "Uncle Scissors", assisted by "Uncle Douglas", dressed her in the exquisite wedding dress and crown.

The Gospel message was pressed home. Pastor R. T.W. Cradock read the story of the man without a wedding garment. Books were given to a girl, a boy and an adult for good conduct during the service.

A closing poem by Susan Hacker, a prayer by Jackie Haskins, the chorus "Round the walls of Jericho" and all departed with singing and the tramping of hundreds of tiny feet. What a rally it was!

FREDERICK C. SMITH

DUNDEE Pastor: H.B. McGowan

EYES shone brightly and restless bodies were stilled as Robbie the Robot went into action. This crusade for children had been uppermost in our hearts for many months. We gathered to pray for it weekly and finally daily. Our small group of Sunday school children prayed for God's hand to be on His servant, Pastor R. MacKenzie, during his stay in Dundee. Sunday school numbers had declined over the recent years as old homes were demolished and families were rehoused in far away schemes, yet we rejoice at the response. Over seventy children appeared the first evening and numbers rose to over one hundred as the week progressed.

That hectic week was followed by an exhausting five nights at our branch Sunday school at Kirkton. A faithful nucleus of fifty children attended weekly, but we felt that more could be added if we could reach them. Many prayers were answered concerning the booking of the school hall. The janitor co-operated wonderfully, but he put out only 150 chairs. 350 children and thirty adults came! As the week continued, numbers rose to over 400 and still they came, content to stand. Adults stood outside in the cold at open windows as Uncle Ron and Robbie ably coped with the children.

Workers from our assembly are running the weekly follow-up junior clubs. Both Sunday schools have gained new members. We are deeply grateful to all who gave their time and prayers for the success of the work among the children.

Christian Life in Russia

by Fred Dodds

I VISITED the Soviet Union to find out first-hand about the alleged persecution of Christians there and to see how the average Russian fared. Two-thirds of the world's population is under Communist rule. The very few registered churches allowed to remain open in Russia (as a tourist attraction) are under the ownership and strict control of the Communist authorities. For every Russian Christian member in the permitted building, there are six that meet in the so-called "underground" church. In these meetings, sometimes in homes or in the forest, they can exercise more freedom in worship and talk over plans for witnessing. If discovered, these Christians can be heavily fined or their homes or property can be confiscated by law. Under Article 142 of the Soviet Criminal Code, parents who teach their children at home their Christian beliefs are deprived of parental rights; their children are forcibly removed and taken to a government atheistic boarding school. Bibles are very scarce; Russian Christians feel blessed indeed if they possess even a hand-written copy.

Moscow, with its population of just over six million, has only one authorised evangelical church open as a meeting-place. I found this building in a small street in a suburb. A small door leads into a very large hall, where I was surprised to find a congregation of over two thousand people and all standing (there was no room for chairs). Six times a week these two and a half hour services are packed out; eager and happy faces listen to every word from several speakers.

Many people were making notes, and when each speaker finished, someone would start singing a hymn in which everyone joined; their singing, with great feeling, was wonderful! Every hymn I recognized by the tune as centred on the trials, testing and victory in this earthly life. Very few had hymn-books and these were hand-written, as also were many Bibles. One English-speaking Russian told me afterwards that he had visited churches where the only two Bibles were on loan to members of the congregation. A person was allowed to have a Bible for one week at a time to copy and then it was returned the following week for someone else.

Many Christians I have met in different parts of Russia can quote whole chapters from memory. These are not luke-warm churchgoers, but ardent, glowing Christians. Many have been imprisoned for witnessing for their Saviour. These are the heroes of the faith. I was told of a Christian woman, Aida Skripnokova, who had just served a three years' sentence in a labour camp for the crime of giving out a hand-written gospel tract.

These persecuted Christians have good reason to sing as their closing hymn with both arms raised in prayer, "God be with you till we meet again." Every member of the registered churches is under police observation; hence there are many secret gatherings of Christians in many other places. Many fathers and Bible teachers are in prison camps and slave government factories. Two young sisters are serving a five years' sentence for organising a Sunday School (which is strictly illegal), thus poisoning the minds of the Soviet children, according to the Russian Press. Families suffer hardship and loneliness.

I was able to take into Russia about two dozen excellent copies of the New Testament in Russian. These I passed on to individuals who I thought would value them the most. One sister followed me, walking right across the city to my hotel to obtain one. Some distance away I secretly gave her two copies. Her joy knew no bounds as she skipped quickly away.

All travellers to the Soviet Union are sent to special "foreigners only" hotels; they have no choice. Westerners have to be watched and to see that they do not "go out of bounds". However, I did manage to visit quite a few "unofficial" places and the dear saints were delighted to see me. About five miles outside the city of Leningrad, for instance, I found my way to the only evangelical church allowed to be open for services. Large crowds gather almost every night for a "normal" two and a half hours' ministry meeting and fellowship (many appear to have come straight from the collective farms). Every Sunday the church is open at 5.30 a.m. and is packed by 7.30 a.m.! There is no denominational barrier here and no clock-watching. You soon realise that the Christians are keen to hear more and more about their Lord and to praise Him together. If you meet a Russian Christian and ask him, as we so often do over here in Britain, "Where do you worship?" he would simply reply that he worships "within the veil".

Every Friday they hold a day of fasting and prayer for their fellow-Christians in the Soviet Union. With hugs and kisses everyone is greeted with a Russian greeting and the reply always sounds the same. I was told that the greeting translated into English was, "The Lord is risen," and the reply was always, "The Many pastors of registered churches in Russia have learned by sad experience to tell foreign visitors that all is well with the authorities, but individual members I talked to afterwards gave a different report and they ask for our prayers. When I suggested a visit to one of their homes it was quickly explained that it was not possible as the "informer" in their block of flats would ask awkward questions if I, as a foreigner, was seen entering there.

In Britain, where there is freedom, we are terribly apathetic about gospel witnessing. If you meet a Communist you will know about it within twenty-four hours. If he is a trade unionist, he will tell you within a few days. If you meet a church-goer, it may be months before you hear about it, if at all. What is wrong with us? No one will report us or have us arrested for speaking for the Lord or prayerfully passing on a gospel tract. We claim to be His "ambassadors" or "spokesmen" down here. We are free to hold open-air meetings in Britain but how few are "brave" enough, or concerned enough, or will take time enough to make a stand for their Lord and Saviour. Philippians tells us that we are "heavenly lights on earth holding forth the word of life." Are we? If you were put on trial for being a Christian, would there be enough evidence to convict you? Don't keep the good news of the gospel bottled up inside, but bear in mind the Russian believers who, despite persecution, rejoice in the Lord because they witness for Him daily. At their request, please bear them up daily in your prayers. Though persecuted from all sides, the Russian Christians today are spiritually rich in the Lord and many will receive from Him that "Well done" when they cross over into His presence.

(Mr. Dodds is in fellowship with the Christian Brethren. He was converted under the ministry of P.S. Brewster. Mrs. Dodds is the sister of G.N. Backhouse. Brother Dodds has related his adventures in Russia in a number of our churches. EDITOR.)

Why me?

by Alexander Tee

Pastor of our Southport Church

HAVE you ever heard anyone say, "What have I done to deserve this?" or "Why has this happened to me?".

Most of us have asked this question at some time. There is a vast difference between getting what we feel we deserve and getting what life gives us.

God does not always give an immediate answer to all our questions, but He knows exactly the trials through which we are passing. God knows when we have deep sorrow, bitter disappointment or upsetting circumstances. He tests the faith of even the best people. Hot-house plants can't stand up to very many cold draughts; they wilt and die very easily. Your faith can be strengthened only as it stands up to the circumstances of life. God wants you to have a strong faith in Him.

Jesus told Peter that Satan desired to have him. Then He added, "But I have prayed for you that thy faith fail not". He did not pray that God would refuse Satan permission to get at Peter. He wanted Peter to be victorious. There can be no victory where there is no adversary.

Adversity is often permitted that our faith might be strengthened. Circumstances can become opportunities to strengthen our trust and faith in God. If we don't look at it like this we can easily become bitter and squeeze the sharp knife all the more deeply into our minds and souls.

It is wiser to put our humble trust and faith in God who knows all about us than to become sour towards everybody and everything. Here is the thought for today: Transform adversity into an opportunity to trust the Almighty.

The Bible says, "What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter." This golden promise can shine like a ray of sunshine through a break in the dark, grey clouds.

Jesus Christ still says, "Come unto Me all ye that labour and are heavy laden and I will give you rest." It pays big dividends to bring the Saviour into every personal, private problem.

LATE NEWS — Pastor Tee has been invited by the Voice of Kenya to make seven nationwide television appearances during his crusade in the Nairobi City Hall. Please pray.

"HELLO, grandmother!"

"Well, Jenny, this is a nice surprise! I didn't expect to see you today."

"I've come to thank you for the Christmas present you sent me. I like it ever so much. Thank you, grandmother."

"Come into the kitchen, Jenny. We can talk while I see to the washing."

Jenny's grandmother turned off the washing machine, picked up the tongs and began taking out the washing.

"There, Jenny, everything is nice and clean now!"

"Shall I help you peg them on the line, grandmother?"

"Yes, that will be a big help, dear."

They went into the garden and started pegging out the washing.

"What a lovely white tablecloth!" Jenny exclaimed.

"That is my best cloth," said her grandmother.

"It certainly is very white," said Jenny, as she secured it to the line.

"Let us go indoors now, Jenny, and have a cup of tea."

Jenny and her grandmother sat beside the fire drinking their tea. When they had finished, Jenny offered to wash the cups and saucers before she returned home. As she took the dishes into the kitchen she looked out of the window and noticed that it was snowing heavily.

"Oh, grandmother," she called. "We had better fetch the washing in – it's snowing!" They hurried into the garden and unpegged the washing as fast as they could.

"Well, look at my tablecloth, Jenny! It had looked so clean and white before, but it looks quite grey against the snow, doesn't it?"

"So it does," said Jenny.

"How like that tablecloth we are, Jenny," said her grandmother. "We may appear to be clean and pure and free from sin, but, when we measure ourselves against the light of Jesus, we realise how much we need to seek His cleansing, to make us perfectly clean and free from every stain."

"Then we will be as white as the snow, grandmother."

"Oh, much whiter than that, Jenny!"

Dear Mr. Walker,

I would like to share with you and the readers of the Evangel a great blessing I had during five weeks I spent at Barking during the summer. As a student at Capel, I was asked if I would help out at Barking during my summer vacation.

On my third Sunday there a young man got saved. It was a tremendous conversion; the change in his life was so apparent.

Six days after his conversion he handed me the following note, written for his "own comfort":

The greatest temptation I face

"God and His workings – and the workings of His Son are enigma for a specific purpose.

We are human and cannot fathom Divine motive. Therefore to try to fathom God's being logically is a betrayal, showing that we do not place enough trust in God and that we still have the brashness, ego, and devil in us to find – or should I say try to find – an alternative which does not exist."

It was a tremendous blessing to be handed such a statement of faith from a six-day-old babe in Christ! I hope that it is an encouragement to readers.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Sir,

MAY I endorse Mr. D. Worsfold's letter (Evangel October 14th, 1972) regarding applause in meetings. They are my views. I would add to his second point on modern gospel presentation. There is too much sentimentality. Let's get back to the Bible literally, presenting it in black and white. As saved Christians our final destiny is just to know, love and praise Him alone, only, eternally. God is a holy, almighty God. Could we not have more preaching to the unsaved of the choice of Heaven or Hell for a soul's final destiny?

Yours sincerely in Christ,

(Mrs.) Mary Nicholls

"Having done all . . . to stand."

by Frederick W. Jones
District Superintendent, Scotland

Romans, Chapter 8

THE story of Greyfriars Bobby is well known in Scotland. Bobby, a dog whose master was buried at Greyfriars Kirk in Edinburgh, sat at the grave and refused to leave the place where his master lay. He died beside the tomb. A dog was faithful unto death.

It fits well into the life tapestry of this historic church. Here, in 1638, the anti-episcopal National Covenant was signed and proclaimed by leaders of the Scottish Kirk who resisted and condemned the king's attempt to make episcopacy the compulsory mode of worship. The Covenanters of Scotland, men, women and children, paid dearly in standing for the faith. The heart is stirred, the spirit moved by the retelling of stedfast courage and simple trust which led them to martyrdom. The heritage of religious freedom, which they purchased for us with life-blood, tears and anguish is a challenge to every Christian to stand and, having done all, to stand.

The New Year is traditionally more celebrated north of the border and so, with an acute sense of the occasion, we in Scotland bid a joyous, blessed and fruitful New Year to the Elim Family everywhere.

It has been truly said, "Yesterday is gone, tomorrow may never come, today is all we have", yet, as we stand upon the threshold of 1973, thankful for yesterday, rejoicing in Christ today, it is to tomorrow we look, for which we pray and into which we move, confident of the power and love of God to meet its needs. The New Year brings its demands, the unseen future and its challenge to stand and having done all, to stand.

The peril of falling is very real. We cry, "How can I be sure that I shall stand?" What tremendous comfort, assurance and strength God gives: "My grace is sufficient for thee". He is able. The discovery of this in its fulness and experimental reality can change the whole scene for us, bringing a new intimacy and nearness to God, a new confidence. Happenings that can shatter hope and tear life apart, as an earthquake rends the earth's crust, are met with a strength and fortitude that amazes. Hearts are drenched in the dews of that peace that passeth understanding. When hearts are stayed upon Jehovah they find that this grace is sufficient. Mountains are climbed, rivers are crossed and battles are fought. Having done all, we can stand in His strength and power.

We are influenced from within by two ruling authorities: the spirit, born again, renewed and governed by God's Holy Spirit; and the flesh, still ruled by the old sin bias. As Paul taught in Romans chapter 8, these are at enmity. Jesus said, "The spirit is willing, but the flesh is weak". He knew what was in man. In giving, in duty, in following our Lord, the spirit is often more liberal, earnest, faithful, and sacrificial than the flesh, which we find so demanding of attention. In persecution, difficulty and suffering, the spirit is frequently willing for the Gospel's sake, but the flesh is weak.

One trembles to assess the martyr's feelings in the moment of trial, yet surely, his flesh shrank and recoiled, but, his spirit soared above flame and sword. Even Jesus cried "If it be possible let this cup pass", but, above the almost unsearchable cry from His lips and beyond the sufferings, His omniscience beheld, His spirit rose in submission to God. "Not My will, but Thine be done," He said.

We must guard against finding in the weakness of our flesh the excuse for an unwilling spirit. If we yield to the flesh we most surely bring down the spirit to the level of the flesh. We must cultivate the willingness of the spirit by submitting to the rule of the Holy Spirit that we may be preserved from the snares in which walking in the flesh entangles us.

The secret of the ability to stand and be faithful in the coming year is in walking after the Spirit. Here is God's strength secured in minding the things of the Holy Spirit, for to be spiritually minded is life and peace. Belonging to God, our fear removed, we cry, "If God be for us, who can be against us?". Tribulation, distress, persecution, famine, nakedness, peril and the sword are powerless to separate us from His love and care. Walking in the Spirit, our spirits subject to Him, we are conquerors and are assured of His sufficient grace to stand, faithful until He comes or calls.

The Common Market

by W.J. May

(This article first appeared in The Harvester and is printed here by ki

The existence of the European Community is an historical fact of great importance. History will record that the formation, development and enlargement of this Community was one of the greatest and most significant facts of world-history in the latter half of the twentieth century.

Dr. J.M.A. Luns, the then Dutch Foreign Minister and Founder of the Common Market, writing in the Daily Telegraph, July 19th, 1971, with Britain in mind, asks and answers the question, "What is in it for us?" This is what he said: "The chance to profit from new and vastly increased economic possibilities as well as the chance to help determine the shape of the future, not only of one's own country, but also of western Europe as a whole, and at the same time in a significant measure, of that of the world."

This vision of shaping the future of the world is a very significant one. Whether the Common Market is the forerunner of the revival of the ancient Roman Empire, or the federation of the ten kingdoms of which prophecy speaks, one would not state, but there are two points to make clear. First, an unmistakable resemblance exists between the prophetic picture drawn in the Bible and that which is now taking shape before our eyes. Second, the Roman Empire is to be resuscitated in the end time, and out of that federation will come a superman, a ruler, a leader who will eventually gain universal sway.

The Economic Community exists for more than mere economic reasons. This is obvious from the words of the Commission's former President, Prof. Dr. Walter Hallstein, State Secretary of Federal Republic of Germany. He said concerning the aims of the Community. "We are not in business at all – we are in politics."

Again, writing in the Daily Telegraph of November 25th, 1969, Maurice Green said, "Unless we hope in the end to see that limiting word 'economic' struck out of the formal title of the E.E. Community, we are not accepting what the European idea means. It does not mean, as sometimes it seemed to mean during the period of General de Gaulle's dominance, a bazaar for bargains in national advantage. For many of us a political strategic community is the dominant goal; the economic community of rather less vital interest except as the necessary road to a unity of a more general kind."

Norman St. John Stevas, Conservative M.P., in the Daily Telegraph of July 23rd said, "The Tory leaders hold, and rightly so, that although the letter of the Treaty of Rome is economic, its spirit is profoundly political."

In 1967 Britain made her second application to join this Community of nations, and the statement of her case submitted to the Council of Ministers on July 4th of that year said, "We are aiming at something far more than material prosperity. We see this leading to greater political purpose for Western Europe. And if that purpose is to be realized, Britain must share it. We want, as soon as we can, to develop really effective political unity with our fellow West Europeans."

The effects of membership of this Community will be debated for some time to come, but I want to lay one or two of them before you now.

The Community would have a fairly complete control of the commercial and industrial structure of member states. It will be the largest trading unit in the world.

The Community aims at the mobility of labour, a feature that causes fear in many circles. Twenty-six articles (48–73) are devoted to the policy for the free movement of labour, the right of establishment and the abolition of restrictions on monetary transfers. Indeed Dr. Tatford states in his excellent booklet, Going into Europe, "Plans for a single Community currency were drawn up in 1970 and it is considered very probable that monetary union will be effected by 1980."

Is it difficult to see in the future a complete centralisation of control of industry, with the Commission deciding, for example, the location of factories, the employment of labour, and the best means of production, and so on?

The Community involves a considerable sacrificing of national sovereignty to the supranational authority.

rmission of the Editor, Dr. F. A. Tatford.)

Article 240 of the Rome Treaty makes no provision for withdrawal. Its unique provision means that, once in, no member of his own sole free will has any legitimate treaty right to withdraw. Legally no member of the Community can sever its connection with the others. This is a factor which causes much heart-searching. As far back in 1961–63 when negotiations took place, the then Prime Minister, Mr. Harold MacMillan, acknowledged that membership would involve what he described as "a pooling of sovereignty for all concerned." And in Hansard Mr. Edward Heath is reported as saying, "We should frankly recognize this surrender of sovereignty and its purpose. We accept the Treaty of Rome unequivocally. On May 16th, a Parliamentary White Paper was circulated, which stated that H.M. Government was prepared to surrender its full sovereignty to a world government to be formed. The same day the U.S.A. and Italy made similar declarations. Since then nine other nations have made similar declarations."

Dr. Arnold Toynbee, British historian, said, "We are ripe for the deifying of any new Caesar who might succeed in giving the world unity and peace." Henri Spaak, Secretary General of NATO said in October, 1957, "We do not want another Committee; we have too many already. What we want is a man of sufficient stature to hold the allegiance of all people and to lift us out of the economic morass into which we are sinking. Send us such a man and be he god or devil, we will receive him."

Such is the desperation of Europe today that they are looking for a man, a world figure who could command the attention of the world, the very type of man portrayed by the Bible as the future dictator of the west.

Late Great Planet Earth, by Hal Lindsey, says, "We believe that the Common Market and the trend towards unification of Europe may well be the beginning of the ten nation confederacy predicted by Daniel and the Book of the Revelation."

There are now nine countries in a close-knit Community, which is surely destined to become either a union or a federation of states, economically, commercially and politically. Is there not a reflection of this in Bible prophecy? The Bible tells of a political union or federation of ten kingdoms in the last days.

Students of history have anticipated the revival of the ancient Roman Empire. World history for the last 2½ millenniums has centered in S. Europe, N. Africa and W. Asia. It is only within the last thousand years that Northern Europe and Great Britain have become principal actors, and still more recent is the rise of power in the United States of America.

The Middle East by its very location is destined to play a leading part in the future. Indeed many non-Christian writers have not been backward in suggesting that this part of the world would again become the centre of world political and economic interest.

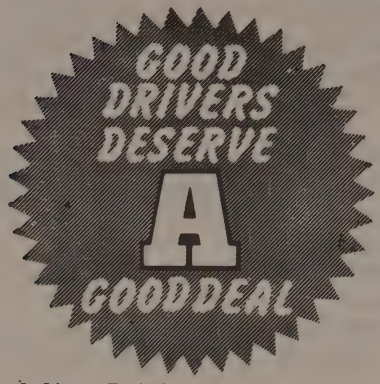
As far as it is possible to piece together the prophetic foreview of the revived Roman Empire, it appears that from a geographical angle it will negotiate three stages.

A confederacy of ten kingdoms within that ancient empire.

The appearance of a powerful man to consolidate those ten kingdoms and possibly extend their influence.

The final stage will be reached when things are completely awry within that confederacy and Jesus Christ returns to fight the seemingly losing cause of His ancient people.

In Daniel 2 Nebuchadnezzar saw an image of four different metals, and they deteriorated in value from the head downwards. The head of gold was Babylon, the silver breast and arms were Medo-Persia, the thighs of brass represented Greece, while the legs of iron depicted the eastern and western divisions of the Roman Empire. In its last stage this empire will be divided into ten kingdoms, depicted by the ten toes which were a mixture of iron and clay.



In Daniel 7 we see that Daniel's vision of the future was that of four wild beasts. The lion was Speaking in Tongues and Poetry

by Philip E. Streeter
Pastor of our Romford Church
Illustrations: Michael Moore

The similarities between speaking in tongues and poetry are unique.

To read Holy Writ is to stumble upon a stream of Divine poetry from the soul of the Creator. God is the Poet and Christ is the theme. One cannot ignore the rhythmic mystery of Job, the singing of the Psalms, Solomon's love songs and the elegy of Lamentations. The swing of poetic language is even encountered in the speech of Jesus. "He speaks with unparalleled originality and poetic power, His language is that of the Psalms, and His style is that of classical Hebrew Poetry," writes Stephen Neill in A History of Christian Missions.

At the coming of the Holy Spirit, a tumbling aftermath of tongues became the peculiar poetic language of people captivated by God.

Rhythm and harmony are vital elements in the art of poetic beauty. Dame Edith Sitwell says, "Rhythm might be described as, to the world of sound, what light is to the visible world. It shapes and gives new meaning."

Tongues seize hold of this mood of beauty in an isolated, exotic degree. The harmonic perfection of tongues is noticeable in the impassioned musical modulations of spoken messages, mystical, intense and penetrating, reverberations from an outside dimension, sounds soaked in significance and feeling. This musical harmony is excitingly evident when a congregation prays or sings together (the latter being an occurrence all too rare today), a multiplicity of languages, even different melodies but with rhythm and symmetry, so unlike the clash of a crowd speaking at once.

Harold Horton paints the lustre of this poetic manifestation in a colourful manner. "The gift of tongues," he says, "sinks a well into the dumb profundities of the rejoicing spirit, liberating a jet of long-pent ecstacy that gladdens the heart of God and man. Blessed fountain of ineffable coherence of inexpressible eloquence . . . This heavenly gift will loose the spirit's tongue and burst upon the speechless heart with utterance transcending a sage's imaginings or angel rhapsodies."

Poetry is also regarded as a condensation of speech, distilled from thoughts of things seen and heard. Tongues are a Divine structure of thought, as many interpretations given in the Church reveal. Interpretations are also a structure of poetry, both in content and often in the lilt and swing of the speech.

God had but to speak in the Beginning (Genesis chapter 1) and His words exploded into form and shape. Seas appeared, stars swung across silent space and man was sculptured in the image of His word. It was a poetic beginning, for the "Morning stars sang together, and all the sons of God shouted for joy." (Job 38:7). We could call Christ the "Poem of the Father". When we speak in tongues, it becomes the poetic language of people enchanted by God.

Then again, poetry is ageless, its message being applicable to all times. Speaking in tongues is ageless in the sense that its manifestations are often in an ancient language or even in an extinct one as well as in present-day vernaculars. Its sounds tremble across the entire spectrum of human languages, primitive to modern.

Edith Sitwell remarks that "Poetry ennobles the heart and unveils the meaning of all things upon which the hearts and eyes dwell." Paul voices similar words in 1 Corinthians 2:9,10 (R.S.V.): "What no eye has seen, nor ear heard, nor the heart of man conceived, what God has prepared for those who love Him, God has revealed to us through the Spirit." Eternity, in all its poetic wonder, is captured through the poetry of the Spirit. The blissful paradisaical realm of mystery. "Howbeit," says Paul referring to tongues, "In the Spirit he speaketh mysteries" (1 Corinthians 14:2). At this poetical wonder that Thomas á Kempis sobbed, "I cleave to Thee in wild excess of joy."

On a similar theme, Sir Arthur Eddington said that one of the purposes of poetry is "To make all the days of our life, each moment of our life, holy to us." This is vitally true of speaking in tongues. Praying in the Spirit and spiritual praise are evidences of devotion to Christ and a quest to attain His likeness. Because we love Him, sudden awareness of His presence forces a string of tongues from our lips. Having glimpsed Him, poetry remains our only medium of expression – poetry in the Spirit!

Poetry, then, can give understanding of the character of the gift, while the gift, when operative in personal devotion, becomes the embodiment of a more profound poetry.

Thoughts from the Book of Genesis

7 "The Lord shut him in" (Genesis.7:16)

by F. Lavender

THERE began for Noah a strange and terrible experience when the Lord shut him in the Ark, for, soon after the door was closed, the Flood came upon the earth. Noah had never before seen rain, but now it poured down in a deluge, while the earth was convulsed by frightening earth and sea quakes. The most awful tidal waves swept across the earth; all round the Ark terrified people and animals perished in the waters. For many months Noah was a prisoner in the Ark, living most of the time in the dark, his only light coming from the window in the roof. It must have seemed to Noah that the Lord had forgotten him, but all the time the Lord watched over him and cared for him, eventually bringing him out to a cleansed, renewed earth.

What happened to Noah pictures what may happen in our experiences. There comes a time when we seem to have been "shut in", circumstances so enclose us that, like Job, we feel that the Lord has hedged us in, while one blow after another beats upon our lives. Things become so terrible that it seems that the Lord must have forsaken us; to a great extent we live in the dark. At such times the Lord especially requires our trust. We can learn to have the upward look of confidence in Him so that we say, with Job, "Though He slay me, yet will I trust Him"! At last the Lord, Who shut the door, will open it again to bring us out to new opportunities of joyous service and blessing.

Life's Balance Sheet

WE hear rather a lot today about "Mr. Rising Price". His activities are not confined to Britain. One thing is certain that, in Church life, when the time comes round for the preparation of the annual accounts, as in the business world, "the powers that be" are eager to receive a satisfactory statement.

Mr. Rising Price causes great anxiety wherever he rears his ugly head and income and expenditure do not always tally as we hope they will. I have never envied the Church Treasurer having to prepare and read out the church accounts and sometimes explain the costs and figures which, with the complicated finances of today, is a difficult task. I well remember the rather jolly custom in one church where each statement of accounts was prefaced by a joke or amusing anecdote, probably to put the congregation in a cheerful mood.

I have always had a tendency to consider money as a necessary evil. Whether we refer to the commodity as hard cash, pounds and pence, our bank balance, or financial assets, we all have to keep accounts and render a balance sheet at some time in life, even if it is only the housewife totting up the price of items after a shopping spree. It occurs to me that Zaccheus must have listened with great interest to the parable that the Lord told on the day that he visited Jericho (Luke 19:1–26). Zaccheus, so rich, the chief tax-collector, a wizard with figures, would surely appreciate the stern reality of the narrative and the contrast between the reliable steward and the fearful, lazy one. There is always a reckoning day, be it in this life, or in the life to come. As Christians, then, it is apparent that we must first be trustworthy and then diligent with the money and the assets we possess, and how much more so in handling and using the currency of the Kingdom of God. We must spend wisely for there is to be a time when we must submit an account.

In 1 Corinthians 4:2 Paul reminds us "moreover it is required in stewards that a man be found faithfull" and in Romans 14:12 he tells all believers to refrain from judging others and to prepare ourselves as individuals to stand before God for "everyone of us shall give account of himself to God".

At the close of an annual church business meeting I have heard the remark, "Well, we've certainly got a healthy bank balance", but I wonder if it is always right to use such a phrase? It may be indicative of an unhealthy situation. Finance stored up perhaps for unnecessary luxurious furnishings and equipment or for the proverbial rainy day does not impress the Almighty nor look good in the light of His Son's near return. Isn't it true that the spread of the gospel is being hindered by lack of funds?

Dear Pastor Joseph Smith, our veteran Bible teacher, has many times said that he never craved for a large bank balance either personally or in the churches that he pastored. The Lord emphatically condemned the servant who hid his master's money in the ground and never put it to work. On the great accounting day, the tally will be what we have done with what we had, not how much is left unused.

Lay up treasure in heaven,
Life will pass away,
Lay up treasure in abundant measure,
For the great accounting day;
Lay up treasure in heaven,
Though men count thee poor,
Thou shalt reign with the sons of God

Babylon, the bear was Medo-Persia, the leopard was the Grecian Empire, while the fourth beast was unnamed and stood for Rome. This fourth unnamed beast was more ferocious than all the others and, in keeping with the first phase of that empire, it "devoured, brake in pieces and stamped the residue with his feet."

The final stage of this empire, according to Daniel 7, is stated in the expression, "it had ten horns" (7:7), interpreted in v.24 as "ten kings." At no time in the history of the Roman Empire did it exist in this fashion; the picture here alludes to its reformation in the last days. Out of the ten horns there appeared another little horn. This devours three of the other horns, and he is going to have the eyes of a man, and a mouth speaking great things (7:8). This character, whom we may safely associate with the "coming Prince" of Daniel 9, will be of a blasphemous character, and will be finally destroyed by the appearing of the Lord on the earth. Before that takes place, this superman, this world Fuehrer, will assume world domination. This is stated in Daniel 7:23 and confirmed in Revelation 13:7,8.

This final stage will take place at the beginning of the great tribulation. The very character of this world federation is such that stability is missing – it is to be a mixture of iron and clay. This instability will pave the way for the rebellion of major sections of the world described as leading to the battle of Armageddon (Revelation 19).

Walter Farr, dealing with how going into the Common Market might affect ordinary people, says, "Many of the founders of the Common Market were deeply religious men. They hoped that as political divisions between countries are healed, the ecumenical movements will be strengthened."

The ecumenism of today is paving the way for the apostate church of the end time: all Christendom under the Roman banner. The two beasts of Revelation 13 would appear as political and religious. They will go hand in hand for some time, but eventually, according to Revelation 17:16,17, the political ruler will turn upon the great religious organization and completely destroy it.

What is to be the attitude of the Christian as things begin to unfold in Europe and the world? Every Christian has to make up his own mind whether he will be for or against, but if all these things are the forerunner of our Lord's near return, then there is no doubt as to what our attitude should be in life and living. We are to watch, wait and warn. The signs around seem to point in one direction, the Coming of Christ.

Sunday School Nursery Groups

by Mrs. A. Livings

IN view of the present trend in education towards nursery schools, make room in Sunday school for the nursery group.

This would involve:

(a) separate room

(b) toys of various kinds

(c) suitable supervision.

Furniture could be minimal, but floor-covering is essential, for little ones like to sit on the floor.

My own Headmistress once bequeathed a box of squeaky toys. I removed the squeaks and the toys gave just as much joy. Fat, chunky crayons and scrap paper or wallpaper will do for "art" work. Short periods of story and singing, then activity suit these little ones.

Young Jenny aged 15 years is not the ideal here. If she is a sound Christian she would talk better with her own age group. A motherly person, who won't mind the occasional wet pants or needy nose, who can sing children's songs and choruses, perhaps play the piano a little and generally love the toddlers for Jesus' sake, will be very helpful. A second person is really needed in case of emergency. Imagination and love, stories told not read, can do so much.

Having come to the Lord at an early age, I feel the need to catch them young. If the Catholics say "until seven" and the educationalists say most learning is done by five years of age, we ought to see and seize this opportunity. Having made the experiment in Congo, where any child big enough to put his fingers into mother's cook-pot could come to kindergarten, I can recommend it. I shall always recall going into the Christian compound and finding Ezekiel aged three and another batch of toddlers playing school. With finger raised to conduct them, he was making them recite, "Jesus said, I am the way, the truth and the life". His father was my senior teacher. When he was called to witness it, he was amazed to think that we had not been wasting time with the babies.

The other main point is training teachers. Not all trained teachers feel that they can teach in Sunday school, as well as in day school, but they could and no doubt would, give time to set out the guide-lines of teaching to the prospective teachers.

In recruiting, there are parents who, having no interest in Christian education, can be approached from the angle of "knowing where Johnny will be for an hour on two on Sunday afternoon."

Children are so often carried to day school and so will not come to Sunday school on their own feet if they do not have Christian parental backing. Where children are brought by bus, then the bus needs very careful supervision; escort duty is irksome but essential. Children should be taught to sit in the bus and this must be insisted on. A sudden stop can mean a nasty jolt or maybe a nose-bleed.

Big brothers and sisters should be encouraged to hand toddlers over to the nursery group. One infant can wreck a class of older children, but could be quite happy in his own session or group.

(Mrs. Livings is the wife of the Pastor of our Bridgwater Church. She is a teacher, and has been a Headmistress. Our sister served the the Congo [now Zaire] Evangelistic Mission and, among the children whom she taught, was the daughter of our Missionary Secretary. EDITOR)

A WARNING

We underestimate and even ignore a growing danger. There is now a big, self-conscious minority (or is a majority ?) of people in this country who have ceased to be indifferent as to whether the England of the future is to be Christian or not. Their secularism is now becoming articulate and aggressive. They demand a philosophy and way of life which shall be non-religious if not anti-Christian. While the Churches are cautiously manoeuvring for their new approach to the old and now urgent problem of religious education in the schools of the nation, powerful and frankly irreligious forces threaten all such education with total abolition. In short, we are confronted with a new religious situation in England; one which has had no parallel here for several centuries. The result is that the differences of theological principle presupposed by our divisions are relatively insignificant, when compared with the difference between our common faith and the blatant irreligion which menaces it. When it is too late, the Churches may begin to repent and to think seriously about a common front. As things are, while they persist in making disunion their constitutive principle, the real enemy is at the gate, and the noise of his knocking grows steadily louder.

Scripture Union Portions — Notes by R.A. Gull

Monday, January 8th — Philippians 3:1–11

"I have suffered the loss of all things, and do count them but dung, that I may win Christ." (v.8).

PAUL would have suffered spiritual shipwreck with a capacity cargo of self esteem had he not been willing to "lighten the ship" (Acts 27:35). His pride of race – "of the stock of Israel" (v.5); his zeal in religion – "a Pharisee" (v.5); his level of righteousness – "in the law, blameless" (v.6), were all counted and consigned to oblivion.

Lord, give me now a rundown on my personal cargo and a statement of my own profit and loss account. Lord, help me now to "lighten the ship".

Tuesday, January 9th — Philippians 3:12–21

"That I may apprehend [grasp] that for which also I am apprehended" (v.12).

IT is true of life that we possess only that which possesses us, that we master only that to which we subject ourselves. One musician has said, "I am a Master, only because I am a slave." Paul writes, "I follow after . . . I press toward" (vv.12,14).

Lord, let me follow you today in something new, and, Lord, if I am "otherwise minded" show this to me, too.

Wednesday, January 10th — Philippians 4:1–9

"True yokefellow" (v.3).

PAUL could call the Philippian reader "the-one-who-genuinely-shared-it-all" with him! (v.14: it was kind of you to share my trouble." R.S.V.).

Yoke – what a mixture of meanings the word presents! To some it speaks of a tiresome load, while to others it means a precious link. The same word in the Greek is used of the beam of a balance (Revelation 6:5) and hence we get the idea of carefully apportioned burdens laid upon us with mercy and understanding and never greater than we can bear.

Thursday, January 11th — Philippians 4:10–23

"Therewith to be content." (v.11).

WHAT – "content therewith", Paul says. Content with belittlement, lack of recognition, hunger, frustrated aspirations, poverty and limited ability, is he, or content because of popularity, prosperity and plenty?

NO! – the mere interpolation "therewith" cannot so bind us, for we know that our rejoicing is in God (v.10), our assurance in His strength (v.13). Not "therewith", but "therein" shall I be content.

"The Lord's anointed" (vv.14,16).

WHAT deep respect David showed towards the jealous, fearful, backslidden Saul! To David, Saul was ever, "The king", "My lord the king", "My father", but most of all he was "The Lord's anointed." Only when the Lord's rejection culminated in Saul's death did David dare to call him simply, "Saul" (v.23).

God grant to us such a respect and love in these days for the children of God, our brethren. They are not backsliding and sinful, as was Saul, yet we are so quick to "stretch forth our hand" against them.

Saturday, January 13th — 2 Samuel 1:17–27

"How are the mighty fallen!" (vv.19,25,27).

SEE the fallen, the mighty defeated, the strong destroyed. It is sad to see the child of God distressed through his own disobedience. David's greater sorrow was that Saul's disobedience had resulted in the tragic loss of Jonathan's life also. There is surely no sadder sight than to see a child of God distressed through the disobedience of another.

"Ye mountains of Gilboa" (v.21): it was while encamped at Gilboa (1 Samuel 28:4) that Saul so angered God as to hear his own death foretold.

May the Lord keep us true!

Sunday, January 14th — 2 Samuel 2:1–17

"David enquired of the Lord" (v.1).

"DAVID inquired of the Lord saying, Shall I . . . ?" (v.1); "But Abner . . . took Ish-bosheth . . . and made him king." (vv.8,9).

Seven times we read that David inquired of the Lord – enough for us to recognise a pattern in David's behaviour – and what a profitable habit! Abner had no thought for God – to his own detriment and to the eventual failure of his plans. Of Saul we read that, though he inquired of God, yet "the Lord answered him not" (1 Samuel 28:6).

God help us ever to value and guard the privilege of prayer.

William Tyndale Underground Evangelist

by Leon C. Quest

WE read and hear news about the Bible being printed in the languages of communist countries, where restrictions are placed on the Bible being printed, sold or read. People run personal risk to get the Bible to these countries and many are imprisoned for obtaining it there.

This kind of ministry or evangelism took place in our own country during the days of William Tyndale. He was born in Gloucestershire in A.D. 1471. He went to Oxford to study at the age of twenty-nine, and went on to Cambridge, where he met Erasmus the first Greek scholar of his day, who published the first Greek Testament to be printed. William Tyndale studied Greek and was enabled to read and translate the New Testament.

In 1522 Tyndale visited London for the purpose of securing the sanction of Tunstal, Bishop of London, for the purpose of carrying out his work of translating the New Testament into English, but, quoting Tyndale's own words, "There was no room or place in my Lord of London's palace to translate." Tyndale saw men led to prison and to death for offences far less (in the eyes of the then law) than attempting to publish an English New Testament.

A wealthy merchant, Mr. Humphrey Monmouth became his helper, and enabled him by a promise of ten pounds a year, to set out for the Continent in the spring of 1524.

Tyndale went to Hamburg and to see Martin Luther at Wittenberg. The only books he had to help him, in addition to the Vulgate and Martin Luther's translation were one grammar, one Greek grammar, two Greek dictionaries, one Greek lexicon, and one Greek and Latin lexicon.

May, 1525, we find him at Cologne, working very hard translating and preparing to print the New Testament. Some 3,500 copies of an English New Testament were in the press, when an enemy, John Cochaeus, made his mission known.Tyndale and his team fled with the quarto sheets, printed in Cologne, up the River Rhine to Worms, where he printed an octavo edition. This was smuggled into England in bales of wool and cloth, in cases, in barrels, and in sacks of flour. Every secret way that could be devised was used to send the Bible to Britain. Despite great vigilance in watching ports, the Bibles arrived and were scattered far and wide throughout the country.

Tunstal, the Bishop of London, ordered all who possessed copies of these editions to deliver them to the Vicar-General within thirty days under pain of excommunication.

In the fourteenth century, before printing was in operation, it took Wycliffe some ten months to finish writing one copy of the Scriptures and cost some forty pounds in old English money to buy. Those who could not afford to buy a copy would pay a considerable sum to be allowed to read one for one hour a day. Sometimes a load of hay was given for a few pages. The price of William Tyndale's Bible in 1528, however, was half-a-crown.

He stuck to his work of translating and publishing to the last. He was arrested in 1535 and on October 6th, 1536, he was strangled at the stake and then burnt to ashes.

When Tyndale went from Oxford to Cambridge, he felt an impulse in his heart and said to someone, "If God spare my life, ere many years I will cause a boy that driveth a plough shall know more of the Scriptures than thou dost!" Forty years later, his dream became a fact.

His prayer at the stake was "Lord, open the King of England's eyes!", a prayer which was nearer to its answer than the heroic martyr deemed, for by 1539 the Great Bible was chained to the reading desk in every Parish Church in England. Its value was about nine pounds, yet some 20,000 copies were issued from the press.

Our prayer is, "Lord, open the eyes of the rulers in communist countries!"

ISAIAH 55 is a marvellous chapter. It abounds with familiar, dearly-loved statements and promises. It has enriched literature, ennobled thought, inspired song, enhanced expressions of worship. It clearly foretells and proclaims Gospel truth and challenges the depths of Christian consecration. As so often in Scripture, it deals with social habits, customs and dealings, and relates them to the Divine purpose and plan. All in all it is a master-piece.

I have been studying vv. 10,11 again. We rightly take these words as a thrilling promise that God has a definite, scheduled, covenanted purpose in Gospel preaching. We do not have to ask that His Word will not return unto Him void. He has staked His Word that it will not. Our view ought rather to be towards being in the right place to share in the Divine task of fulfilment. The descent of the rain and the snow is inevitable, normal, natural, Divinely promised. So is the accomplishment of God's will in His Word. Hallelujah!

There is more to it than this, however. This is one more example of our promise box approach. We take out these two verses and fail to apply them to the whole theme and trend of the context.

The chapter plainly is part of the great Messianic unveiling of the second part of Isaiah's vast prophecy. The "comfortable" words which begin at chapter 40 are reaching their ascending climax by the time you get to chapter 55. The certainty of the fulfilment of God's Word in preaching the Gospel is not one wit greater than the sublime certainty that His Word will also be fully implemented in the grand design of the ages. God is on the throne. He is working to a Master plan. He formed the world. He created the universe. He has the whole in His hands. Rejoice in Him! Exult in His majesty!

"Jesus is coming, sing the glad word". We do not hope in a possibility, but in a certainty. Our hope is not surrounded with ifs and buts. He is coming! There is no small print, deliberately clouded in solicitor's jargon to make you think that you are getting much when really your rights are being taken away from you, as in so many so-called guarantees. He tells us He is coming and it is quite enough. He is!

"It shall accomplish that which I please," says the Word. We say, "Even so" and "Amen"!

STOCKPORT Pastor: E. Snelling

A GREAT time of blessing was enjoyed at the monthly rally here at Stockport. The church was full. The meeting was convened by our Pastor. Pastor A. Lambie ministered the Word.

The occasion was brought to a wonderful climax when seven candidates were baptised, all having received salvation recently. They attend our Chorlton, Salford and Stockport churches. The Stockport members were thrilled to see three of our number pass through the waters, two of these being a mother and her daughter aged twelve years. Praise the Lord!

REVOLUTION is a word which conjures up pictures of bullets, bloodshed and hatred. The one that was discussed at the North-east presbytery youth house party at Scarborough was a revolution of love. We had the pleasure of the company of Pastor I. Wynne Lewis as our guest speaker.

We heard that the world needs a revolution, and how we all need one in our lives, and indeed the Church needs one too. We realised that God could use such as us as young people to start this work. There were times for prayer and praise, questions and answers, fun and laughter. God blessed us when we went to the local church for the Sunday morning communion, where Pastor A.L. Hawkes gave the Word.

We thank God for the ministry of Pastor Lewis. We all went back to our churches with the feeling that the seeds of revolution had indeed been sown.

We would also like to thank Pastor and Mrs. A.L. Hawkes for all their hard work and love in organising a really blessed weekend.

BRISTOL Pastors: W.R.Jones and R.T.W. Cradock

"THIS is the day that the Lord hath made". This part of a verse of Scripture has been on my mind recently. What a miserable Sunday it was as far as the weather was concerned, but this in no way interfered with the wonderful blessing of God. Right from the very first hymn of the day there was a powerful anointing on both morning and evening services.

A great crowd gathered for the evening youth rally, despite the weather. The congregation sat under anointed ministry in song from the City Temple's own "New Creation" youth choir. There was an item from the Junior Crusaders; how lovely it was to hear those children singing to the glory of God. We heard a testimony that was along the same lines as the final words of a very challenging message from God's Word, brought to us by Pastor W.R. Jones. During the appeal, as the choir sang, "Give your life to Him right now" thirteen people responded and made their way to the front of the church. One lady, without any prompting, knelt to the floor as she invited Christ into her life. We do praise God, for yet again the kingdom of God was extended.

STOWMARKET Pastor: M.A. Drew

WE thank God for rich blessing received during our recent crusade under the anointed ministry of Pastor F. Lavender. We rejoice that a young lady was restored to her Saviour, decisions for Christ were made and several people experienced the touch of God.

The children's crusade was very successful with eighty excited youngsters waiting to welcome "Robi Robot" under the able management of our Pastor and Pastor J. Harrison. Headlines and photographs appeared in the local press.

On the Monday evening mention was made on the T.V. programme "Looking East".

We praise God for several decisions made among the young people and rejoice that we have twenty-five to thirty children at our Tuesday Night Specials.

"Rhondda For Christ" Crusade

THE last two weeks of October saw a move of God not known in the Rhondda Valley area for some years. Pastors Gordon Weeks and David Ware, from churches in Belfast and Dublin respectively, were invited by sixteen assemblies from the Elim, Assemblies of God and Apostolic movements, and one independent church, to the "Rhondda For Christ Crusade". We thank God for the move of His Spirit which we still are experiencing. Hundreds came to each Crusade service which were sealed by the manifestation of the Holy Ghost. Over fifty decisions for Christ were registered. Testimonies of healing were received. Christians were fired with a new enthusiasm to win men and women as the Word of God was ministered in the power of the Holy Ghost. The two ministers balanced each other wonderfully well; they preached on alternate nights.

On the opening day, approximately 150 local Christians supproted four lengthy marches, in places about five minutes drive away from each other. They were half car-cavalcades and half marches, but that afternoon four areas of the Rhondda Valley discovered that people of every age and walk of life are thrilled with Jesus.

On the following Saturday a nineteen-car Cavalcade travelled through both the Rhondda Valleys, letting the folk know that 1972 could be another 1904 and that we were crusading for Christ.

Many congratulated the united Pentecostal choir, formed especially for the crusade, for singing which was polished and anointed. The eighty strong choir were thankful for the opportunity. Soloists and duetists came from the surrounding valleys and districts. Testimonies brought much blessing to everybody present.

The Mayor of the Rhondda paid the Crusade an official visit on one night of the crusade; he explained how much he was in support of our effort. The Mayor himself asked if he could come.

The services did much to unite the local Pentecostal assemblies. The manifestation of the Master's presence searching the lost souls of men and women made an impact on hundreds of lives.

One lady, whose whole family of six was converted at the crusade, told how Christ had entered their home in a wonderful way. So heart-stirring was the entrance of Christ into her life and her husband's that, immediately after their conversion, their work at a local bingo hall seemed so empty that they handed in their notice. The lady herself was on the admission desk. She told the writer that "inviting people to come to bingo seemed so wrong when I could have been inviting people to come and hear what Jesus can do". This was only days after her conversion.

KEITH LANNON

WINTON, Bournemouth Pastor: G.N. Backhouse

THE opportunity was taken to combine the Harvest Festival service on the Sunday morning with the Sunday school. A good number of parents, children and friends attended to enjoy the colourful display of flowers and fruits and to listen to the Word of God.

A series of special children's meetings were led by Mr. Joe Fudge, the talks being given by various members of the church. The children enjoyed these meetings and we praise God for those who have joined the Sunday school as a result, many of them from the immediate neighbourhood.

At our Pastor's fourth anniversary it was fitting that tribute was paid to the faithfulness and enthusiasm which is so marked a feature of the service of both Pastor and Mrs. Backhouse. Pastor Eldin R. Corsie was the guest speaker. His ministry was a source of blessing and encouragement. We praise God for the inspiration of these meetings and for the musical ministry which contributed in no small measure. Pastor Corsie on the piano, the singing of Terry House, songs old and new by the Springbourne Five, and the Wessex Gospel Choir under their conductor, Mr. D.S. House, all helped to make the weekend a time of rich blessing.

(Mrs.) D.F. KEMP

EVESHAM Pastor: J.R. Brown

WE recently had our first annual business meeting. A diaconate was formed and the church affairs were fully discussed. We see this step as a launching pad from which we will go on to greater things for the glory of the Lord. The work is being consolidated. One by one new members are being added. We recently received five new members into fellowship and we praise God for His evident blessing on our church.

At our last monthly rally, we were blessed by the ministry of Pastor B.R.J. Garrard and members from our Worcester church. The hall was packed to capacity with over 100 folk and it was a joy to listen to testimonies of the goodness of God and to have the choir render two lovely items. Pastor Garrard's message on Elijah brought a great challenge to our hearts.

Please pray for us as we seek to develop our outreach in the town and surrounding area.

Points for Preachers

by J. Alexander Wright

An Outline
He is able
(Ephesians 3:14-21)

A FAIR, vital distinction between all other religions and the Christian Faith is that they are based on self-realisation. They say, "You can." Christianity says, "You cannot, but He can." Feed your soul on this grand title.

1. Able to succour the tempted (Hebrews 2:18)
2. Able to save the sinful (Hebrews 7:25)
3. Able to secure us from falling (Jude 24)
4. Able to safeguard the committed (2 Timothy 1:12)
5. Able to surpass all our dreams (Ephesians 3:20)

The question is:- "Is the power working in you?" (Ephesians 3:20).

An Incident
"What you are speaks so loudly"

A HUNDRED years ago, H.M. Stanley, the American newspaper reporter, mounted a great expedition to the heart of darkest Africa, to search for the lost British missionary and explorer, David Livingstone. He found him and spent some months with him. Throughout those months he watched "this old man", as he described him. His habits he could not understand, his patience was quite beyond his comprehension, his sympathy for the natives utterly beyond his grasp. "When I saw that unwearied patience", he wrote, "that unflagging zeal, those enlightened sons of Africa, I became a Christian at his side, though he never spoke to me about it."

Lord, lay some soul upon my heart, and love that soul through me;
And may I nobly do my part, to bring that soul to Thee.

A Quotation
Getting People to Church

"WE ministers are terribly to blame . . . for we use unworthy arguments and unworthy means to persuade people to come to church. The only true and satisfactory reason for coming is simply that you cannot stay away. If the pastor can implant that reason in the heart of one, it is a greater triumph than persuading a thousand to come."

Arthur Hopkinson, Pastor's Progress.

Speaking in Tongues - The Historical Reality

1 Early days

by Philip E. Streeter
Pastor of our Romford Church
Illustration: Michael Moore

ECHOING and breathtaking in its impact, the prophetic fulfilment of Isaiah's inspired utterance in 712 B.C., "For with stammering lips and another tongue will He speak to this people", (Isaiah 28:11) burst into fulfilment within an upper room somewhere along Jerusalem's winding streets.

Before the Day of Pentecost, many spiritual gifts had been apparent in the Old Testament era. On the Day of Pentecost, however, this new spiritual prodigy became uniquely associated with the Church of Jesus Christ.

There are many in Christendom who assert that speaking in tongues was the heritage of the Early Church only. Exponents of this theory have constructed favourable fabrications to sweep speaking in tongues back into the exploded past. They declare that supernatural signs were given to vindicate the Deity of our Lord and to confirm the ministry of the apostles. Tongues, they say, should be regarded as transitory and that, when their object of establishing Christianity had been accomplished, they gradually disappeared from the pageant of Church history. Holy Scripture states quite emphatically, however, that the Baptism in the Holy Spirit is for all Christians in the flowing stream of the Church age: "For the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off; even as many as the Lord our God shall call" (Acts 2:39).

Others have insisted that the manifestation of tongues disappeared by the end of the third century A.D. This is untrue, although historical occurrences were by no means as frequent as in apostolic days. There is no vacuum in its operation in the history of Church life, as we shall see. The Encyclopaedia Britannica endorses this: "Glossolalia recurs in Christian revivals of every age."

Fredrick W. Farrar D.D., former Dean of Canterbury Cathedral, in the preface of his book Darkness and Dawn, remarks: "Even for the minutest allusions and particulars, I have contemporary authority . . . the book is not a novel, nor is it to be judged as a novel. The outline has been imperatively decided for me by the exigencies of fact, not by the rules of art." Turning to page 167 we see his remarkable sympathy toward speaking in tongues, which he so sacredly and dramatically describes. Enjoy its charm: "Britannicus stood transfixed and thrilled to the very depths of his whole being. For now a voice such as he had never heard – a sound unearthly and unaccountable – seemed not only to strike his ears, but to grasp his very heart. It was awful in its range, its tone, its modulations, its startling, penetrating, appalling power; and although he was unable to understand its utterance, it seemed to convey the loftiest eloquence of religious rapture and conviction. And in a moment or two, other voices joined it. The words they spoke were exalted, intense, impassioned, full of mystic significance. They did not speak in their ordinary familiar tongue, but in what seemed to be as it were the essence and idea of all languages, though no one could tell whether it was Hebrew, or Greek, or Latin, or Persian . . . The burden of the thoughts of the speakers seemed to be the ejaculation of ecstasy, of amazement, of thanksgiving, of supplication, of passionate dithyramb or psalm. They spoke not to each other, or to the congregation, but seemed to be addressing their inspired soliloquy to God . . . there was no disorder in the various voices. They were reverberations of one and the same supernatural ecstasy – echoes awakened in different consciences by one and the same motion. Britannicus had heard the glossolalia – the gift of the tongue. He had been a witness of the Pentecostal marvel, a phenomenon which heathendom had never known."

So, with the lamp of the Holy Spirit scattering pencils of light into the darkness of history, we make quest for evidence of speaking in tongues.

Philip Schaff in his 'History of the Apostolic Church' writes: "The speaking in tongues however, was not confined to the day of Pentecost, together with the other extraordinary gifts . . . this gift also perpetuated itself in the Church."

We find traces in the second and third centuries, for Eusebius tells us that in 173 A.D. at Ardaba, a village in Phrygia, Montanus began to prophesy. He spoke in strange tongues in a manner unknown at that time in the Church. Montanus the reformer, heralded a revival by pleading with Christians to anticipate a new Pentecost and to expect the same signs and manifestations that had attended the first. It must be frankly admitted that Montanism disrupted into some fanaticism, but, in an era of apathy like the latter portion of the second century A.D., the zeal compensated for the prevailing religious gloom.

John Wesley, in his diary insertion for August 15th, 1750, while meditating on the early Montanists, writes: "By reflecting on an odd book which I read in this journey The General Delusion of Christians with regard to Prophecy , I was fully convinced of what I had long suspected: (1) that the Montanists in the second and third centuries were real, scriptural Christians; and (2) that the grand reason why the miraculous gifts were so soon withdrawn, was not only faith and holiness were well nigh lost, but that dry, formal, orthodox men began even then to ridicule whatever gifts they had not themselves, and to decry them all as either madness or imposture."

It is quite possible that present day chanting evolves from "singing in the Spirit", which appears to have played such a vital part in Early Church worship. William Smith in his Dictionary of the Bible asserts that some of the later hymns of the Early Church were marked by a strange blending of mystic names and half-coherent thoughts, as in one of the hymns written by Clement of Alexandria and in the earliest Sibylline verses. Some of these hymns were influenced by utterances in tongues in which powerful feelings of worship and adoration had originally shown themselves.

Speaking in tongues was not extinguished with the passing on of the apostles, as we shall next observe in the writings of the Church fathers.

Robbing God

Matthew 21:13

by T. W. Jacobs

Pastor of our Church at Cradley Heath, Warley.

A FEW years ago, the chief cashier of a Midland firm embezzled some of its money because of personal problems. The moment of discovery brought the inevitable consequence of instant dismissal with all its shame and lasting stigma. Any fair-minded person would agree with the punishment. The man involved had misappropriated legal properties.

When Jesus cleansed the Temple, He was moved to execute Divine justice. The rulers had robbed God's House of its rightful purpose. As God, Jesus had the right instantly to dismiss the offenders and to restore the original function of this splendid structure to be a house of "healing and hallelujahs".

Alas, the blessed sounds of worship were soon lost again and Christ finally and irrevocably pronounced the Temple's liquidation: "Your house is left unto you desolate". A new spiritual household was to be brought into being. Christ Himself was to be the Chief Cornerstone. Peter wrote to Christians: "Ye also, as lively stones, are built up a spiritual house, an holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices". The teaching of the New Testament is that the bodies of Christians are the temple of God. Man was created to enjoy fellowship with God. Adam's flirtation with sin not only denied him the blessings of Eden; it also robbed God of His prime creation.

The life of any man on earth today is incomplete without God. Dr. Billy Graham says, "This world is not big enough to satisfy the true desires of a human soul." Sin is the misappropriation of God's legal property. Christians who are infected with the disease of backsliding are robbing God. Such lives are more concerned with goods than God.

The disciples shared and assisted in many aspects of Christ's ministry: the preaching of the kingdom, the ministry of healing, fetching asses and feeding crowds, but cleansing was uniquely a work of Christ. He alone can forgive sin and channel a life back to being what God intended. The path of good works and new resolves are well-worn and futile. The road of religion and church attendance is commendable, but only the way of the cross leads home. "Thou must save and Thou alone".

Do not rob God any longer. Realise that you thus rob yourself of a full, complete life. Without Christ you are lost.

Ulster Safari

"I HAD better get you across the city before dark; things have been very tricky recently," said the Elim minister who collected me from the airport. As we drove across Belfast he pointed out bombed buildings. "I saw that one on T.V." I said. "Why, they are in business again!" I exclaimed. "I was preaching in that Baptist church", he pointed, "And a bomb went off there; my car was bombarded with debris."

My first night was spent in the home of the genial host and guide of visiting Elim missionaries. At bedtime, I marvelled as he prayed for the city, the soldiers, police and firemen and his own flock. He then tuned his radio to the police reports. "I often check at midnight to see that all is well," he said. "Once or twice I have gone out at dawn to a certain area. Some of my people have been in considerable danger."

The next day I set out for the first of the thirty churches I was to visit. My introduction to a beleaguered Ulster was embattled towns with centres sealed off, barricades, ramps and interrogating police and soldiers. Even villages have had at least one bomb. Saracens and troops are everywhere. You drive up behind one and the rifles are pointing at you. "If you want to show your sympathy with them," said my host, "don't wave. It might be mistaken for the start of a missile being thrown at them. I wink. I find that gets across often."

I approached a barrier after dark and identified myself. "We were expecting you; the Elim minister informed us," I was told. I talked to Ulster Defence Regiment soldiers. "Many are praying for you," I said. "We hope so, and we hope they are heard," one answered.

I pulled up at the burned-out remains of the Ulster customs post. A little farther away was an intact Free State customs post. I recrossed at another border post and found the same grim picture. I was fully provided for my identification at the many checks, but I found that my English accent disarmed many. The nights were dark and no time to be abroad, but in church attendance it was business as usual.

In besieged Belfast, there are nine Elim churches. "Our area is not too bad," said one pastor. "A confrontation between the army and rioters worried us one Sunday. C.S. gas was used by the army, but we managed to get the Sunday school children clear. We have taken an interest in the soldiers: tea and cakes at the billets, visits to the wounded in hospital. Some of them attended our services. Twice the C.O. came, but that meant a guard outside the church. I conducted a para-military funeral recently. Suddenly six men appeared and fired three volleys over the coffin. I found myself leading 700 men. They finally saluted the dead and left us."

Another drove me to his church through dark streets with troops lurking in the blackout. At a high, looming block of flats, he said, "Much of the sniping (sudden death for a soldier) comes from there." He pointed. A gang of aggressive youths passed before us. "Tartans," he ejaculated. "I have changed my car; my last model was a favourite with the gunmen. The last time it was taken I was thankful to see it again."

Said another leader, "We had a nasty do at the church recently; there were many rubber bullets flying about. It scared the sisters, but they were all there as usual for the next meeting." Suddenly he pointed ahead, "Looks like a riot", he said. He went into reverse, through the red lights and then casually picked up the conversation again.

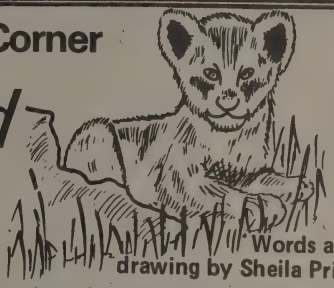
"That's the place," said the driver, as we approached another church, "where someone was killed last night. One of our Sunday school children was present when he was shot. He would not support the gunmen even though he was a Roman Catholic." "Lord comfort the widow," the Elim people prayed.

Another pastor said, "We have learned how to live with it, but it is a tremendous strain. God keeps us." That night, too, we ran into a riot. Shield-carrying soldiers turned us back and we wove our way home by a devious route.

Car-sitting (no vehicle may be left without an occupant) is the rule in many parts of the country. Penalty for non-compliance is £50 or having your vehicle blown up. I was car-sitting and found myself with a front seat at the latest car bomb drama. The whole tableau was suddenly enacted. The busy area became an oasis, but on the perimeter life was normal. After all, they have had nearly 2,700 such explosions. My host was anxious to get back to me. The girls in the office were anxious lest there should not be enough milk to give the soldiers (on the perimeter) a cup of tea.

It was daylight and a soldier had just died. My host tried to accelerate, but the ramps kept us to a crawl.

Grim-faced the comrades of the dead man passed us on from gun-point to gun-point until we were clear from the oasis of death.



Ulster, where thousands love the Lord, yet riots, robbery and maiming are daily present and death is a sudden fearful presence. Long inured to the wiles of the Roman Catholic church, they live by and are at peace with the followers of that church. These our brethren covet no man's property, tote no guns, join no gangs, concoct no plots. They mourn when a soldier is killed. They grieve over the maimed and the dead. They pray for justice to be done and to be seen to be done. Strong faith characterises the Protestant community. "Business as usual" is the motto scrawled on many wrecked premises. It is "Business as usual" in the attendance at God's house.

To the Elim family, their unspoken appeal is, "Pray for us, brethren." Pray daily, specifically for God's people in Ulster, with special remembrance of those in Belfast.

Children's Corner

Big and Bold

Words and drawing by Sheila Price

SAM the lion cub was bored. There was little for him to do in the jungle. When he woke each morning he would play a few games with his mother and explore the bit of jungle outside his den, then he had to remain hidden in the den while his mother went in search of food. How he hated being left alone! Sometimes his mother would not return for ages and ages.

One day when his mother said, "Now, Sam, stay by this rock until I get back," Sam did not listen. He ventured outside the den and began walking through the jungle. He skipped through the long grass, rolled about under some trees and stopped for a drink at a stream.

Suddenly he heard a movement behind him. He turned around and saw the biggest animal he had ever seen. It was an elephant who had come to drink, too. The elephant roared, swung its trunk and frightened Sam so much that he ran as fast as he could back to the safety of his den.

"Where have you been, Sam?" asked his mother. "You are very naughty to go roaming about alone. There are many dangers in the jungle and you are not yet big enough to face them."

"Oh dear," sighed Sam, "when will I be big and strong like you?"

"It won't be long, Sam, before you are able to face all the dangers and enemies. Soon you will be fierce and bold and all the other beasts will fear you."

How like Sam we are before we know Jesus as our Lord and Saviour, but, when we become Christians, we grow in His strength and become as bold as the lion. There are many dangers and enemies around us, but we must be brave and take our stand for the Lord. We have nothing to fear, for Jesus is always near.

PRAYER and PRAISE

by F. H. Coleman

DO you make New Year resolutions?

Some old-fashioned Christians frown upon the making of resolutions. When asked why they take such an attitude, they reply simply that man's will-power is so weakened by sin that his power to keep resolutions is not enough. To me, this is rather a defeatist attitude, for sometimes a resolution is made regarding something we love and then it is easy to keep.

Hudson Taylor resolved when he went to China that the sun would not rise on that vast land on any day and not find him on his knees reading the Word of God and praying. A fellow-missionary once said that they made a long, tiring journey. They reached a town after nightfall and obtained a room in the loft of the only inn the town could boast of. They climbed the stairs and entered the room which was bare except for some straw to lie upon. Soon both men were in a deep sleep. The man awoke to find Hudson Taylor in a corner of the room on his knees with a lighted candle reading his Bible. The sun was not yet up, but the great man was in communion with his Lord and Saviour.

I recently heard a man say in a meeting that, soon after his conversion, he believed that God would have him read the Bible every day. In some twenty-odd years, he had read the Bible from Genesis to Revelation 260 times and was still enjoying his reading of the greatest Book in the world.

I am not suggesting that you should make some resolution that you may not be able to keep, but I am sure all of us can do better than we do. You must have been in at children's meetings when the boys and girls have been asked if they were singing their best. Very few hands are raised. Then they are encouraged to sing better. Yes, we can all do better, even in our prayer lives.

God bless you all in 1973!

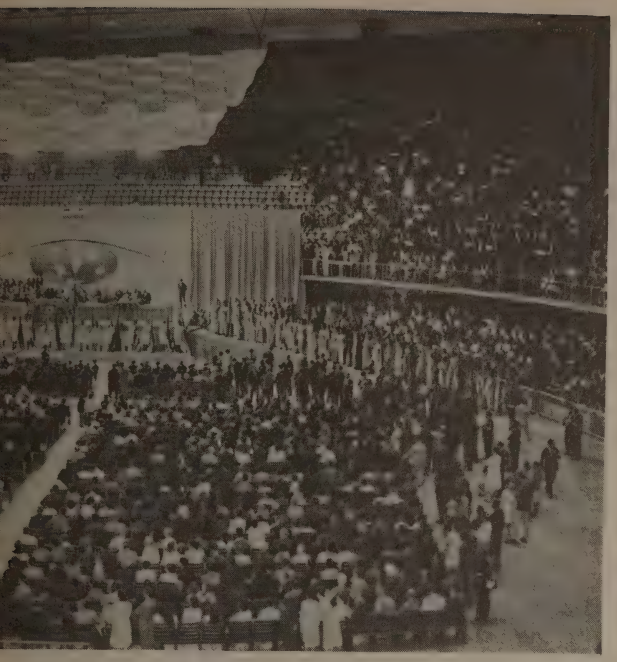
PENTECOSTAL WORLD CONFERENCE SEOUL

World Pentecost

Part of the



by P. S. Brewster

AT its commencement the Pentecostal Movement had a very varied background. It has grown to tremendous proportions as the result of the burning evangelistic activity of its converts. Many fine Christian men and women from fundamentalist groups also entered into the experience of Pentecost and added their valuable maturity. In many countries the Pentecostal Movements had their roots in the Holiness teaching. Undoubtedly God was preparing for a very long time for the latter day outpouring of His Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit did not fall on large, traditional established churches, but on individuals and groups around the world who were hungry and thirsty and searching after God. Pentecostal people in every country in the world have become very strongly missionary minded and evangelistic in their outreach and assembly life. So contagious is this spiritual evangelism that the converts also become evangelists.

The early Pentecostal pioneers of over fifty years ago were not all well-educated, but came from the ranks of the average middle class. The dedication of those early pioneers, accompanied by such remarkable manifestations of the Holy Spirit, had to be seen and heard to be really understood. Much news about those early days has now been put into print. The effect is still felt by those who are alive today and actually saw the early revival.

What was accomplished in a short time can only be described as supernatural. Since those early days and the resulting outpouring of God's Holy Spirit, the growth, strength and influence of the Pentecostal movements have reached unusual proportions. Those rugged pioneers led the way and demonstrated the flame of Pentecost, but most are now with the Lord. The sons and daughters of those early leaders are now deeply engaged in spreading the Pentecostal flame and message. It is no longer a one class movement, but a cross section of the people of all countries, now deeply rooted and determined to spread God's message. It involves business men, highly degreed men from our universities, men of high office in government circles and the vast mass of ordinary people. It is reported that there could now be between twenty and thirty million people who have joyously received the Baptism in the Holy Spirit with the initial evidence of the speaking in other tongues. The early Pentecostal converts were turned out of their churches and disowned by their local denominations. The inevitable result was that the Pentecostal people grew up in isolationism. Quite unaware of what the future held, and equally totally unpremeditatedly the Pentecostal people were driven to form themselves into denominations. They purchased empty churches and hired halls of all descriptions and filled them night after night. They established Bible colleges, trained hundreds of ministers and sent out teams of missionaries around the world. Weekly magazines and books were published.

In later years the Pentecostal people around the world, with no constitution and with no book of set rules, bound themselves into a strong Pentecostal fellowship. Conferences are held every three years in various parts of the world. The Conference and Fellowship are bound together purely on the grounds of the unity of the Body of Christ, the Lordship of Christ, and the experience of the Baptism in the Holy Spirit. This fellowship has developed into one of the strongest bonds known in this generation. Men and women of all languages and of various cultures and backgrounds meet together around the central figure of Jesus Christ. Between Conferences, a World Pentecostal Advisory Committee, composed of twenty-five world leaders, deals with all correspondence and makes plans for future Conferences. A Chairman and Secretary are elected. World Pentecost magazine has become the official organ of World Pentecost.

In the seventies a remarkable change has come over the religious life of the world. Thousands of people from all denominations are now receiving the Baptism in the Holy Spirit in the same manner as the early Pentecostal pioneers. Those now receiving the Holy Spirit include Presbyterians, Methodists, Baptists, Brethren, Anglicans, and Roman Catholics. The outstanding difference – and it has become a very strong feature – is that those receiving the Holy Spirit are not turned out of their churches. They are remaining in their denominations and endeavouring to spread the truth of Pentecost within their denominations. This new policy is causing many questions to be asked and creating serious problems in the minds of many. We have to acknowledge what God is doing whether we understand it or not, but equally we must be determined to retain the doctrines of Scripture and be faithful trustees of what God has given to us.

The remarkable penetration of evangelistic doctrine and Pentecostal freedom and fervour which have broken into the historic denominations cannot be dismissed as if they had not happened; they are too vast and too universal. In some sections of the world such as South America, including Brazil, and some parts of Europe where political power is strong, Pentecostal converts are still coming out of their denominations. Thus we have the situation that in large sections of the world, Pentecostal converts remain within their churches and in equally as large sections, Pentecostal people come out of their churches.

Pentecostal statesmen and leaders must recognise what is happening and regard it as a new phase of God's Holy Spirit and power. Multitudes of young people today who are emphasising the Gospel and the Pentecostal message are to be regarded as another move of God's Holy Spirit. In New Zealand and Australia there is a remarkable move of God's Holy Spirit among young people. In U.S.A. and in parts of Great Britain there is the involvement of young people with the same characteristics of a deep hunger and love for Jesus Christ with a strong allegiance to the Bible and the overwhelming urge to evangelise both at home and abroad.

God delights to surprise us and there are more manifestations to come. In the Acts of the Apostles, the Jewish people were surprised, confounded, angry, hurt, and a little confused that the Gentiles received the Baptism in the Holy Spirit in exactly the same manner as they themselves had received. When they saw that what the Gentiles had received was genuine, the Apostolic Statesman, James, the Chairman of the first Christian Council, recognised the hand of God and accepted it as such. This new outpouring of the Holy Spirit is being called a new dimension, and there must be an awareness of what God is doing. We must alert ourselves and not allow this visitation to pass us by.

Between the established Pentecostal movements and the new outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon the traditional churches there has developed a grave gap. The Pentecostal Movements have for many years been in isolation and it would seem the time has now come when we have got to emerge from our isolation, from some of the prejudices that have been built up over the years and extend our hand of friendship and fellowship to all who are saved and baptised in the Holy Spirit.. These brethren who are now opening their hearts to the Lordship of Christ and receiving the Pentecostal experience urgently need the wealth of the experience of mature Pentecostal brethren. We owe them a debt which must be fulfilled. The last phase of prophecy is that God will pour out His Spirit upon all flesh. We are now entering into the latter part of the fulfilment of that prophecy.

There are still many things we do not understand and some people are confused and a little frightened. We cannot, we will not, and we dare not sacrifice the doctrine of Jesus Christ as the Saviour of the World for any short time gain of status or popularity. The Assemblies of God in America have recently stated that they are recognising what God is doing among the older Churches. At all costs we must be careful lest any criticism of what is happening today resulting from the outpouring of the Holy Spirit follows the pattern of those who criticised the early Pentecostal pioneers of fifty years ago. This latter-day outpouring may be totally different from what we were expecting and therefore it is necessary that we keep our minds open and our spirits humble and that we be willing to accept all that God has for us. A lot of new terms and phrases are being thrown about today causing great confusion. They speak of the NEO PENTECOSTALS, THE CATHOLIC PENTECOSTALS, THE TRADITIONAL PENTECOSTALS, THE CLASSICAL PENTECOSTALS. Those who are well acquainted with these terms understand them, but those who are still on the fringe must surely be puzzled. It must quickly be pointed out that there is only one Holy Spirit, that there is only one Baptism in the Holy Spirit, and that our Lord Jesus Christ is the Baptiser in the Holy Spirit. What the early Pentecostal leaders had over fifty years ago is exactly the same experience today. There is neither old or new; it is the one experience.

The tenth Pentecostal World Conference will be convened in Seoul, Korea, on September 18th-23rd, 1973. Rev. Thomas Zimmerman is Chairman of the Advisory Committee, Rev. P.S. Brewster is the Secretary to the Committee and Chairman of the Presidium and Rev. Yonggi Cho is the Host Chairman. All meetings will be open to the general public. The largest number of representatives ever attending a World Pentecostal Conference have now been registered for Korea. It is expected that the Conference meetings during the day will have an attendance of 10,000 people, the night services in the arena, 100,000 people, and the closing service in the Peoples' Plaza 300,000 to 500,000. There will be sessions for Missionary Executives and Missionaries and for Editors of Pentecostal magazines, and a Scholars' Seminar. It is hoped to hold a special session for Pentecostal Executives from around the world.

From T. H. Stevenson

I AM sensitive regarding careless quotation of Scripture and careless allusion to Scripture. This feeling developed in my very early teenage when a mature Christian informed me regarding Christ's Second Advent that a sign of the times would be that "the seasons shall not be known except for the falling of the leaf". I was impressed, but even my concordance offered no clue, since such words are not in Scripture or anywhere else. Quickly I learned that, early in Genesis, God stated the very opposite: "While the earth remaineth, seedtime and harvest, and cold and heat, and summer and winter, and day and night shall not cease".

About the same time I heard a preacher relate how a young convert overcame great fear to give his first testimony. Expressing his inward battle he told the people that the Bible said, "Faint heart never won fair lady".

By contrast I have heard a Bible text credited to England's greatest writer. Presenting several books for the use of students training for the ministry, a layman declared, "As our own Will Shakespeare said, "Much learning doth make thee mad." This mistake was as far from the truth as when Festus did really say such words to Paul.

During an early pastorate in Armagh, N. Ireland, I made a visit to my home in Scotland and one day called to see my aged grandmother who was so pleased to inform me that she had listened to a service broadcast from Armagh. The preacher spoke on John 3:16 Grandmother began to quote the verse, but referred to "God's only forgotten Son". Her failing memory was a good excuse.

There are two accounts of the following, one attributing it to a negro preacher, but perhaps the claim that the evangelist Rowland Hill was the culprit is the correct one. It concerns a hair-style that had become very fashionable, called "top-knot". Rowland Hill took exception to it and preached a sermon on the words, "Top-knot come down". His text was, "Let him that is on the housetop not come down".

How often have you heard in prayer or preaching: "Where two or three are gathered together in my name there am I in the midst of them and that to bless". The words in italics are not in the text, even if the Lord is in the midst to bless.

Even more frequently perhaps we hear that the work of the Holy Spirit is to reprove the world "Of judgment to come". "To come" is just not in the verse and the context shows that this is more than a misquotation, it is a misinterpretation.

Then there is a Scripture correctly quoted, but only part of the full text is given. The full text of 1 Corinthians 2:9-12 completely transforms the erring meaning so commonly given to verse 9. To misquote here, is to miss blessing here in this life, blessing God wants to give us now.

Thoughts from the Book of Genesis

8. Giving Pleasure to God (Genesis 8:21)

by F. Lavender

OUR text tells us the remarkable, wonderful fact that it is possible for a man to bring pleasure to the Lord God!

It was not the simple fact of the sacrifice offered by Noah that pleased Him; what gave God pleasure was the reality that lay behind the sacrifice. Three things seem to have inspired Noah to offer sacrifice to God: his gratitude to the Lord for saving him from the judgment that had overtaken mankind; his recognition that he could not approach the holy God by his own goodness, but only by the life of another; his humble consecration of himself to the service and worship of his Saviour-God. What gave pleasure to the Lord, therefore, was that Noah's heart was in the sacrifice which he offered.

We, too, can give pleasure to the Lord and bring satisfaction to His heart. This cannot come from the sacrifice of animals, however, for all the pleasure and satisfaction of our God is in His dear Son; the offering which He made on Calvary is the only one that delights God. If we would please God, then, it must be by identifying ourselves with the Lord Jesus Christ and His sacrifice. This shows three facts: that we recognise that the only way by which we can approach the holy God is through Christ; that we are deeply thankful to Him for saving us from judgment; that we humbly give ourselves to Him through His Son. The pleasure of God is in those whose trust and delight is in His Son, Jesus Christ.

Have you put your trust in Jesus for salvation? Are you bringing pleasure to God?

"I am with thee and will keep thee in all places whither thou goest."

A tenor Soloist at 84!

THE City Hall, Salisbury, held a congregation of over 1,000 senior citizens at the Annual Friendly Circle Rally of the Salvation Army. For me the peak of the whole programme was "Pop" Warne's song. There he stood, sturdy and straight, around five feet tall, immaculately dressed, his face rosy and serene, and sang these words to the haunting melody of "Mother McCree". He sang in the Spirit's power and there was a holy hush as the song ended.

Many thoughts stir my heart as I ponder alone,
Many places attract me with charms of their own,
But the thought of all thoughts is of Christ crucified,
The place of all places, the hill where He died.

Chorus

Oh the charm of the cross how I love to be there,
With the love that shines from it, what love can compare?
The seal of my ransom in Calvary I see,
All my sin, oh my Saviour, laid upon Thee.
It's the end of my sin, and the source of all grace,
It's the word of God's love to a prodigal race,
It's the greatest, the grandest gift God could impart,
Surpassing my reason, but winning my heart.

For the sake of the Christ, and the love of His cross,
I have yielded my all and not reckoned it loss,
There's a place in my heart that the Saviour must fill,
None other can take it, no one ever will.

"Pop" Warne, as he is affectionately called, began life as a brass moulder in the north Midlands, but moved considerably in following his trade. At the age of 16 he was working in Plymouth and was persuaded to attend a revival meeting at which the famous Dr. Torrey preached and Charles Alexander sang. The gospel message did not affect him, but he was deeply impressed by the soloist who sang, "Open the heart's door to the Saviour". The melody appealed to him and he often sang the hymn over to himself. He was not ready to obey the injunction of the hymn and he put all thoughts of God and church-going from him. As his voice was developing, he began to sing in concert halls, working-men's clubs and public houses. Inevitably he began to drink and to go deeply into the ways of the world.

At the age of 30, while living in Burton-on-Trent, his wife, who attended the Home League of the Salvation Army, persuaded him to go to a musical festival in the local Citadel. He really enjoyed the programme, the band's hearty playing and the joyful music of the songsters, but what impressed him most was the sight of so many clean, wholesome God-fearing men. Nevertheless, during the interval, much to his wife's annoyance, he couldn't resist slipping out to the nearby pub for a smoke and a drink. However, God was moving in his heart and he was unable to dismiss from his mind the picture of that group of men so obviously enthusiastic for Christ. Again he was invited to a special event at the Salvation Army hall and that night God spoke to him once more and he made his way to the penitent form. It was a Monday night and for the rest of the week he tried hard to live as a Christian, but found it very difficult. He never felt sure of his salvation. On the following Saturday, S.A. friends took him to the open-air meeting. He stood in the circle enjoying the music and testimonies, when, without warning, the Corps Officer announced, "a young man is a noted singer and has sung to large audiences and in many public houses and now I am going to ask him to come forward and sing for Jesus!".

Poor Mr. Warne looked around, but there was no way of escape. He had to step into the ring, but what could he sing? He knew no hymns or gospel songs! Like a flash, the sweet old song that he had heard Charles Alexander sing flooded his memory and, after a lapse of fourteen years, he sang it with all his heart. As he sang, all doubts were dispelled. In full measure, he opened his heart to the Saviour. At last a tide of joyful assurance swept over his soul. On that day, a splendid ministry of song began and has continued to this very day. May God bless dear old "Pop" Warne and may his testimony remind us that the guide-lines to salvation are plain and unchanging: conviction of personal sinfulness, sincere repentance, heart belief in the Saviourhood of Jesus and outward confession of the Lord (Romans 10:9,10).

"Don't be a little Puritan!"

A challenge from

Laurence E. Lambert
a member of the Elim Youth Committee

THE class became very quiet. There was a rather embarrassing silence. My daughter had stood to her feet, lips trembling, knees knocking. She had said to the teacher, "Please, sir, I don't want to read this type of book; it contains moral standards which are wrong, swearing which I have been taught to refrain from, and it blasphemes the Name which I love very much." The class were studying a book actually recommended for the C.S.E. exam called Billy Liar. It was being read audibly to a class of mixed fourteen- and fifteen-year-olds. The teacher's response was "Don't be a little puritan!". It was meant, of course, as a scathing criticism, but really, did he but know, it was a splendid compliment.

On hearing the account of the incident and seeing the very obvious distress it caused, I contacted the school and requested a copy of the book. It is what is commonly known as "kitchen sink" literature. If people of maturity desire to read this type of thing, it is their decision and loss, but I objected to it being read and studied at school. I read the book and catalogued the many offending parts. Some were swearing (appalling swearing in places) some parts were extremely vulgar, other parts were suggestive, and yet more portions blasphemous.

On contacting the school authorities I was most courteously received and had a long interview with the headmaster. The book was immediately withdrawn and then the whole stock was burned in the school oven. The head had no idea that such stuff was being used. It is a large school with 1,000 pupils. He thanked me very much for taking the trouble and interest and expressed the wish that more parents would take an interest in their children. The teacher apologised and put matters right. I am now in correspondence with the Lancashire board concerned to get the book removed from the list.

It is not easy to take a stand against the moral drift of our society. It is easy to smile at people like Mary Whitehouse. I for one would like to see that courageous lady openly supported by our members. She is a consecrated Christian and she often suffers the scorn of people greedy for gain from doubtful films and books. For a while, my daughter was quite a laughing-stock, but perhaps she had God's approval.

The great Dr. Sangster tells of one young curate who became chaplain to the regiment. He followed a man who was of the "hail-fellow-well-met" type, who turned a blind eye to the obscenities and cursing all around him. At the officers' dinner, the commanding officer was cursing and blaspheming with great gusto, when, to everybody's amazement, the pink-faced little curate was on his feet addressing his commanding officer. "Sir," he spluttered, "Your . . . your . . . language is an offence to God and man!" The officer turned a vivid purple with rage and indignation, but then he gasped out: "The man's right! The man's right!" and he was changed as the result of the courage of one man.

When the sordid, smutty joke is bandied around, when the precious name of Jesus is used as an oath or blasphemy, do you take your stand? Have you ever said to a person "That's the dearest Name in the world to me; I wish you wouldn't use it like that!"? We are the salt of the earth; don't let us lose our savour. We are the light of the world; don't hide that light under a bushel.

"Stand, and having done all . . . stand".

The Family Altar

Scripture Union Portions — Notes by R.A. Gull

Monday, January 15th 2 Samuel 2:18–32; 3:1–5

"As many as came to the place where Asahel fell down and died stood still." (v.23).

THIS lonely death accomplished in its sheer horror what 379 other deaths could not do, and Judah came to their senses (v.27).

They either came themselves or were brought by others. They came, looked, and came to their senses.

May the Lord help us to guide men's thoughts to another place of death, where One died and later rose again and may He grant that they might stand with us in shame for the consequences of their sin, in awe at God's great love.

Tuesday, January 16th 2 Samuel 3:6–39

"As the Lord hath sworn to David, even so I do to him" (v.9); "my hand shall be with thee, to bring over all Israel unto thee." (v.12, R.S.V.).

MEN have ever sought boastfully to "help" the Lord to have His way (4:8).

Abner, who had witnessed God working through Goliath's defeat (1 Samuel 17:57) and through the sleep that fell upon them at Hachilah (1 Samuel 26:12) and who had possibly heard the voice of Samuel prophesy defeat and the transfer of the kingdom to David (1 Samuel 28:17), now boastfully tried to assist David, but only to his own ultimate destruction.

God, grant that we may never seek to use Him, but rather to be used by Him.

Wednesday, January 17th 2 Samuel 4:1–12

"The Lord . . . who hath redeemed my soul out of all adversity" (v.9).

DAVID puts the records right. His trust was not in the bloodied hands of Rechab and Baanah, nor in Joab's cunning, but in the mighty manipulations of the living God.

Not in might, nor in power, but in the secret workings of God's Spirit, may we trust.

Thursday, January 18th 2 Samuel 5:1–25

"David perceived that the Lord had established him king . . . and . . . exalted his kingdom for his people Israel's sake " (v.12).

ISRAEL had a king at last, chosen of God and popular with his subjects (v.2), victorious in battle (v.7), secure in his own fortress-city (vv.9,17), a great ruler, with almighty God on his side (v.10), comfortable in his palatial home (v.11). David had reason enough to wonder why. Was it because of some virtue or ability or for the sake of his spirituality?

David perceived that it was for something far greater; it was "for his people Israel's sake." David walked humbly in such knowledge.

"Whoever would be great among you must be your servant" (Mark 10:43, R.S.V.).

Friday, January 19th 2 Samuel 6:1–23

"And David was displeased, . . ." (v.8); "afraid" (v.9); "So David would not remove the ark . . . into the city." (v.10).

DAVID authorized the unlawful carriage of the Ark of the Covenant by men unacceptable to God, and then he had the audacity to be displeased with the tragic consequences! Shocked and afraid, he left the ark in a nearby home.

Only after three months did David pluck up courage to admit his error (I Chronicles 15:2, 13–15) and then with gladness the task was completed.

May we ever do God's work in His way and therefore with gladness.

Saturday, January 20th 2 Samuel 7:1–17

"I have not dwelt . . . but have walked" (v.6).

ISRAEL had a mobile Master, One who was with them wherever they went. When David suggested that Israel should settle down and put God in a mansion, the Lord proposed instead to establish David's own house and to allow David's son to build a temple just for His name.

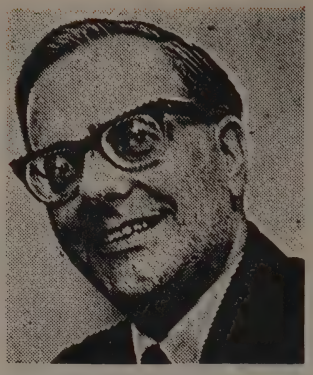
God desired a real temple of flesh and blood and gave us the pattern in Jesus Christ (1 John 2:19–21).

"Lord, live in me, walk in me!" should be our cry.

Sunday, January 21st 2 Samuel 7:18–29

"Who am I . . . that thou hast brought me hitherto?" (v.18); "for thou, Lord GOD, knowest thy servant." (v.20).

IT was not a new question. Many had asked it before and we ask it ourselves today. David set it to music and, in a composition full of wonder, sang, "What is man, that thou art mindful of him?" (Psalm 8:4).



"Lord, who am I?" David answered the question himself! Though he was a king, yet his favourite title remained, "servant." He was the Lord's servant (2 Samuel 7:5,8) and he uses the humble title proudly ten times in these twelve verses.

"Master, I would serve you!" should be our desire.

Another Slant

by Ken Smith

Pastor of Elim Pentecostal Church, Erdington, Birmingham

DO you remember the G.P. who wanted his fee on the spot for "beer money"? He came to the manse a fortnight later to ask why he had not had his money, as he needed it for some beer. I explained that the cheques were not issued until the first day of the following month and contacted the agency in the matter. To them it was a source of amusement. I found it a source of sorrow that drink could so have a grip on a man. I am sure that readers will make him a matter of personal prayer.

I was pleased when interviewing the under-study to Sir Alfred G.B. Owen, the well-known Midlands industrialist, for I noticed that, in the foyer and the reception area, were copies of the Bible, presented by the Gideons. I wondered whether the tattered condition of one copy was through mis-use, or continual use. I trust the latter. I commend the work of the Gideons to business men in our Fellowship. I have had representatives to speak at a couple of churches which I have pastored. It is a work worth supporting by our prayerful interest.

After interviewing one of the management of Jaguar Cars, I mentioned my profession, and sought to give him a tract. The executive apologised for his language, I told him that if he read and heeded the message of the tract, he would have little need in future to apologise, for his language could be dealt with!

Among executive and professional people, in industrial, business, and medical spheres, I would certainly not use cheap or free publications printed on newsprint type paper. I discriminate carefully in my use of any tracts published abroad, particularly American, on the grounds that they no doubt have their appeal to that society, but I feel that we have tracts produced in this country that take account of the British temperament. This is a valid point in tract ministry. Cheap, trashy Gospel literature does disservice to the Lord whom we serve. I prefer to buy tracts which can be prayerfully and carefully planted among this type of contact. I am at present using the "You need Christ" tract entitled, Seven reasons why you need Christ, for it is factual, though wordy, and it is presented in logical sequence, a point people in this group readily appreciate and grasp. The Victory Tract Club produce admirable tracts, which I have used, but at the moment I cannot better the one I have mentioned, in my judgment. If readers know of a better one do let me know!

I have been asked, "What do you say if you have to re-visit the one whom you interviewed after giving him a tract some time ago?" I find I rarely have to return, although it does sometimes happen. Then, I simply exchange greetings, do another interview on another assignment, then ask the man if he has read the literature (not Gospel tract) I gave him. If he seeks to pass it off, as can be the case, I mention that it could be of great help to him relative to things that matter most. I leave it at this, unless I feel a conviction to press the point. If he has read the tract and shows some interest, then I take the point up, of course. Executives, like our own in Elim, are generally very busy men, so it must be "a word in season", and very brief!

I trust that reading another "Slant" has encouraged you to be a personal witness for the Lord Jesus Christ, wherever the door opens, for it will, if you keep your eyes open to the situation and your ears open to the Saviour's voice.

IT was my great privilege to spend the last two weeks of 1972 in Ghana. I had the privilege to see at first hand some of the wonderful work and ministry of our sister fellowship, The Church of Pentecost. They have almost 1,200 churches in Ghana alone and their outreach includes the neighbouring countries of Togo, Dahomey, Upper Volta, Ivory Coast and Liberia. The Chairman, Pastor James McKeown, spent Christmas preaching in Togo and Dahomey. This splendid veteran of the Pentecostal faith is a highly-regarded father figure. It is an education to see him in action on the platform among his African "children". Mine was the privilege to share his home briefly and to spend some hours on two occasions discussing the things which we hold so dearly.

I am pleased to tell you that I had the joy of staying for some days with Pastor and Mrs. D.L. Mills, their four lovely little daughters, and Mrs. Scott (Mrs. Mills's mother). They opened their home at Kumasi, Capital of the Ashanti region, to me and I felt myself to be one of the family. Mr. Mills went out of his way to show me as much of the field as could be possible in a short visit of two weeks. We travelled by road well over 1,000 miles in Ghana. I preached at the Church of Pentecost churches at Korle Gonno (Accra), Koforidua, Bompata (Kumasi), and Konongo and at a Christmas service of the Bible Club for missionaries' children at Grace Baptist Church, Kumasi, when the two older daughters of Pastor and Mrs. Mills also took part. In addition, I spoke at four Christmas conventions. These are held under canopies constructed of bamboo poles and palm leaves. At Hwidiem over 1,000 were present, at Obuasi over 2,500, at Bobikuma over 2,500 and at Tema (twin city with Accra, the capital of Ghana) over 7,500. The enthusiasm, spirituality, devotion and worship of the people were wonderful to behold. Convention meetings were short if they lasted for only three hours, and remember that the folk sat on backless benches in high humidity, this being Harmattan time when the prevailing wind brings dust clouds down from the Sahara desert. I was impressed with the delightful balance between absolute liberty and wise control. The brethren in charge of the conventions were manifestly presiding over the whole proceedings, but the infectious joy and liberty of the Spirit were gloriously there.

God honoured the preaching of the Word in that ninety people came out for the Lord at the meetings at which I was privileged to speak.

Elim is truly honoured to have a share in this magnificent work. I shall never cease to be grateful for the marvellous opportunity of being your representative at the 1972 Christmas conventions.

HIGH WYCOMBE Pastor: T.G. Hills

OUR children's crusade conducted by Pastor Derek J. Green resulted in the commencement of Sunshine Corner and Junior Crusader services.

Pastor Wynne Lewis later conducted an evangelistic and Divine healing crusade. Len Magee, Pastor of our Lane End Church, ministered in song and testified. Our recently formed choir made its debut and was well received. Some definite decisions for Christ were made, for which we give thanks to God.

At our Sunday school anniversary, the children led the entire service. A church full of parents and friends heard the children and the message from our Pastor. There was a presentation to Mr. K. Ives, who, owing to failing health, has had to forego his services both on the Diaconate and in the Sunday school, after faithfully serving for many years.

E.J. SMITH

Radio Seminar, Bradford.

ON Friday, December 1st, a company of ministers and laymen met in the Bradford Elim Church for a profitable Radio Seminar and from the outset the keen interest and participation by many would-be broadcasters on local Radio spelled success for the venture. With the thought that "Programmes" would have to be produced before the end of the day, concentration and willingness to learn were evident.

Vivian Fisher of our Elim Bible College Recording Studio set us on the right road by lecturing on such subjects as equipment, dubbing, splicing, mixing etc. Some confessed to the acquiring of a new vocabulary! Pastors J.E. Moore, W.R. Jones and R. Williams then shared their experiences in "How I went about it" and these talks roused the interest of all.

Tony Parker, a member of the Leeds Evangelistic Council Radio Committee very ably filled the place of G. Bennett, who was unable to join us, and he joined with Rev. Frank Pagden in depicting the scope, value and influence of local Radio. Their practical experience guided us at question time.

The finale was an exercise in the production of a five minute taped programme. Three groups were given specific titles for their programmes; "A Record Review", "A Personal Interview" and "Thought for the Dāy". These were led by Ron Williams, Vivian Fisher and Ron Jones respectively, the participants learning by practical experience how to produce an actual programme. The general opinion was that there was so much information available that the day was all too short for such an important task.

We are greatly indebted to Pastor Derek Green and the band of Elim members who cared for our temporal needs during the day and to the Secretary-General who, although unable to be present, had arranged the Seminar.

CROYDON Pastor: W.J. Maybin

A VERY wonderful baptismal service was recently conducted by our Pastor. It was good to see the church well filled, young people featuring very much by their presence. Besides our own young people, some twenty students from Elim Bible College were in attendance, together with a group called "Contact" who are greatly interested in our church at present. This group, together with some of our own Crusaders, thrilled our hearts with their songs and testimonies.

Eight were baptised, including three from the Bible College, including two foreign students. It was great to hear these young people witness a good confession before being baptized. For some time we have been greatly burdened for young people and God is answering prayer. We rejoice in His goodness.

The Annual meeting was held recently too and from the opening hymn we were very conscious of God's presence and blessing.

PORTADOWN Pastor: S. Shaw

BASILDON Pastor: P.J. Hill

A DAY that will be marked down especially for eight people in this area came when the two Elim churches in the town united in the Pitsea building for a baptismal service. All eight candidates come from the Laindon church. The majority are recent converts. It was exciting to see the church so full with people standing throughout the evening.

The service was conducted by Pastor Peter Hill, following choruses and a warm welcome from the resident Pitsea Pastor, Graham Jones. After the candidates had affirmed their faith in Jesus Christ before a delighted congregation, Pastor Hill baptised them.

In Laindon on the following Sunday, we were pleased to welcome a group of students from the Elim Bible College, who ministered with great blessing and anointing.

ASHBOURNE Pastor: J.D. Henderson

OUR members and friends were saddened to hear of the passing of our oldest member, Mrs. E. Finney at the age of eighty-eight years. This dear old lady had been a member of our church since Principal George Jeffreys campaigned in Ashbourne nearly fifty years ago. Mrs. Finney loved every moment of her Christian life. She was enthusiastic about her Pentecostal experience. The blessings she had received in her early Christian life remained with her to the end of her days. She never ceased to praise the Lord and to tell of His goodness towards her. She was a woman of prayer and even at the age of eighty-eight she was in the weekly prayer meeting, lifting her voice in worship and adoration to the Lord her Saviour.

The photograph of Mrs. Finney was taken at a buffet supper held on the occasion of her birthday last year when the members presented her with a gift in appreciation of her faithfulness to the Lord.

SILVERDALE Pastor: D.S. Williams

AT our Minister's second anniversary we had special services over the week-end, which were very well attended. We have much cause to rejoice in the goodness of our God, for during the two years we have witnessed the work go from strength to strength, precious souls have been saved, and many have testified to the healing touch of the Master. Our Church appreciates the work and the witness in many ways of Pastor and Mrs Williams. As a result the Elim testimony has become firmly established in and around this area. Many testified during the weekend. The Diaconate expressed their appreciation.

We were pleased to have Mr. and Mrs. D. Bentley and Stewart with us over the week-end. Mr. Bentley was the guest speaker. One soul was saved. A cheque was presented to the Pastor, and a bouquet was presented to Mrs. Williams by Mrs. A. Maddox. A buffet supper was served.

It was also a great pleasure to welcome the President for a morning service, a very rich time of fellowship.

At the annual meeting it was thrilling to hear the very favourable reports of progress in all departments. The Building Fund has passed the £1,000 mark. On the Sunday twelve new members were received into fellowship. To Him be the praise and the glory!

E. ROWLEY

RAYLEIGH Pastor: W.R. West

SATURDAY, December 2nd, saw the opening of our new church by Pastor C.J.E. Kingston, who received the key from the builder, Mr. Royer. In the afternoon service Pastor W.R. West and Church Secretary Ken Yates both spoke of the memories of the old building and of the many trials and answers to prayer which accompanied the building of the new one. The church comfortably held 150 in the afternoon and 170 in the evening service. There is central heating and services are relayed to the Youth Hall for parents with children and to the entrance lobby.

Pastor Kingston ministered in the afternoon and was joined in the evening by Pastor H. Burton-Haynes. Both spoke with evident blessing. Musical items in the afternoon were by our youth group and in the evening by the Westcliff Male Voice Choir. Offerings for the day totalled £145. With the usual special offering on Sunday evening after communion the total reached £220. We look forward to continued blessing in our new home. Please pray for the work here.

E.K. YATES

YORK Pastor: A. Brooks

A GOOD number of members and friends gathered for tea at our annual meeting. Last year we had the joy of learning that our building was free of debt. At this meeting we praised God for continued blessing, and financial stability. We have a hard-working Pastor and we trust that the Lord will lead us on to greater things under his ministry.

The oldest member at our annual meeting was Mrs. Kirby. She is eighty-eight years old and a cripple. She was saved at the age of twelve and spent most of her time with the Salvation Army. During Pastor J. Woodhead's ministry, she started coming to our Church and she is a regular attender at our Sunday evening services. She is an inspiration by her consistent, cheery disposition, her love for the Lord, and her thankfulness to Him for His keeping power. I have never known her to grumble. One is always greeted with a smile. Mrs. Kirby is brought by one of the members in his car, a service which he has rendered for some years.

We were pleased to have some children at the tea. Between tea and the business meeting, members got together for a chat and fellowship, and some of the brethren gathered around the piano for a singing practice.

One of the children Mrs. Kirby

We give thanks to our Lord for His blessing. We trust that the faithfulness of the members will continue to be a contributing factor in the Lord blessing our work for Him.

ALEX LAWRENCE

HEREFORD Pastor: R. Griffiths

"THIS is the day, this is the day that the Lord hath made". So went the words of the chorus sung before the Baptismal service began. Then we sang, "I am so glad that Jesus loves me", and surely these were not mere words being repeated but expressions of the depths of the heart, for one could indeed feel the very Presence of Jesus Christ. Three young people, the Misses Powell, gave us a very heart searching message in song, with guitar accompaniment, of the day when we meet our Lord, "We shall wish we had given Him more." There was a solemn silence as Pastor R. Griffiths called the congregation to prayer. The address followed when, in the faithful preaching of the word, we were again reminded of the true meaning of Baptism by immersion. It was a soul searching address, and at the invitation given by the Pastor, four people asked Christ to take over their lives. This was followed by the baptism of four students from Hereford Teacher Training College. They were followed by one of more mature years who attends the Elim Church at Brilley, who was baptised by his minister Pastor W. Whittall. After this the congregation sang lustily the hymn, "But I know whom I have believed". It was again obvious that people were rejoicing in that knowledge, and here at the end of another Lord's Day people slowly left the Church knowing that they had drawn nearer to the Lord. Mrs. R. Griffiths was at the piano and Mrs. W. Andrews at the organ.

Part 2 The Testimony of the Early Church Fathers

IRENAEUS (115–202 A.D.), was the Greek Bishop of Lyons, whose tutor, Polycarp, Bishop of Smyrna, a disciple of John the Apostle wrote: "Those who are in truth His disciples, receiving grace from Him, do in His name perform miracles, so as to promote the welfare of other men according to the gifts which each one has received from Him. For some do certainly and truly drive out devils. Others have foreknowledge of things to come, they see visions and utter prophetic expressions. Others still, heal the sick by laying their hands upon them. Yea, the dead even have been raised up. It is not possible to name the number of the gifts which the church . . . has received . . . and which she exerts day by day. In like manner do we also hear many brethren in the church who possess prophetic gifts and who, through the Spirit speak all kinds of tongues, and bring to light for the common benefit the hidden things of men and declare the mysteries of God."

Tertullian (160–220 A.D.), a North African, was also an avid embracer of the Pentecostal gifts. He distinguished himself as a lawyer of great genius who possessed keen discernment. In challenging the cynicism of Marcion he declared: "Let him exhibit prophets such as have spoken, not by human sense but with the Spirit of God, such as have predicted things to come, and have made manifest the secrets of the heart; let him produce a psalm, a vision, a prayer, only let it be by the Spirit in an ecstasy, that is, in a rapture, whenever an interpretation of tongues has occurred."

Referring to the reality of spiritual gifts, Tertullian said, "The apostle most assuredly foretold that there were to be spiritual gifts in the church. Now can you refuse to believe this, even if indubitable evidence on every point is forthcoming for your conviction?"

It seems apparent that speaking in tongues was the normal occurrence both in personal Christian experience and Early Church life. Testifying also of a certain Christian lady, Tertullian said: "There is among us at the present time, a sister who is endowed with the charismatic gift of revelation, which she suffers through ecstasy in the Spirit during the Sunday service in the church."

Origen (186–253 A.D.), who from youth upwards lived a life of purity and who in later years became a beloved teacher of many Christians, imparted information of his acquaintance with speaking in tongues when upholding the Christians of his day who were ridiculed by Celsus, a Roman physician. Celsus had said, "To these promises are added strange, fanatical and quite unintelligible words, of which no rational persons can find meaning." Although we have no visible endorsement of Origen's eager support for the utterance of tongues, he nevertheless revealed the fact of its continuing function in the church.

Justin Martyr (a title that has become a part of his name) opposed the affirmations of the sceptics in the second century, who claimed that the miraculous gifts had died with the last of the apostles. He said: "It is possible now to see among us women and men who possess gifts of the Spirit."

The fourth century introduces Pachomius (292–348 A.D.), an Egyptian archimandrite who is alleged to have founded the first Christian monastery. A. Butler, in Lives of the Saints, first published in 1756, declared that Pachomius, after seasons of intimate prayer, was able to speak in Latin and Greek, languages which he had never learned, further data that tongues had not been tossed away into the forgotten archives of time.

Augustine (354–430 A.D.) insisted, "We still do what the apostles did when they laid hands on the Samaritans and called down the Holy Spirit upon them by the laying on of hands. It is expected that converts speak with new tongues."

Hilary of Poictiers (315–367 A.D.) was born of wealthy, distinguished parents. His sincerity for the gospel was most evident in 360 A.D. when he declared in his appeal to Constantius, that he would willingly abandon his priestly rank and grow grey as a lay penitent if he had ever done anything unworthy of a Bishop's sanctity or even of a layman's uprightness. Writing on the Trinity, he said: "The next step naturally is to listen to the apostle's account of the powers and functions of this gift: 'Now to one is given through the Spirit the word of wisdom, to another the word of knowledge according to the same Spirit, to another faith in the same Spirit, to another gifts of healing in the one Spirit, to another workings of miracles, to another prophecy, to another discerning of spirits, to another kinds of tongues, to another interpretation of tongues.' Here we have a statement of the purpose and results of the Gift and I cannot conceive what doubt can remain."

The pressure of Hilary's summons is seen in his encouragement to the people of his own day and of generations to come: "Let us therefore make use of this great benefit and seek for personal experience of this most needful gift."

Ambrose (340–397 A.D.), son of the Governor of Gaul, a man educated for important civil offices, was to become one of Christendom's greatest bishops. His treatise on the Holy Spirit clearly reveals that speaking in tongues was an uninterrupted manifestation available to every believer: "See, God set apostles, prophets and teachers, gave the gift of healing, gave divers kinds of tongues; each according to his capacity receives that which he either desires or deserves."

Chrysostum (347–407 A.D.), insistently wrote: "Whoever was baptised in apostolic days, he straightway spake with tongues; they at once received the Spirit; not that they saw the Spirit, for He is invisible, but God's grace bestowed some sensible proof of His energy; and one straightway spake in the Persian language, another in the Roman, another in the Indian, another in some other tongue. It thus made manifest to them that were without that it was the Spirit in the very person speaking."

The Early Church fathers of the 4th century discerned a significant difference between their Church and the New Testament Church of the book of Acts, namely, the dearth of spiritual gifts which were so excitingly evident in those early days. John Chrysostum, in his homilies on First Corinthians remarked: "Yes, the church was then in heaven. The Holy Spirit reigned as its master and inspired directly each of its ministers. Today, we have been left with nothing more than the symbols and signs of these gifts. In fact, in our own present day also, we speak in turn, two or three, and when one becomes silent, the other begins. But this is only the vestige and memorial of what used to happen."

Cyril of Jerusalem, in his study on 1 Corinthians 14, produced an interesting clue as to why spiritual gifts were less evident in his age and to their remarkably wide return in this century: "When we shall have the proper dispositions of faith, hope and charity in regard to God and our brethren . . . we shall receive of an abundance of the charisms of God."

Cyril is saying that the near disappearance of the miraculous was the fault of the Christians, not of God. Faith, hope and love became alien virtues. Politics and cold legalism became substitutes for love and power. Consequently, there was no manifestation of the miraculous. Jerome remarked: "The church lost as much of its virtue, as it had gained of wealth and power." Today, however, with increasing thousands receiving the baptism in the Holy Spirit, a new relationship with Christ is being found that is making possible repetition of Early Church ministry.

Present available evidence of speaking in tongues between the fifth century up to the Reformation period is scanty, but this by no means signifies its absence. According to Alexander Mackie in "The Gift of Tongues": "During the long silence of those weary centuries there was evidence however of those psychological tendencies and actions which we find go hand in hand with the appearance of the gift in the history of the Corinthian church."

The existence of speaking with tongues in the ancient tapestry of ecclesiastical history is undeniable. Even the swirling darkness of early pagan ages failed to smother the stirring of the Holy Spirit and the aspirations for God that leapt from the hearts of Christian men.

The lamp shines on in the darkness!

The Mark of Cain

Pastor Paulo tells the story

THE evening shadows were falling over the sacred mountain of Hanang as an old Mbulu man approached Pastor Yona's house. Hardly a mile away were the sacrificial trees of his people, with tatters of skin still reaching from the treetops, supposedly reaching to the great spirit of the Wambulu people. For the old man there was no part in his people's prayers; he had shed blood, so he was an outcast.

He stopped some distance away from Yona's house and shouted, "Hodi!". Yona went out to him. "Karibu, come near, my friend!" he said.

"Mchungaji, Pastor, I am a man who has shed blood; some years ago I clubbed my wife to death. This day I have returned from prison. My house is an utter ruin, no-one has been near it since the death. I went to my relatives and they drove me away like an animal; no man would even come near me. I was about to give up, but, as I wept, I thought of you, the leader of the Wakristo. Perhaps you would allow me to draw near and give me a lodging for the night," the old man pleaded.

Yona (an Mbulu) answered, "Bwana Yesu has saved me and He has helped me in this very matter. If in your heart you can realise it, God will forgive you this weight of sin."

Astonished, the man replied, "What are you saying? I ask that you give me a place to sleep, a meal, to think what I can do."

Yona pressed him with salvation, saying, "Those things – a bed and a meal – you can have, but you need the Saviour. You need to be cleansed in the blood of Jesus. He died for people with sins like yours. He can forgive you and wipe out that sin of shedding man's blood."

Trembling with emotion, the man asked, "Did you say that this sin can be cleansed?"

"Yes, if you give yourself to Yesu you will become a new man, cleansed from every stain, and your sin will be forgotten for ever."

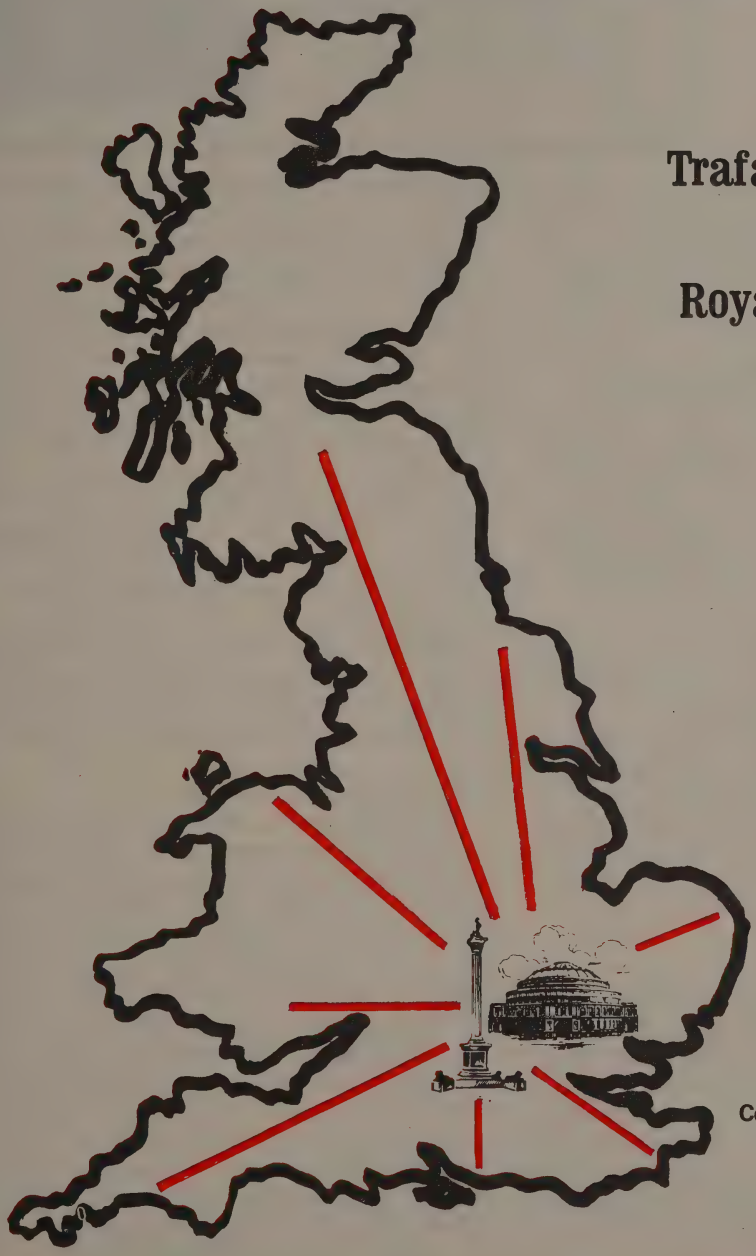
"Brother," said the man, "are you telling the truth or folk tales? I have great trouble, please explain."

Yona replied, "Listen, Yesu died for your sins. This very day if you will believe you will be free of that sin. We even this day will count you our brother, a child of God."

The man drew near and said, "Bwana, I believe with all my heart. I have nothing that I can do. I know not how I shall live in this land. Guide me I pray."

Pastor Yona explained the gospel to him and the old Mbulu gave himself completely over to Yesu. Yona then called his wife and all three prayed together. Then Yona said, "Karibu, welcome, to my house for food and lodging; make your home with us." Weeping with joy and marvelling at what had happened to him Mbulu was lead inside.

It is now three years since he found cleansing in Yesu. When he was baptised, taking the name Gabrieli, he astonished many with his joy, as he said, "to taste the joys of life like other men." So far, we cannot get him a wife, but we believe that God will grant him even this in his new life in Kristo.



Pastor Paulo is Vice-Chairman of E.M.S. in Tanzania. He took over the Kikilo and district work from the Gull family on their departure.

The Wambulu have very strong taboos on death and on all who are near a dying person or who have shed blood. A bereaved person is completely unapproachable for one year, a murderer never.

The young Church

by Robert Fairnie

Robert Fairnie was born again in 1930 in the Musselburgh A.O.G., a daughter assembly started by Donald Gee during his Edinburgh ministry.

While engaged in his work as a fisherman he was called into the ministry. He has held only three pastorates: Fraserburgh, Norwich, and now he is in his ninth year at Mount of Olives, Bristol. Recent years have seen much fruit among young people, many of them students from the University. He is secretary of the Board of Governors of the Assemblies of God Bible College, Chairman of the Credential Council of the Fellowship, and a member of the Trust of Haldon Court Christian Holiday and Conference Centre.

J.B. PHILLIPS in his translation of the New Testament Epistles reminds us, by his title, "Letters to Young Churches" that they are just these. The young Church itself reveals so much of its primeval beauty as it emerges from the Pharisaic age of intolerance. The record of the Acts is the astounding account of the young Church in action, revealing that the Satan was defeated in his repeated attempts to slay the "Seed of the Woman" from whom the Redeemer would come to bruise the head of the serpent (see Genesis 3:15). "I will build My Church," the Victor cries, "And the gates of Hell shall not prevail against it." But for that mighty prophetical voice the young Church would have been doomed to failure from its inception. Instead it has become a mighty Army, terrible with banners.

There are repeated cries today to get back to the days of the New Testament; this is impossible and far from practical were it to be granted to us. We are predestined to conform to the image of the Son of God and to serve our generation in the will of God. We can enjoy the same pristine glory of the Early Church when we are filled with the same Spirit and participate in the same life, the life of the risen Saviour.

Priorities

We are always keen to look out for men with ability but God is more anxious for availability. The key apostles in the Early Church were looked upon as "ignorant and unlearned", but they were always available to God. J.O. Sanders underlines a principle in the young Church when he says, "The mark any man makes on his own generation is determined by the things he puts first in his life. Achievements for God and attainments in the spiritual life hinge on the choosing of priorities." It was not the prayer meeting, but the decision to attend, and at three o' clock in the afternoon, that sparked off the first healing in the New Testament Church. The lame man was healed and joined them, going into the meeting "walking and leaping and praising God". Don't long for the old days to return if business, or visiting friends, or a television programme keeps you away from the place of prayer. The amazing thing about getting our priorities right is that doors of opportunity open of their own accord and life becomes really exciting. It became easy for Peter to witness to the death and resurrection of the Saviour and to call the unconverted to repentance (Acts 3:12–19). Their integrity merited the privilege of preaching the second sermon of the young Church, and many believed. The number of the men was about five thousand. The great purposes of God are carried forward upon the obedience of men who know that they are not accountable to God for success, but for faithfulness. This was the secret of the growth of the Early Church – "We ought to obey God rather than men."

Persecution

When believers are filled with the Holy Ghost they become a special target for the Adversary. Having failed to destroy the "royal seed", the enemy became a defeated foe. Soon after the birth of the young Church he moved in against the Holy Ghost. It was a subtle move and in the midst of revival when great powers and great grace were upon the whole company of believers (see Acts 4:33). Satan filled the heart of Ananias and Sapphira and they conceived a dreadful thing in their hearts; this was the first direct attack of Satan upon the third Person in the Trinity recorded in the Early Church. He overstepped himself, as he had done in his attacks on the Lord Jesus. In this instance, he was put to confusion by the manifestation of that gift of the Spirit, the Word of Knowledge (Acts 5:3,4; 1 Corinthians 12:8). Genuine manifestations of the Spirit are given "severally as He will", and are a profitable exercise for the Church (1 Corinthians 12:7–11). We need to discern the wicked devices of the one who set himself against God from the beginning. His attention today is the purchased possession of Jesus Christ, the Church of the Firstborn, the Bride of the Lamb.

The rulers of the people and elders of Israel and all the religious authority of the day rose against the infant Church. Their desire, motivated by Satan, was to stop its growth. Peter, filled with the Holy Ghost, could only answer by preaching the gospel: "Jesus Christ of Nazareth . . . Neither is there salvation in any other; for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved". Whenever the young Church was assailed by the arch-enemy, the attack opened the door to the preaching of a red hot sermon. Paul writing to the Philippians says, "And I want you to know this, dear brothers; Everything that has happened to me here has been a great boost in getting out the Good News concerning Christ. For everyone around here, including all the soldiers in the barracks, know that I am in chains simply because I am a Christian. And because of my imprisonment many of the Christians here seem to have lost their fear of chains! Somehow my patience has encouraged them and they have become more and more bold in telling others about Christ." (Philippians 1:12–14, Living Letters).

Persecution often begins among unbelieving believers. They become disturbed by the moving of the Spirit of God and when, as in the Early Church, multitudes are added to the Lord, it fills them with indignation and they soon begin their campaign against the true and oftimes new move of the Holy Ghost in revival. They examine the theology and, if it is not in line with their dead orthodoxy, they use this to sow discord among the people. The sect of the Sadducees, a very select religious society, were experts at this until they came face to face with the dynamic of the young Church. They did not believe in the resurrection, yet these ignorant, unlearned men preached this very thing with such authority. They did not believe in angels and an angel came right from heaven and opened the prison door releasing the servants of God that they might preach the unsearchable riches of Christ. The Pharisees who prided themselves in being custodians of the truth for so long, but who were really blind leaders of the blind looked upon those men filled with a new power who filled "Jerusalem with their doctrine." Prison and beatings could not stop the revival; they only caused them to rejoice that they were counted worthy to suffer shame for His name.

Preservation

In "The Acts of the Holy Ghost through the Apostles" we have the account of over fifty years of seeking to spread the Gospel to the known world. The apostles lived in days of hostility, preaching a message opposed by the Jewish leaders and without any of the means of transport or communication we pride ourselves in today. They even had converts in Caesar's household. Every member became an evangelist, a witness of the things that they had seen and heard. They believed that, if every creature is to hear the gospel, then every believer must preach the gospel. They went everywhere preaching the gospel.

This was their preservation – their passion to preach Christ whatever the cost. To this must be added the strength of fellowship – forbidding not the assembling of themselves together. In their trials, "being let go they went to their own company" (Acts 4:23). What a meeting that was as, with one accord, they lifted up their voices to extol the majesty of their sovereign God and prayed for boldness to speak His Word and that signs and wonders would be done in the name of Jesus. The prayer lasted for about one minute (praying in public should not last much longer at any time), but with what tremendous results. The place was shaken, they were all filled with the Holy Ghost and their request was granted – they spake the Word of God with boldness! The resurrection of the Lord was preached in great power and great grace was upon them all. This fellowship was the binding force of the Early Church. It is still the means of grace, the place where God's honour dwells and where He has covenanted to meet with us. Slothfulness usually begins when we neglect meeting together as a church and our witness is always ineffective where there is no "household of faith" to which to return.

The Early Church had no time for idle, selfish souls. Every believer became a worker, a warrior, a witness. Within ten years of Paul's ministry, with his fellow-workers he had established local churches, soul-saving centres, in all ten world provinces of the Roman Empire. The passion of these early days was revived in the fruitful ministry of John Wesley. He continually enthused his preachers by reminding them, "Ye have only one business and that is the salvation of lost souls."

There is again the "sound of a moving"; God is giving us the opportunity to work, to pray, to witness. He is waiting to confirm our endeavours with signs following. Holy determination will bring it to pass. We must arise and declare in the words of David Livingstone, "I determined never to stop until I had achieved my purpose." Claim the heathen of our own land for our inheritance!

What is the Fire of God?

by Joseph Smith

SEVERAL years ago I asked Nelson Parr, "What is the fire of God? How would you define it?" He replied, "I would define it as love in the heart fanned by the Holy Ghost." Many times afterwards I turned those words over in my mind and compared them with the Word of God and concluded that he was right. I thought on the words of Christ concerning the days in which we now live: "And because iniquity shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold." Only that which has once been hot, or at least warm, can wax cold. Only those who have had the fire can lose it. Therefore, this love must be the fire. Solomon said, "Many waters cannot quench love, neither can the floods drown it."

It was said of Jesus: "He shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost, and with fire.", but are all those who are baptized with the Holy Spirit also baptized with the fire of Divine love?

We know that all believers have love in their hearts, because it is a fruit of the Spirit, but surely the fire of God here referred to is more than this. Why did Paul pray for the Ephesian believers, who had been baptized with the Holy Spirit, that they might know the length, breadth, depth, and height of the love of Christ that they might be filled with all the fulness of God (Ephesians 3:14–19)?

It would seem from his testimony that Charles G. Finney did receive such a baptism of the Holy Spirit coupled with that heavenly fire of Divine love, following his conversion in 1821. Here is his testimony: "I returned to the front office and found that the fire that I had made of large wood was nearly burned out. But as I turned and was about to take a seat by the fire I received a mighty baptism of the Holy Ghost. Without any expectation of it, without any recollection that I had ever heard the thing mentioned by any person in the world, the Holy Spirit de. nded upon me in a manner that seemed to go through me body and soul. I could feel the impression, like a wave of electricity, going through and through me. Indeed, it seemed to come in waves and waves of liquid love; for I could not express it in any other way. It seemed like the very breath of God. I can recollect distinctly that it seemed to fan me, like immense wings. No words can express the wonderful love that was shed abroad in my heart. I wept aloud with joy and love: and I do not know but I should say, I literally bellowed out the unutterable gushings of my heart. These waves came over me and over me, one after the other, until I cried out, 'I shall die if these waves continue to pass over me!' I said, 'Lord, I cannot bear any more!' Yet, I had no fear of death. How long I continued in this state, with this baptism continuing to roll over me and go through me, I do not know. But I know it was late in the evening when a member of my choir – for I was the leader of the choir – came into the office to see me. He was a member of the church. He found me in this state of loud weeping, and said to me, 'Mr. Finney, what ails you?' I could make him no answer for some time. He then said, 'Are you in pain?' I gathered myself up as best I could, and replied, 'No, but so happy that I cannot live !"

Now consider the results of this mighty baptism of the Spirit accompanied with such a realization of the wonderful love of God, which filled the life and soul of Charles G. Finney, and continued to burn in his heart to his dying day. It is written of him: "Following this experience with God, Charles Finney launched out with God upon one of the greatest revivals since the days of the apostles. During the year 1857–58 over one hundred thousand persons were led to Christ. In some places where he ministered, not a dance or a theatrical could be held for years following his meetings."

Fire is a converting force. It will convert everything into its own nature. Just watch that great house when the fire gets a hold on it. See how everything – furniture, musical instruments, floors, walls and stairs – becomes a roaring flame. See also that little company in Jerusalem consisting of only 120 souls become a great multitude in a short space of time (Acts 5:12–16). Why was this? Because they had been baptized with the Holy Ghost and fire!

If you think deeply enough you will see the need for this double experience. Take for example, a young man who has been baptized with the Spirit and who goes to the mission field. He may have the Spirit of God in his life, but unless he has the great burning love of God in his heart for those people to whom he feels called to minister, he will never accomplish much for God. The man with the love of God burning in his heart will do and dare, will sacrifice and give of his very best and count it a privilege to have the opportunity of doing so in a way which the man lacking this experience will never do. The same applies to service for God in the home field. In fact this same principle applies to the individual members of all our churches. Because of the lack of this flame of Divine love in the hearts of so many there is a slacking off in service, in prayer, in witnessing, in seeking the lost, and in voluntarily sacrificing for God.

No fire will keep burning for ever without fuel. Even the fire which God kindled in the temple at Jerusalem was kept burning by the priests who daily added the necessary fuel. The spiritual fuel for this spiritual fire of Divine love is prayer, intercession, faith, the Word of God, consecration, whole-hearted service, joyfulness, devotion, compassion, thankfulness, gratitude, holiness, forgiveness, unselfishness, and self sacrifice.

Burn, fire of God! Thy grace and glory knowing,
My cleansed heart shall be all fire within:
Love all-constraining, tenderness o'erflowing,
One kindling passion other lives to win.

Thoughts from the Book of Genesis

9 The Covenant-making God (Genesis 9:9)

by F. Lavender

THE Scriptures show us a remarkable fact. Sin has made it impossible for man to have unconditional fellowship with God; indeed, unless God chose to make fellowship possible man would be cut off from Him for ever. Yet we read in the Bible that God delights to enter into covenant with man so that,by keeping the conditions of the covenant, man and God may enjoy fellowship!

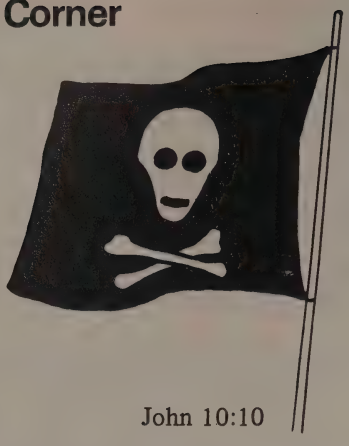
Our text tells of the covenant with mankind through Noah. Genesis 15 describes that which God made with Abram. There was a special covenant with Israel through Moses in Exodus 19. There is one – yet future – spoken of by Ezekiel (16:60; 37:26). Specially precious is the new covenant made through the Lord Jesus (Matthew 26:28). This is a most wonderful picture of Divine condescension: the eternal God desiring fellowship and union with men and women, willing to be bound to them by the sacred tie of a blood covenant!

In infinite love, the Lord God has entered into covenant with us, if we are Christians. Other covenants were sealed with animal blood, yet they were regarded as most sacred and binding. How much more sacred is the New Covenant sealed with the precious blood of the Lord Jesus, the Son of God, the God-man? By this Covenant we are joined eternally to God; He is our Father, we are His children, and we live in constant fellowship with Him. We are no longer our own, but are brought back by Christ from bondage to sin, so that we may bring glory to God. Here and now it is our joy to reveal in our lives the benefits of this Covenant and finally it will be our privilege to manifest the glory of God to the whole creation (Romans 8:18-21).

U.S. Youth aim - Soul winnning

NEARLY 10,000 Assemblies of God (U.S.A.) young people participated in organized person-to-person evangelism in the United States during the summer of 1972.

Under the Ambassadors in Mission (AIM) programme, the young people volunteered to give a few days to a few weeks in AIM programmes under the direction of district youth presidents.



Some teams went from house to house, but many others simply went wherever there were people – on the sidewalks, on the beaches, in parks – witnessing to their faith in Christ and inviting others to share it. Thousands accepted the invitation.

AIMers are selected only after they have applied to serve on a team. They are trained for participation in person-to-person, Bible-based witnessing. They take responsibility for their own expenses, but the Assemblies of God Women's Missionary Council assists with food, and the Men's Department underwrites literature for distribution.

In addition to AIM witnesses in the United States, approximately 750 went as AIMers to other countries during the summer. One of the largest groups went to Munich, West Germany, to give their witness during the Olympics. There 118 AIMers teamed up with sixty five Christian European young people for witnessing. They recorded 252 decisions for Christ in Munich.

The big bad Pirate

John 10:10

Words and drawing by Sheila Price

"WILL you tell me a story, please?" asked John.

"Very well," said his grandfather. "How about a pirate story?"

"Oh, yes please," said John, curling up on his grandfather's lap. "Were pirates real people, grandfather?"

"Oh, indeed, John!"

"But there are not pirates today, are there?"

"No," said his grandfather, "There haven't been pirates for a long time now, but, many many years ago, they used to sail the seas. Their ships looked the same as any others, but they were equipped with guns which were kept hidden or disguised. The pirates sailed the seas searching for ships that carried cargoes of food or treasure. When they sighted one they sailed up to it. Only when they were alongside the ship did the pirates reveal their guns, hoist the pirate flag and jump aboard the ship. The sailors were taken completely by surprise and were powerless to stop the pirates from taking the cargo."

"The pirate flag had a skull and crossbones on it, didn't it, grandfather?"

"Yes, John. It was called the Jolly Roger, but there was nothing jolly about it. The flag was painted black as a symbol of the dark and dreadful deeds performed by the pirates, and the skull and crossbones were a sign of death and destruction."

"Long John Silver was a pirate, wasn't he?" asked John.

"Yes," said his grandfather. "Do you know the name of the most terrible pirate of all?"

"No," said John. "Tell me, grandfather!"

"It is sin, John, for it destroys our souls, ruins our lives, and robs us of all God's precious gifts of joy and happiness. Sin is black in the sight of God and, like the pirate flag, it means death. We need to ask Jesus into our hearts so that we may have the power to fight this big bad pirate called sin."

Book Reviews

Wonderful Name by Lilian A. Walsh, published by Henry E. Walter Ltd. Price 42p, postage 4p extra.

Having been wonderfully converted to Christ from Roman Catholicism, the writer in a simple, enthralling manner takes us step by step through many of her experiences as she wholly followed the Lord.

Committing herself completely to God and standing firmly on the Word of the Lord, every spiritual, material, and physical need was supplied. Doors of service opened wide, revealing the presence and blessing of the Holy Spirit altogether beyond one's dreams or imagination.

This book will challenge, comfort and inspire all who read it. It is particularly suitable for new converts of all ages.

(Mrs.) S. COLE

The Future Life, by Rene Pache. Published by Marshall, Morgan and Scott, price £1.75, postage 12p extra.

"IF we are to live for ever in another world, it would be insane to neglect the revelations and the warnings of Scripture on the subject." So writes the author in his preface. Translated from the French, and a sequel to his The Return of Jesus Christ, it first appeared ten years ago in U.S.A. It has now been published here. In nearly 400 pages, the great themes of man's destiny, death, Satan, the world of spirits good and evil, the resurrection, the judgments, the final triumph, and heaven and hell are developed according to Bible teaching, in language that all can understand. A detailed Contents list adds to its value and makes it a volume of reference worth keeping.

J. ALEXANDER WRIGHT

Pilgrim's Progress in Today's English, by James H. Thomas. Published by Victory Press. Price 45p, postage and packing 7p extra.

IN the re-telling of Pilgrim's Progress in today's English the author for the most part succeeds in his task. Several old English phrases are retained but the book loses none of its spiritual impact. Scriptural references are given at the bottom of the pages where necessary and the flow of the story is not interrupted.

Useful features are the up-dating of some of the characters' names and the introduction of new names for others. "Mr. By-Ends" becomes "Mr. Crafty" and "Mr. Pickthank" is replaced by "Deception".

Other descriptive details are omitted, but this book must not be considered as an abridged children's edition. It is rather a useful addition to any bookshelf.

Gracious in Speech

"THE pure in heart . . . and gracious in speech will have the king as a friend." (Proverbs 22:11, Amplified Bible).

I believe that most of us instinctively despise the double-tongued and double-talk. Insincerity and innuendo are loathsome. Nevertheless a cheap brand of double-talk is in vogue today, particularly in the world of entertainment. Lyrics and dialogue in so many programmes on T.V. and radio are deliberately suggestive. They carry a double-meaning and can be easily exploited by the dirty-minded. A look, a gesture are enough and the audience rocks with mirth. Let me state forthwith that I stand solidly with Mrs. Mary Whitehouse in protesting against all forms of entertainment and publishing which include double talk with sleasy undertones. I believe Paul's observations in Titus 1:15 is always relevant: "Unto the pure all things are pure: but unto them that are defiled and unbelieving, is nothing pure".

Even in Christian circles there are those who are ready to read into one's words and actions meanings that were never intended. A different viewpoint sometimes brings a barrier which creates misunderstanding. I wrote last year about the night when my husband and I attended the Mayoral Banquet at Salisbury. I received appreciation of this article from a number of people. Only today I had a very kind letter from someone mentioning the blessing that this particular article had been to them. These folk took my words at face value from my standpoint. We went as a matter of courtesy and respect for civic dignity and to honour the Lady Mayor, a very gracious hard-working doctor. We were able to talk to our companions at the table about our faith and our Pentecostal beliefs. The gentleman next to me thanked me for giving him a new slant on overseas work for God. What a contrast to the viewpoint expressed in an abusive letter I received from Essex which condemned us with scathing remarks about our worldliness, gluttony and backsliding and which read into the words I wrote a meaning that was never intended.

There is a story told of the great Mozart and his friend the royal huntsman. One day as they walked arm-in-arm through the fields the wind came up heavily through the trees in the nearby copse. "Look" said the hunter "it will startle the hare!". "Listen," said Mozart "what a diapason on God's great organ!". As they walked on, a lark rose on soaring wing with its own sweet song. "Look" said the gamester "what a shot!". "Ah" said Mozart "what would I give could I catch that trill!". That's just it; as the saying has it: "Beauty is in the eye of the beholder". As Jesus said, "The pure in heart shall see God."

We are not worthy of our calling in Christ if we see the worst in every deed and if we misconstrue a fellow-Christian's words and see only his faults and failings. I made a list of imagined observations made by people with different points of view:

What a coarse character: What a rough diamond.

Not my type at all: A real trophy of grace.

I'm always in trouble; everything goes wrong for me: It's wonderful what a lot God has brought me through.

Look at all those weeds: What a variety of wild flowers.

It's hopeless – all this still to do: Hey, look how much I've done.

How ridiculous – he's a fanatic!: Isn't he keen? He's a real soul-winner.

I had an aunt, a typical city-dweller, who, because of her husband's illness, was compelled to move south to the lovely countryside of Oxfordshire. When asked how she was liking living in the country she replied, "Not at all; I'm lonely. There's too much waste ground around." We took friends to view Stonehenge and one who shall be nameless said disappointedly on her return, "It was only stones and grass!" My World Evangelization Congress to meet in Lausanne, Switzerland, July 1974.

DR. Billy Graham recently announced that the International Congress on World Evangelization will take place at Lausanne, Switzerland, on July 16-25th, 1974.

The building is considered to be almost ideal for the Congress of up to 3,500 participants, observers and press corps. In addition to the main hall and concert halls, it has seventy-five smaller halls and offices as well as five restaurants, which will enable all who attend to have meals at one sitting.

The Congress Planning Committee had hoped to be able to find a suitable venue for the Congress in the so-called Third World. According to Graham many alternative possibilities were carefully investigated in all six continents and it was eventually found that the Lausanne facilities are best able to meet the exacting requirements of the Congress at reasonable cost. Ease of access and freedom of entry from every part of the world, suitable facilities for hospitality and the daily work of the Congress, are all considered essential. In addition, it is intended to involve individual participants to a major extent in small study and planning groups, thus necessitating the small halls. I.C.W.E.

Vacation Venture promises a bright September

WE hear much these days about Black September, the Arab terrorist group who have wrought death and havoc in their determination to free Palestine from Israel. They chose this name to commemorate the time when King Hussein of Jordan fought them to rid them from his domain.

We would like to tell you how you can make September 1973 a time to remember for the rest of your life.

Vacation Venture is the splendid but simple idea of combining a holiday for Christian young people, with all its delights and diversions, with a glorious opportunity of serving Jesus and winning people for Christ. We have visited many places over recent years. This coming year we shall go to what has become known as Sunshine Isle . . . JERSEY. We have booked the first two weeks in September and hope you will be able to join us. Accommodation will be available for about sixty young folk. So hurry up! Do join us; it will be great to have you.

All types of young folk join us for this type of exciting holiday. University and College students come and groups of young folk from churches. Some come on their own, but soon make friends. The majority are teens and twenties. The programme includes many things on the recreational side. Every afternoon is free for visits to the beach, special outings and games. On the spiritual side there are morning devotions and sessions on soul-winning and on many other aspects of the Christian life. At night come crusade services and coffee bar outreach. We also do door to door work and hold children's campaigns. There will be plenty of opportunity for you to get really involved for Christ.

JERSEY needs no advertising. It's one of the most beautiful parts of the United Kingdom and is visited by hundreds of thousands every year. Delightful bays and parks abound. The crusade will be held in the modern Elim Pentecostal church. Vacation Venture will be led by Pastor Bryan Vidamour and myself. The accommodation will be of the dormitory type, we must make this clear, but there will be excellent food and good facilities.

Normal prices for Jersey at this time of year are treble what you will be paying.

It's going to be a great holiday, but a holiday plus... the plus of working and witnessing for Jesus. In this type of holiday there is much fun and laughter. We shall be having special times for those seeking the Baptism in the Holy Spirit. Last Vacation Venture eleven young folk were baptised in the Spirit. Some of those who were won for Christ are now serving in the churches.

WRITE SOON FOR DETAILS TO: Pastor B.C. Vidamour, 116 Miladi Park Estate, Longueville, St. Saviours, JERSEY, C.I. If you enclose a stamped addressed envelope, please use an international stamp. British stamps are not valid in Jersey.

son-in-law, with true Celtic fire, stood transfixed, with eyes shining, as he gazed at the mighty monuments which have been standing gaunt and grey for over 3,000 years.

Shall we do a mental check-up? How are our seeing and our thinking geared? May we never get caught up in the dubious double-talk of the world. Jesus, our Leader, said, "Blessed [thrice happy] are the pure in heart for they shall see God." Not only in the hereafter, but also now, we can see God in all things.

Monday, January 22nd 2 Samuel 9:1–13

"That I may shew the kindness of God unto him" (v.3); "for Jonathan thy father's sake" (v.7).

THOUGH Mephibosheth was crippled in his feet (2 Samuel 19:24) and was therefore ritually unclean, David accepted him for the sake of his beloved friend Jonathan. Mephibosheth was thankful to sit at the king's table! Later, despite the slanderous accusations against Mephibosheth, David's promise held firm, and the young cripple sat in his place of honour continually. David showed to others the kindness that God has shown to him. May the Lord help us to do the same!

Tuesday, January 23rd 2 Samuel 10:1–19

"I will shew kindness unto Hanun . . . as his father shewed kindness unto me " (v.2).

UNLIKE the weakened Mephibosheth, the proud Hanun did not avail himself of the kindness which David offered to him for his father's sake. Here was kindness unaccepted. By mistreating David's servants, Hanun laid himself open to the judgment which swiftly followed.

God forbid that we should ever refuse the loving kindness that He offers to us daily. May pride not advise us wrongly. May no alliance with others steal God's promise from us. "Father, I accept Your kindness!" is our cry.

Wednesday, January 24th 2 Samuel 11:1–13

"At the time when kings go forth to battle . . . David sent Joab . . . But David tarried still in Jerusalem" (v.1).

THE Lord Jesus wept over Zion, because, as He said, "Thou knewest not the time". There is for us all a time to tarry and a time to go forth to battle. Of Christ Himself it is written, "When the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth His Son", and elsewhere, "Jesus tarried."

We need that inner sense both to know God's timing and leading and we should desire the wisdom to obey.

Thursday, January 25th 2 Samuel 11: 14–27

"Let not this thing displease thee" (v.25); "But the thing that David had done displeased the Lord " (v.27).

IN Joab's message concerning the death of Uriah the Hittite, king David certainly sensed his displeasure and possibly traced also a measure of rebellion. He therefore sought both to justify himself and to belittle his sin in Joab's eyes.

The utter blindness of a sinful soul was pathetically apparent in such an action, for there seemed to be no fear or thought of God's displeasure and probable judgment.

May the Lord keep us from such a blindness!

Friday, January 26th 2 Samuel 12:1–14

"I anointed thee . . . I delivered thee" (v.7); "I gave thee" (v.8); "Wherefore hast thou despised . . . the Lord . . . to do evil in His sight?" (v.9).

DAVID's shame was great. The peace of his house was to be marred by murder (v.10). What had been given would be taken away (v.11) and what had been done in secret would now be known in public (v.12).

At last he realised that he had displeased, even despised the Lord and he cried, "I have sinned against the Lord" (v.13), a cry that is echoed in his Psalm: "Against thee, thee only, have I sinned" (Psalm 51:4).

Saturday, January 27th 2 Samuel 12:15–33

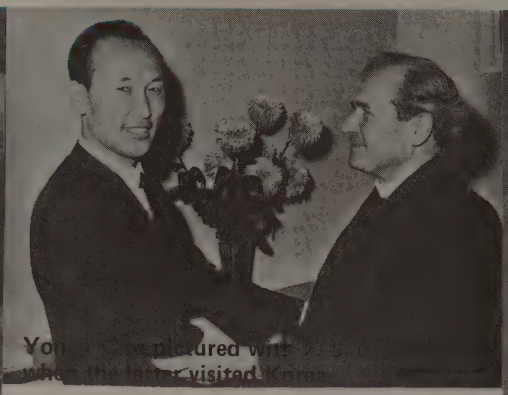
"Then David . . . came into the house of the Lord, and worshipped, then he came to his own house" (v.20).

DAVID rose from his prayerful vigil to worship the God who said, "No!". He worshipped the Lord who had judged as He had said He would and whose promised forgiveness David now counted to be just as certain. David quickly restored relationships in his palace, with the prophet and with his people.

We worship God, for a sense of His forgiveness is great upon us.

Sunday, January 28th 2 Samuel 13: 1–22

"When king David heard of all these things, he was very wrath " (v.21).



WAS there nothing more? This was a far cry from those times when it could be said that "David executed judgment and justice unto all his people" (2 Samuel 8:15).

David's own similar folly, forgiven by God but not forgotten by David, probably stifled any disciplinary action. Amnon went scotfree, unrepentant, and seemingly uncondemned.

Under the chain-reaction of the law of the earlier evil of David was sin (James 1:14,15), shaping up for the great explosion, for "sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death."

GHANA still looms large in my thinking. The impact of my visit there for the last two weeks of 1972 is still strongly upon me. I would like to share three things with you.

The superintendent pastor of one of the areas of the work of the Church of Pentecost is called Pastor F.D. Walker. It was delightful to see how happy the Ghanaian friends were to see their own Pastor Walker and Elim's Pastor Walker sharing together in the work.

Our Ghanaian brethren can teach us something by their devotion. At the convention at Bobikuma on Sunday, December 24th, we were told that the morning service began at 7.30 a.m. and ended at 2.15 p.m. On Christmas Day they had been all the way round the town holding open airs from 4 a.m. onwards. There was a time of prayer under the canopy attended by many hundreds at 5 a.m. and the service at which Pastor D.L. Mills and I spoke started at 8.30 a.m. and ended at 1.15 p.m. At Tema on Christmas morning (before we arrived) there had been a special evangelistic appeal. The number who came forward for salvation was 210. They were all baptised in the sea that same afternoon. When a person comes out for salvation in Ghana, they have to stand on the platform and call on the Lord to save them out loud in public mentioning their names. No doubt the blessing on the work can be accounted for in great measure by the deeply-held belief in and practice of prayer and fasting. I was told that the worry with some friends is that they may be in danger of fasting too much and too often. When we think of the desperate need here at home we must feel humbled and challenged by this example. When I tell you that many of the Ghanaians who come to the United Kingdom to study return home as backsliders because of the overwhelming worldliness of western civilisation (so-called), our need is all the more highlighted. I am glad to say that many are restored to the Lord on their return to their own country.

I must pay tribute to the work of Pastor and Mrs. D.L. Mills. Theirs is the task of conducting refresher courses for the pastors and workers of the Church of Pentecost. Our Ghanaian colleagues went out of their way to tell me how very deeply their work is appreciated. At each convention to which I went Mr. Mills was immediately surrounded by "old boys" of the refresher courses. It was a joy to see their loving greetings and to witness the high esteem in which our missionary and his wife are held.

Pastor and Mrs. David Kilpatrick will be going out to Ghana next month. They will have a wonderful welcome.

Church Reports

SOUTH SHIELDS Pastor: A.P. Johnston

WE were delighted to have with us the Field Superintendent and his wife for a week-end. At the Saturday night rally about eighty people enjoyed the word and the solos by Mrs. Chapman.

The highlight was the Sunday after meeting held at our Sunderland Church when Pastor R.B. Chapman spoke on baptism and thirteen believers from South Shields were baptized by our Pastor. This service was witnessed by a full church, many having travelled from South Shields in a special chartered coach.

God is richly blessing us here and we look to Him to continue His good hand upon us in the New Year.

R.S. DUTTON

GRANGETOWN, Teesside Pastor: A.L. Hawkes

RECENTLY we held a Sunday evening's children's demonstration service entitled, "Rocket to the Moon". The all-age programme morning staff did all the preparation work and our Pastor sat in the congregation for a change while the teachers took the whole of the service.

Children and teachers worked very hard to make the whole evening go very smoothly and quite a few parents came to enjoy the service. Each stage of rocket launching was considered and compared with the journey to Heaven.

BRIDGEND Pastor: J. Bristow

OUR Church had this photograph of Mrs. Olga Maher taken to record her ninety-second birthday. Born way back in 1880 to Christian parents, Mrs. Maher has lived through the South African and the two World Wars, and seen the world emerge from the Victorian era to as it is today. When a teenager, she was baptised in 1897 to publically confess her faith in Christ.

In 1955 Mrs. Maher attended the pioneer Crusade conducted by Pastor P.S. Brewster in Bridgend and so enjoyed the meetings that, eleven years ago, she joined our Church. Since that time she has been a faithful member and still regularly attends the Sunday and weeknight services. Often she will enter into public discussion during the Bible studies and can also hold a conversation on a wide range of topics.

The local Elim members wish her God's blessing in her ninety-third year.

J. BRISTOW

RYE PARK Pastor: P. Daw

OUR carol service was a wonderful opportunity to tell forth the birth of a Saviour. All the Sunday school took part. First the primary gave their very simple version, suitably attired as shepherds, kings, etc. After this the older scholars gave their impression, these, too, being dressed according to the parts they represented.

It was good to see so many of the parents present. Our Pastor was able to present to them the real meaning of Christmas.

For some time past the Sunday school has been at a low ebb, but, thanks to the work of Pastor and Mrs. Daw and helpers and to the use of a mini-bus, kindly loaned by the local Boys' Brigade, to bring children from a new estate, this has now increased, the attendance being round about fifty.

G. HOLMWOOD

LANE END, High Wycombe Pastor: L. Magee

SUNDAY evening, December 3rd 1972 was a memorable occasion for us and for the eleven candidates for water baptism.

A meaningful harvest of precious souls won for the Lord Jesus, and gloriously saved by Him, through the faithful and anointed ministry of our beloved Pastor who in such a short time has endeared himself to us through his zeal for the Gospel.

To God be all the glory "great things He is doing".

The youngest candidate is a child of Mr. and Mrs. Hearn, two of our valued members, while the ten were new converts of only a few weeks; it is a joy to have them in fellowship with us.

P. LEVERMORE

PLYMOUTH Pastor: L.P. Cowdery

DURING the past eighteen months, the Lord has graciously blessed us with a breath of revival. We have witnessed God's hand at work in a remarkable fashion. Scores have made decisions for the Lord, dozens have been healed, over sixty have received the Baptism in the Holy Spirit, and between fifty and sixty have been through the waters of baptism. Our congregations and finances have increased beyond our dreams and many have become church members, and still the revival goes on.

The reason for this is that the Lord has developed in us a new prayer life and a new generosity. Our church has learned to look to God as the source and to give and give again, of time, talents and finances. We have learned to expect miracles to happen – and they do. We record this because we feel that, what we have been able to achieve, other churches may achieve also.

The Lord's love has become the very foundation, and prayer the breath of life. We have been warned about the wisdom of man. The Holy Spirit has repeatedly told us to "seek for the wisdom of God". God is a covenant-keeping God and we must be covenant-keeping children, for God loves obedience and humility in His children.

The blessings have not only remained with us, but some who have been blessed, healed and filled with the Holy Spirit, have gone home to their own churches in the surrounding countryside and are being used of God there.

God has brought into our midst on the one hand, young tramps and drug addicts who now proclaim the Gospel of Jesus Christ and how it has changed them, and on the other, commanding officers in the Royal Navy who have found the Holy Spirit out in the Icelandic waters and who also declare God's power to all. Every class of society seems to have been touched with the blessing. God is no respector of persons; He loves us all.

BATH Pastor: D.O. Ward

IT was necessary to divide our annual fellowship meeting into two parts. First came the fellowship and business meeting. This gave an apt opportunity to look back and to thank God for His manifold blessings.

A few days previously we celebrated Pastor and Mrs. D.O. Ward's seventh anniversary with us. Our aim is that the coming year will be a perfect year of blessing.

A week later we held a splendid fellowship meeting and tea to mark the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of our Pastor and his wife. All preparations were made without their knowledge. What a surprise for them, as they entered the minor hall, to be greeted with loud applause, cine camera, laden tables, anniversary cake, etc., but especially with love and esteem. The tea being over, the Church Secretary read greeting cards and telegrams and then gave a "This is your life" resume of Pastor and Mrs. Ward and their family – Sharon, Roseanne, Paul and Peter, who are all so involved in our Church life. The source of information was not revealed, but the Secretary did thank Sharon for "doing her homework"!

Pastor and Mrs. Ward were then presented with a stainless steel tea service and a cheque. The Pastor and his wife, in acknowledgement, expressed their appreciation for all the loving thoughtfulness and hard work which so many contributed to an unforgettable evening. Though it had been done to celebrate a silver wedding, the love behind it was pure gold!

FREDERICK C. SMITH
Church Secretary

PONTARDULAIS Pastor: G.J. Feasey

WE can truly raise our hearts in thankfulness for the wonderful way in which the Lord's hand of blessing was upon us in 1972, our year of evangelism. The ministry of the Word throughout the year has been very rich and edifying. Souls have been saved, including two in the Watchnight Service. Those saved also passed through the waters of baptism. Many have been filled and refilled with the Spirit, and the gifts of the Spirit are in frequent operation. Many have testified to healing. This year has included two campaigns, which were richly blessed of God.

We thank God for our beloved Pastor and his wife, who have been a great inspiration and an encouragement in bringing to the fore the dormant talent in our youth departments, which have grown rapidly throughout the year.

To God be the glory, great things He has done!

THE DIACONATE

WESTON-SUPER-MARE Pastor: J.B.D. Ritchie

WE had a packed church for our special children's Christmas service, entitled "The Gift that goes on giving". All the Sunday school children took part in a lot of lovely demonstrations with the children acting as kings, shepherds and angels. They also sang carols and read from the Bible. It touched our hearts when the primary took part and sang, "Away in a Manger". Pastor R.B. Chapman was our guest speaker and we were all blessed as he gave us his Christmas message. He made an appeal at the end of his message and we praise God that a young boy came to know the Lord Jesus as his personal Saviour.

We give God all the glory for the many wonderful blessings He has bestowed upon us at Weston during the year.

Speaking in Tongues - The Historical Reality

3,700 A.D. to 18th Century

by Philip E. Streeter
Pastor of our Romford Church

OVER 1,200 years ago on a cold winter night, a poor Saxon cowherd boy lay curled up asleep in a stable of the famous Abbey of Whitby. Discouraged, he had come in from the feast where his masters and even some of his friends during the amusements of the evening had occupied the hours in the early alliterative rhyming of those simple days. But Caedmon could make no song, records the Account of Caedmon in Bede's Ecclesiastical History, and his heart was very sad. Suddenly, as he lay in the warm straw, it seemed to him that a heavenly glory illuminated the stable, and in the midst of the Divine lustre, One appeared who had been cradled in a manger six hundred years before.

"Sing, Caedmon," He said, "Sing some song to Me."

"I cannot sing," was the grieved reply, "for this cause it is that I come hither."

"Yet," said He who stood before him, "yet thou shalt sing to Me."

As he listened, a Divine power seemed to come on him, and words that he had never heard before rose up before his mind. The vision passed away, but the power remained with Caedmon.

The Encyclopaedia Britannica reveals that speaking in tongues was in [illegible]eration "among the Mendicant friars of the thirteenth century."

The Waldenses of the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, as well as possessing a passionate devotion for the reading of the Holy Scriptures, also practised healing and speaking in tongues.

Vincent Ferror, who died in 1419, was recognised as being honoured with the operation of the gift of tongues. Like phenomena are related of Anthony of Pravda.

Medieval belief was that speaking in tongues belonged to those who were possessed by evil spirits. No doubt many Christian women, wrongly accused of witchcraft, suffered the terror of the ducking-stool and burning at the stake because they were heard to speak in unknown languages.

John Calvin (1509–1564) referring to 1 Corinthians 14:1 in his Commentary on the Epistle of Paul the Apostle to the Corinthians, wrote: "There are at present great theologians, who declaim against them with furious zeal. As it is certain, that the Holy Spirit has here honoured the use of tongues with never-dying praise, we may very readily gather, what is the kind of spirit that actuates those reformers, who level as many reproaches as they can against the pursuit of them."

The sunrise of the Reformation reveals the utterance of Martin Luther commenting on the Gospel of Mark 16:17;18: "These signs [including the speaking in tongues] should be interpreted as applying to every individual Christian. When a person is a Christian he has faith, and he shall also have the power to do these signs."

Souer, in The History of the Christian Church, writes that Martin Luther was a prophet, evangelist, speaker in tongues and interpreter in one person, endowed with all the gifts of the Holy Spirit.

In 1688 some five or six hundred inhabitants of Dauphiny and Viverais also manifested prophetical and supernatural powers. Their doctrine and manifestation of speaking in tongues extended so widely that, through three dioceses, Roman Catholicism seemed reduced almost to nothing. They encountered powerful resistance, however, from the church and government of France. From the shirt which they wore this group of people became known as "Camisards", a shirt inscribed in the dialect of Languedoc.

The ministry of George Fox (1624–1691), founder of the Quakers, and his colleagues was confirmed with visions, healing, discernment and speaking in tongues. Philip Schaff lists the Quakers with those who practised glossolalia.

W.C. Braithwaite, in a description of early Quaker meetings wrote: "While waiting upon the Lord in silence, as often we did for many hours together, we received often the pouring down of the Spirit upon us, and our hearts were glad and our tongues loosed and our mouths opened, and we spake with new tongues as the Lord gave us utterance, and as His Spirit led us."

John Howie, in his inspiring book The Scots' Worthies, gives numerous accounts of the early Scottish Reformers, many of whom performed miracles as remarkable as those of the early apostles. John Welsh, born in 1570, a converted thief, was greatly used of God. Writing on Welsh's prayer life, Howie says: "An honest minister, who was Welsh's parishioner, many a day said that: One night as he watched in his garden very late, and some friends waiting upon him in his house and wearying because of his long stay, one of them chanced to open a window towards the place where he walked, and saw clearly a strange light surround him, and heard him speak strange words about his spiritual joy."

In 1731, the Catholic Jansenist population of Paris practised tongues, healing and prophecy. This evoked strong persecution from neighbouring Jesuits. Like the Camisards, Jansenists believed their speech faculties to be governed by a higher power.

John Lacy, a convert of a group of Huguenots who had fled to England during the French persecution under Louis XIV, became leader of a group who manifested ecstatic utterances and who were subsequently ridiculed by Shaftesbury.Sir R. Bulkley declares that he had heard Lacy repeat long sentences in Latin and another speak Hebrew, though, when not in the Spirit, they were incapable of it.

It was at this time that a revivalist movement was spreading through Silesia, the chief factor of which was boys and girls of early age who spoke and prayed with wonderful power.

Supernatural evidences were abundantly evident in the Methodist revival. Thomas Walsh, one of Wesley's most recognised preachers, wrote in his diary on March 8th, 1750: "This morning the Lord gave me a language I knew not of, raising my soul to Him in a wondrous manner."

The Divine syllables of New Testament tongues continue to tremble across the unfolding spectrum of ecclesiastical history.

Thoughts from the Book of Genesis

10 Nimrod (Genesis 10:8-11)

by F. Lavender

THE Scripture tells us that Nimrod was descended from Ham, the son cursed by Noah (Genesis 9:25). His name means "rebel" and this gives a clear insight into his nature; the words "before the Lord" also indicate his proud flaunting of his power in defiance of the Almighty. He was the first man to be described as a hunter; undoubtedly he was a brave man and probably he was regarded as a hero. Nimrod was also a hunter of men, the first of the cruel tyrants who have plagued mankind. He first built four cities in the area of Babylon, then attacked and dispossessed Asshur the son of Shem. In this way he rebelled against the Divine disposition of the earth.

Nimrod was only the first proud despot who sought to conquer and rule over others, but there have been many since, all down the ages, Pharoah, Nebuchadnezzar, Alexander, Napoleon, Hitler, Stalin, to name a few. All have been ruthlessly determined to compel men to obey their wills. All have shown the character of their true master, the inspirer of their dreams, Satan. The climax will come when the Antichrist is revealed; in the guise of offering peace to the world he will bring mankind to the verge of destruction. When Satan rebelled he was cast down from heaven (Luke 10:18), and Satan's servant, Antichrist, will likewise be destroyed by the Lord Jesus in the glory of His coming (2 Thessalonians 2:8; Revelation 19:19,20). No rebel will ever be permitted to reign as undisputed master of mankind. The Lord God has promised this supreme authority to the Lord Jesus Christ alone (Psalm 2:7-9; Philippians 2:9-11), therefore all shall bow before Him.

He alone is King of kings and Lord of lords!

Why make yourself ill?

asks Joseph Smith

WHY is it that, in this enlightened age, so many people do those things which the doctors say are responsible for so much of the sickness in this country?

I was preaching in one of our Elim churches somewhere in the Midlands, and I gave a list of the things which, I said, were responsible for sixty per cent of the sickness in this country. I did not know it, but sitting in that meeting were a specialist, a sister and a nurse from local hospitals. At the close of the meeting, the sister said to some of our people at the door: "Your speaker was wrong tonight. He said that the things he mentioned were responsible for sixty per cent of the sickness in this country. He should have said seventy per cent." I accept the correction.

We know that behind all sin and sickness is our great arch-enemy, Satan. There was neither sin nor sickness in this world when God created man in his own image, and pronounced that all that He had made was "Very good". To Adam God said: "Of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat: But of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die" (Hebrew "dying thou shalt die"). The moment when our first parents partook of that fruit, a change took place in their bodies. They became mortal. They knew it and ran to hide themselves. Being mortal, their bodies became subject, not only to death, but also to sickness. "Dying thou shalt die" has been the order ever since. Sickness is really death in slow motion; it will end in death if it is not checked. Sickness and death are partners: sickness lays you low and death comes and finishes you off, but, "When all around was sin and shame A second Adam to the fight and to the rescue came." Thank God for One who came that we might have life and have it more abundantly!

God's divine life is healing in its nature. "The first man Adam was made a living soul; the last Adam was made a quickening spirit" (1 Corinthians 15:45). "Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of His" (Romans 8:9). Christ who is in you is the same Christ who healed all manner of sickness and disease yesterday, "Jesus Christ the same yesterday, and today, and for ever" (Hebrews 13:8).

The Spirit of Christ is healing in its nature. The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance" (Galatians 5:22). Any doctor will tell you that these are healing in their nature. There never was a tonic put into a bottle so good for your glands, stomach, nerves and heart as love, joy and peace. If the Spirit of Christ were allowed to reign in the hearts and lives of men and women what a change it would make.

How subtle is our great arch-enemy! No wonder Paul wrote: "Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil". Those things which he will press upon us to accept are destructive in their nature and are ruinous to our mental, bodily and spiritual well-being. Here is a list of them, though I do not say that the list is complete by any means: anxiety, hatred, envy, jealousy, spite, bitterness, anger, fear, discouragement, self-centredness, frustration, resentment, bad temper, agitation, unforgiveness, revenge, murmuring, self-pity, ingratitude, bearing a grudge, dissatisfaction and despair.

I will now quote just one verse from the Amplified New Testament: "Let all bitterness and indignation and wrath (passion, rage, bad temper) and resentment (anger, animosity) and quarreling (brawling, clamour, contention) and slander (evil-speaking, abusive or blasphemous language) be banished from you, with all malice (spite, ill will or baseness of any kind)." (Ephesians 4:31).

It is said that anxiety, or worry is responsible for eighty per cent of those who have ulcers. The Bible says: "Be anxious for nothing; but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God. And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Jesus Christ" (Philippians 4:6,7).

I will now give you a list of positive emotions which mean so much to us physically, mentally and spiritually: love, joy, peace, faith, kindness, mercy, forgiveness, hope, trust, thankfulness, courage, goodness, compassion, humility, truth, righteousness, gratitude, cheerfulness, contentment and encouragement.

Paul said: "For the kingdom of God is not meat and drink; but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost" (Romans 14:17). When these positive emotions reign in our hearts and minds, the glands pour into the bloodstream soothing and revitalising fluids, but, when negative emotions prevail, the same glands exude into the bloodstream poisonous acids which vitiate the bloodstream and lower our vitality and consequently our resistance to any germ which is on the warpath.

Dr. William Sadler, the eminent specialist on nervous diseases, says: "If people lived in a truly Christian way half the diseases would drop off tomorrow morning and we would rise up a new superior race of human beings."

Dr. Alexis Carrell, a Nobel prize-winner, says: "Envy, hate and fear, when these sentiments are habitual, are capable of starting organic changes and genuine diseases. Businessmen who do not know how to fight worry die young".

Dr. S.I. McMillen says: "What a person eats is not so important as the bitter spirit, the hates, and the feelings of guilt that eat at him. A dose of baking soda in the stomach will never reach these acids that destroy body, mind and soul."

Dr. English in his book mentions fear, sorrow, jealousy, envy, self-centeredness, ambition, rage, frustration, resentment and hatred as disease-producing emotions concerned with protecting and coddling the self, and they could be summarized under one title – self-centredness.

Billy Graham says: "Harbouring ill feelings towards people brings indigestion, nervous tension, and eventually ulcers. It robs you of joy, it hinders your prayer life; it affects and clouds every day you live."

The Yorkshire Evening Press (March 20th, 1972) reported a meeting held in St. Clement's Church, York, at which Dr. Coggan preached: "Dr. Coggan's message was forgiveness – the most powerful therapeutic healing method in the world. He said: 'There are a lot of people here tonight and a lot of people in York who need this kind of healing. Many of the beds in our hospitals would be empty tonight if many people knew what it meant to forgive and be forgiven. If a man knows what forgiveness of sin is all about and has the right relationship with God and his neighbours, then a healing process is set in motion which affects the mind, the body and the whole being."

Solomon said: "A merry heart doeth good like a medicine: but a broken spirit drieth the bones," and "A calm and undisturbed mind and heart are the life and health of the body, but envy, jealousy and wrath are as rotteness of the bones" (Amplified Bible).

I could go on and quote from many renowned physicians, but space forbids. There is, however, one point on which the medical profession in general do not go far enough. While they proclaim the virtues of such things as love, joy and peace, and their effect on the human body, they do not exhort their patients sufficiently to get the one and only tree on which this glorious fruit grows, viz. the Spirit of Christ (see Galatians 5:22,23). I suppose they leave that for us preachers to tell them!

I must confess that I read my Bible for years and never connected the things which the Bible declares as being essential to virtue as being also essential to physical well-being and the things which the Bible condemns as being detrimental to my physical well-being and happiness.

He who formed our frame made man a perfect whole,
And made the body's health depend upon the soul.

"Beloved, I wish above all things that thou mayest prosper and be in health, even as thy soul prospereth" (3 John v.2). "May God himself, the God of peace, make you holy in every part, and keep you sound in spirit, soul, and body" (1 Thessalonians 5:23, N.E.B.).

Testimony Time

by Laurie Cahill

SOME months ago, my wife and I drifted into the Elim Pentecostal Church here in Bath. We have both been greatly blessed by the fellowship and the ministry of this friendly gathering.

Three years ago the last place that I would have entered on a Sunday would have been a place of worship. I might have been in a prison cell, or a pub or with other meths drinkers, stinking in some derelict building, an appropriate place for a fellowship of human derelicts. My dear wife would have been at home praying in desperation that God would do something about this hopeless drunkard of a husband.

No one else could help. Doctors and psychiatrists had tried and failed. Alcoholics Anonymous had failed. A succession of prison sentences and hospitalisation had failed. At one time or another the whole spectrum of the social services and prison reformers had tried and failed miserably.

The open Bible, left around hopefully, had for years offered no easy answer. After all, had I not been a Communist Party member? I didn't accept religion or anything spiritually slanted.

Then one day, the Lord Jesus introduced Himself to my mixed-up twisted self. At an A.A. meeting, a fellow meths drinker told me about an Anglican vicar who helped drunkards and suggested that I visited him. .I dismissed the whole idea. I was an atheist: visit an Anglican minister, the Church of England, the Tory Establishment at prayer? – not for me! But our

by H.W

"And be not conformed to th renewing of yo

IN introducing himself to the Roman Church, Paul opens his heart in an affectionate expression of his desires for them: "without ceasing I make mention of you always in my prayers . . . I long to see you, that I may impart unto you some spiritual gift, to the end ye may be established" (1:9,11). His letter is then packed with sound doctrine and practical advice, which includes in chapter 12 an appeal for full dedication to the will of God: "With eyes wide open to the mercies of God, I beg you, my brothers, as an act of intelligent worship, to give Him your bodies, as a living sacrifice, consecrated to Him and acceptable by Him" (J.B. Phillips).

We are not long in the family of God before we find ourselves engaged in bitter conflict in the battle between good and evil, between carnality and spirituality. Goodness is challenged by hostile forces of badness; unregenerate men are activated by wicked motives and desires: "All have sinned and come short of the glory of God" (Romans 3:23). In that reprobate society it is recorded of our Lord, however, that "He went about doing good" (Acts 10:38), and our value to our generation is determined by our walk with Him: "He that saith he abideth in Him ought himself also so to walk, even as He walked" (1 John 2:6). To this end all exhortations of Scripture are directed, and that is Paul's purpose in drawing attention to Christian graces in Romans chapter 12, concluding with the command: "Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good." Conformity with the world is enmity against God. A daily exercise of consecration to the way of Christ is demanded of those who would live the perfect life.

The Bible teaches that Christians are under constant pressure from the world which constantly strives to force our minds into an anti-God mould: "For the interests of the flesh are hostile to God; they do not yield to the law of God" (Romans 8:7, Moffatt). The battle for the mind has become determined and intense. If the Devil can pressurise our minds to lust for the things of this crooked generation he will achieve a tragic end result. It is well for us to remember that worldliness does not merely consist of the seven deadly sins. Unfortunately, many religious people bow at the altar of Mammon, others are driven by "the Bitch goddess of Success", while some wear the status symbols of a fallen society, forgetting that the heart of Christianity is relationship with the lowly Nazarene.

Paul puts his finger on the most important aspects of the believer's progress to maturity: "Be ye transformed", he says, "by the renewing of your mind." This is sound psychology, for studies in the realm of the conscious and sub-conscious have proved that man's thinking processes can be conditioned both from within and from without.

No part of our anatomy has such powers for good or ill as the brain, that remarkable piece of fragile apparatus poised at the top of the spinal column and operating at times with the speed of a computer. Shakespeare's question, "Canst thou not minister to a mind diseased?" has been repeated to doctors and psychiatrists for many years, all too often to be met with a shrug of the shoulders and the excuse, "We're doing the best we can."

On the physical side the brain can be explained in terms of millions of atoms and molecules, a grey mass of cells, but this would be an evaluation on the same level of measurement as that applied to an earthworm or a blade of grass or the pigment on a Rembrandt masterpiece, indeed, of any other part of the physical universe, be the part animate or inanimate. Such a materialistic analysis falls short of the real truth, for within this region of the body lies the genius of personality, here originate the factors that cannot be measured by the most delicate gauges or observed through the most powerful microscopes: love, hate, passions, abstract ideas, appreciation of art. From this centre signals command every part of the human frame, sometimes with dazzling perfection of control and amazing rapidity. Down through the nerve tissues of the spinal column the impulses of the brain speed along the tiny nerve paths, jumping across the synapses and along the intricate system to all parts of the body. Reflex movements through the action of the sensory and motor nerves can be immediate, as, for instance, if we happen to touch something hot, the hand is withdrawn before we have had time to make a conscious decision that protective action is necessary. These movements are known as "unconditioned reflexes", they are instinctive or inborn.

There are however, "conditioned reflexes" which

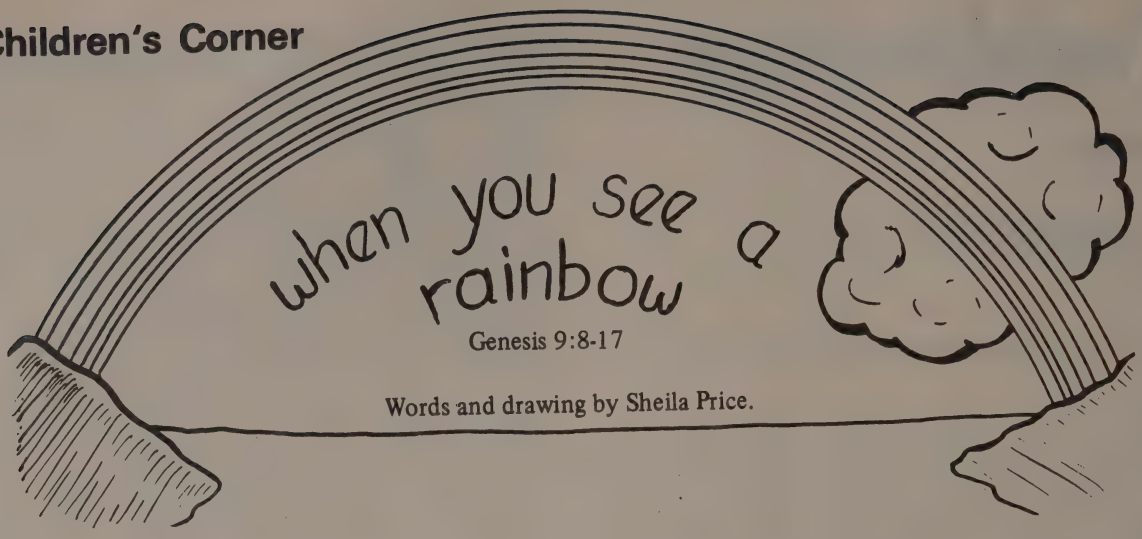
were demonstrated by the Russian physiologist Pavlov. Experiments were made with dogs. It was noted that the animals at first salivated when food was brought to them, but, if food was always accompanied by the ringing of a bell, then eventually the ringing of the bell alone was sufficient to cause salivation. Probes of this nature have proved that behaviour patterns are determined by mental activity. There is no part of our makeup entirely isolated from the mind.

Thus Paul's exhortation becomes practical as we relate the Word of God to our modern enquiries. We can be changed in behaviour and even physically by renewing our minds. J.B. Phillips puts it this way: "Don't let the world around you squeeze you into its own mould, but let God remould your minds from within." One physician remarked that "some people are draining back into their bodies the diseased thoughts of their minds," and later, when asked to amplify his ideas, he said of those thoughts, "Oh, the usual. Fear is one; so is guilt. Another is gloominess or despondency. Of course, one of the worst is resentment. That really makes them sick."

How can we transform the mind? It must obviously come by redirecting our thoughts. Just as people who brood become dull and uninteresting and suspicious, so people who direct their thinking to higher and nobler things become better in behaviour and health. A mind renewed is a personality advancing towards certain crucial objectives, and the contents of Romans 12 provide us with sound advice in reaching our goal. We are to have warm affection for one another (v.10); we are to keep the fires of the spirit burning in our work for God (v.11); we are to maintain the habit of prayer (v.12); we are to share happiness with others and bless those who try to make life a misery (vv.14,15); we are not to be snobbish but to take an interest in ordinary people (v.16); and further, we are to have a sane estimate of our capabilities (v.3). If we are tempted to think ill of our neighbours or of our state in life, we can turn resentment and sadness into gladness by keeping to the injunction in Philippians 4:8,9: "Whatsoever things are true, . . . honest, . . . just, . . . pure, . . . lovely, . . . of good report, virtue, . . . praise . . . think on these things."



Is it possible that we have become so engaged with the care of our bodies that we have overlooked the significance of the mind in our spiritual culture? Two famous cities in ancient Greece were noted for body development and mind training: Sparta and Athens. The former placed emphasis on the care of the body, the latter taught us to care for the mind. Both mind and body have an effective role within the Christian economy, for our bodies are the temples of the Holy Spirit and as such they have a sacred function. Our minds control the whole process of direction and consecration to a spiritual isolation from the world, therefore the renewing of the mind will imply self-control temperance, the cultivation of right living.

The Psalmist provides us with excellent advice in this search for better things: "How shall a young man steer an honest course? By holding to Thy Word" (Psalm 119:9, N.E.B.). And Jesus Himself prayed for His disciples, "Sanctify them through Thy truth: Thy Word is truth" (John 17:17). The way of the world is a crooked path, easy to the tread of ambitious men, but it is one that leads to ruin. We can be caught up in the confusion of secular notions until our love for Christ wanes and our desire to reach out for the lost souls of men diminishes, our newspapers become more important to us than our Bibles, and our glossy magazines clutter our minds with the impedimenta of a frivolous society. Our great need as Christians today is to read and study the Word of God with diligence. Dr. Billy Graham tells us in his preface to a book about the Bible: "One of the greatest tragedies today is that, although the Bible is an available, open book, it is a closed book to millions . . . the greatest document available for the human race, needs to be opened, read and believed. A recent survey indicates that only twelve per cent of the people who say they believe the Bible actually read it every day, thirty-four per cent read it only once a week, and forty-two per cent read it only once in a great while."

The Word of God directs us lest we deviate from the narrow way, it stimulates us to reach out to a fallen world, it gives us hope when despair would overwhelm us in gloom, it encourages us to higher endeavour, it warns us of the folly of strife and vainglory: it covers every aspect of life. The constant reading of the Bible must have a salutary influence on every part of our lives.

Children's Corner

Genesis 9:8-17

Words and drawing by Sheila Price.

WHILE on their way to Sunday school, John and Susan were caught in a shower of rain. They pulled up the hoods of their raincoats and hurried along the pavement. Just before they reached the church the rain stopped and the sun appeared once again.

"That didn't last long," said Susan.

"Oh, look up there, Susan," cried John, "there's a rainbow!"

"So there is," said Susan, "I haven't seen a rainbow for a long time."

"How many colours are there in a rainbow, Susan?"

"I'm not sure, John. Let's ask our Sunday school teacher."

"We've just seen a rainbow, Miss Jones," said John. "It looked ever so pretty. Do you know how many colours are in a rainbow?"

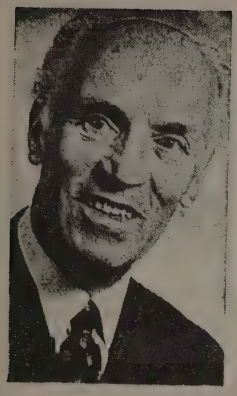
"Yes, there are seven colours."

"How do the colours appear, Miss Jones?"

"Well, I don't know exactly, children, but it has something to do with the sunlight shining on the drops of rain. This I do know, however, the rainbow is a reminder of God's wonderful promise."

"What is that, Miss Jones?"

"Well, children, when Noah and his family left the Ark and began making themselves a new home, God spoke to Noah and said, 'I will never again send a flood to destroy the earth, and as a sign of My promise, I will set a rainbow in the sky.' So you see, children, every time we see a rainbow, we are reminded of God's wonderful promise. Noah and his family found grace in the eyes of the Lord and so escaped the flood of judgment. Because Jesus bore the judgment of our sins on the cross, we too can escape judgment when we accept Him as our Saviour."



"What a wonderful promise!" said John.

With our Bibles before us we must practise the art of meditation, for as Job reminds us, "The fear of the Lord, that is wisdom; and to depart from evil is understanding" (Job 28:28). This is true worship, for, as Moffatt translates this verse, "to revere Me is your wisdom." There is wonderful healing virtue in the contemplation of the Almighty; our cares are shed in the place of prayer and the peace of God garrisons our hearts and minds. "Be careful for nothing," writes Paul, "but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God. And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus" (Philippians 4:6,7).

Norman Vincent Peale, the exponent of the power of positive thinking, provides us with this advice: "Pray twenty-five times a day. Soak the mind with Bible passages. See how many good things you can think about people. Tell the Lord you love Him. Get sin out of your life . . . simply do a rehabilitation job on your thoughts." In the welter of philosophical speculations we must cultivate the garden of the mind by application to the things of the Spirit so that the whole of life may be beautified with the likeness of His abounding grace and love.

Every morning, lean thine arms awhile
Upon the window-sill of heaven,
And gaze upon the Lord . . .
Then with that vision in thy heart,
Turn strong to meet the day.

From T. H. Stevenson

ON December 29th, 1972 America's world famous magazine Life ceased publication. 8,500,000 were once sold weekly, but soaring costs put paid to the magazine when selling at 50 cents or 21p.

The magazine you are now reading first appeared in December 1919 as a quarterly containing twenty pages at threepence in our old currency. Now the ELIM EVANGEL is a weekly, still containing twenty pages, but almost exactly twice the size of the early EVANGEL pages and costs 5p. After fifty-three years our magazine is twice the original size and four times the original price, though I must leave to you this apparent conundrum! Viewing the cost, the circulation, and the content, it seems value for money, especially in view of the heavy financial loss of almost every national daily paper. The British Communist Party's national daily, The Morning Star, is in the red financially as much as it is red politically. It costs 4p for a six-page copy and it has been hinted that it may rise to 5p and decrease to four pages, but the faithful following will still pay the price and contribute to the special fund that keeps it going.

I think that television's and radio's speedy news coverage for ear and eye make the main news of our dailies almost obsolete. By contrast, their general indifference to and insipidity of presentation of the evangelical gospel demands more effort to present the Gospel by the printed word. I have beside me an ELIM EVANGEL with George Canty's article about ELIM NEWS, specially published for mass circulation and costing 1p per copy. Today I also received my monthly Victory Tract Club news folder and tracts. V.T.C. was the brain child of a highly-esteemed Elim member. The folder says: "A Poster a month for £1.50 a year"; "A Tract a day for £1.50 a year". The priceless Gospel can be spread comparatively cheaply. There is need and opportunity to do this by the printed word, even by those who cannot speak freely or preach.

Writing in this strain has been sparked off by a letter from a Christian district midwife who was particularly interested in a previous feature I penned about a missionary literature venture in which she shares. Her varied hours of work deny her much fellowship, but she finds opportunity to send literature to mission fields and to distribute it from door to door in her own town. Her closing words make a fitting climax for my feature: "Surely we must get out of our rut of leaving it all to the Pastor or thinking only of church activities. Anyone can spare an hour or two a week to put vital Christian literature through the doors of our own streets. It would cost very little to do this regularly. Every one of us needs to be involved in God's work in some way."

Prayer and Praise by F.H. Coleman

THE Christmas recess means a temporary cessation of work. Parliament goes into recess, the Law Courts close. The children break up for Christmas and on Christmas Day no newspaper offices open. No trains, few buses run, in some towns, none at all.

For some people there is no recess. Men still have to man our lighthouses on the rocky parts of our shores so that the warning lights may flash out clearly and strongly. There is water in our homes and gas and electricity to light and warm us. Such utilities must work for us whether it be to cook our turkey on Christmas Day or prepare our ice cream on the last day of summer. While some have a recess, for others it means work, work, work.

There can be no recess in spiritual things and especially in the realm of prayer. We must stand like the soldier at his post, fully armed and alert. There can be no recess at Christmas, New Year or at any time of the year. To be weak in prayer lowers the guard of the shield of faith and our enemy is always alert to hurl his fiery dart. Remember that Jesus in the Garden of Gethsemane told the disciples closest to Him to watch and pray, for the spirit is ready, but the flesh is weak.

This may be a timely warning to readers of this column. There are the parties at school at the office or factory where temptation can come to us in any unguarded moment. This can leave its mark upon us. A year or so ago, I was using the London Underground to travel to a hospital to visit someone and it was Christmas Eve. The trains were unusually full for an afternoon and many were standing. How sad it was to see so many young people, who apparently had come from office parties, who found it hard to stand in the swaying train because they had had too much to drink.

Remember there is no recess in the Christian life and service.

"Be still and know that I am God"

WHEN illness strikes, as sometimes it does with alarming suddenness, we invariably find ourselves in a kind of vacuum, weakness, pain and weariness being the chief causes of such a condition.

With more time to think and long periods of quietness, the old grey matter does a mental spring clean. Mistakes, false impressions, omissions, failures and the like, get sorted into one pile, unnecessary rubbish and niggling non-essential fears and thoughts of guilt and criticism are discarded and, thank God, for the committed Christian, thoughts warm and tender, with hope, faith and gratitude, invade the mind. To me this reassuring experience is ever fresh evidence of the life of the eternal God pulsating in each redeemed heart. This manifestation of hope and peace is far more than a philosophical acceptance of sickness.

At the time of writing I am on the sick-list and wish to record that God is as good as His Word. The well-loved promises brim over with re-assurance and comfort. A dear friend sent me this pearl of wisdom: "Tell Mrs. Ladlow that the pause is part of the score and adds to the effectiveness of the music". Even now I'm thanking God for the pause and all the resultant calm and rest. It is lovely to have long uninterrupted prayer times, to be able to read unhurriedly, to listen with ears and heart to music, not to have to answer the 'phone (a luxury indeed), and to feast one's eyes on the rich colour of flowers. How about this for a variety that today adorns my room – bronze and yellow chrysanthemums, pink, lavender, yellow and crimson polyanthuses, white and red roses, delicate pink ixias and a great bowl of scarlet cyclamen.

A most encouraging letter arrived this morning from Mrs. Kathleen Park of Clacton-on-Sea. You will enjoy reading her poem as I did because it expresses feelings and longings which are felt by all who in "days of weariness and ill" seek a deeper perception of God and a new insight into their own hearts. Our sister penned these words last year when convalescent after a serious operation.

A Mother's Soliloquy

Who and what am I? I ask myself the question,
I take my searching thought, put to my mind's digestion.
I say, I think in part, I do not know,
Can I assess the whole?
So much unknown, so much surface,
A front, a face; who can tell the hidden grace
Or thought, or love, or hate, the fear, the joy?
I make my mind employ
The thought of what is below, within.
Strength or weakness, power of sin
Or pride, unknown, unrecognised as such.
Have I succeeded, or failed in much
I would have gained? Have I attained
That place provided that I should have held
In hearts given into my control, the whole
Made viable by saving grace? Or is the face
A sham, paraded in my duty? Is there beauty
In my heart and soul, that longs to see the things that turn out right
That lives I bare may conform to God's hidden might?
I have no power, no strength alone; I am not what I should be, this I fear,
To guide those whom I hold most dear.
And so I search my heart, the place of secret sin –
Discovering what? I cannot tell.
Only as I tread my daily pathway
Trying by God's grace to see what He has given me
Knowing He will lead the way and teach me,
Show me what I am.
Help me, God, that I may ever search myself.
Show me Thine eternal plan.

Scarred or Sacred

by John Glass

Pastor or our Llantrisant Church

AT the first sign of opposition, John Mark pushed off to his mother's quiet home in Jerusalem. Mark the mouse he was – no fettered feet at Philippi for him, thank you very much. He was not going to play "Aunt Sally" for any Lystran stone-thrower. It seemed that people those days were picking up stones faster than some people pick up colds.

While Mark resolved to remain unmarked, Paul refused to be found unfruitful. "I bear in my body," said Paul, "the marks of the Lord Jesus", and again, "That I may know Him, and the power of His resurrection, and the fellowship of His sufferings, being made conformable unto His death". To Paul, the scourge was the sign of success, pain was the price of power. Paul was scarred; Mark was scared.

Many Pentecostal pioneers, who have laboured long, are going, or have gone. Who is to take the place of these tenacious torchbearers who have broken both body and bank balance for the Lord?

The manpower is in our movement, the answer in our ranks.

If God has called you, do not crouch like a quiet cobweb in the corner of "Crusaders" waiting for a sign in the sky . . . do something about it. May we never linger lazily like giddy Gideons, laying fleeces like lino, praying for the proof of the proof.

Scared to be scarred are you? Opposition is to be expected. One should never enlist in the army if one never expects to be shot at.

After the Great Fire of 1666, Christopher Wren was commissioned to design the building we know as St. Paul's. It was to be erected upon the ruins of the old Cathedral that had perished in the flames. As Wren rummaged among the rubbled ruins, he came across a stone which bore the inscription, "I will rise again," but what fell to the flames within minutes, took thirty-five years to rebuild.

Like the great Cathedral from its ruins, so Mark rose from his misfortune. It was twenty-five years past Perga (Acts 13:13) before Paul could write to Timothy and say, "Take Mark, and bring him with you; for he is profitable to me for the ministry." Mark the mouse had become Mark the mighty. He who had been scared was scarred, though his scars were the wounds of a wasted waiting: they were not the scars of war.

Paul is renowned for what he did for the Lord; Mark is renowned for what he could have done.

Heavenly Father had other plans.

Twelve months later, after a sixteen-week drinking bout, I took an overdose of drugs and landed in hospital for a week or so. A tough time that was for selfish little me. My wife was actually consulting lawyers about a divorce. I'd been trying to stop drinking for four years, really trying. I went for every known treatment for alcoholism. It was a completely waste of time, I continued to drink.

On leaving hospital, this minister's name came to mind. I'd only heard it once twelve months before. God was starting to work. I traced this clergyman. I borrowed five shillings from the Probation Officer to get over to Bristol to this chap's vicarage. Yes, the financial situation was that bad. This was the turning point, but it has been hard. The Devil is a wily and cunning fox. I did drink afterwards, but, in the end, Jesus was victorious in my life. I suppose that, in His wisdom, the Lord decided that here was a hard man from the north-east who still wants to learn the hard way and Jesus knew that, for me, it was the right way, the only way. Praise His name, I thank the Saviour for saving me, for healing me, for a loving wife who was given strength to bear her cross, for the opportunity to work to earn our living, for good health, for a loving Christian marriage.

Praise the Lord for the assurance that He is alive today and for evermore to deliver us from the world.

The Family Altar

Monday, January 29th 2 Samuel 13:23–39

"And the soul of king David longed to go forth unto Absalom" (v.39).

HE longed to go forth for three years – and never moved a step: what a pitiful record of complete frustration!

How often in our lives it is so easy to let the rift in friendship and fellowship widen imperceptibly, while procrastinating over reconciliation and even professing a deep compassion and sorrow.

Stir our conscience again, Lord, melt our hearts to action towards our fellow man!

Tuesday, January 30th 2 Samuel 14:1–24

"And the king said, let him turn to his own house, and let him not see my face" (v.24).

THOUGH Nathan's "Thou art the man" still rang loudly in David's memory, yet here he barely controls his feelings, and Joab's estimation of his inward thoughts proves to be correct.

David is enmeshed by his own theoretical ideals and is forced in his pride to concede a semblance of reconciliation.

How often we find it harder to forgive those who are closest to us! We make them no concessions or give them no quarter.

O Lord, grant that the forgiveness I show might be sincere, complete and everlasting.

Wednesday, January 31st 2 Samuel 14:25–33, 15:1–6

"So Absalom dwelt two full years in Jerusalem, and saw not the king's face" (v.28). "And when . . . he came to the king . . . the king kissed Absalom" (v.33).

THE dam breaks at last! Would it not have broken before had father and son met face to face? But wait! That kiss has come too late. Hardness has begotten hatred, and Absalom sets out to steal the hearts of Israel.

Lord, teach me ever to forgive in haste, to be slow to judge and to learn the lesson well.

Thursday, February 1st 2 Samuel 15:7–23

"The hearts of . . . Israel are after Absalom" (v.13). "And Ittai (the exile of Gath) . . . said . . . surely in what place my lord the king shall be, whether in death or life, even there also will thy servant be" (v.21).

IN the midst of treachery and desertion, what encouraging words were these – and from a stranger of Gath, city of Goliath.

David's life was characterised by such unusual friendships and one admires the big-heartedness of the man who honoured loyal strangers and met defeated foes with the "kindness of God".

Clear my eye of prejudice too, Lord, that I might see as David saw.

Friday, February 2nd 2 Samuel 15: 24–37

"David [came] to the top of the mount, where he worshipped God" (v.32).

THIS was a strange time to worship. In flight, weeping as he went, barefoot and with his head covered, as in deep sorrow he was, yet David worshipped God as always.

His relationship with Absalom left much to be desired, yet he kept in communion with his Lord. "Let him do to me as seemeth good unto him" (v.26). David believed that the battle was, as always, the Lord's. Absalom would not figure, nor the treachery of Ahithopel, but rather the will and mercy of God.

Lord, let me ever worship You and entrust my ways to You.

Saturday, February 3rd 2 Samuel 16:1–14

"And when David was a little past the top of the hill, behold Ziba . . . met him, with a couple of asses saddled, and upon them . . . bread . . . raisins . . . summer fruits, and . . . wine" (v.1).

IT is always so in the Lord's economy. Just beyond the place of worship lie the gracious undertakings of God – comfort, sustenance and refreshment; just before the cursing and reviling – lies the tender sign of God's love.

Grant that it shall always be so with my soul, O Lord.

Sunday, February 4th 2 Samuel 16: 15–23, 17:1–14

"And the counsel of Ahithopel . . . was as if a man had enquired at the oracle of God" (v.23).

"WAS as if" – dread words of danger!

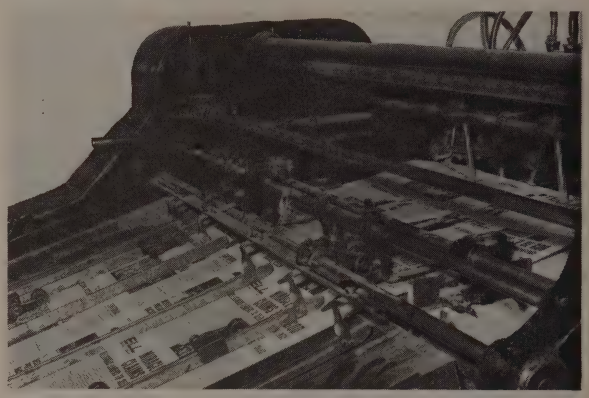
Absalom accepted this counsel without question, as though from God Himself, and cheerfully committed a shameful sin before the eyes of Israel. Does the counsel of God advocate sin?

How blind was this man, how utterly devoid of spiritual sense! He trusted blindly in a man, was satisfied with second-hand guidance, and never tried to align such counsel with the revealed standard of godly ethics.

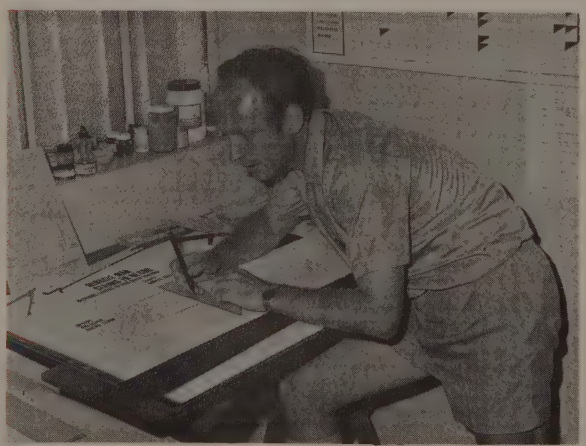
Father, teach us rather to know Your voice, and always to test the counsel of others with Your Word.

Commissioned by Christ

Words and Pictures by David Butcher

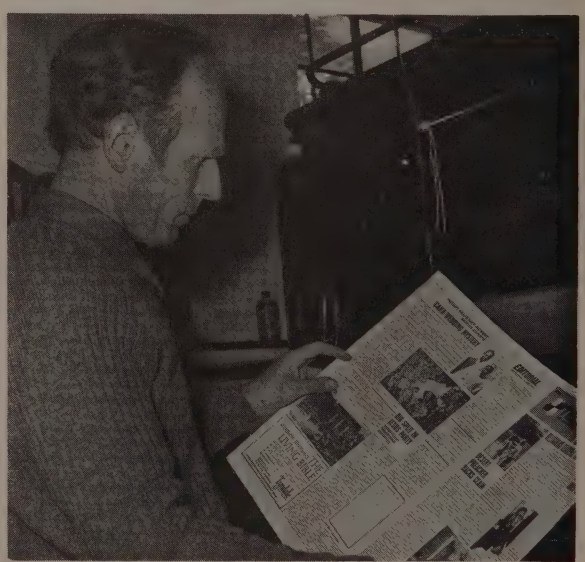


A COMMISSION comes to anybody, hand in hand with responsibility. The two cannot be separated. In the commercial world a deadline usually accompanies a commission. Construction work, art work, photography or repair work, whatever it may be, the job is the responsibility of the commissioned and the customer expects the work to be carried out in time.



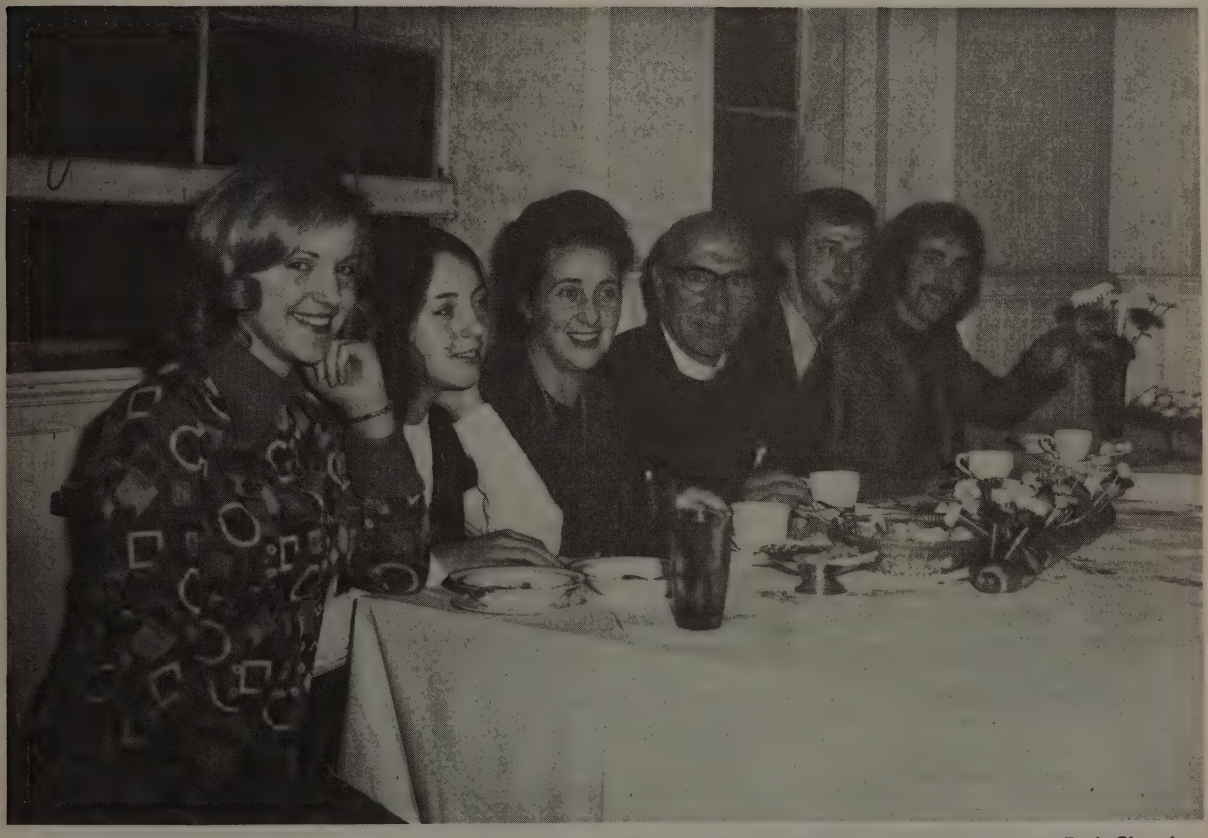
Betty Gull typesetting on the I.B.M. machine.

Jesus Christ commissioned His people with the responsibility of Church building. The words of Mark 15:16 are aimed at us even in 1973: "Go into all the World and preach the Gospel [good news] to every person." By the teaching of His Holy Word we can see that a deadline for this work has been set and that this time limit is almost up. If only it were possible for us to go into all the world, but it is not as doors are gradually being slammed in the missionaries' faces. It seems that Uganda will be the next place where the "missionaries unwelcome" sign will be hung up.



This challenge calls for the use of modern methods of communication. Here at Emmanuel Press in Nelspruit, Transvaal, South Africa, we have chosen print and our first edition of TELL is going out to different parts of Africa. In this programme there can be distribution problems. Please pray about this. We are trying to carry out Christ's command with TELL literature. The photographs show the early days of production. Our request to you is, "Please pray for us as we work. Pray for the magazine that it might carry the message of Christ in a truly anointed fashion. Pray for the follow up that the young ones in Christ may grow strong in His knowledge."

A stream of Tell. The sheets pass down the feeder of the machine to have the second colour printed at a speed of about 5,000 per hour.



Tell on the drawing board. Pastor Ron Gull pastes up the art work for photography.

"So that's what it looks like."
Pastor Ron Gull examines the finished Tell magazine.

MY wife and I had the privilege of spending nine days in Ireland during January. We tremendously enjoyed and appreciated the warm-hearted hospitality and fellowship which it was our privilege to experience.

We visited Lurgan, Ballymena and Belfast in the Province and Monaghan, which is over the border in Eire. The new church building there is a great credit to the members and elders of this assembly and will assuredly assist greatly in the development of the work.

A feature of the visit was the Saturday afternoon meeting when I was privileged to lecture on Homiletics to a very good number of preachers, including pastors, elders and other brethren who serve our churches by way of ministry. I shall not soon forget the wonderful support and enthusiasm.

It is tragic to see the town centres of places like Lurgan and Ballymena so badly restricted because of barriers which force traffic to make detours avoiding the main shopping centres. The centre of Belfast is an even more heart-rending sight. The "troubles", as they describe the sad situation in the Province, are ever in the thoughts and prayers of our beloved friends.

My experience is very much that of all our brethren who visit Ireland from this side of the water, namely that the Elim work there is in very good heart indeed. The work is expanding and, despite the many problems, the meetings are well supported. Our kith and kin in the Province are determined to see God's work progress and increase. They are very concerned, and rightly so, about the backslidden nature of religious work in England especially and their prayers are often that there will be a great Holy Ghost revival throughout the United Kingdom.

Never forget to pray for our brothers and sisters in the Emerald Isle. The stand of so very many for the truths of the inspired Word of God cannot but be a challenge to us and a reminder that we must never let the religious apathy of so many parts of Great Britain lull us into a false feeling of "It can never happen here." We have only to recall the ugly scenes that have accompanied some strikes and dogged the visits of politicians to universities to realise that godless forces are at work in our midst, too. "No surrender" would not be a bad slogan for us all to take up in this sense.

Church Reports

GRANGETOWN, Teesside Pastor: A.L. Hawkes

WE recently held an eight-day coffee bar crusade. The visiting evangelist was Keith Lannon, Pastor of our Trealaw Church. He had been to Grangetown in his student days and was soon quickly at home again, both with the older ones and with the youth to whom he had come specially to speak. We did not have great crowds of young people to the coffee bar, but between thirty and fifty came each night. Something like twenty decisions, one of them a producer from the local radio station who had come along to interview Pastor Lannon. He did not get his interview, but he did find Christ! Pastor Lannon spent all night talking to him and he finally gave his life to Christ at about 4 a.m. He can be a powerful influence in the area. Please pray for him, for the other young people that they will all go through with their decisions to serve Christ.

We had our follow-up tea for the contacts made in the crusade and over forty young people turned up for beans and bread and stayed on for the evening Gospel Service and Youth Event.

NORWICH Pastor: L. Reeves

Photographed are Pastor and Mrs. L. Reeves with hampers of sweets collected for presentation to patients in local hospitals.

MOTHERWELL Pastor: F.W. Jones

WE have been encouraged and enlightened by the ministry of Arne Vick and Christopher Smith. Souls have been won to Christ through Sunday school work. Seven young people have gone through the waters of baptism. Lives have been rededicated to the Lord. Another baptismal service has been arranged.

All this led up to our New Year Convention. Pastor John Lancaster was the guest preacher. Because of delay caused by fog he missed the first two meetings, but he was welcomed by our Pastor before taking the Gospel Service which started at 10.30 p.m. This was followed at midnight by our customary Watchnight Service in which all age groups took part in song, testimony and verse. About 110 folks were engaged in a happy time of fellowship which continued until 2.15.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings we were challenged when our brother preached. This was indeed a time of great blessing.

BOGNOR REGIS Pastor: P.T. Niblett

RECENTLY at the home of the Minister of the Elim Pentecostal Church, Bognor Regis, over £32 was raised for missionary work. Most of the amount has been sent as a gift for the missionaries and their families at Christmas. The ladies worked extremely hard to make the various items.

At the children's carol service members of the youth departments took the evening service. The Sunday school enacted the Christmas story, and other departments provided soloists, duetists, and united singing.

At the festival of lessons and carols, all the carols were chosen by Church members. The leaders of the Church departments read various passages of Scripture regarding the birth of Jesus.

Bognor Regis Post

GRIMSBY Pastor: E.T. Carter

WHAT is believed to be the first film crusade ever held at the Grimsby Church, took place from the 4th until the 10th November. A large banner hung from the front of our church which announced to passers-by our Billy Graham Film crusade. In preparation for this event we held a half evening of continuous prayer at the church, a 12 hour chain prayer, and delivered approximately 5,500 leaflets. We also staged a "Car-cade" which toured the main shopping centres of Grimsby with a loud hailer inviting the shoppers to the Crusade.

Each evening the films were screened to a receptive audience. The filmed services of the large crusade at Madison Square Gardens, New York, were a real joy to watch, and the ministry of Billy Graham thrilled our hearts. Four definite decisions were made for Christ during our Crusade, and many took home enquiry literature.

This was a very worthwhile project and a blessing to us all.

ROGER MARSH

CASHES GREEN Pastor: R.J. Teague

ON Christmas Eve members and friends led by our Pastor paid the last of their local visits for the year. It was to Cashes Green Hospital where carols were sung in every ward. Patients and visitors joined in. Each patient was given a gift from Father Christmas (Paul Burford).

We are grateful to Mary Bletsoe for making the lovely outfits worn by Father Christmas, Mary and the three wise men. Thanks go also to her husband, Roger, for playing the organ, and to Dennis with his guitar.

Earlier we held a service in "Wyatt House", where the residents joined in the carols. The opening prayer was by R. Brain, the Bible reading was by B. Burford, and an address was given by Pastor F.G. Wagner. Each resident was given a gift.

B. BURFORD.

ROMSEY Pastor: P.G. Parsons

A SPECIAL Christmas service for senior citizens was held in the Elim Church. Nearly forty elderly folk came to the service, the first of its kind to be held in the church. The programme was arranged and undertaken entirely by the youth of the Church. Everyone heartily joined in singing the old familiar carols. Twelve young people were involved in the nativity play which vividly conveyed the atmosphere of the very first Christmas. The address was given by Mr. David Manning. Many elderly people said afterwards how much they enjoyed the service.

The Romsey Advertiser

We thank God that in His Church there is no age barrier. We rejoice that over thirty outsiders heard the glorious gospel of Christ.

Bible Distribution to Treble by 1980

FIVE hundred million copies of the Scriptures to be distributed annually by 1980 is the goal which the Bible Societies around the world set for themselves at the United Bible Societies meetings in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia. The UBS World Service Budget, which supports Bible translation, production and distribution in areas where Bibles are sold at subsidised rates, will increase from £3,750,000 in 1973 to £5,000,000 in 1977.

Several distinct emphases have been given to UBS work. To help in the fight against illiteracy, selections from the Bible which can be used in literacy programmes will be prepared in thirty-two fresh languages each year. Twenty million such selections will be produced in the first year of this new series. There will also be texts for children, youth, students, women, and special groups and situations as opportunities emerge in each language area and society.

To achieve these goals, Bible Societies will need the increased participation of the Churches in their work as well as the modernizing of their own distribution policies and price structures.

The Minister and his Work

Evangelize

by A. S. F. Horne

Pastor of Elim Pentecostal Church, Ipswich

TO many "evangelise" is the magic word. We are Evangelical. We believe in evangelism. I ask, "What do we mean?"

Looking back over more than thirty years, I believe many would answer: "You must book an Evangelist. If Mr. X, Y or Z is booked, then you will get the money for the crusade." So all is set. Now God must be brought into the effort, so special prayer meetings must be arranged. The great day arrives and soon the crusade becomes history; then all the excuses are made: people were on holiday; weather? – never known it worse; this a hard place; and so on. The Devil has heard it all before, and so have we. So often money is spent, hands are raised, and the local church remains the same size.

I believe that we ought to seek the face of God first, to pray to be led and guided aright, to do what He would have us to do, to go where He would have us to go. Then we can spend our money and it will be well spent, and people will not just raise their hands, but will lift their voices to heaven and cry, "O God, be merciful to me a sinner."

The late Tom Allen said, "Evangelism is not a sporadic encounter, but a continuous engagement."

Praise God for the powerful evangelist, whether he be minister or lay preacher, but we must not look to man. The duty of every born-again believer is to evangelise, "to preach the gospel, to convert to Christianity."

Paul said in 1 Corinthians 1:17, "For Christ sent me not to baptise, but to preach the gospel; not with wisdom of words, lest the cross of Christ should be made of none effect." – "To preach the good news, but not with fine language, or the cross of Christ might seem an empty thing" (Goodspeed). William Beck translates it: "To tell the good news, not to be a clever speaker, or the cross of Christ would lose its power."

Paul was sent; we are sent. Notice that he uses the word "apostello", to send forth or away as a messenger with a commission, to announce a joyful message. We must do this everywhere, in churches, public halls, from door to door. It is said of the early Methodists that they gossiped the gospel.

We have good news for a perishing world. Do we really believe that all the unsaved will perish – husbands, wives, sons, daughters? I am sure that a vision of Hell would give us all a greater desire to save souls.

When was the last time you led a soul to Christ? We are not saved just to be happy, but to serve God and to be His messengers to lost souls. The whole world rests under condemnation, wrath and the curse. An unsaved man is a child of the Devil and not a son of God. He is lost and helpless and in captivity to sin and Satan. How dare we keep the message from man? Jesus said, "If any one of you has a hundred sheep and loses one of them, don't you leave the ninety-nine in the wilderness and go after the lost one till you find it?" (Beck).

We spend so much time looking after the ninety-nine that we have little or no time to seek the lost. I have heard of church members staying away from church in order to force the minister to call on them.

We are told that, on the eve of Waterloo, Napoleon warned his soldiers of forward marches in front of them. "Soldiers", he cried, "this is the anniversary of past victories which twice decided the destiny of Europe. Go up and forward." This is God's command to us all – "Reaching forth unto those things which are before" (Philippians 3:13), "Straining to those in front" (F.F.), "Stretching forward" (W.T.).

Speaking in Tongues - The Historical Reality

4. The Nineteenth Century to modern Times

by Philip E. Streeter
Pastor of our Romford Church
Illustration:* Michael Moore

EARLY in the nineteenth century, in a London church under the ministry of Edward Irving, founder of the Catholic Apostolic Church, many spoke in tongues glorifying God. Unfortunately, fanaticism crept in and distorted what could have been a phenomenal surge of blessing, yet there were many other incidents free of any of the wild error that was tragically connected with the followers of Irving. Two such events are as follows.

In the book, The Life of Robert Story, an incident regarding Mary Campbell, a godly Scots woman, is mentioned. She professed that she was employing herself in language study as a preparation for future missionary work, and was "looking out every day for the gift of tongues being poured out upon the church." At last, one Sunday evening in March, 1830, when a company of her friends was present, Mary Campbell began to utter sounds which were incomprehensible to them and believed by her to be a tongue similar to those which were uttered on the Day of Pentecost.

The second account is in the Memoirs of J. and G. McDonald, where the following is recorded: "During a prayer meeting, George, in whom nothing supernatural had ever previously appeared, and whose natural caution had made him the last of the family to welcome the supernatural manifestation in others, began suddenly to speak in an unknown tongue. James followed him and thus commenced that speaking in tongues which never afterwards ceased." Both these brothers died in 1833 after living consistent, blameless Christian lives.

Dr. Henry Drummond, a preacher and professor of high repute, became an early follower of the Irvingite movement. His two brilliant books, The greatest Thing in the World and Natural Law in the Spiritual World, have made his name familiar to many.

Archdeacon Stopford had the opportunity of listening to the operation of tongues and had found it: "A sound as I had never heard before, unearthly and unaccountable." He perceived precisely the same sounds in the Irish revival of 1859.

The Curé d'Ars is another conspicuous character of the nineteenth century. We can assume that he spoke in tongues, as the following quotation from his life story reveals: "Soeur Marie Francoise came to his confessional in Holy Week, either in 1849 or 1850. When she had finished her confession, she said to him. 'What does God want of me, Father?'

" 'Ah, my child,' said the frail, sweet voice, And then for the space of five minutes he seemed to be talking to himself in an unknown tongue. Anyway, she did not understand it. 'Astounded, I looked at his face. He seemed beside himself. I thought he was seeing God. Judging myself unworthy of remaining in the presence of so great a saint, I withdrew, very much afraid.'" The Curé d'Ars knew only the French and Latin languages, so evidently in this event he spoke an utterance of tongues.

In 1873, speaking in tongues was witnessed in the swell of the great crusades of Dwight L. Moody. Rev. Robert Boyd, a Baptist minister and intimate friend of the famous evangelist, reported the following in his book, Trials and Triumphs of Faith: "When I got to the rooms of the Y.M.C.A., I found the meeting on fire. The young men were speaking with tongues and prophesying."

Speaking in tongues also occurred in the Russian and Armenian revivals. G.F. Atter writes: "It will surprise many to learn that Pentecost fell in Russia over 100 years ago and that Russians took the message to Armenia about eighty years ago. People were filled with the Spirit. Prophecies were given by ignorant peasants, foretelling the time when peace would be taken from the earth and that the Armenians were to flee to a foreign land to safety."

Remarkable examples of speaking in tongues occurred in the great Welsh revival of the early 1900's. The Yorkshire Post newspaper of December 27th, 1904, declares: "Now comes the remarkable – the most remarkable feature of the present revival. These young Welshmen and Welshwomen, who knew little or no Welsh and who certainly cannot carry on a sustained conversation in their parents' tongue, and who are supposed to have derived little or no benefit from the Welsh services, now, under the influence of the revival, voluntarily take part in public prayer – but the tongue is almost always not the familiar English, but the unknown . . . Welsh Biblical phrases, and the particular idiomatic expression connected with a Welsh prayer which they never used before, and which they were supposed hitherto not to be able to understand, trip off their tongues with an ease and an aptness which might be supposed to indicate long and familiar usage."

In 1900, the Holy Spirit visited the Bethel Bible College in Topeka, Kansas, where forty students under Charles Parham were fervently searching for understanding of the Baptism in the Holy Spirit. "A mighty spiritual power filled the entire school," were Parham's own words. Speaking in tongues was later witnessed.

No.312 Azusa Street, an old broken down livery stable in Los Angeles, became a divinely-appointed centre in the early 1900s, where hundreds came from all over the globe to the receive the Baptism in the Holy Spirit. The power of God resided in this odd place in an amazing manner. It became a Bethlehem stable, a Jerusalem upper room where many stumbled upon Jesus the Baptiser.

In 1907, Pentecostal manifestations burned within the hallowed walls of All Saints Anglican Church in Sunderland. "Strange revivalist scenes – Vicar's child talks Chinese" splashed one sensational newspaper headline.

A Baptist minister from Plymouth recorded in 1913 the following that was occurring in his church: "Numbers have been baptised in the Holy Ghost with the Bible signs and come through speaking with new tongues."

1915 saw the birth of the "Elim Evangelistic Band" under George Jeffreys. This blossomed into the "Elim Foursquare Gospel Alliance" in 1918.

The twentieth century is beginning to see a tremendous, unprecedented outreach of these miraculous demonstrations of the Holy Spirit that is world-wide in its manifestation. It has been estimated that a global figure of approaching thirty million people have experienced this spiritual phenomenon of speaking in tongues, a figure far too large to ignore or dismiss.

Adherents of many godly denominations are finding a new depth and realism in their Christian experiences after receiving the Baptism in the Holy Spirit and speaking with other tongues, a realism, as we have seen, that the heavy feet of pagan history have failed to stamp out.

Thoughts from the Book of Genesis

by F. Lavender

11. Hindrances to the Call of God (Genesis 11:31)

ABRAM and his family are considered to have been of considerable importance in Ur of the Chaldees, a city of moon-worshippers. In order to accomplish His purpose, the Lord called Abram to leave his family and city to go to a land which He would show him. When Abram announced his call, his family decided to go with him, but his father had had no experience with the Lord and no call. He was only a temporary enthusiast and, when the first excitement worked off, he settled in Haran and all the family settled with him, including Abram. Abram made no progress until his father died; only then did he enter Canaan. Not until the hindrance was removed could the Lord fulfil His plan.

Christians are called to live for the Lord Jesus Christ, to be His witnesses. Satan will always try to hinder anyone who has been called to serve the Lord and he uses many things to distract us and to turn us from our purpose. Sometimes, as with Abram, it may be our own family. We can allow personal ambition to have first place in our plans. Perhaps money, or the things that money can buy, so fill our life that we have little time to give to serve the Lord.

In the parable of the Sower the Lord Jesus spoke of some folk being like seed sown among thorns. He said of them: "The care of other things entering in choke the Word and they become unfruitful."

May we have a clear vision of the call of God to us to be His witnesses. Let us lay aside every hindrance and follow Him; then we shall not be ashamed when we meet Him.

YILAN MANDARIN CHURCH

Missionaries are Christian Catalysts

by Ken McGillivray, Yilan, Taiwan

CATALYSIS describes a chemical reaction to a substance which is added but not consumed in the reaction. The Church of Jesus Christ is the Body of Christ in the world. From its beginning the presence of the Church has produced a reaction from the world.

Jesus warned of this reaction in numerous ways: "For My sake" the world will persecute, hate, kill and react in other ways. Jesus also claimed that the powers of hell would not consume or destroy the Church. This describes the work of Christian missionaries at home and overseas. Our task is to plant in the world the Church, understanding that this will bring about reaction, but in no doubt that, no matter how severely the Church may be persecuted, it will prevail (Ephesians 5:25–27).

During a recent furlough, we met a number of young people who felt called to serve the Lord as missionaries overseas, particularly in S.E. Asia. Mentally, I tried to put each one down in bustling, cosmopolitan Hong Kong, rapidly urbanizing Taiwan or slow-moving, Buddhism-saturated Thailand to visualize how they would 'fit'. I recalled that the constantly changing phases of these S.E. Asian countries call for careful examination of the kind of missionaries needed. Not all our traditional concepts of either the right candidates or the best commissioning agency have proved valid.

Having spent more than thirty years in Asia, I have become convinced of two things. We are fearfully insufficient in co-workers of the right type and we do not always know where to get them.

New missionaries were sent to us in 1971, but people in our churches forget that those missionaries who are already on the field don't last for ever. They wear out, break down, and sometimes, because of God-appointed responsibilities to parents and children, they must return home.

If we divide the number of missionaries who are withdrawn each year into the total number of our field force overseas, we will discover the average length of service. This does not only mean that we have to replace those who are withdrawn each year as replacements of those retiring veterans or missionary casualties; we must also try to meet the urgently-needed requests from each field. New missionaries cannot be sent to one country until we have fulfilled our existing commitments to others. Thailand has only one Christian for every 1,000 people and whole provinces are still unevangelized. In Taiwan Christians form 2.5% of the population. Where can we find the new workers that are needed?

Not everybody who graduates from Bible School necessarily has a contribution to make. Merely volunteering during a missionary convention does not mean that anyone has a contribution to make either.

On some fields, the Christian Church shows a painfully slow rate of growth. One factor behind this has been the ineffective means used to communicate the Gospel. Even in the North American culture, we are aware of some earnest, sincere, dedicated Christians who use Reformation English, threadbare clichés and religious jargon that fail to make the Gospel relevant to those who need to hear and understand. It is desperately hard to find true evangelists who can speak to non-Christians in a way they will want to hear and really communicate the Gospel to them. It is even harder to find missionaries who will understand a foreign culture and learn a language well enough effectively and relevantly to communicate the Gospel to other people.

We have a personnel problem with missionaries who fail to find their niche in the Lord's work overseas. There are others who seem to have the happy gift of finding a niche wherever they land! A whole family was recently lost to one of our Bible Schools in S.E. Asia because, even after three terms, they had not got in with the local people. The former type lack adaptability and an understanding of the basic function of missionaries, while the latter, no matter where they are put, always contribute something. Where can we find them?

Today's missionary needs to be one who can train national Christians and develop indigenous leadership. Just to have more missionaries is not enough when we are setting out to train national leaders. Once there are emerging churches, however small, we must train their leaders to teach others. Missionary candidates who have given some kind of proof that they can go to places where no churches exist, establish churches and then leave them, are exactly what are needed. These are not usually young people, yet we have to bear in mind that 40–45% of Asia is under fifteen years of age. Thus it is imperative that abilities like these should be recognized early so that a correct sequence of training can be given. We must identify these potential church planters for overseas countries before they build mental ivory towers or become theologically set in our culture. Particular gifts and abilities are demanded, so that those who are taught and trained in a foreign environment will go on effectively to instruct and build up the Christian Church in that place. This is the most urgently needed contribution missionaries must make today.

How can we find people of this calibre? We have developed a formula for screening candidates; has it proved to be the perfect answer? Too often we place an over-emphasis on a person's willingness rather than upon their aptitude or worthiness. All of us recognize that the Holy Spirit gives spiritual gifts to every believer. I am equally confident that in every congregation there are some outstanding people like Barnabas, Silas and Timothy in the Early Church, who are outstanding because of the contribution they have to make. These are our modern missionary candidates – CHRISTIAN CATALYSTS, the ones who can be put into almost any place and be effective and fruitful.

Attendance at a School of Missions does not always bring to light every side of a candidate's character, since they tend to put on a good front and they are in an artificial, set situation. The ideal situation in which to test the qualifications of a candidate is still the church-related or pioneer outreach, which in some respects resembles the one in which he or she will one day function overseas. It may take a year or two to establish a young couple's potential for making a contribution overseas, but the testimony of those of his own assembly or district with whom he has lived and worked under normal conditions for a sustained period should be our measure. Barnabas had been a respected member of the Jerusalem church for some time. Silas was "a chief man among the brethren" and "a prophet also himself." Timothy, we are told, was "well spoken of by the brethren that were in Lystra and Iconium."

One young man (and what overseas field is not asking for men!) with a university degree and nearly completing his Bible School training sat with me recently; he felt that there would be no problems with these qualifications. I found that he had made no contribution to any assembly and I could not recommend him as a missionary candidate until he had. He was counselled to prove his call in a local church for a period of time lest he become an unnecessary casualty overseas.

There are still too many misfits stranded on various mission fields overseas who felt called as individuals and just went. We should seek together to make our contribution by sending those whom we appoint as the Lord guides. At local, district and national level they should meet the standards raised by the following questions:

1. Can they lead people to the Lord?
2. Are they people with initiative?
3. Are they psychologically mature or taught?
4. Have they been successfully utilized in church-planting?
5. Are they adaptable to new ways of communication?

The Home-Call of Percy N. Corry

An appreciation by Joseph Smith

OLDER members and ministers in our Elim Movement will be sorry to learn of the home-call of one of our earliest senior ministers, Pastor P.N. Corry. He had recently been living with his niece in Nantwich, Cheshire. He passed away peacefully to be with the Lord on December 14th.

Mr. Corry was a missionary in India when the first world war broke out. He then entered the army and served as a Captain in the Indian Army for some time. Afterwards he came into the Elim ministry in which he worked untiringly, not only as Pastor of our Clapham and Croydon churches, but also as Dean of Elim Bible College from 1926-1939. He was a versatile leader, a good soloist, and a gifted lecturer and Bible teacher.

Here is an example of his leadership. While serving in the army he was asked to lead a company of Indian soldiers to a specified place and to get them there by all means at a certain time. His general told him that he would never do it, but Corry knew how to lead men. He asked a corporal to lead his horse while he walked at the head of the company and set the pace for his men to follow. He got them there on time.

Our sympathies go out to his loved-ones who mourn his loss, but we will not say, "He's gone!", but "He's arrived!".

The first in an occasional series researched by Philip G. Parsons, Pastor of our Romsey Church

York Elim Pentecostal Church

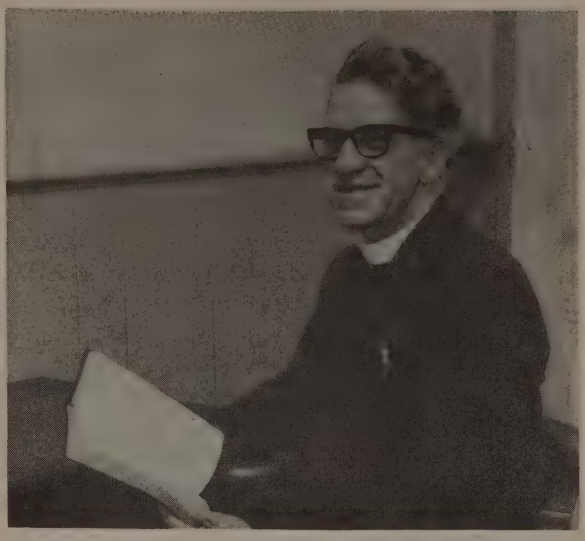
YORK is a city steeped in history, much of it ecclesiastical, a city proud of its 1,900 years of tradition, association with royalty, and magnificent cathedral. Here, in the shadow of the beautiful medieval Minster, lies the Elim Pentecostal Church. Externally it is not imposing, but inside it is a hive of activity.

The large building was originally the city's Central Mission. Today, it is often referred to as York's Conference Centre, as it is used by many Christian and evangelical organisations for large rallies. Many have sought and received their Pentecostal experience in our church, for we have never lowered the Pentecostal flag.

It all started in the early 1930s when a Mrs. Pawson, along with a Swedish nurse, heard of the Pentecostal blessing and longed to know more of it. As a result, a small group began to gather in this lady's home to seek enlightenment and to pray, "Lord, send us someone". God answered! In February, 1934, George Jeffreys and his evangelistic team arrived to campaign in the Exhibition Buildings. Crowds of people queued for the doors to open. God moved. Souls were saved and bodies were healed. Revival had come, and with it a surge of mighty Baptisms in the Holy Spirit. The campaign finished, but the blessing went on. Part of the team stayed on to establish a church which then met in the Co-op Hall. From here the church moved to St. George's Hall, but the people needed a spiritual home of their own. Again prayer prevailed, and the Central Mission became available.

Much had to be done before services could be held as the building had for a considerable time been used as a warehouse. However, with God all things are possible. Willing hands, hard work, still more hard work, and much prayer were the ingredients needed to convert the building back into a house of God. Pastors and people worked hard to make the church what it is today.

Many of Elim's finest pastors have contributed to its history. Today we have three strong Sunday schools which are staffed by fifty teachers and helpers, and eight youth departments in the central church and the branch areas. Most of the workers themselves have come through the Sunday schools and youth branches. Through the York Sunday school have passed three of our present-day ministers and two missionaries. Our veteran minister, Pastor J. Woodhead, is still actively working from our York Church of which at one time he was the Pastor.



To what do we attribute the success? We are still a little old-fashioned! We have our weekly prayer meeting in true Pentecostal style, a weekly Bible Study, when only Scripture is expounded, and a convention every Saturday night. Sunday is "Son-day" from 10.20 a.m. often to 10.20 p.m. when there is an almost continuous programme of various meetings. A keen, active missionary work is another aspect of the spiritual balance and maturity of the church. We publish our own magazine of news and local items.

A book could well be written of God's blessings in the York church. Although we stand in the shadow of the Minister, we stand alive and active in the full glory of God's pentecost. By God's grace we will make our Church a landmark in the history of York and a beacon to the glory of God.

(Mrs.) N. Brooks.

Revival Obstacles

A Message from the Pastor: Rev. A. Brooks

MANY of my twenty-seven years as a pastor and a few more as a lay preacher, have been spent in endeavouring to promote revival by prayer, campaigns, and various evangelical drives. One thing has stood out more than anything else in all my efforts, namely OBSTACLES.

The greatest obstacle to revival is people themselves. They realise their own personal need of revival, indeed they pray, give and work to this end, but then they blast to atoms the first signs of revival!

IDOLATRY is a cause, for they forget that ours is a jealous God. He says: "No other gods before Me", but how quickly in this modern age goods become gods, possessions possess us, creed no longer dominates conduct, belief does not behave.

AN UNFORGIVING SPIRIT is a further reason. Many pray, "Lord, send a revival; start Thy work in me", yet pass without smile, word or handshake another brother or sister who years, or maybe only weeks ago, did them an injustice or said an unkind word, probably because they themselves where unhappy, harrassed or backslidden at the time. Revival means renewing, reawakening. Let us renew and reawaken old friendships and fellowships; forgiveness speeds revival.

OMISSION needs consideration. We pray at home, yet we frequently omit to pray together in the prayer meeting. This deflates your pastor. Your presence would revive him. We omit the commands of His Word, like water baptism, the baptism in the Holy Spirit according to Acts 2, and separation and holiness in our daily living. We omit the fruit and gifts of the Spirit, neglecting their operation in the Church. We pray for revival, but we omit things pertaining to it.

How can we surmount these obstacles and bring revival? We must get more of God and let God get more of us. We need more prayerful heart-searching, forgiving and forgetting. So be it, Lord!

Search ME, O God, and know MY heart today!
Try ME, O Lord, and know MY thoughts I pray –
See if there be some wicked way in ME;
Cleanse ME from every sin, and set ME free."

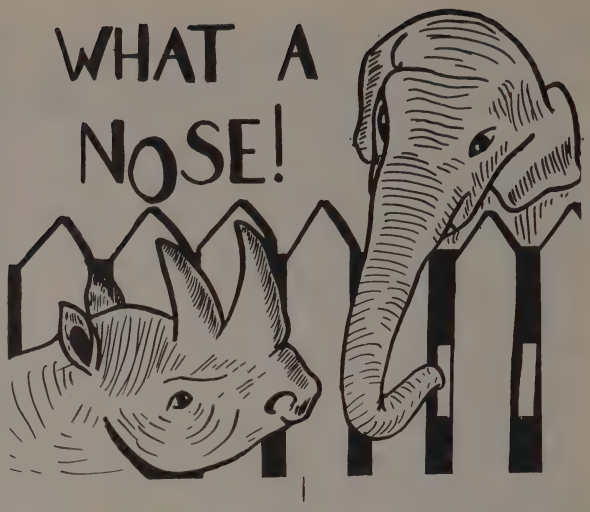
Emmerson writes of Napoleon: "Having decided what was to be done, he did that with might and main. He put all his strength, he risked everything and spared nothing – money, troops, generals nor himself." This is the vision we must have.

Mrs. Booth tells us that, after the General had decided to devote himself to the salvation of the East Enders, he come home tired out as usual. It was between eleven and twelve o'clock and, flinging himself into an easy chair, he said, "Kate, as I passed by the doors of the flaming gin palaces tonight, I seemed to hear a voice sounding in my ears 'Where can you go and find such heathen as these, and where is there so great a need for your labours?'."

The need today is great and the labourers are few. May we not look for others, but accept the challenge and go forth into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature. Here is an object in life, something to strive for, something to achieve and something well worth achieving.



"Let him know, that he which converteth the sinner from the error of his way shall save a soul from death, and shall hide a multitude of sins."

Evangelism is a lifetime occupation from which we never retire. Channing said, "Every human being has a work to carry on within, duties to perform abroad, influences to exert," a work that is his, for no one else can do your work. "Every one of us shall give account of himself to God." May God help us to be earnest!

Lamone wrote, "There is nothing so dignified as an earnest man," and soul-earnestness has a soul-saving effect. Wit may sparkle in the crown of a genius and humour may help a travelling evangelist, but nothing succeeds like downright earnestness. If we are earnest, so is God who gave His Son. "But you, keep a clear head in everything, endure hardship, do your work of telling the good news" (2 Timothy 4:5, Beck).

Children's Corner

Words and drawing by Sheila Price

HETTY looked over the fence and called out, "How are you this morning?" Joe got up and plodded over. "How am I? I'm miserable, that's how I am," he rejoined.

"Dear me," said Hetty. "Why are you miserable?"

"Because I'm so ugly," said Joe. "I'm an old, ugly rhinoceros."

"You are not old, Joe! And I don't think you are ugly at all."

"I feel ugly," said Joe, "so would you if you had horns on your nose!"

"Stop feeling sorry for yourself, Joe, you need horns."

"Whatever for, Hetty?"

"For protection for one thing, Joe. Listen," said Hetty, "different creatures have different needs, and different ways of life. God, in His great wisdom, has provided for us all. It is the same way with people. There are painters and teachers, doctors and writers. Each has a particular talent, a gift from God. God knew that I would need a long nose to survive in the jungle so He provided me with a trunk. It is God's special gift to me. I would not be able to get by without it.

"Listen to this rhyme my mother taught me, Joe...

"What can I say about a nose?
Well, it has a special place
Above the lips, between the eyes
In the middle of the face,
And it is a storehouse
Of fragrance, sweet and rare,
Of flowers in the hedgerows
God has planted everywhere.
What wondrous scents He puts within
The violet and rose
That we might appreciate
His beauty, through a nose."

"I like that," said Joe. "I don't feel so miserable now." And off he went to sharpen his horns against a rock.

WAITING FOR YOU ON EASTER MONDAY

From the Secretary-General

We are looking forward to greater crowds than ever on Easter Monday at Trafalgar Square and in the Royal Albert Hall. Please unite in prayer for another great Pentecostal day in all our Easter conventions.

Join us for this great day of salvation, healing, and baptism in the Holy Spirit, and let us bring our unconverted friends.

Once again, let us put our practice as well as our doctrine right in the centre of our Easter rallies and conventions and in our public services give opportunity to pray for the sick, for believers to be baptised in the Spirit as well as for conversion.

In London the Hall and Square are already booked, the preachers are the President, T.W. Walker,and the National Youth Director, E.R. Corsie. The massed youth choir will again take part, with the London Crusader Choir and the Woodvale Quintet from Belfast. Other visitors are expected and will be announced.

Kill a Policeman!

ON November 9th, 1972, Anthony Jeffs, aged 21, was given a life sentence of not less than twenty years at Birmingham Crown Court. His crime was the cold-blooded killing of a policeman. He was described in court as a man with a ghastly animosity towards all policemen and that he had been known to boast that one day he would "get" a copper. Sadly, he is now paying for his crime, but his life has been marred. He is a convicted murderer and, unless God gets hold of him, he will become one in the ever-growing ranks of sullen, resentful and violent men who rot their lives away in our over-crowded gaols.

How cheering, then, it is to turn to a story with a happy ending and yet with a similar beginning, from Foxie of Australia. "After being picked up by the police for many offences, while I was drunk, I developed one ambition, and that was to shoot a policeman. Thank God that ambition, like a lot of other ambitions, fell through." Foxie, a one-time criminal came from a loving, over-indulgent family. He drifted into heavy drinking and eventually burned a police car and was found to be in possession of a revolver. He finished up in jail, but went on to burn two more police cars and so did a spell in J Ward, Pentridge Gaol, Victoria, Australia. A few years later, he ended up in Ararat maximum security institution for the criminally insane. Foxie was eventually discharged and, cutting adrift from his wife and two daughters, he ran away, ostensibly to make a fresh start in a new town, but in truth he was trying to run away from himself.

Destitute and despairing, he landed in Brisbane and, with his last eight shillings, he bought four bottles of methylated spirits. This seemed to be the beginning of the end and he was taken to hospital where, all unknown, God had his man waiting to meet Foxie on his arrival. For the first time in his life, he was made to realise his need of God. Alas, five weeks later, he was back in jail, but the Lord who had spoken to him earlier had another messenger waiting for him. He carried a Gideon Bible and inquired kindly into the problem facing Foxie. With conviction he affirmed: "God is your only hope" and added, "Would you like me to read a few psalms to you?" This man continued to tell of the goodness and lovingkindness of God and the message of hope began to penetrate the poor tormented brain. So much so that, when Foxie was released, he actually smuggled a Gideon Bible out of the institution with him.

He began to attend Alcoholics Anonymous meetings and was encouraged further by the emphasis they placed on the spiritual side of their programme. It was good to know that in seven of the A.A's suggested steps towards recovery, God is implicated. Here in his own words is the description of how at last he found deliverence from sin and peace of mind: "So praying daily and being as humble as possible, I found that God began to show Himself to me in a way that I recognised for the first time. I found that not only could I humble myself and ask God to take away the desire for alcohol, but also to take away my defects of character. It was not until I had a spiritual awakening that I completely surrendered my life to the Lord Jesus Christ."

A new life began for Foxie. He started to work as a building contractor and, in the wonderful providence of God, met again the man who placed the Gideons' Bible in his hand. Greatly strengthened by this encounter with God's messenger, he went on into the deeper experience of the filling of the Holy Spirit and tremendous joy ensued. He is now reunited with his wife and family and is a keen Gideon himself and, from the precious Book he has learned to love, he points to Psalm 40:2 as his testimony.

Once again we have up-to-date evidence of the wonder-working power of God to transform lives and to solve the problems of crime and alcoholism which are bedevilling society today.

Have you heard?

asks Len Magee Pastor of our Lane End Church

AN Alsatian nearly bit me once.

I could feel its hot breath on my foot when its owner shouted, "STOP!" It stopped. I didn't.

I suppose if he'd shouted, "Go!" I'd have been pedigree dog food! Though I was close to a severe heart attack, I couldn't help but admire the animal's perfect, instant obedience to its master's command. One word and my sole was saved.

God has never been one to waste words.

He's overflowingly bountiful, to say the least, but He is never wasteful. Jesus achieved more with one or two words, or with a short, punchy sentence, than if He'd entered into a lengthy discussion. Men left everything they had at the sound of two words: "Follow Me". He once tranquilised an angry sea with three words, "Peace, be still". The word "come" is used over 500 times in Scripture. Peter defied Isaac Newton's theories by walking on the water when he heard from the Master's lips that one word, "Come". Peter was also sensitive enough to be moved by a look from the master. One woman had the greatest revelation she ever had when Jesus said but one word to here, only her name, "Mary".

God gave all He had and told us all that we need to know about Him and His salvation when He gave us "THE WORD".

God speaks in a still, small voice. If He spoke to some folk by wind, fire or earthquake, they still wouldn't hear Him, let alone obey Him. Very often our problem has something to do with our ability to LISTEN. Jesus, on one occasion, told His disciples concerning what He said about His death and resurrection, to let His sayings sink down into their ears. Judging from their frightened, confused reactions after the crucifixion, they hadn't understood, but in this day of the out-poured Spirit there's no reason why we shouldn't hear and understand.

The disciples had it easy compared with Elisha. He never heard a word. Elijah just walked up and threw a cloak upon him. To Elisha that was the call of God, and he left all and entered God's school. Today Elijah might have to use something a little heavier and harder than his cloak! He might need a brick for some!

Hearing God's voice surely applies to every realm of the Christian life. Little Tim, who lived in a slum area, attended a Sunday school and gave his heart to Jesus. Another boy, trying to destroy Tim's newfound faith, asked, "If God really loves you, why doesn't He take better care of you? Why doesn't He tell someone to buy you a pair of shoes? Tim stopped and thought and, as the tears welled up in his eyes, he answered, "I think He does tell somebody, BUT THEY'RE NOT LISTENING!"

Surely we don't need God to shout in our ears to see the need for individual involvement in God's service. We just need to open our eyes. You don't have to have a theological visitation from Gabriel to be called of God. You need an open ear. Whether it's, "Feed My sheep" or simply, "Go", if it comes from God, then one word is enough.

"Go", He says, but are you listening?

The Family Altar

Scripture Union Portions — Notes by R.A. Gull

Monday, February 5th 2 Samuel 17:15–29

"Came to a man's house in Bahurim" (v.18).

"BAHURIM" means "low ground", and it indeed marked a low point of shame and ridicule in David's life when he was cursed there by Shimei (2 Samuel 16:5). Now the Lord used a woman of Bahurim to save the messengers and thus, very probably, to preserve king David's life, Rabbah of the children of Ammon (17:27).

Ammon, too, had been a place of avowed humility to David, but now it provided for David and comforted his people.

How wonderful God is! He makes the low places of sorrow and the very places of cursing and enmity to become the high places of joy, blessing and peace.

Tuesday, February 6th 2 Samuel 18:1–18

"He took three darts . . . and thrust them through the heart of Absalom" (v.14).

THIS battle was not so much between opposing peoples, but rather between personalities. The loyal followers of David knew it and refused to let their king take to the field (v.3). Joab, knew it too. With the single-mindedness of a fighting man, he and his young bodyguard slew Absalom and then blew the trumpet for disengagement. Their fight was not against the people of Israel. God give us single-mindedness in the war against the devil.

Wednesday, February 7th 2 Samuel 18:18–33

"He is a good man, and cometh with good tidings" (v.27).

WHAT a blessed combination of character is found among David's followers. On the one hand was the single-mindedness of Joab, who unrelentingly slew the enemy, and on the other hand were the pity and tender understanding of Ahimaaz.

As well as a faces of flint towards evil, may God grant us hearts of tenderness and sympathy towards the people.

Thursday, February 8th 2 Samuel 19:1–15

"The king saved us . . . Now therefore why speak ye not a word of bringing the king back?" (vv. 9,10). "Judah . . . sent this word to the king, Return" (v.14). "And Judah came to . . . meet the king, to conduct the king" (v.15).

ISRAEL talked of bringing the king back to his rightful place in their lives, but they never got beyond mere words.

Judah had not even talked of bringing back the king, but, when they were presented with the idea they were first to act. They invited the king, met the king and conducted the king into the city.

May we always stimulate that sort of action in men's hearts.

Friday, February 9th 2 Samuel 19:16–30

"And Shimei . . . came down . . . to meet the king." (v.16). "And Mephibosheth . . . came down to meet the king" (v.24).

TWO men of doubtful allegiance these were, but notice that Mephibosheth, of the house of Saul, had boldly mourned for the king right through the period of exile and that he asked no blessing and required no gift, save that of receiving again the peace of the palace. Compare Shimei's alleged confession and sorrow before David. Though David's forgiveness was granted, yet later David found reason to command Solomon his son concerning Shimei, "Hold him not guiltless." (1 Kings 2:9). "But the king spared Mephibosheth" (2 Samuel 21:7).

We should earnestly examine our allegiance to the Lord and cry, "Come, Lord Jesus!"

Saturday, February 10th 2 Samuel 19:31–43

"Why should the king recompense it me with such a reward?" (v.36).

BARZILLAI was a "very great man". He and his sons (1 Kings 2:7; notice the word "they") had protected the king and provided for his needs while he was in exile. What a lovable, grand old man was this! "The king kissed Barzillai" with real affection, yet Barzillai pressed no matter of recompense or "rights", merely asking a favour at David's discretion. It was not so with Israel, who boldly asserted that they had "ten parts in the king" (v.43).

We have no exclusive rights to God, but, in His mercy, we can serve Him.

Sunday, February 11th 2 Samuel 20:1–26

"And there happened to be there a man of Belial" (v.1).

SUCH a man is always available! A "ship going to Tarshish", or merely someone willing to "go a-fishing", are expedients always present to divide or to deflect.

"So Amasa went . . . but he tarried longer than the set time" (v.5). There is no time for delay in the king's service. Amasa's punishment was harsh, but David's fears were realistic, and Joab's zeal was commendable.

Decisions or Disciples

by David J. Blake Pastor of our Harrogate Church

THE newest and most used word in our evangelical vocabulary is the word "decisions". We frequently hear in crusade reports of so many "decisions being registered", or we hear preachers encouraging people to make their "decisions for Christ".

This word is not derived from Scripture. The word "Trinity" is not found in the Bible, but the doctrine of the Trinity is clearly taught in the scriptures. The danger in using the word "decision" lies not in the fact that it is a man-made word, but that it is a man-made substitute that to a large extent has replaced Scriptural words.

When Jesus talked of the miracle of divine grace in which a sinful man is reconciled to his Maker, He used such words as "repent" and "be converted" (see Luke 13:3; Mathew 18:3). Both these words imply a radical change. When a man repents and is converted he experiences a change in his direction and a change in his eternal destination. He turns from the broad road that leads to Hell and destruction and starts on the narrow road that leads to eternal life. To effect this great transformation a new nature is given to the sinner by the Holy Spirit and thus the converted man's life is changed and he serves Christ and righteousness instead of self and sin.

A decision often bears little or no resemblance to a conversion. A decision, by definition, is an act of the intellect, and perhaps the reason why some are seen to make decisions at crusades and are not subsequently seen in churches as spiritual Christians, is because their "conversion" amounted to no more than an intellectual decision.

In our great desire to see people saved, we can make the mistake of diluting the gospel and making it easy for a person to make an acknowledgement Justification is by faith and in that respect it is easy, but it is also difficult for people to be saved. We cannot experience the joy of salvation without first knowing what it is to sorrow on account of our sin and we will never know the peace of God until we realise that, as sinners, we are enemies of God and children of wrath. The way to heaven and eternal life lies beyond a "narrow gate".

A rich young ruler came to Jesus and asked, "Good Master, what must I do to inherit eternal life?" (Mark 10:17). The answer from many today in response to the same question would probably be, "Sign this decision card and believe a certain Bible promise." Jesus was not content to send a young man away with a false assurance of salvation. He saw that the ruler loved his money more than anything else, so He told him to give all he had to the poor. Sadly, the claims of discipleship, self-sacrifice and self-denial, were too great for the young man. At this point some would suggest that Jesus was asking the young ruler to be a disciple, and advocate that discipleship is something extra to becoming a Christian, but Jesus put the claims of discipleship in answer to the request for eternal life. It is wrong to think that a person can be a Christian without being a disciple. Some exhort people, who presumably have made a decision and have not progressed in the Christian life, to accept Jesus as their Lord and become a disciple, but this assumes that the personality of Christ can be dissected and this false assumption is not Scriptural. Jesus is not Saviour unless He is also Lord. At his conversion on the Damascus Road, Saul said, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" Christians must be disciples. It was not the Christians who became disciples, but the "disciples were called Christians" (Acts 11:26).

We usually achieve the standard for which we aim. In the work of evangelism we should set our sights high. If we aim for and are content with decisions, then these are all that we shall have, with the superficiality that they so often bring, but the need today is for disciples, men and women to whom self-sacrifice is no hardship, and for whom service, however arduous, is a great joy.

Remember the words of the Master, "All authority in heaven and on earth has been given to me. Go therefore and make DISCIPLES of all nations" (Matthew 28:18,19, R.S.V.).

Editorial

THIS generation claims to be the "now" age, the "do your own thing" era. Sadly, but history shows that it is often the case when self-interest takes the paramount place, modern attitudes and philosophies are resulting in what promises to be an increasing breakdown in so-called civilisation.

A discussion programme on the radio was taken up with the city in present day culture. It was a depressing exchange of views. The chairman, a well-known journalist in the North of England, freely expressed his opinion that we are witnessing the gradual erosion if not destruction of values and outlooks which we have come to take for granted as the British way of life. The participants discussed the situation against the background of town planning and totally ignored moral, let alone spiritual, issues.

Mankind never learns that when every man does that which is right in his own eyes there is an inevitable breakdown of law and order. Selfishness on the part of one implies deprivation as regards others. No man is an island. No individual lives in a vacuum. Since we live among people, their opinions matter and they affect us, surprisingly so. Few grow such a crust around themselves that they are entirely oblivious of the ideas and comments of their neighbours. The British interest in daily newspapers, especially the so-called "populars", is clear evidence of this.

It seems strange that so many are caught up in the stream of opinion that carries them along to demand their alleged rights to do what they think, whether it be the showing of an Andy Warhol film on television irrespective of its possible effects or the peculiar antics of the well-known Birmingham doctor, though not of medicine, and his strange methods of teaching human relationships.

The reading of some of the comments of the Bible are all the more startling against the modern set-up. Take only two examples from many such in the writings of Paul. "I will very gladly spend and be spent for you; though the more abundantly I love, the less I be loved." (2 Corinthians 12:15). Only the love of God in Christ could bring a man to the place where this was his very way of life. As you read the two Epistles to the Corinthians you soon get the feel of how those of Corinth had tended to despise him, even to the doubting of his apostleship. With hindsight, it seems incredible to us. He was able to write as he did, however, because of the very reason for his ministry, "I seek not yours, but you" (v.14).

He readlly loved his neighbour.

Church Reports

SMETHWICK Pastor: S.D. Huntly, B.D.

ONE direct outcome of our Children's crusade held in October (see EVANGEL report of November 25th) was that the headmaster of a local junior school requested permission to hold their annual carol service in our Church and for our Pastor to give the closing address. On Monday, December 16th, therefore, over 200 parents and friends packed our Church to hear a varied programme of carols and readings presented by the 100-voice junior choir and the fifty-voice infant choir, together with their teachers. What an opportunity for evangelism this presented! Our Pastor preached a direct Gospel message and everyone was given a printed letter and invitation as they left the Church. We pray that many will return and acknowledge Christ as Saviour. The Headmaster and several of the teachers commented afterwards that it was the best ever carol service.

We held our first Watch-night Service for several years. It was well attended as we sought the blessing of God for the new year of opportunity.

On the first Sunday of the New Year, ten people were received into membership after each one briefly testified to God's saving grace and keeping power.

The tide of blessing is rising at Smethwick.

MOSBOROUGH, Sheffield Pastor: R. Harvey

"STUDENTS WITH A MESSAGE" was the theme we adopted for the special weekend conducted by students from our Elim Bible College.

Saturday evening saw a great united rally involving the twelve students, whose ministry in song, testimony and the Word was rich and varied. The church was packed with 150 happy believers who enjoyed true Pentecostal blessing.

Our special meetings continued on the Sunday, four of the students ministering in Mosborough, the remainder going to our Sheffield and Rotherham churches. We felt the blessing of the Lord as the students ministered throughout the day at all our services including the Sunday school. The Word of God was faithfully proclaimed and the unsaved were left in no doubt concerning their need of a personal Saviour.

The Lord has really blessed here in Mosborough in recent days. We have cleared a substantial debt of several hundred pounds within the last six months, when our church offerings have more than doubled. The attendance at all meetings has increased, new members have been accepted into fellowship and an Irish Roman Catholic has come to know the Lord.

There is a sense of expectancy in the church. We thank God for the mercy drops, but how we long for the showers of blessing and a real deluge of Holy Ghost power!

The photograph shows the four students who ministered at our Sunday services.

ABERYSTWYTH Pastor: G.S. Wyborn

THE Elim Women's Fellowship held their Christmas dinner at Padarn Hall. Fifty-four members including a few invited friends enjoyed a first-class meal. The Aberystwyth Silver Band entertained the guests at the close of the meal. For the rest of the evening the company sang carols, and enjoyed a programme of solos, recitations and group singing by local talent. Mrs. Huw Jones, president, thanked everybody who had contributed to make the evening so enjoyable.

Recently the Elim Church Sunshine Corner boys and girls performed a Christmas play, and other activities during a Sunday evening service. Much effort was put into this service and the meeting was greatly enjoyed by all. The following day twenty-two boys and girls from the Sunshine Corner had a Christmas Party.

Cambrian Times

We praise God for the increase in attendance at Sunshine Corner. In the last four months numbers have grown from an average of six to over twenty. Many of these boys and girls know the Lord Jesus as their Saviour. We give Him the glory for what He is doing among these youngsters.

WINTON, Bournemouth Pastor: G.N. Backhouse

THE Sunshine Corner children provided a really wonderful Sunday evening immediately prior to Christmas. The youngsters, aged from three to about fourteen, were in great spirits and voice, and were the means of attracting many parents and outsiders to the church for this special occasion. The eighty-strong "choir" were led by Joe Fudge in a wide variety of choruses and Christmas carols, and the message was presented by our minister.

TAMWORTH

ON Sunday, January 14th, after more than five years ministry, we bade farewell to Pastor and Mrs. Cain and Jonathan. Mr. C. Blount (Church Secretary) presented a cheque to Pastor Cain on behalf of the congregation. Mrs. K. Bailey (Sisterhood Secretary) presented Mrs. Cain with a silver cake stand on behalf of the Sisterhood and Mr. B. Thompson (Sunday School Superintendent) a monetary gift on behalf of the Sunday school. Jonathan received two books from the Sunday school and scholars.

We wish Pastor and Mrs. Cain every blessing in their new appointment at Whitehaven.

The passing of a faithful Christian

A Tribute to a beloved Father-in-law

DAVID Davies was a man of sincere, humble spirit and of deep Christian conviction. He firmly held to what he believed. His love for the Bible and his upright Christian living have left a lasting impression on his family.

As a coal miner, it was necessary for him to rise early each morning, but, because he treasured God's Word, he rose earlier by one hour each day so that he could read the Scripture and have a time of prayer before proceeding to his arduous work. This he continued to do until his retirement.

He was a firm believer in Pentecost and practised tithing from his early Christian life. He made many financial sacrifices to further God's work. He abode constantly under the anointing of God which was evident by his ministry of the Word. Many of his generous actions and kindly deeds are unrecorded, but to those who knew and loved him, they will remain as treasured memories and an inspiration to follow in his footsteps.

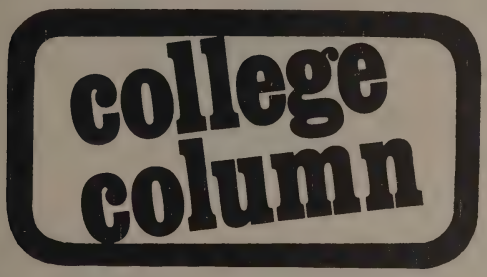
Letter to the Editor

Dear Brother,

THE death of one of your Evangel Secretaries, Mr. David Davies, of the independent Elim Pentecostal Church, Pontyates, near Llanelli, who died on Sunday, December 10th 1972, at the age of 74 years, has urged me to write you, for I knew David for over fifty years. He was one of the converts of revival services conducted by the late Pastor Stephen Jeffreys in 1921, at Nazareth Church, Pontyates. Following this campaign an Assembly was formed. They worshipped in a barn at Plas Bach Farm. My father, Pastor W.J. Thomas, became their first shepherd. David Davies was present. Eventually a wooden structure was erected to house the young church at Christmas, 1921. David Davies accepted the office of secretary. He remained in that office until the day of his death. If he had lived until January 1973, it would have been his fiftieth anniversary as secretary.

During this past twelve to eighteen months, the Pontyates Church has suffered great loss by the deaths of great men of God like Mr. Bryn Lewis (father of Pastor Wynne Lewis), Mr. Griff Williams (the pianist for almost fifty years), and Mr. and Mrs. Davies. Such saints were stalwarts of the faith. There is a deep sigh in one's spirit at the departure of such godly folk, even though we believe that they are at rest, awaiting the coming Lord and the Reward Day for such faithful service.



David Davies was not a man who sought publicity, but those of us who were privileged to know him thank God for every memory of him. He was my Sunday school teacher back in the twenties. He laid the foundation in my life for my future ministerial career. I have been a minister of Assemblies of God for over forty years. David Davies played the initial part in my spiritual life and ministry. Thank God for him.

May the Lord fill the gaps made by the departure of such men and women.

MALDWYN THOMAS

(Mr. David Davies commenced to purchase a weekly supply of ELIM EVANGELS for the Pontyates Church in 1921/1922 and he was our EVANGEL Secretary there until his death. His daughter Margaret has now assumed this duty. EDITOR)

BY now the Spring term at Elim Bible College is well under way. It promises to be a full and useful one. Four new people have joined the Theology school bringing the roll up to sixty. These are Paul Raper (son of Rev. Oliver Raper, Chairman of the Apostolic Faith Mission of South Africa), Jorg Knechtli (Switzerland), Mirjami Ylenius (Finland, recently ministering in Kisumu, Kenya) and Britt Olander (Sweden). There are several additions to the Language School.

Herchel Douglas Fincher, known to many from his visit with the Crusader Trio a few years ago and more recently as accompanist for Lee Robins, has based himself at the college while doing some research for a further music degree. A Bachelor of Education in the field of music and until a few months ago Director of Music at Central Assembly, Springfield (A.o.G. of U.S.A.), Douglas will be organising and leading the musical side of things here.

With outline plans passed and detailed plans on the way for new bedrooms, dining hall, kitchen, assembly hall and housing, the Elim Bible College Campus promises to be one of the finest in the country. In the context of the moving of the Spirit throughout the nation and the world the College will seek to fulfil its mission and continue to offer leadership and education in the great matters of the Kingdom.

The Christmas mail brought encouraging news from all over the world. Graduates Margaret Ingle and Jenny Arnold write from Mexico about tremendous opportunities and returns from evangelistic ministry. Derek and Sue Le Page are getting under way in Taiwan and Bertil and Stiga Andersson are combining English tuition with evangelistic outreach in Thailand.

Guests who have recently ministered at the college include Denis Clark, David Mugford B.D. (Ewhurst Free Evangelical Church) and Keith Foster B.D. (Dorking Baptist Church) and currently Denis Parker (Newdigate Parish Church) is giving a series on 1 Peter. In the course of the year we have welcomed Desmond W. Cartwright, Stephen D. Huntly B.D., Ian R. Hall B.D. and John Burgan Dip. Th. to our tutorial panel.

Please continue to pray. Try to be with us on Open Day this year on June 16 when the guest preacher will be John Phillips (A.o.G.).

Letter to the Editor

Dear Mr. Walker,

REGARDING my article "William Tyndale – Underground Evangelist" in the EVANGEL of January 6th, I am very grateful to Rev. D.W. Cartwright, who lectures at Elim Bible College on such a noble person and character as William Tyndale, who wrote a very kindly letter to me about the date of William Tyndale's birth. I thought that it could be either a misprint or a mistake on my part, so I have checked and re-checked.

In my article I quoted from the book by F.J. Miles, D.S.O., O.B.E., V.D., "The Miracle of Miracles or the living, lasting Word of God, page 68: "William Tyndale was born in Gloucestershire in A.D.1471. Fox says that he went to Oxford at the age of 29." This could be a mistake. I have searched carefully at the Library and from my own books, and have inquired from professional teachers on the subject. There seems to be a variety of dates. The Book of Knowledge with a question mark declares, "William Tyndale was born ? 1492." Yarns on Social Pioneers by Ernest H. Haynes says, "William Tyndale was born about 1484, probably at Melksham Court, Stinchcombe, Glos., graduating B.A. there in 1512." The Bible and its Story by L.N.R. published in 1853, says that he was born in 1884, 100 years after Wiclif died. William Tyndale by J.F. Mozley M.A., says that he was born in 1494.

So the story goes on, but we are sure that Tyndale was strangled at the stake and then burned to ashes. His prayer was answered, "Lord, open the King of England's eyes." To God be the glory!

Speaking in Tongues - The Historical Reality

The Fear of demonic Deception

by Philip E. Streeter
Pastor of our Romford Church
Illustration: Michael Moore

"BUT I am frightened that, when I speak in tongues, Satan will enter and possess me, not the Holy Spirit!" is an unnecessary dread on the part of many seekers. Hurl this thought furthest from your mind! If your motives are pure in aspiring after this hallowed experience, demonic deception is an impossibility.

Jesus ardently asserted: "What father among you, if his son ask for a fish, will instead of a fish give him a serpent; or if he asks for an egg, will give him a scorpion? . . . how much more will the heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to those who ask Him!" (Luke 11:11–13, R.S.V.). Nothing could be clearer than this. He emphatically stated that, if the heavenly Father failed to keep His word, He would be even worse than an evil man, for an evil man at least knows how to give good gifts to his children. God cannot break His word. If you ask blessing from Him, He can never reply with Satanic counterfeit.

There is a Satanic counterfeit to speaking in tongues. The mammoth flaw in Satan's personality is his lack of originality. Many of his despotic deeds among the masses are but products of imitation, spectacular mock signs and magical wonders in crude attempts to copy God, a running of affairs on an imitation of how God runs His. As Geoffrey King says: "If 'imitation is the sincerest form of flattery' then Satan flatters God!" The existence of a counterfeit is always proof of the genuine article.

Paul said, "Satan himself is transformed into an angel of light." The original word for "transformed" is quite intriguing; it means "a change from without, not from within." Satan may camouflage himself, taking on a myriad external, exaggerated likenesses, but internally, he remains the same – densely evil!

His titles indicate an effort to impersonate even the illustrious Holy Trinity. In mimicry of "an angel of light", he becomes the "god of this world". In pretence of the "Prince of peace", he reveals himself as the "prince of this world" and, in semblance of the Holy Spirit, he is "the spirit that now worketh in the children of disobedience." Every dome and pillar in the temple of Christian experience is apishly copied by the sham of Satan, including speaking in tongues.

Turning the crinkled pages of antiquity we observe the reality of this.

The philosopher Plato (fourth century B.C.) was familiar with an utterance of speech definitely not of the same sacred source as that entwined in Scripture.

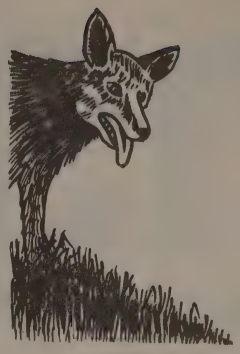
Three hundred years later, Virgil, the Greek poet, describes a priestess on the isle of Delos. She reached an ecstatic state in a haunted cave where lonely winds made weird, eerie sounds. On finally blending in spirit with the pagan god Apollo, she began to speak in tongues. Phenomena like this are clearly not of the Holy Spirit.

Chrysostom, the early Church father, records that the Pythoness of Delphi did likewise, a fact affirmed by the classical Greek scholars.

In the past, utterances of mysterious words were frequently regarded as a sign of possession by an evil spirit. One of the accusations flung at Elizabeth Barton, the Maid of Kent, notorious in the sixteenth century for her witchcraft, was her speaking in what was described as "a manner above her discourse".

For a common person to speak in other languages was not only considered to be a sign of Satanic possession, but a possession equal to a fever which could often be cured by the application of drugs. Pomponatious writes that the wife of Francis Maigret, sovetier of Mantua, spoke divers languages and was cured by Calderon, a physician, famous in his time, who gave her a portion of hellebore.

Erasmus confesses that he made observation on an Italian from Spoletta who spoke excellent German although he had never visited Germany. On being given medicine the Italian ejected a quantity of worms and was cured never to speak German again!



Much speaking in tongues in the ancient mystery cults was probably the product of psycho-suggestion. Historical enthusiasm for tongues indicates man's awareness that speech is one of his noblest powers. God Himself places great honour on this small member, the tongue.

Instances like those mentioned are void of that divine ring of truth that echoes from the Book of Acts. The Spirit of God is not the stimulating causation behind the utterances, but the coarse scrambling of Satan trying to duplicate Divinity. When the Holy Spirit speaks through stammering mortal lips, there is no "wild gibberish". The Christian is in full control of himself. The spirits of the divinely inspired are under the speaker's control. No trances, no working up into a frenzy as in Voodooism, but a drenching of the presence of Christ that bewitches the soul into finding devotional expression through speaking in tongues characterises true manifestations.

From the dawn of time Satan has struggled to copy the administration of God, but what does Satan care if Christians decline to acknowledge the imitation as legitimate, if they also disclaim the legitimate as imitation? To dash away from the dimension of the supernatural because of the false hazard of Satanic masquerade is an explicit acknowledgment of defeat and in time this will be evident to all. Satan will be right there, leering over your shoulder, questioning the sanity of your quest for Pentecostal experience. Crude whisperings will inform that the words you speak are made up, senseless, silly and disrespectful. Nearly every recipient of the Holy Spirit who has spoken in tongues will testify of this impulse to retire from the experience when on the verge of reception. Scripture decrees, however, that we should not fear Satan, but resist him and he will flee from us.

All fear, therefore, can be excommunicated from our minds. The gentle Holy Spirit never forces people to do things that cause their natures to revolt, nor does He change our human personalities. His living presence certainly moulds and inlays the personality, scattering sparkle, colour and brightness where dullness, fear and inertia existed. Not only is He the Comforter, He is also a perfect Gentleman, respectful, polite and refusing to crash in uninvited.

Children's Corner

Mr. Fox

Words and drawing by Sheila Price

TOMMY loved spending a weekend with his grandparents. They lived on a small farm. Tommy enjoyed helping with the animals. One night he noticed that his grandfather was worried. "What is the matter?" Tommy asked.

"I have seen a fox up in the hills, Tommy, and I am afraid that it might attack the chickens. I must make sure they are safely shut in for the night."

"Can I come with you?" asked Tommy.

"Yes," replied his grandfather. "You can carry the lamp for me."

They made their way across the field. "Have you seen the fox before, grandfather?" asked the boy.

"Many times, Tommy. The fox is a cunning creature. It lies in wait up in the hills and as soon as night falls it creeps down to steal whatever it can. It is a very sly animal." was the reply.

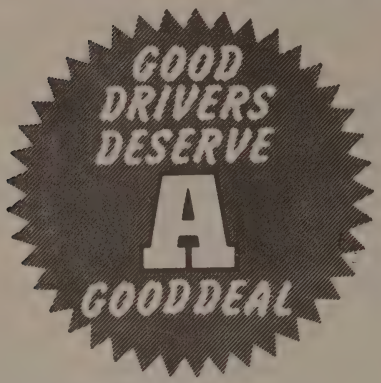
"It is a crafty one, too!" said Tommy.

"The fox reminds me of Jacob."

"Why, grandfather?"

"Well, he was a crafty man, Tommy. Jacob had a brother named Esau, and, because Esau was the elder brother, he would one day inherit his father's property. This made Jacob very jealous and he sought ways in which he could secure this birthright for himself. Once, when Esau was hungry, he went to Jacob and begged for some food. Crafty Jacob replied, "I will give you a bowl of soup in exchange for the birthright." Esau was so hungry that he agreed. Later, Jacob deceived his father by dressing up in goatskins and pretending to be Esau, and, when his father asked for food, Jacob brought him goat meat, telling him that it was venison."

"What a crafty man he was!" exclaimed Tommy.



"He was indeed. His very name meant 'Cheat'. But in the end, Tommy, it was Jacob himself who was cheated, for he was deceived ten times by his employer."

"It served him right," said Tommy.

"It shows us the danger that comes from cheating and stealing, Tommy, and teaches us to be honest in all things. Now then, shine the lamp over here so that I can lock up the chickens."

Mighty Miracle at Caerphilly

The Healing of Mrs. Muriel Tyler

OVER the last eighteen months at Caerphilly, there has been one healing after another. This has caused great rejoicing. They have come, not through the ministry of famous men, but in the normal, local Church operation, with normal, ordinary folk believing God.

The wondrous healing of Mrs. Brock from a cerebral thrombosis caused a wave of thanksgiving, especially as the doctor had said that she would not see the night through, yet she was healed almost instantly after the brethren prayed for her.

The healing of Mrs. Muriel Tyler from the scourge of cancer has really reached the hearts of many people and stirred their souls to magnify God.

On Monday, October 9th, Mrs. Tyler was taken ill with a large swelling in her ear and on the side of the face. Dr. Rees of Taffs Well diagnosed a mastoid. On the Wednesday night, Mr. John Tyler left for Bargoed with a taped service. This man gives his whole life to this specialised calling.

At 8.25 p.m. that night the lights fused and, at that moment, Mr. Tyler had a strange, overwhelming remembrance of the testimony of an Elim Minister who had four years before at our Church testified to the tragic death of his wife and of knowing something was terribly wrong at home, while he ministered at the church. The remembrance was so overpowering, that Mr. Tyler refused to wait for repairs, but dashed home at a great speed, to discover that at exactly 8.25 p.m. his wife had had a terrible haemorrhage.

Mrs. Tyler, in the afternoon, had been unable to remove from her mind the Bible account of the woman who had an issue of blood. She staggered for help. In a tragic condition, she was finally helped up the stairs and had a vision of the Lord's face; as she stretched out her hands to touch Him as the woman in the Scriptures had done she knew that the Lord would either take her home then, or that she would be healed. As she was not taken home to Glory, a great peace and certainty of healing entered her heart.

Dr. Rees came again, and said "John, it is critical; whether malignant or not, I do not know. I would rather say no more at this stage."

Muriel was admitted to the new Heath University Hospital, said to be Europe's largest. Professor Pearson examined her on October 14th and, after various tests and X-Rays, he told her, at her demand and request, that she had cancer of the womb, and would need two operations. Then Professor Pearson took John into a room and said "Mr. Tyler, your wife has cancer and it's very bad. She is in a very weak condition and still losing blood. I am also afraid that it has not contained itself and has got outside of the womb. She has about two or three months to live."

John Tyler was utterly shattered, but somehow he held on to his precious Saviour.

On October 21st, Dr. Haines sent Muriel home for a few days to prepare her for the great ordeal to come.

At this time, I called the Epping folk to pray (for I was crusading there) and sent a prayer card to Muriel. The Caerphilly Church cried out to God, and about sixteen members were in attendance on Monday, October 23rd, at Muriel's home, for a Communion service around the bedside. The Elder, deacons, friends, and my wife, were amazed by her joy, faith, and courage. At this meeting, Muriel believes, God performed the miracle.

On Wednesday, October 25th, she went back to Heath Hospital and Dr. Haines came rushing to her with a beaming face. "Good news!" he cried, "Mrs. Tyler, our latest tests have revealed that all traces of cancer have completely disappeared. You are completely normal and can go home immediately."

The local doctor showed the letter from the hospital to Mrs. John Tyler, and said, "Well, whatever happened, it is a miracle." A Matron said to them, "Big men like Prof. Pearson don't make mistakes," meaning, "If they said you were dying with cancer, then you were."

Muriel stood in the Caerphilly Church on October 29th, a woman whom I could have been burying in a few weeks, to declare the healing power of God.

Pastor Paula recalls

FESTO had become seriously ill and felt that he would not recover. He had no fear of death as he testified, "I have no doubts. Yesu is my Friend. He chased the demons which had made my life a misery for years. Witch doctors, Moslem priests and the Roman Catholics all failed to help me , but, through the Elim Church, Yesu was able to touch me. How I love Him! Now He is calling me to go to heaven."

As the days went by, Festo often brought tears to our eyes as he continued to sing and pray. We were greatly moved as we witnessed his great faith in and strong heart for Yesu.

On the day of his death, he sent me an urgent letter: "Mchungaji (Pastor), come to me at once; you will be my guest for the night." I immediately set out for his home, accompanied by many of our Christians. That evening, as we sat around Festo's bed, he said to his wife, "Call every one of my relatives, with every child that has understanding to hear. Bring them all here."

Pastor Paulo and his wife and family.

As they all fixed their eyes on him, he began to exhort them, "Do not lose your desire. I warn you, if anyone of you turns away from God it will be on your own head. I have made every effort to teach you of Yesu. God is calling me, even now I testify with tears, Yesu is your Saviour and mine. Perpetua," he turned his eyes on his wife, "when I am gone, take the big bull and give is as an offering to the church. Also, Perpetua, when you have sold the millet harvest give twenty shillings each to the two blind women in our church. Do not forget to do this. I have explained my wishes before Mchungaji and all here. I have faith in you that you will do all I ask." He lay back and spoke no more. An hour later our vigil was over.

The bull arrived at the church. The blind women had their gifts. The whole family go on with Yesu, God's Son. They know from experience that there is no other Name by which men may be delivered from demons. Yesu alone has the words of eternal life.

An Outline - The Four Winds (Ezekiel 37:9,10)

IN both Testaments the words used for "wind" and "breath" are the same. The action of God's Spirit in the reviving of Israel and His Church are so symbolised.

"There came a sound as of a rushing mighty wind" (Acts 2:2).

O Breath of Life come sweeping through us,
Revive Thy Church with life and power.
O Breath of God, come cleanse, renew us,
And fit Thy Church to meet this hour".

1. The East Wind, the bitter blast of famine and trial (Genesis 41:6; Ezekiel 19:12; Job 1:19; Isaiah 27:8).
2. The South Wind (Luke 12:55), warm, soft, but dangerous and deceptive (Acts 27:13,14). Prosperity has its perils!
3. The North Wind (Job 37:9,10). Winter wheat is often the best quality, but both north and south winds are essential to the harvest (Song of Solomon 4:16).
4. The West Wind (Luke 12:54). "Showers of blessing!"

"He bringeth forth the wind out of His treasures." (Jeremiah 10:13).

O Wind of God, come bend us, break us,
Till humbly we confess our need,
Then in Thy tenderness remake us,
Revive, restore, for this we plead.

An Incident - A Pair of Socks!

"WOULD you believe that a little thing like a pair of socks changed my life? Once I planned to take a trip with some of my friends on a canal boat, but, two days before we intended to leave, I injured my foot while chopping wood. It was only a small cut, but the blue dye in the home-knit socks I wore poisoned the wound, and I was compelled to stay at home. While my friends were on their journey, a powerful preacher came to our town to hold revival meetings. Since I didn't have anything else to do, I decided to attend. The message touched me deeply, and, as a result, I surrendered my heart to the Lord. Afterwards I saw that I needed to change my life in many ways. New desires and purposes took hold of me. I determined also to seek an education, for I trusted that this would enable me to live more usefully for my Lord." The speaker was the former President of the United States, James A. Garfield.

A Quotation - Divine Healing

"EIGHTEEN years ago I had tried the resources of doctors and climate to regain my health and for a year and a half sought in vain. Then, in a quiet moment of prayer, I was touched into health. Whatever the future may have for me in the shape of physical suffering, for eighteen years the difficulty has never returned, and I have never had such health. Professor Leuba, standing as a spectator, says, 'Merely psychological', while I, as a participant, say, 'God'."

Thoughts from the Book of Genesis

12. Dangerous Compromise (Genesis 12:13)

by F. Lavender

THE Lord had commanded Abram to go to the land of Canaan to live there. When Abram obeyed, the Lord came to him and blessed him, promising that the land should be his. Later, a difficult time of famine came to the land and Abram went down into Egypt instead of trusting the Lord who called him. This act of compromise had some sad and bitter results. His wife, Sarai, was placed in a false and embarrassing position because Abram insisted that she be presented to the Egyptians as his sister instead of as his wife. Pharaoh and his household were plagued for her sake when Pharaoh thought of making Sarai his wife. Abram's action was a denial of his faith in the rule of God (v.12). Most serious of all, what Abram did brought dishonour to the Lord in the eyes of the Egyptians.

As believers we are assured of the blessing of God as we walk with Him in obedient trust. As long as all seems well we accept Scriptures like Romans 8:28 without question. Then when a time of difficulty ("famine in the land") comes to us, we are tempted to compromise and to seek an easier, more pleasant path. Abram's act of compromise certainly seemed to pay off at first because, for Sarai's sake, Pharaoh treated him as a friend, but in the end the harvest was bitter and brought great sadness and humiliation. Whatever temporary advantage we seem to gain by compromising our complete trust in God, in the end it will bring sorrow with the spoiling, and even the ruin, of our Christian testimony.

Let us learn this lesson well, so that we trust our Lord in all circumstances of life.

My Testimony of Healing

by Mrs. Grace Taylor

a member of our Liverpool Church

I WAS brought up in a Christian home and taught to pray, to read the Bible every day and to keep God's day holy, but this did not make me a Christian. This was a decision I had to make myself.

My sister took me to a campaign which was held at Sun Hall, Kensington, Liverpool. The speaker, Rev. Lionel B. Fletcher, spoke about how people have room in their hearts for other things, but no room for the Lord Jesus Christ, who had given his life for us by dying on the cross of Calvary, the place where our sins could be forgiven and washed away by His precious blood. I knew that I had no room in my heart for the Lord because of my sin and yet I knew that I needed the Lord to be my Saviour and Friend. That night, March 21st, 1935, at the age of 11, I asked the Lord to forgive my sin and to come into my heart and life.

From then on I got to know the Lord more day by day as I prayed to Him and read His Word. He became a wonderful Saviour and Friend to me.

At the age of 32, I began to suffer with my nerves. This broke my health down, so much so that I had to have electric treatment, which took away my will power. I could not spell properly or even add two numbers together; my brain was not functioning properly. I had no strength to do my work. My husband had to go to work, come home, get meals ready, clean the house, do the washing, etc.

I was in this state for four years. I started attending the Liverpool City Mission in Wellington Road, Wavertree. At that time the minister was Pastor W. Angel. They had a women's fellowship which I went to every Tuesday afternoon. At one meeting, they sang, "She only touched the hem of His garment".

I felt that the Lord was speaking to me as we sang; I knew that He could heal me. I thought that I would have to go to a church where there was a healing campaign, but Pastor Angel said that he was going to pray for the sick on the next Sunday evening at the communion service. I was anointed with oil and received the laying on of hands. I felt a wonderful peace going through my body as I touched by faith the hem of His garment and was made completely whole.

I went home that night not thinking any more about it, but next morning when I got up I cleaned the house and also had a meal ready for my husband when he came from work. We were both thrilled at what the Lord had done. This happened on February 12th, 1961. It is now twelve years since the Lord healed me and I have never looked back. The Lord has been wonderful to me. I have obeyed Him in the waters of baptism and have been baptized in the Holy Spirit to be used as an instrument in His hand in His service.

May many others be blessed in the same way!

Book Reviews

God's Smuggler and The Cross and the Switchblade, published as comic books by Marshall, Morgan and Scott. Price 13p each, postage and packing 3p each extra.

IT will be better if I discuss the presentation, rather than the contents. The latter is well known world-wide. The stories are presented in the same way as children's comics and I think that they are absolutely first-class. There are scores of comics provided by the world's presses and I have often wondered why so little has been done for Christian children in this field.

These two comic books really deserve to succeed. They tell both moving stories clearly and correctly in this visual form and they can be read easily by even young children. The price might seem a little high if they are regarded as comics, but not when they are thought of as visual books. They could be read by many children and passed round Sunday schools among the nines to fourteens. I think "Book Comic" is perhaps a better description than "Comic Book", which might be open to misinterpretation. They really are good, I commend them.

Not Hearers Only, Volume 2, by John Blanchard. Published by Word Books (UK) Ltd. Price 50p, postage and packing 7p extra.

THE second book in the series deals with chapters two and three of the Epistle of James.

A writer's first book in a series will sometimes have a lustre which the following volumes seem to lack, but this cannot be said of John Blanchard's second volume.

There is a penetrating freshness and lucidity about this study which reaches the heart and compels the reader to look beneath the surface of his whole life.

Every section of the book is relevant to modern life and none more so than that dealing with discrimination between persons. In this passage also we find a very unusual comment on the sin of blasphemy among believers. This incisive writing can never be more relevant than it is today.

J.H. SAINSBURY.

No Bronze Statue, by Phyllis Thompson. Published by WORD Books. Price 50p, postage and packing 7p extra.

THE title does not commend this book. As the introductory pages indicate, it is a documentary of the founding and continuation of the work of the Mildmay Mission Hospital in east London. Documentaries can be dull, but this does not fall into this category. It is an intensely moving record of the vision that brought this Christian hospital into being a little over a century ago amid the squalor and poverty of the east end of London and of the continuation of the ministry of healing and the presentation of the message of the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour. The record tells of the personal devotion and zeal of the staff, many of whom trained at Mildmay for appointments to mission hospitals in many parts of the world. As one who was first introduced to this hospital as a patient following a breakdown in health after a term of missionary service, I read this book and exclaimed, "Thank God for Mildmay!" I heartily commend this well-written account of devotion and sacrifice; it is a book well worth reading.

DAVID C. LEWIS

The Charismatic Movement in the Historic Churches, by W.T.H. Richards. Published by Ambassador Productions, distributed by Marshall, Morgan and Scott. Price 20p, postage and packing 3p extra.

THIS 32-page booklet is the paper presented to the 1972 Conference of the British Assemblies of God and provides a balanced Pentecostal assessment of the Charismatic Movement by one of the A.o.G.'s most widely-esteemed ministers. To give a fair account of the "neo-Pentecostals" is difficult, as the subject is not "a denomination, but a movement of the Spirit within several denominations".

The problem of "Catholic Pentecostals" gravely concerns the author, but he fails to mention that many Protestant neo-Pentecostals are equally concerned. Nor have the leaders of the movement ignored the other problems which Mr. Richards pin-points and which the traditional Pentecostals have also faced.

Remarkably, on the Doctrine of the Baptism of the Spirit the author detects but one difference between the Charismatic and the Pentecostal movement – the highly-controversial Initial Evidence.

On the whole the booklet is to be highly commended and widely circulated.

"For God did not give us a spirit of timidity – of cowardice, of craven and cringing and fawning fear – but He has given us a spirit of power and of love and of calm and well-balanced mind and self-control" (2 Timothy 1:7, Amp. N.T.).

Refuse to listen to the visionless voice that excuses this hallowed work of the Holy Spirit. Remember that, "There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear; because fear hath torment" (1 John 4:18).

From T. H. Stevenson

FROM time to time I purposely refer to my acquaintance with events relating to Northern Ireland chiefly that we may remember that troubled land and our Elim people dwelling there. I feel I ought to share (without having requested permission) the story of a weekly prayer meeting in our Armagh church last summer. It may make many of us grateful for our winter. I was told the details on a preaching visit, but have refrained until now to relate it.

The church building is situated in length hard by the pavement of a comparatively narrow street. During prayer time the front doors were closed but unlocked, in order to keep the noise out – and it could be to keep the noise in! With the long hours of daylight enjoyed in more northerly parts, there were no lights on in the building. This could well excuse the police and military overlooking the fact of any church activity, when all else around were warned and evacuated because of a fifty pound bomb planted against the wall of the building across the street. With only about three minutes to spare, a policeman thought of the church, rushed into the building and quickly ended the prayer meeting with his warning of seeming few moments of grace. James, the writer of the Epistle, would have appreciated their faith and works as the congregation left speedily. None who know our minister's individuality will be surprised with the concluding episodes.

Outside the building he stood, accompanied by two brethren and, with military and police personnel nearby, he joined hands with his brethren, and explaining that he would not leave the spot without asking God's protecting hand, he prayed with his strong, clear voice that God might protect the building and that not even a pane of glass might be cracked. At least the final word might have set some unbelievers and doubters nearby thinking. From a point of safety all watched as the fuse effectively burned to the point of detonating the bomb, but only one or two pounds of explosive detonated, the remainder continuing dormant. It is not uncommon for a fuse to burn only partially and thus fail, but it is a rarity and more for a detonation to begin without a complete explosion resulting. Yes, not one pane of glass was cracked. God had answered prayer.

More than forty years ago the same church began an all-night prayer meeting for the healing of a member seemingly dying. I say "began", for, shortly after midnight a confirmation was given by the gifts of the Spirit that the man would be healed. The prayer meeting ceased then. The Pastor with others went to the house of the dying man and found him completely healed. God is just the same today.

The main content I have written to express belief in the power of prayer, to offer an example of brave public faith and testimony, and to remind you again of the circumstances in which many of our Church members and ministers in Northern Ireland work and worship in danger zones amid continuing years of tragic behaviour.

PRAYER and PRAISE

by F. H. Coleman

THE months of January and February are often dull, cold and cheerless. So many things we do at this time of the year are done inside the house. The outside ones are left to a warmer day. Gardens are left neglected, for all the plants and trees seem to have gone to sleep, waiting for the kiss of the warm sun and light to bring them to life again.

There seem to me to be seasons like this in our prayer lives. A winter time comes when we sow the seed and still continue to pray over it as it lies dormant in the soul waiting for that life-giving touch of the Spirit to bring life and eventually fruition.

It was my great joy at the Pentecostal European Conference in Berne to meet an aged sister who has spent most of her years toiling in the Congo, now called Zaire. The climate in that Central African land was such that few missionaries could live in that area as sickness and disease took their deadly toll. This woman returned more than once to her beautiful Switzerland more dead than alive to recuperate and to return to the Congo. The Word of God's precious seed was faithfully sown. Some accepted Christ and a mission station was opened, but the vast majority of the nationals remained heathen. Over twenty years passed with small results. There was so much to discourage, but suddenly the Spirit of God began to move. So great was the awakening that whole tribes turned to Christ. Strong men knelt before her as she walked the native paths and pleaded to be shown how they could be saved. The long dull days of winter

by Mrs. Dorothy E. Bull

TITO'S heart was heavy, but he cast his burden on the Lord and found Him well able to sustain. The young Tanzanian was refusing to let this latest blow from Satan cause him to turn aside from following Jesus.

His mind travelled back to the time when he found a prospective wife. Moslem like himself, she had a special attribute: she could hoe well!

In time, marriage was gladdened by the arrival of a little daughter. Then his brother, Pastor Filipo, explained the cruel death of Christ on the cross where the Saviour took punishment for the sins of Tito (yours and mine also!). Such a love found a ready response in the African's heart, but his subsequent desertion of Islam outraged his father-in-law, who removed the young wife and her daughter, although another baby was expected at that time.

Months after birth, the infant became ill, and, as the grandfather insisted on witchcraft treatment only, the little one died.

Tito's wife, Tatu and baby Kenneth with Mrs. Bull outside Msolwa church, Tanzania

Tito prayed passionately on, and, miles away, God stirred the young man's wife to remembrance of her husband's loving care. With daughter Tatu, she fled back to where he was working as gardener for Elim's missionaries (the Bulls).

Reunion brought joy at answered prayer, and later another happy event was imminent.

Her infuriated father accused his daughter to the police and she was detained by them until they realised that there was no valid charge against her. Relentlessly, her father stirred up the tribal council and she was summoned before them, then subjected to extreme pressure to return to her parents in spite of the fact that the dowry had been paid and the marriage thus legalised. The girl remained adamant, thus enabling God to work on her behalf. She was again released.

Further incensed, her father denounced her as a "child of the Bulls", and no longer one of his, and openly put a curse on her, saying that she and her expected child would die at the time of delivery. He sought witchcraft to this end, so I determined to take care of the confinement myself.

When the time arrived, it was obvious that, had the infant been born without trained help, he would have arrived in the membrane and thus (because of tribal superstition) been killed as an evil spirit. The mother would have haemorrhaged to death and her father's curse would have been considered to have worked!

Today, Tito is an evangelist, wholehearted in his work. His light shines; he is not an unlit Christian.

His experience is typical of that of our converted Moslem couples. Please pray for them.

The Journey

"He needs no map who has a Guide."
"But, Lord, I like to see my way,
To trace the windings of the path
And know it leads to Day."

"But I Who lead thee, am the Way.
The dangers of the unknown track
Are clear and open to My eyes.
Faith never turns its back."

"Lord, show me but a little stretch –
Tomorrow's lighted path ahead.
To step into the darkened void Fills me with anxious dread."

"Oh, foolish child! I am thy Guide,
Thy trusted Way, thy shining Light.
Come, clasp My hand, look in My eyes.
Dawn lies beyond the night."

Big Romance didn't work out

David B. Tinnion

Pastor of our Driffield Church

SITTING in a smoke-infested double-decker 'bus, I found myself beside a fashionable young lady. The leading article of a newspaper had attracted her attention: "The big romance that didn't work out!". She was interested in a famous thirty-two-year-old bachelor's love life, especially as it was "the frankest story ever told."

Jesus was concerned about Peter's love life (John, chapter 21). He asked, "Peter, do you really love Me?" Christ did not ask him about his prayer life or his outreach work; He asked about his love, something that goes far deeper than outward activity, a question that went right to his very heart. If love is misdirected, everything is wrong.

Why do we wear Jesus stickers, march in festivals, ring door bells, teach children, run youth clubs, sing in the choir – for the church, to please the Pastor, to promote ourselves, or because we are in love with Jesus?

David Wilkerson, speaking on love, said, "The test of genuine love is simply, 'Has it grown with the passing of time?'" Put yourself to the test. Test your love for Jesus.

If we love a person we are always thinking about them. "Fix your thoughts on what is true and good and right . . . think about all you can praise God for and be glad about" (Philippians 4:8).

If we love a person we always like to please him. "For God is at work within you, helping you want to obey Him, and then helping you do what He wants" (Philippians 2:13).

If we love a person we always like to talk about him. "I will praise the Lord no matter what happens. I will constantly speak of His glories and grace. I will boast of all His kindness to me" (Psalm 34:1,2).

If we love a person we like to show our love by giving gifts. "I plead with you to give your bodies to God. Let them be a living sacrifice, holy – the kind He can accept" (Romans 12:1,2).

If we love a person it is not a secret. Like sound, it will be heard; like light, it will be seen; like heat, it will be felt.

If Christ asked us the question, "Do you really love Me?" would our answer be, "Yes, Lord, You know that I love You", or would it be, "I am afraid it is not working out?"

Is Christ in your every thought? Do you always try to please Him? How long is it since you talked to Him or read His love letter to mankind, the Bible? Is your love for Christ still a secret?

If it is not working out, turn to the "Problem pages", not in a woman's magazine, for in every problem we should turn to the E ble. "There is one thing wrong, you don't love Me as at first. Think about those times of your first love (how different now) and turn back to Me (Christ) again." Maybe this is why things are not working out: your love for Christ has gone.

Why not fall in love with Jesus again and recapture the glow of the day you first met Him?

Do you really love Me?

"Lord, You know my heart!"

were over, springtime had come and harvest was the result.

Only heaven seemed to have eyes to see this valued soldier of the cross as she worked and waited, but the Belgian Government had eyes, too. What a surprise was hers when she had word from Brussels that she was to get the highest honour that Belgium can confer upon a civilian.

A few more years may pass before this servant of Christ will stand before her Lord and Saviour and then she will receive the greatest honour of all.

It may be winter for you and me, but if winter comes, spring cannot be far behind!

The Family Altar

Scripture Union Portions — Notes by R.A. Gull

Monday, February 12th — 2 Samuel 21:1–14

"There was famine in the days of David . . . and David enquired of the Lord " (v.1).

THERE is an answer to famine today, particularly that of the spiritual variety. It lies in the surrender of every vestige of staining influence.

David refused to give vent to personal animosity against the house of Saul in the cloak of a God-commanded purge. First he spared Mephibosheth, then, prompted by Rizpah's pathetic action, he accorded the remains of Saul the respect of Israel.

"After that God heard and answered when His people prayed for the land" (v.14, Amplified Bible).

Tuesday, February 13th — 2 Samuel 22:1–16

"He . . . came down" (v.10).

ON an ever-mounting scale of glory, David describes His Lord as a foundation and fortress, his deliverer and Saviour, his castle-keep and refuge. In a dramatic minor key he personifies the wrath of God in shaking heavens and trembling earth, in smoking nostrils, flaming lips, in fire and darkness, cloud and winds.

But sweetness is there too! In clear notes of praise the words ring out.

We stand in awe at the might of the Lord, but we rise in praise for His mercy. He surely is a God who comes down!

Wednesday, February 14th — 2 Samuel 22:17–31

"He delighted in me" (v.20).

LIKE the sweet, sure notes of plucked harp strings, David's words echo through the centuries.

"The Lord took me," he sings, "He drew me and delivered me;stayed me and strengthened me;lightened me, lifted me and loosed me; and finally rewarded me". Note his continual use of the personal pronoun.

But sweetest by far are his words, "He delighted in me!" (v.20).

You do so much for my delight Lord - do I delight you?

Thursday, February 15th — 2 Samuel 22:32–51

"Thy gentleness hath made me great" (v.36).

THE Lord's gentleness, humility, condescension and patience with mankind make Him unique. "Who is like unto the Lord . . . who humbleth himself to behold the things that are . . . in the earth?" (Psalm 113: 6). David rejoiced in the firm, nursing touch of the hands of God.

So with Jesus Christ, we read that "He humbled Himself" that we might be called the sons of God. By His gentle meekness, we are elevated to the inheritance of sonship.

May the Lord teach us to be humble, that we may introduce men to greatness.

Friday, February 16th — 2 Samuel 23:1–7

"The last words of David" (v.1.)

IS this the mature wisdom of the proud warrior king, the slayer of giants, brilliant guerilla strategist, the super politician?

No, indeed, David classifies himself so differently. "Son of Jesse", he calls himself, an obscure shepherd from Bethlehem, the man whom God anointed and raised from nothingness, the harpist from the mountains of Israel.

His claim to fame lay in that the Spirit of the Lord spoke through him, that God's word was on his tongue.

Lord, I, too, cherish that position; all else is secondary. Grant me your anointing today!

Saturday, February 17th — 2 Samuel 23:8–23

"The men of Israel were gone away" (v.9); "and the people fled from the Philistines." (v.11).

THESE were great men, who fought when others fled, who trusted when others trembled. Theirs was a lonely glory, for they stood alone. Alone? – no, for then is it written, "The Lord wrought a great victory" (vv.10,12).

May we learn the lesson of true greatness and real usefulness. God grant that our hands might cleave to the sword of His Spirit, that our weakness may be surrendered to His hand of power.

Sunday, February 18th — 2 Samuel 24:1–14

"That I may know the number of the people " (v.2).

"HEAD-HUNTERS" are not strangers to God!

David, just a little proud of himself perhaps, falls into the statistics trap and orders a census of his giant domains.

Israel is no longer an insignificant, second-rate power, for her borders now extend in every direction, and her glory is recognised at last.

It is not in numbers that we should pride ourselves, not in might that we should boast. Rather let our boast be Thee,Lord, our trust be in Thy Spirit.

The good Samaritan

by Hugh Sawyer

JESUS once told an intensely human story of loving kindness which is commonly accepted as a parable; but Jesus did not say that it was.

He would not portray such an incident without complete justification, especially when speaking of a priest who represented Jewish orthodoxy, and a Levite, representing the Mosaic Law, who behaved so callously.

His actual description expresses the account of a real experience, factual even to its topography. "A certain man," said Jesus, "went down from Jerusalem to Jericho." Jerusalem is built upon a mountain and the road down to Jericho in the Jordan valley drops steeply more than 3,000 feet in less than fifteen miles. He fell among thieves, who stripped him of his raiment, wounded him and departed, leaving him half dead.

Ancient Jericho, notorious for its sin and wickedness, was the habitation of every brand of criminal, the centre of vice and unsavoury haunts. The road down to the city was wild, lonely, rock-strewn, winding through many gorges and infested by roving bands of robbers who stalked their unsuspecting victims as they passed along the eerie road.

Presumably this man, friendly and neighbourly, had left the comforts of his little home in Jerusalem to indulge in a night out in the ill-famed city of Jericho. Perchance the road was familiar to him and he cared naught for the perils of the way. He was on that downpath similar to the Scriptural, "broad way which leadeth to destruction".

Turning his back upon Jerusalem, the City of God, he wilfully turned his face towards Jericho, the City of the Curse. Lost in contemplation of the pleasures before him, he was completely unaware of the dangers surrounding him. Suddenly, without warning, the murderous marauders sprang upon him and, with the experience of long practice, dragged him down, slashed him with their long knives, snatched his money-bag from the folds of his outer garment, ripped the clothing from his lacerated body and vanished as quickly as they came, leaving him lying, half dead.

"Then" continued Jesus, "there came down that way, by chance, a certain priest, and when he saw him, he passed by on the other side." That priest was also going the wrong way, on the downward road. He came by chance, which means that he was at a loose end, having no set purpose in mind, surely most unbecoming in a man of God whose life was dedicated to Divine service.

Scared, he didn't even stop. He couldn't get away fast enough, muttering to himself, "He looks already dead, there is nothing that I can do." He was soon gone. The cold formality of religion in this man was of no avail.

Next to appear was a Levite, representing the law. Seeing that religion had failed, would the law come up with something practical? The dying man was not in need of legal advice, but he was in desperate need of first aid. He got neither, because the Levite only looked at him and hurried on.

Help was forthcoming however. "A certain Samaritan as he journeyed, came where he was, and when he saw him, he had compassion upon him." Of a mongrel race, half Jewish and half Gentile, a Samaritan, good or otherwise, was in the eyes of all Jews a despicable character. Well aware of this, the Samaritan had compassion upon one who he knew detested him! It could be assumed that he was a medical man, because he was equipped with a first aid kit, bandages, wine and oil, all medical necessities of the day. With professional skill, he dressed the man's wounds and, carefully lifting him upon his ass, he made for the nearest inn. The next morning, after redressing the man's wounds, he gave the inn-keeper two silver pennies, saying, "Take care of him, and whatsoever thou spendest more, when I come again, I will repay thee."

In this good man we see a definite type of Christ Jesus, who was once accused by His own countrymen of being a Samaritan. Did He not first come seeking us? Where did He find us? Probably on the worldly, downward road. Were not our souls lacerated by sin? Did He not by His own sacrifice snatch us from a lost eternity? Does He not by the revelation of this story bid all Christians, "Go ye, and do likewise!"?

WE are well acquainted with that beautiful text in 2 Corinthians 5:14, "Therefore if any man be in Christ he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new." It is the experience of very many of us. We rejoice in the new birth and in all that this means and brings. As someone said about the Ephesian Christians, their address seemed to be Ephesus, but they really lived in Christ. I recall a preacher who was so taken up with the words, "In Christ", that he preached on every reference in the New Testament containing these words! I will forbear to comment on the length of the address (being known to go on rather myself!), but this serves to underline the basic position in our faith occupied by that m ing comment, "In Christ". It is both – I in Him, He in me. Hallelujah!

We should not stop here, though. Read on in the chapter. We arrive at the almost daunting commission that Christians are ambassadors for Christ and that they have a God-given ministry of reconciliation. "We pray you in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled to God" is the breath-taking comment, enlightened and enlarged upon by the words of the next verse: "For He hath made Him to be sin for us, who knew no sin; that we might be made the righteousness of God in Him."

O it is marvellous!
It is marvellous and wonderful!
What Jesus hath done for this soul of mine
The half has never been told!

Yes, indeed, but how challenging and yet glorious to be one of the ambassadors of Christ! A diplomatist taking up his post in a far-off country as the representative of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II has not one whit of a greater calling, in fact, in important respects, his is the lesser calling by far.

Go back in the chapter, however, and you come across a clause which we almost overtake without noticing: "And all things are of God". There's a statement for you! "All things are of God?" – those seeming tragedies, those disappointments, those times when others stepped in before we could, all those grey days when life seemed dull – are these included?

This is surely what the verse says, though this does not ignore or contravene our responsibility, for which we must give account.

What a superb place to be in, however, when we really believe it and apply it .... "All things are of God".

RUGBY Pastor: D.C. Lewis

ON a Friday evening just before Christmas our young people saw the results of a year's work. Both young and old had been busy making, baking, knitting and crocheting. About ten large tables were full of items in the packed local hall. About eighty people supported us. A film was shown to present our Saviour. Carols in traditional Indian style were sung by our Pastor and his wife and friends. The proceeds and gifts were sent to the Elim Missionary Society for their work in India.

BALLYMENA Pastor: A.D. Sandford

SEEING men and women following their Lord through the waters of baptism always thrills one's heart. On a recent occasion – the fourth such service inside the year – some thirty-five men and women took this step. These candidates were drawn from Maghera, Antrim and Ballymena. The privilege of baptising them was shared between Pastor G.A. Hawes, who also preached, and Pastor Sandford.

The testimony of Mr. Sammy Evans, whose conversion amazed the people of Maghera, thrilled the congregation. To see his wife and son also being baptised brought much joy.

It is wonderful to know that, in spite of Ireland's troubles, there is a deepening hunger in the Province for God and His Word. Thank God for faithful men and women who stand by the work of God. It does your heart good to be among them and to know that all is not bad in Northern Ireland. The prayers of God's people are deeply appreciated.

The recent visit of our President, Pastor T.W. Walker, and his wife was greatly appreciated and their ministry brought much blessing to the people.

Pastor G.A. Hawes baptises one of the candidates at Ballymena.

BRAINTREE Pastor: A.P. Atkinson

WE praise God for His blessing on our children's work during the past few weeks. The girls and boys took the major part in our carol service when the Christmas story was portrayed by a puppet show enacted by the children who had also made the puppets. Many parents were there and we all enjoyed a time of fellowship together after the service over cups of tea and mince-pies.

On January 7th we commenced a branch children's work on a housing estate. On the first Sunday sixty-nine children came and now we average eighty each week. Our faith has been strengthened to see the Lord's blessing on this new venture from the very beginning. Our Pastor appealed for more workers to cope with so many girls and boys and the response has been wonderful. The numbers have risen from four to twelve, praise His name.

IT was a privilege and a joy to have Pastor Smith with us for six days and to enjoy his ministry.

Despite attendances being rather low, there was a good atmosphere in the meetings, and we believe that those who attended received much blessing. Friends from Waltham Abbey and Hertford joined us on different nights.

We express our grateful thanks to Pastor Smith, who, despite his age, is still able to travel and minister the Word faithfully.

At the Sunday school prize-giving it was a joy to see so many parents present, the church being practically full. Pastor B.C. Richardson was the speaker and his simple story illustrated by some well-drawn sketches was appropriate. We pray that the seed sown may bring forth fruit.

German professor slates the structure of the WCC Bangkok Conference

PROFESSOR Peter Beyerhaus, an international authority on mission, has strongly criticised the World Council of Churches' conference on "Salvation Today" held recently in Bangkok.

Speaking as a delegate, Professor Beyerhaus says that he feels that the conference, called by the WCC's Commission on World Mission and Evangelism, was structured to fulfil the aims of the World Council in achieving a new world community of all races, classes and creeds, at the expense of the traditional understanding of the mission of the Church to the non-Christian world and of the uniqueness of salvation through the atoning death of Christ.

Writing for the German Evangelical Alliance weekly news service, IDEA, Professor Beyerhaus speaks of the value of meeting in Bangkok with Christians from many parts of the world and many persuasions, but, he says, "My impression was that participants were being involved in a well-planned group dynamic test instead of being able to work in a responsible manner to find a biblical understanding of mission in the seventies". He feels that there was insufficient time to shape the conference reports in their final form. No action was taken on his request for the WCC to call an international gathering of ecumenical and evangelical theologians to clarify the basic crisis of mission referred to in both the Wheaton Declaration of 1966 and the Frankfurt Declaration of 1970.

In the light of his experience at Bangkok Professor Beyerhaus believes that the International Congress on World Evangelization to be held at Lausanne in July 1974 will have an added importance.

United Crusade in Rugby

CHURCH of England, Baptist, Methodist, Congregationalist, Presbyterian, Elim and Salvation Army ministers and leaders are standing shoulder to shoulder in a city-wide crusade. United prayer meetings are to be held at St. Peter's, Bilton Methodist, Rugby Elim, St. Matthew's, Congregational, Presbyterian and Hillmorton Mission. Headmasters, headmistresses, and members of school staff from all the Rugby High Schools have extended invitations to crusade teams to take School assemblies, R.I. lessons and Christian Union Meetings. The Bishop of Coventry and team member have been invited to tour the G.E.C. works for meetings in the Canteen.

The crusade is planned for March 31st – April 8th in the churches and for June 27th – July 8th outside.

The Reproduction of Music

IT has been felt advisable to draw attention to the fact that it is both illegal and unethical to reproduce music and other printed material by any means whatever, whether by photographic or mechanical processes, duplication or by handwriting. The copyright laws of today are very complicated and it should be noted that there is a test case now going through the Courts on the question of reproducing copyright music by way of photographic processes.

Ministers, choir-masters and others will be well advised to take very careful note of this matter.

David G. Hathaway

WE know that readers have been continuing much in prayer for Mr. Hathaway during the last few months and we are pleased to report that God has been graciously undertaking in many ways. Mr. Hathaway has been moved from the prison in Pilsen where conditions were extremely trying and where guards, presumably military guards, were in charge. He has now been moved to a prison in Prague where conditions are much better and where civilian warders are in charge. His brother Ken went to see him in the early part of January and returned with a better report of his health and also of his living conditions.

As we continue in prayer we believe that the present tentative prospects for an early release may become firm and that David will not have to complete his full sentence.

Let us continue much in prayer for David in his incarceration that he may be used of God where he is as a mighty witness.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Mr. Walker,

DUE to the recent discussions on lowering the drinking age limit, we are well on the way to more alcoholism, vandalism, road accidents and illegitimate births.

We wish to suggest that each member and associate member of each church congregation be asked from the Sunday pulpit, to write a brief letter to his or her M.P. stating objection to any widening of the drinking laws and asking why such action is contemplated.

Yours faithfully,

B. STREET and G. PARSONS

Missionary Biography

Peter and Sandra McCann with baby Philip

Peter McCann B.Sc. (Honours)

Inyanga North, Rhodesia

BORN in Oldham on April 13th, 1946, I lived for twenty-one years in Royton, about two miles from Oldham. From the age of four, I attended Heyside Congregational Church, being a member of the Boys' Brigade until I was eighteen. Although I had no real appreciation of the gospel at this time, I did at times lead the B.B. Bible Class and occasionally spoke at a junior church service. During this time I attended Chadderton Grammar School, from which, in 1963, I went to Salford University, where I finally obtained my degree in 1967.

This period of my life was marked by many inconsistencies. On the one hand I was a church member with some experience of preaching and a gnawing anxiety about my personal standing before God, for I felt that there was some truth about Christianity that I had not discovered. On the other, I was putting on a gay front. In 1961 I took up playing the bass guitar in a beat group. Inevitably this meant a stifling of conscience and a lapse in my school work. Looking back, I can say that it was a token of the grace of God to an unregenerate sinner that my school and university work was unaffected. I began to lose interest in the church and, although I never altogether stopped attending, my church life was decidedly second-best. With a nightly round of drinking and playing in nightclubs, I was drifting badly.

It was my university course that first turned my steps. God uses strange instruments to achieve His purposes! Faced in 1965 with a choice of becoming a professional guitarist and abandoning my studies, or continuing my studies for a much more stable career, I chose the latter. I resolved to suspend my group activities at least until after my examinations. Events dictated that I never returned.

In June of that year, free from the group, I was invited by my cousin to hear his gospel group at Huddersfield Elim Pentecostal Church. One of God's "coincidences" is that, years before, this same cousin, then a non-Christian, introduced me to the guitar which was to play such a part in my life. This sparked off an interest in this church, which seemed to possess what I had been looking for. Gradually, the old life began to lose its appeal. One night, I suddenly put down a drink and resolved to touch no more and, a few weeks later, I severed my nightclub connections.

I was still not saved; God's work in my life was yet incomplete. In September 1965, Pastor E.J. Thomas re-visited our Huddersfield Church for a convention and there began for me a time of much heart-searching. I was resisting, but I knew in my heart that I could not resist for long. Finally, at the end of the month, two weeks after the convention, I repented.

Now my guitar was used again, but this time in the service of God. The next few years were to prove a crucial period of my life. A girl to whom I was attracted in the Huddersfield Church became my wife on September 30th, 1967, in which year I began working at a Huddersfield chemical firm. I was baptized in water in Halifax in March, 1968, and almost immediately there came a time of testing as I began to have an unhappy time at my place of work. With sore hands as a result of the chemicals I was using, my work suffered, and I was forced to leave in August, 1968. God led me into teaching at Greenhead Girls' High School in Huddersfield, starting in September, 1968. Things now seemed secure. When my son, Paul, was born on 19th September, I was settled and fairly happy, but God's plan was still not complete. Inexperienced as I was in teaching, I found the task difficult and, with my first one-year contract due to end in August 1969, I was puzzled as to why God had led me to teach. God alone knew how useful that one year's experience would be in gaining my acceptance as a missionary-teacher in Rhodesia.

In May, 1969, my wife Sandra returned from the Elim Conference full of Inyanga North Emmanuel Secondary School. "Not for me", I thought, but God had other ideas. Catherine Picken's appeal for graduate teachers was repeated in THE ELIM EVANGEL. Now I began to sit up. Her text was Exodus 4:2: "What is that in thine hand?". Idly I looked at this passage in the Scriptures. "But Lord, I'm no preacher!" I thought. Yes, but wasn't that what Moses tried to say? Still doubtful, I put down the Bible, only on an impulse to raise it again and immediately find myself reading Joshua 1:5: "As I was with Moses, so I shall be with you". When God calls, He allows no excuses!

From then on, my call was certain. A term in Elim Bible College preceded my journey to Rhodesia on January 15th 1970, and the beginning of an exciting time of service for a wonderful God.

Book Reviews

9 Magic Picture Books, by Marie Hibma Frost, illustrated by Mina McLean. Published by Scripture Union, price 10p each, postage and packing 3p each extra.

THIS is a very well presented, colourful series of small books. Little children will enjoy the simple stories. There are puzzles and "number to number" drawings which are always popular with this young age group.

The series covers some of the favourite Old Testament stories, the Christmas story, the parables and the teachings of Jesus.

The books should prove to be helpful and instructive.

A.B. TEE

The Shepherd Psalm by F.B. Meyer. Published by Lakeland Paperbacks, price 35p, postage and packing 4p extra.

THE author deals with each verse of Psalm 23 in a separate chapter of his book in a most refreshing, instructive and challenging way. The Psalm is spoken of as a creed that even a child could learn and as a minstrel because it is sung so often. It is compared to the Holy of Holies of old. Its power lies in its dwelling so little on man and so much on God; it tells us what He is doing. To the sick, sad, despondent, suffering and bewildered this book will bring comfort and assurance. There are good chapters on walking through the valley of the shadow of death, on the importance of spiritual rest, and on the will of God.

The Elim Pentecostal Church, Hayes

The second in an occasional series researched by Philip G. Parsons

THE Hayes Church was founded following a tent crusade conducted by Pastors R.B. Chapman and Ken Matthew in 1939. After the crusade, services were held in a hired hall, Albert Hall, Albert Road, Hayes. This building was used also as a dance hall on weekdays. When Pastor Ian R. Moore (now at Clapham) came in 1940, he found the signs outside: "Elim Church"; "Dancing every Saturday"!

Prayer meetings were held in members' houses, and many wonderful times were had, with people being healed. Throughout the war years, between sixty-five and seventy met regularly on Sundays and about twenty-five during the week. Not even the air raids could dampen the zeal of the Christians to meet together in the presence of the Lord. Later, the Albert Hall was bought by the Spiritualists, which meant that our Church had to meet in hired halls wherever they could be found.

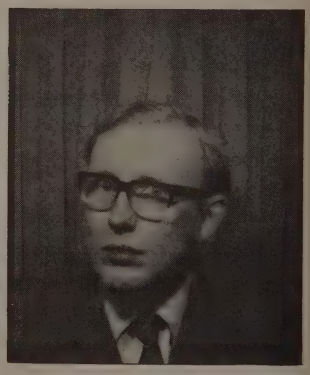
God was then, as now, the great Provider. He wonderfully enabled the Church to purchase a plot of land in Keith Road on which a new building was erected. The builder's name was Mr. Pharaoh, an unfortunate choice perhaps! Unlike his predecessor, his building standards were rather shaky, resulting in much heartache, from that time right up to the present day!

Pastor A. Lambie opened the church in 1951. The pulpit was made by the members of the congregation, and each member bought one chair which then cost 23/- (£1.15) each. Pastor D. Beresford came to Hayes in 1968. By this time, the Church had fallen in number due to many folk moving away, the building was in serious condition and it needed a great deal of work to save it. A tremendous effort was made by the small congregation and, such was the enthusiasm with which the task was taken up, that when I arrived at Hayes earlier this year, a cavity wall had been built to defeat the rising damp, a false ceiling had been put in, and fluorescent lighting installed.

There is still a considerable amount of work to be done mainly in the back rooms and on the outside of the building.

Recently Mr. Chapman returned to the scene of his crusade to spend a day at the church. In the evening he reminisced about some of the early days in the tent and then he preached the gospel.

The numbers have increased as some folk have moved into the district. We now have a number of young families in the church. It is lovely to see complete families coming to the House of God!



The hand of the Lord has definitely been upon the work here at Hayes over the years. Now we are seeking His blessing in the days that lie ahead. Please remember to pray for us.

Open Wide

by John Ward

Pastor of our Hayes Church

HAVE you seen a nest of new-born baby birds? This is a common sight in the countryside: little beaks pointing up, mouths open wide, waiting for the mother bird to arrive with a nice worm!

Just such a picture can be found in Psalm 81:10 to illustrate our dependence on God: "Open your mouth wide and I will fill it" says the Lord.

The baby bird sitting in the nest, a picture of helplessness, reminds me of Moses, prostrate before the burning bush, sensing the greatness of his task – to return to Egypt and bring out the Children of Israel. He gasps, "Who am I?" The answer of the Lord was, "Certainly I will be with thee." That makes all the difference! It was too much for Moses, but not for Moses with God with him.

It was a lesson that Paul had to learn. The Lord told him, "My strength is made perfect in weakness". With joy he proclaimed, "I delight to boast of the weaknesses that humiliate me, so that the strength of Christ may enshrine itself in me." When we feel at our weakest, then we may truly rejoice, for then the power of Christ can rest upon us and enable us.

The baby bird invariably has its mouth wide open in expectancy. "He that cometh to God must believe that He is, and that He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him." It is no use acknowledging my weakness, unless I expect with confidence that the Lord, who is our strength, will do something on my behalf.

"Open your mouth wide and I will fill it" is the word of the Lord. I came to the Lord, asking for forgiveness of sins. He said, "I will give you the very righteousness of God." I came asking for peace. He said, "The peace of God which passeth all understanding shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus."

No wonder Isaiah, speaking of the coming of Christ, said, "His name shall be called Wonderful". I find Him to be more than I ever expected, greater than I thought.

WE ought to worship Him for all that He is and stand in awe of His greatness.

Two Birthdays

John 3:3

Words and drawing by Sheila Price

"HAVE a nice time at Mary's party! I'll meet you at six o'clock," Carol's mother called.

"Thankyou, mummy," said Carol, as she set off for her friend's house.

Carol knocked on the door of number seven.

"I'm so glad you could come," said Mary, "and thank you for sending me such a nice card."

Mary and her friends sat down at the table to enjoy the delicious tea which Mary's mother had prepared. When they had eaten, the children joined in a game of hide-and-seek in the garden until it was time for them to leave. While they were playing, Mary's mother cut the birthday cake and wrapped each slice in tissue paper. As her friends were leaving, Mary handed each one a slice of cake to take home.

"This has been a wonderful birthday," said Mary, "I have enjoyed myself so much! What a pity that birthdays come only once a year! Wouldn't it be nice to have two birthdays?"

"I have two birthdays," said Carol.

"Don't be silly!" said Mary. "You had a birthday a couple of weeks ago. You won't have another until next year."

"Oh, but I will," said Mary. "I have a birthday next week."

"That's impossible!" said Mary.

"No, it isn't," Carol said. "You see, next Sunday will be exactly one whole year since I gave my heart to the Lord Jesus. On that day I was born again. It was the start of a new, wonderful life for me, for since then I have lived for Jesus. This birthday is well worth celebrating, Mary. You can have two birthdays, just like me. Why not come along to my Sunday school tomorrow and learn how you, too, can be born again?"

"I would like to very much," said Mary.

"Good," said Carol. "I will call for you at quarter past two. Goodbye for now. Thank you so much for the cake."

"Cheerio," said Mary. "Don't forget to call for me!"

"I won't," said Carol.

Have you got two birthdays?

Success - God's Will for You!

Ron Hicklin writes: "I was born in Manchester on April 9th, 1921 and born a second time in Darlington on November 11th, 1934 at half past seven that Sunday evening, baptised in the Holy Ghost on May 24th, 1939 when at last I learned to receive what God had already given.

"I began to learn my 'trade', like so many others, as a Methodist local preacher, was eventually asked to lead a tiny Pentecostal church in Middlesbrough and, after four years, was obliged to quit my post as draughtsman for full-time pastoral work.

"After many happy years in Middlesbrough, Basingstoke (Hants.) and Brownhills (Staffs), the call to conduct evangelistic crusades proved overwhelming and for seven years I have devoted much, and latterly all, of my time to such work. I have no greater ambition than to continue."

by Ron Hicklin

ANDREW Bonar, the biographer of Robert Murray McCheyne, claims that in a brief life of twenty-nine years, the young preacher "stamped an indelible impress on Scotland" and then makes the challenging comment: "In the case of a faithful ministry, success is the rule, want of it the exception".

Men covet success. In any realm, achievement adds spice to life. The deep-seated urge to create needs to be gratified. Stephenson may say "to travel hopefully is better than to arrive", but for most of us only the destination justifies the journey. Success is our goal.

The be all of Christian service is the salvation of souls; we cannot, dare not, thankfully need not, content ourselves with less. In this, above all else while enjoying the journey, we must get there. We must count success as vital.

The worn out excuse must be dealt with, that, in the parable of the talents, the reward went to the "good and faithful servant". This overlooks his success in doubling his original investment. He turned five talents into ten. The great virtue of faithfulness was a means to an end, not the end itself.

Calling, opportunity and ability vary. Temporary set-backs test us all. Personal holiness is the priority of life. Sift real success from the ephemeral, the wheat from the stubble, as God eventually will, then, all qualifications accepted, appreciate both your right to success and your obligation to produce it. Had others not done so the Church would long since have dwindled into non-existence.

The Proof of the Possibility

What does the Bible say?

The Old Testament promise, unequivocal, comprehensive and oft-repeated, is "whatsoever he doeth shall prosper".

The New Testament both states and appears to assume that faithful service will become successful service and finds fullest expression in the statement of Christ that He Himself chooses men for the explicit purpose of bearing permanent fruit. Bible history celebrates continual success, the "Acts of God through man". Language is stretched, superlatives invented, to describe the power at our disposal. From "Whatsoever you shall ask" to "above all that you can ask", incentive teems. The very command to "disciple all nations" is an implicit promise of success, for whoever yet was allowed to fail in a God-appointed task?

So, take heart! We'll get there!

The Conditions

The half-hearted never succeed at anything. Hudson Taylor, who tackled unimaginable difficulties to found the China Inland Mission and was himself a firm believer that Christian service ought to succeed, said, "The cause of want of success is very often that we are only half saved ourselves. If we are fully saved and confess it, we shall see results."

Grant this pre-condition of complete dedication and the following formulae remain.

Active Faith in the Sovereignty of God

'"Tis not in mortals to command success" says Browning with truth, but a sovereign God can! He holds sway over all. "With God nothing shall be impossible" referred to the hardest-to-be-won of all: the rich. If they can be saved, anyone can.

It follows that faith may be absolute. When Moody said, "I believe that a man who is red hot and full of the Holy Ghost can have conversions anywhere and everywhere" he was logical.

Such steadfast faith is the vital first step to success. Expressed in prayer it both releases and co-operates with God's power. It is ultimately irresistible.

Nearly twenty years have passed since I heard Dr.

Lewi Pethrus, Pastor of the 7,000-member Filadelfia Church in Stockholm, preach on prayer and conclude with a quaint definition of faith. "What is faith?" he said, "Be optimistic! That is faith." A thousand times I have remembered. God can! I am optimistically certain that He will.

Produce a Life that reproduces itself

All life perpetuates itself; it reproduces. Life originates new life: indeed, only life can. Life develops to a pattern. A fruit tree, for example, germinates, grows, blossoms and bears fruit with the seeds of new life inside. The natural laws all have a spiritual application. Christ chose vine and branches to illustrate one point. Let man the branch remain in Christ the Vine, let union with Him be vital, intimate, unsullied, maintain a continual inflow of divine life, and fruitbearing becomes a spiritual norm. So divine life in us can be expected to produce divine life in others, life to produce life. In this sense, our converts will become our "fruit".

How prodigal nature is! It makes superabundant provision for reproduction. Blow a dandelion "clock" and you sow a hundred dandelion seeds. Leave a pair of rats alone and in three years they will have 20 million descendants. (Better not leave them alone!)

Starting-point of soul-winning success for Peter was a haul of fish that sank a boat and, when the Carpenter caught the fish (Peter had failed himself), the fisherman quit the net, followed Christ and learned to catch men. He was to do so superabundantly.

Defeat Discouragement: Work hard

Ask a self-made man the secret of his success. The inevitable answer is: "Hard work!" This is rarely the whole truth but it is always part of it, and a part that we can all copy.

Emerson, the American statesman, philosopher, author and journalist and, incidentally, an artist, had this to say: "There is no way to success in art, but to take off your coat, grind paint and work like a digger on the railroad all day and every day."

Quite so, but a danger lies here, for hard work saps energy. Total commitment to a cause can ravage the emotions. The tired worker is wide open to the great enemy, the demon discouragement. Study closely the thrice-repeated command to Joshua at the beginning of his work, "Be strong and of a good courage." Forewarned is forearmed. Skirt the Slough of Despond, persist in your endeavour and wait confidently for results.

When Christmas Evans, the beloved evangelist of the Welsh valleys, lay dying, he drew himself on to his elbow and, with his last breath, as if still travelling, cried, "Drive on! Drive on!"

Drive on, Christian friend, drive on! You'll surely get there!

Thoughts on the Book of Genesis

13. The Promise renewed (Genesis 13:14–17)

by F. Lavender

Pastor of our Croydon Church

FOLLOWING an unhappy interlude in Egypt, Abram returned to the land of Canaan. Very soon, however, there was trouble between the herdsmen of Abram and Lot over grazing rights, the area being unable to support their growing flocks and herds. The lesson of Egypt seemed to have made Abram sensitive regarding the glory of the Lord and, fearing that a quarrel would dishonour the Lord before the heathen, Abram gave up his rights and allowed Lot to take the choicest pasture. Because Abram honoured the Lord, the Lord honoured him and promised Abram that his seed would inherit the whole land. The Lord told him to walk up and down the land. Everywhere he went would be his; even the land given up to Lot would be Abram's.

We must all be conscious that, at times, we have failed the Lord, yet, if we will, we can learn a vital lesson even from our failure, namely, that the glory of God is more important than our own apparent well-being. We should be very sensitive to the honour of our Lord, even if this means making decisions which seem to hurt ourselves. Even if the Bible gave no promise of blessing, we ought still to count it our greatest joy to honour the Lord and say: "We are unprofitable servants, we have only done our duty" (Luke 17:10). The Bible is emphatic, however, that those who humble themselves before the Lord shall be exalted by Him (1 Peter 5:6) and that those who honour Him shall be honoured (1 Samuel 2:30).

Anne Stephenson leads the singing of: "I'm too young to ride in the cavalry."

CHRISTMAS means the same to every Christian, wherever in the world he lives, but, though its message is the same, the temperature certainly isn't! In South Africa, with the temperature easily up to the 100 degrees Fahrenheit mark, Christmas is certainly celebrated in a different style.

Singing in the open air at the farm

At Anne Stephenson's invitation, I went to one of her children's meetings on a farm about sixteen miles from Nelspruit. After a lengthy wait in the hot farmhouse, the excited children arrived, their arrival being announced while they were some distance away, for their excitement and enthusiasm bubbled over.

The afternoon started with a short service during which everyone participated (see my photo of Anne leading the chorus: "I'm too young to ride in the cavalry"). Then came the party, games and presents. What a wonderful time it was for those children and how they appreciated everything!

May these children not only know the joys and pleasures of Christmas, but also Him Who was born to be Saviour of the world.

The Word in Action

A report by F.H. Coleman

"THE Bible is bouncing back again", said Rev. Tom Houston at the Press Preview of the "Bible in Action Fortnight" organised by the British and Foreign Bible Society.

Today more copies of the Scriptures are being sold than ever before. As a result of this, the two main centres for producing the Scriptures, London and New York, are not able to cope with the demand, so a new printing plant has been opened in Dusseldorf in Germany.

For years the emphasis of the Society has been on the word "Foreign", but now it is on "British". The Society feels it is faced with a challenge and so after much thought as well as discussion, they launched a "Bible Action Fortnight" in order to get people reading their Bibles. Asked why such a campaign as this was needed now, Tom Houston, Director of Communication for the Society, said that he believed that we are reaching an end of an era of low expectation as far as the Bible is concerned. "People are disillusioned with the institutional church and with society," he said, "and increasingly they are discovering that guidance and help are to be found in direct contact with the Jesus of the Bible." An almost identical situation is to be found overseas. Colonialism is past and new countries are seeking their national identities with integrity and vigour. Here, too, people are open to Jesus and the Bible.

Why is it essential to produce and distribute copies of God's Word to all mankind? Because while others work to keep men alive, we must give them something to live for. So what is being done in Britain? The answer is much. Let me give you two examples. Nine thousand churches in the North of England from Nottingham in the south to Berwick in the North and from Chester to Carlisle, aim to place half a million copies of the Gospel of Mark in as many homes during Lent in 1973. A project like this cannot be tackled by one church or even by one denomination, but, happily, many denominations are involved in this project. Even the Roman Catholic archbishop of Leeds is giving great support in order that all the Catholic families in his diocese have a copy of Mark's Gospel for themselves to read.

A second example is the young people of the London Borough of Merton, who have raised money one way and another, and provided the Bible Society with ten cassette tapes containing Mark's Gospel and playback machines for the blind and handicapped. It is good to know of the desire of young people to spread God's Word, because eighty per cent of the supporters of the Bible Society are over the age of forty-five years.

In a special programme on the Bible, the B.B.C. stated that this country earns 1½ million pounds annually from the sale of Bibles overseas. It is staggering to realise that the Bible Society produces 167 million units of Scripture each year and expects by 1980 that the number will have risen to 500 million. A unit can be a whole Bible, a new Testament, a Gospel or a chapter. It could also be the Book of Psalms. Each is called a unit.

Let me end this report by giving you a story from Denmark which is well known for the sale of pornography. "Paperback Gospels prevail over pornography." said a newspaper. The Bible Society in Denmark has been offering attractive editions of the Gospels to secular book stalls in Copenhagen. Can a bookstall selling magazines and papers of every description also find customers for the Gospels? The answer, joyfully, is yes. In the central railway station, the bookstall proprietor readily agreed to sell the Gospel paperback. Pointing to a selection of undesirable publications, she said, "I'd rather have the four Gospels to sell to people."

Yes, the Bible is bouncing back and more people are reading it today than they were yesterday.

The Church DOES care!

LISTENING recently to "Desert Island Discs", I heard the unmitigated rubbish spoken by Johnny Speight, the script writer of the B.B.C. comedy series "Till death us do part". He is the creator of the "Alf Garnett" character and, judging by the dialogue in the interview, his brain child is an extension of himself. I do not propose to comment on all his opinions, just on the one he expressed about the Christian Church. His pronouncement was that the organised Church has done very little to help suffering humanity. Well here goes, Mr. Garnett; I for one do not propose to let such a statement go unchallenged!

From its inception at Pentecost we read in the New Testament of a new law of love and caring and sharing as taught first by the Lord Jesus and later by the Apostles. A good tree brings forth good fruit and so the companies of believers began to show concern for the needs of others. I know that, as the medieval Church began to flourish in our own land, she began a ministry of caring. I have evidence of this each time I board a bus and ride to the city centre here in Salisbury. Near to the gate of the Cathedral Close is the old grey St. Nicholas Hospital built by the Church in the thirteenth century for "receiving and supporting the poore" and dotted over the city are quite a number of almshouses built and endowed by Christians, all this long before "Shelter" was formed to meet today's terrifying needs. The pioneers of child education emanated from the Church and to this day there are a boys' school and two colleges in the shadow of Salisbury Cathedral.

So I could go on. Who founded the first hospitals, orphanages and hostels for the homeless and the vagabonds? – the Church. Who cared for the sick, the widow and the poor, long before you had a welfare state? – the Church. As she grew and extended overseas she built more schools, clinics and hospitals and opened leprosaria and orphanages. Just think of household names such as George Müller, William Quarrier, Charles Spurgeon and Dr. Barnado, all of whom were inspired by God to pray, sacrifice and struggle to care deeply for suffering children. As the population of Britain grew and the Industrial Revolution herded men into grimy towns in over-crowded factories, it was the men who had been set on fire in the Methodist revival who pioneered the first social reforms which led to the founding of trade unions. Lord Shaftesbury, a dedicated Christian, fought to rid children of the horrors of millwork and chimney-sweeping and William Wilberforce blazed a trail to drive slavery from the British Empire. David Livingstone, the great missionary, fought alone to abolish slavery in Central Africa. Elizabeth Fry, who worked so lovingly for prison reform, dedicated her life to God when she was a girl, and kings and queens of many countries acknowledged her worth and sought her advice. Who first put the nursing profession into a place of dignified dedication? Florence Nightingale, another servant of Christ, was the pioneer.

Johnny Speight said that he came from Dockland where the Church had done nothing to help the poor. I only wish that he could have seen the hungry queues waiting to be fed and the needy to be clothed in the days of depression in the 1930s at the mission in London's Dockland where my brother-in-law laboured for Christ. I only wish he could have seen the East End of London before General Booth commenced the work of the Salvation Army. I would invite him to examine this one great Christian organisation alone and then dare to make his derogatory criticism. In one year alone the Salvation Army served 23 million cut-price meals, supplied 11 million hostel beds, found employment for 128,000 men, helped 75,000 men released from prison and cared for 16,000 unmarried mothers, as well as carrying on a host of other social work. I would invite him, too, to examine the great programme of overseas relief being carried on by Christian Aid and TEAR Fund before making such rash statements. Knowing

Witnessing for Christ

by Ken Smith

Pastor of our Erdington, Birmingham, Church

MANY Elim young people will know that I have had the opportunity and privilege of witnessing to people in almost every walk of life.

REMEMBER, above all, the words of the Master, "Witnesses unto Me". We may mention our experiences, our joy, or other aspects of our Christian lives, but our testimony must be full of Jesus Christ. I much prefer Him to be referred to as the LORD JESUS CHRIST. I do not really feel happy about the undue "Jesus" emphasis by young people. Make sure that you present the whole Person in your witness.

No less important is the need for the power of the Holy Spirit, for witnessing is the paramount purpose of the Spirit's infilling. You really need His power if you are to witness effectively. So often one finds that people who can talk at length on gardening, motor-bikes, or any other field of human activity, are tongue-tied when it comes to speaking of the Saviour whom they love. No-one can untie silent lips and tongues like the Holy Spirit. He who can use your tongue to glorify God in an unknown tongue can use you to witness effectively.

Other factors are also necessary. We are told by some that just to receive the fulness of the Spirit is enough. I have found time and time again that we need the Holy Spirit to guide us in a practical manner. Because two young men thought that receiving the Holy Spirit was all that they needed, they went out one night, after eleven, knocked a lady up, and asked her whether she loved Jesus. "If not, you're going to Hell" was their warning. I was interviewing in that district and had an awful job trying to show the people the Gospel, for I had to spend a considerable time combating their unfortunate methods. For one who would respond through their approach I guess that a thousand would be turned away from Christ.

Appearance is vital. You represent the Saviour when you speak of Him. Your dress can have a direct bearing on people's response. You want people to remember the Lord of whom you witness and not your sartorial presentation!

I am an advocate of "natural witnessing", i.e. using normal contacts for this purpose. Most people who see someone knock at their door, armed with a Bible and a brief-case, and with a colleague for moral support, react by shutting the door fast! My experiences in the interviewing field have given me exceptional opportunities, for which I am grateful, but do you never meet anyone? Look for the point of contact and start from there. Only rarely will we find someone reading Isaiah 53 and wanting to know its meaning, like Philip in the Book of Acts, yet if we are in touch with Him, similar things will happen more often than we may think. I still prefer Seven reasons why you need Christ for witnessing, though I have used others. A point of contact means using some word or situation relevant to your contact, as when I was told by a millionaire of the investments he had. Quietly, after the interview had ended, I asked him what use his possessions would be five minutes after his death and then I told him of the rich fool in the Gospels, not calling him one, of course, but the implication was there. I am sure that, if you keep your eyes open, you will find opportunities, for the Lord will put them in your way.

Be careful that you are not side-tracked. Read the story of the Saviour and the woman at the well, and write down all the points relative to witnessing in this incident. Be diplomatic but determined, tactful but truthful. As a rule, the example of the Saviour in speaking to individuals is good. I am not too happy about having a colleague, notwithstanding the Saviour's commission. There is something effective about meeting someone "eyeball to eyeball", if you see what I mean!

You may win an argument and lose the person. People can detect sincerity. Let your witness ring true every time. Never relate an experience that is not true.

Do not get discouraged if there is no immediate response, for there must be a sowing and a reaping, though it is good to expect that some will respond. Many I have met who seem to be able to get their "victim" on his knees and wring out a "confession", look for only superficial response. So often any enquiry as to what followed is resented. Let the testimony be real and then the response will be real. It is a thousand times harder, as I have found, seeking to witness where someone has "queered the pitch". Even sincerity is no substitute for lack of sense.

May the Lord bless you and make you an effective witness and a winner of others for Him!

The Family Altar

Scripture Union Portions — Notes by R.A. Gull

Monday, February 19th 2 Samuel 24:15–25

"So David bought . . . and built . . . and offered burnt offerings" (vv. 24,25).

"BRING forth therefore fruits worthy of repentance," cried John the Baptist. David anticipated such demands of the Spirit of God by some one thousand years and his actions brought a stay to the plague of punishment. The cost and currency of repentance are self surrender.

We so often raise our altars and our hopes, only to find our bargain-basement, easy-to-give offerings unacceptable to God and totally ineffectual.

May the Lord teach us how to give and what to give.

Tuesday, February 20th 1 Chronicles 21:28–30; 22:1–19

"In my trouble I have prepared . . . gold, and silver . . . and thou mayest ["must" – Amp.Bible] add thereto" (v.14).

THROUGH conquest and victory, David was able to bequeath a gigantic national fortune to Solomon for the express purpose of building a temple for God. On top of this, he later added his own personal wealth (29:3), because he had zealously set his affection on the house of God. To all this he commanded Solomon to add more.

A greater David has bequeathed an even greater "fortune" to the Church, not silver and gold, but a unique, sinless sacrifice. To such a personal gift we are commanded to add our own, that we might glorify God in the temples of our bodies (1 Corinthians 6:19,20).

Wednesday, February 21st 1 Chronicles 28:1–19

"Then David gave to Solomon his son the pattern" (v.11); "The pattern of all that he had by the Spirit" (v.12); "even the weight of the candlesticks" (v.15).

THE smallest vessels were detailed in God's perfect pattern and this blueprint was faithfully passed on to his son by David the king. It had been indelibly carved upon David's understanding by the Spirit of God.

May the Lord's pattern for holy living be so impressed upon our personalities that its details are revealed to those about us.

Thursday, February 22nd 1 Chronicles 28:20,21; 29:1–19

"Who then is willing to consecrate his service this day unto the Lord?" (v.5).

DAVID offered his personal fortune willingly and with affection for God's house. Then the fathers and princes, the captains and rulers offered willingly too. David asked for more than mere gifts for the service of the Lord, however, for he asked for consecrated personal service to God (v.7). No gift can compare with this.

God grant that we, possessing nothing, may yet offer to Him the gift of ourselves in service.

Friday, February 23rd 1 Chronicles 29:10–30

"But who am I? (v.14).

WITH so much talk of offerings, sacrifices and personal cost, it is good for us to remind ourselves that all that we have, we have from God, and that all we give is therefore His own (vv.14,16). The people gave willingly with pure motives of thanksgiving and praise and there was great rejoicing among them all.

Note again David's prayers for Bath-sheba's son to have wisdom, understanding (22:12), purity and obedience to God (29:19). There was no plea for mere material prosperity and riches here. These, David believed, would assuredly follow.

So it is today!

Saturday, February 24th Psalm 90:1–17

"Lord, Thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations" (v.1).

THERE is a sense in which we are building a temple to glorify God, a dwelling-place for His attributes and characteristics. It is ever a miracle of God's condescension.

In today's reading, however, we turn to another aspect, whereby God Himself is revealed as our personal dwelling-place and refuge. This is the greater miracle of correlation.

There are many mansions of mercy to satisfy us (v.14), rooms of revelation to thrill us (v.16) and a picture room of beauty for us to enjoy (v.17) in the person of our God.

Sunday, February 25th Psalm 91:1–16

"He that dwelleth in the secret place of the most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty" (v.1).

THERE is at least one promise in almost every verse of this Psalm, making it a veritable treasure house of promises, but the promises are available only to those who dwell with God (v.1) and who have made Him their habitation (v.9) and their Beloved (v.14).

The Minister and his Work

by A.S.F. Horne

Pastor of our Ipswich Church

WE read, "The Lord hath chosen thee to be a peculiar treasure" and again, "Ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto Me." I have prayed many times, "Oh God, don't let us be more peculiar than we are". When I come to think about it, we are peculiar!

The Hebrew word translated "peculiar" also means "enclosure" and enclosure means separation. God's people are a treasure separated, a special people, a redeemed people, a holy people, a sanctified people, a purchased people, a people of inheritance, not an odd lot, a strangely acting and looking crowd. We have been acquired for a possession. Praise God, we are personal property!

It is true, however, that in our work, we do meet some odd characters. One dear old lady always prayed, "Lord, bless our Pasture" and I added "Amen, and keep him green." How lovely to know that God understands His peculiar people. Whether it be a peculiar situation or a peculiar person, God help us to keep our sense of humour.

Sir Herbert Tree said, "A sense of humour is a test of sanity", and Douglas Jerrod wrote, "Humour is the harmony of the heart."

It is very difficult to keep cheerful in our work for the Lord. We experience either cheerfulness or depression; it is impossible to have both. May we be peculiar in the sense that, while all around us are suffering from depression, we are cheerful in every situation.

Charlotte Bronte wrote, "Happiness is a glory shining far down upon us from Heaven. She is a divine dew which the soul feels dropping upon it from the amaranth bloom and golden fruitage of paradise." Heaven is a happy place and where Jesus is, it is heaven there. He came to give the oil of joy, in order that we might be known as "trees of righteousness, the planting of the Lord."

How can I find this joy that is peculiar to His peculiar people? "Thou wilt shew me the path of life: in Thy presence is fullness of joy; at Thy right hand there are pleasures for evermore" (Psalm 16:11).

The Christian's joy should be great (Zechariah 9:9; Acts 8:8); abundant (2 Corinthians 8:2); exceeding (Psalm 21:16); unspeakable and full of glory (1 Peter 1:8); for evermore (1 Thessalonians 5:16). Praise the Lord! No wonder we are thought of as being peculiar! We are following a happy Saviour: "God hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness above thy fellows." (Acts 1:9).

"Be joyful, for He is the Lord, Mighty and strong to redeem"!

Though darkness surround you by day,
Your sky by the night be o'ercast,
Let nothing your spirit dismay,
But trust 'til the danger is past.

Be glad in the Lord and rejoice, proclaiming in song and in life that we believe in God, even though

Your enemies almost prevail,
God's armies just hid from your sight,
Are more than the foes which assail.

Pope wrote of "the soul's calm sunshine and the heartfelt joy." In the knowledge of victory through our all-powerful Christ we can know these things.

Aiken said, "The sunshine of life is made up of very little beams that are bright all the time."

Even in the darkest day the sun is still shining. We have the knowledge that God is with us and on our side, so all is well. Our God is love and the love of God is higher than height, deeper than depth, wider than width, and longer than length.

We belong to a God of love; we are His. Rejoice in this great fact and then we shall be able to say with W.G. Hathaway:

The drooping spirit lives again,
The fainting heart regains its power,
The sick and lame Thy promise claim
In this Thy great appointed hour.

With what a wealth of faith and hope
Thy word is grasped, the weak made strong,
We stretch our hands to touch Thy robe
And healed and blessed, Thy praise prolong.

of the blasphemous words he has put into the mouth of his character "Alf Garnett", however, I feel that he needs our prayers rather than our anger, for obviously, as Paul said of some in his day, the god of this world has blinded his eyes.

THE ELIM EVANGEL

Vol. LIV No. 8 February 24th, 1973 5p

Antrim, N. Ireland

WILL the Church survive? Will the attendances drop off? For how long are the meetings continuing? These and many other questions came from the lips of the people of Antrim as Elim opened its new centre of witness to the full Gospel last September. With deep gratitude to God we report the continued blessing of God upon the meetings. There have been decisions for Christ, a number have been baptised in water, and twelve friends were received into fellowship as foundation-members.

Meeting in a hired hall on Sundays has its problems, but it is good to see the enthusiasm of the people and their willingness to conquer in the name of the Lord.

The photograph shows the new members after they were welcomed into the fellowship by Pastors J.T. Bradley, our Secretary-General (left), and A.D. Sandford (right).

Editorial

INFLATION is a word freely bandied about these days, especially by politicians and by the news media. The last two years have certainly produced frightening evidences of the effects of this dreaded phenomenon.

Did you see the case reported in a newspaper the other day of a man who sold his house just before prices spiralled, thinking that he had secured a house and a job in another part of the country. When plans fell through some little time later, he wished to return to where he had lived before, a post being available to him, only to find that the price of houses like the one he formerly occupied had doubled and more. He was completely unable to pay the mortgage repayments required for the kind of advance he would have needed and he had to content himself with part of a house that he was allowed to occupy in return for services rendered by his wife to the occupants. The terrifying change took place in a matter of but a few months.

It has to be faced that the costs facing churches have also rocketed. One has only to sit down and write out a few figures as to the prices of many items to see that this is so. The question is whether giving has kept pace.

My recent visit to Ghana showed me how a nation can soon be seriously affected by price rises and unemployment, for the Ghanaian unit of currency has been devalued twice and revalued once in a brief time, resulting in tremendous loss of confidence internally and externally so that imports into the country are at a very high premium, if they are obtainable at all, incidentally making the cost of living for our missionaries very daunting and causing them not to be able to get many goods at all which we would consider indispensable.

It must be plain to us all that no-one else is going to support our work but ourselves. Our contributor Ken Smith has written some trenchant comments on this subject which will appear in our next week's edition. They are straightforward and inescapable.

Giving is an essential part of our worship. This is yet another department wherein, if we save our lives, we lose them. To get we must give, not that we give to get, for this would be a wrong motive, but in giving we can never outdo God who gives and gives and gives again.

Church Reports

SOUTHAMPTON Pastor: W.J. Maybin

AT the induction Service for Pastor Maybin, Pastor J. Osman, the District Superintendent, convened while Pastor G.L.W. Ladlow preached. About 150 friends gathered, including ministers from other churches in the Presbytery.

A brother from the Croydon Church spoke in appreciation of the work done at Croydon by Pastor and Mrs. Maybin for eight and a half years.

Pastor Ladlow brought a challenging message from Philippians, Chapter 1. Pastors Osman and Ladlow then laid hands on Pastor and Mrs. Maybin, committing them to God's love and praying that great blessing would come to the Church.

Mrs. Maybin expressed her joy in coming to Southampton and said that she was looking forward to sharing with us times of great blessing and progress. Our new Pastor expressed his pleasure at being here and assured us all that his great desire was to work for a revival here and to extend God's Kingdom.

The meeting closed on a great note of triumph and praise to God for the consciousness of His presence with us.

Coinciding with their Ruby Wedding and their forty-fifth anniversary in the Ministry, we held a special meeting to give an official farewell to Pastor and Mrs. J.C. Kennedy, who had faithfully ministered here for five years.

After an excellent buffet tea, tastefully prepared by the ladies of the Church, we went into the Church, as the Minor Hall was not large enough to accommodate the 180 friends who attended. The meeting was very ably convened by Pastor J.T. Bradley, our Secretary-General, and consisted of items by soloists and groups interspersed by personal tributes relative to the various departments, all of whom praised and thanked God for the faithfulness of Pastor and Mrs. Kennedy, and for the hard work done by them. Pastor E.R. Corsie spoke as a member of the family and thanked them for the great help he had received from them always.

Pastor J. Osman paid a sincere tribute in a bright and breezy speech and wished them good health and happiness in the days that lie ahead.

Pastor Bradley then traced the career of Pastor Kennedy from January 1928 when he entered the Elim Bible College to the time of his retirement. He also paid tribute to his work on the Missionary Council and the Executive Council for many years.

Pastor J.C. Kennedy then thanked all present for their attendance and for all the kind references to him and to Mrs. Kennedy. He had been very happy with us in Southampton and felt that there had been much spiritual growth in the members. He praised God for all the lovely children who were going on with the Lord and attending the Sunday schools and the Church services. He was not going to be idle and already had some preaching engagements to fulfil.

The Church Treasurer, Mr. David Connell, presented a cheque to Pastor Kennedy thanking him on behalf of all present for his faithful ministry for five years. Mrs.Kennedy was presented with a bouquet of flowers by one of the Sunday school scholars.

Mrs. Kennedy thanked everyone very sincerely for their love and good wishes for the future. She had been very happy here and like Pastor Kennedy would not be idle, but would continue to serve the Lord in any way she could.

Pastor W.J. Maybin also thanked Pastor and Mrs. Kennedy for the hard work they had put in here and he wished them every happiness in the future. So ended a truly memorable evening full of blessing and happy fellowship together.

ILFORD Pastor: J.F. Hardman

OUR annual church fellowship meeting sounded forth a note of praise, when a goodly number gathered to make mention of the Lord's gracious hand on all the activities of the assembly. The leaders of each section gave encouraging reports. The financial statement exceeded that of previous years, for which we gave thanks to God. As a Church we have proved the truth of the words, "Give and it shall be given unto you". The Church Secretary paid tribute to the faithfulness and energy which have marked the services of both our Pastor and his wife.

A special feature was the presentation to Mr. George Pettet of an inscribed Bible and a transistorised mantle clock upon his retirement from the Diaconate and from the office of Head Usher after twenty-two years of faithful service. Members of the Diaconate paid tribute to his untiring practical efforts freely given to the Church. Mrs. Pettet was also presented with a barometer in recognition of her labours throughout many years.

Bi-monthly family gospel services have been commenced, in which Sunday school scholars take part. This has been the means of attracting a number of parents to the services. It has been a source of encouragement that some of the older scholars have given their lives to Christ and we are praying that they will follow on to know the Lord.

JOAN RICHES

CROYDON Pastor: F. Lavender

ON Sunday evening, January 7th, we held our second baptismal service within six weeks. It was a memorable occasion for us and for the five young candidates passing through the waters. How thrilling it was to hear the testimonies of these dedicated young Christians. This was a fitting climax to the ministry of Pastor W.J. Maybin, after eight and a half years at Croydon.

The induction of our new Minister, Pastor F. Lavender, will long be remembered by us. We had been praying much for our new minister that the Lord would put His seal upon his ministry here, and we realised throughout the service that our prayers were being answered. In welcoming Pastor and Mrs. Lavender to the Church, the Secretary said that the church had been experiencing increased blessing over the past few months, particularly in our young people's work. The new Pastor said that it was most encouraging seeing these young people coming into the Church and getting saved and wanting a closer walk with the Lord. He expressed his assurance that the Lord was going to do great things in our midst if only we believed and remained faithful to Him. Among other expressions of welcome to our Pastor was one from Mr. Edges, Secretary of the Croydon and District Evangelical Fellowship. The ministry of Pastor W.M.E. Plowright, who gave the charge to the minister and to the people, was a blessing to us all.

Our desire for Pastor and people is to be workers together in this soul-winning business.

PORTSMOUTH Pastor: A.A. Biddle

THIS report is submitted with deep gratitude to God and to His glory. 1972 has faded into history, but we have been left with precious memories of the expansion of the Elim work here. Under the guidance of a minister sold out for God and lost souls, we have been privileged to know the presence and power of the blessed Holy Spirit. By the anointed ministry of our beloved brother and leader, Pastor A.A. Biddle, our fellowship has experienced times of continual uplift, personal revival and commitment.

So great was the manifestation of the Holy Spirit at a recent gospel service, that a score or more of young people, including students, housewives, fifth and sixth formers, some from the teaching profession, a hospital specialist, young self-employed men and a Personnel Manager, found themselves kneeling before the platform, realizing their need of full committal to the Lord and to His service. Time was forgotten as these responsible young people came forward in repentance and consecration. Three hours had passed, with most of the congregation of 200 remaining until the closing prayer and at least one family of six went home and continued in this atmosphere of worship and dedication until the early hours of Monday morning.

With the children's outreach, the Sunday school is steadily growing. We also have two good children's midweek services. A get-together every Sunday afternoon of the teenagers at "Youth Focus" is also receiving much blessing.

At a number of our Pentecostal prayer meetings this year, we have had the joy of fellowship with a number of born-again R.C. friends, who sought permission to attend as they were seeking light on the Pentecostal truth and experience. At their request, our Pastor has conducted a cottage meeting with them and a further meeting is desired. We pray that these dear people might know in the liberty and power of the Holy Ghost release from all that binds.

W.L.K.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA Pastor: A. Nicolson

THE Junior Crusader Youth Club has continued week by week throughout the past year. We praise God for His good hand upon this work. Numbers attending have remained consistently high, quite a number have joined our Sunday School, and a few regularly attend the Sunday evening services and enjoy the Children's spot. Our thanks go to the Pastor and workers who labour so faithfully.

On a recent Sunday, a special evening was arranged for the youth, in which many of the Club members participated. A good proportion of the Crusader Club members were present and so were their parents. There was a real sense of God's presence. Everyone took part with zest and an obvious desire to give of their best and please God. "Sword drill" showed that most members had come ready armed. Two Bible readings and an unaccompanied solo were much appreciated, particularly by the adult congregation. A "Build a Church" quiz between girls and boys proved that the boys' Bible knowledge is superior at present. A chorus session, led by two of the workers who recently returned from a visit to a mission leprosarium in Nepal, was very interesting. The chorus was Nepalese and the club members sang the final verse in the native language. Perhaps the most touching and thrilling item was a question and answer testimony session, when three young people witnessed to their new-found faith in Christ. Mr. Paul Bullivant brought a challenging message to young and old alike. The service concluded with a prize-giving and Mrs. Bullivant, a local school teacher, presented the prizes. The whole service emphasised the fact that God through Christ is the answer to seeking minds, whether of modern youth or of adults.

Book Review

Great Chapters of the Bible, by G. Campbell Morgan. Published by Marshall, Morgan and Scott. Price £1.50 postage and packing 12p extra.

THIS paperback is a further edition of the book published some time ago by the late Campbell Morgan. It is of particular interest to those who desire to study the Bible, but who lack the time to probe its teachings in depth. It contains expositions of a number of chapters from the Word of God, selected by members of the Westminster Friday Night Bible School, which had provided the basis for the weekly addresses.

While emphasising the fact that every chapter of the Bible has its own significance, the writer points out that "there are chapters or sections which stand out in the appeal they make to the human heart. The greatness of such passages is created by human necessity, rather than by their inherent quality. In that sense these are Great Chapters."

The exegesis is typical of the Campbell Morgan style, which makes for easy, interesting reading. The reader is taken through the Scriptures from Genesis to Revelation as the teachings in these forty-nine chapters are highlighted and explained. Referring to the record in Genesis 1 and the argument about the length of the Creation days, the writer adds the comment: "When we are endeavouring to think in the region of the Divine, it is well to cancel our almanacs". Rounding off the chapter he adds: "To me, therefore, not because I am a Christian, but because I am a rational being, the solution of the riddle of the universe found in this chapter is acceptable as being simple, sublime, sufficient." He sees in the closing words of the Bible the profound importance of the Second Advent of our Lord. Referring to the statement: "Surely I come quickly", he says, "These are the last recorded words of our Lord, and it is the seventh occurrence of the great declaration in the course of the unveiling."

The price of the book brings it within the reach of the modest pocket and thus provides an opportunity to recapture the value of these excellent addresses and restudy important themes which attracted thousands to Westminster Chapel week by week. It is a contribution to any Christian's library well worth having. Buy it and enjoy it.

Missionary Biography

2. Mrs. Sandra McCann (Inyanga North, Rhodesia)

I WAS born on December 30th, 1943. I spent the early years of my life in the moorland village of Marsden, about seven miles from Huddersfield, Yorkshire, where I attended a Congregational Sunday school from the age of three years. Although I attended church continually until I was fourteen, at no time did I appropriate the gospel; instead I believed that by going to church and by not doubting the Bible stories I was automatically a Christian.

My first link with an evangelistic movement came in August, 1957, when, during a holiday at Whitley Bay, my family made contact with the Salvation Army. On returning home, we began to attend the Huddersfield Salvation Army evening services, while still spending time at Marsden Congregational Church. During this period of transition, my family moved to Huddersfield in October, 1958, and in December of the same year I left Colne Valley High School and started work as a soft furnisher in a large privately-owned store in Huddersfield.

Salvation came to the family, when first my mother, then my father, sister and brother, all accepted Christ. I was the last to accept Christ, at a Salvation Army youth rally in Bradford in October, 1959. Though I was sincere, I was still rather self-centred and, there being very few young people in the S.A. at that time, I began to lose interest. So it was that my mother, who, with my father and brother are still members of the S.A., introduced me to the girls of the Elim Pentecostal Church, Huddersfield, in the same street as the S.A. building. In January, 1961, I started attending this church regularly and became a Sunday school teacher and Crusader, but for the next three and a half years, my spiritual life was rather chequered. I wanted the best of both worlds, but only succeeded in getting little satisfaction from either.

Then in September, 1964, during a convention at Huddersfield led by Pastor E.J. Thomas and after a struggle with my conscience, I reached the point of surrender to God and said goodbye to the things of my old life like the dances and cinema shows which had attracted me so much before. My water baptism followed on Easter Saturday, 1965, at Sowerby Bridge, and I was greatly blessed by a visit to the Holy Land in August/September of the same year, with Rev. David G. Hathaway.

About this time a guitar-playing university student came along to the church. "Not my type at all", I thought at the time; in fact, I didn't give him much thought at all, but God had other ideas, and he was destined to become my husband on September 30th, 1967. Our first child, Paul, followed almost exactly a year later, on September 19th, 1968 and at this time we felt rather secure and at home in Huddersfield.

In May, 1969, however, something happened which changed our lives. Some of the people from our church attended the Elim Conference at Blackpool for one night. My husband unfortunately had to stay at home, but I found myself confronted with the missionary challenge in an appeal by Catherine Picken for graduates willing to teach in Emmanuel Secondary School, Inyanga North, Rhodesia. It seemed that God was speaking to me personally on behalf of my husband. I returned home with mixed feelings, being inclined to resist the call of God. After all, what had we got that God saw fit to call us? We sought the will of God, however, and God opened the door in a very special way. Things happened fast. In September, 1969, we entered Elim Bible College for just one term. In October, at the College, we were both baptised in the Spirit on the same day. In January, 1970, we flew from England to our new home in Rhodesia.

We have been here for three years now, during which time we have shared in joys and sorrows and have seen the light shine into many lives. We sorrowed when the Lord took our Paul on April 21st, 1971, at the age of two and a half years and then our only child, but we have rejoiced in the Lord's goodness in sending another boy, Philip, born on August 26th, 1972. God is good and we are glad that we can share in the working out of His plan and purpose for the people of Rhodesia.

Points for Preachers

An Outline — Garments for the Spirit

Judges 6:34; 1 Chronicles 12:18; 2 Chronicles 24:20

"UPON" (Acts 1:8) is the Pentecostal word for enduement. The classic illustration is Elijah and Elisha: "Clothed with the Spirit"; "Let thy mantle fall on me".

It would seem that the three Scriptures above carry the same thought, but the converse is true; see the Revised Version (1881) for the literal Hebrew. "The Spirit of the Lord clothed Himself with" Gideon, Amasai, and Zechariah. He who expresses His invisible presence in Creation ("Thou coverest Thyself with light as a garment" [Psalm 104:2]), and manifested that presence in the Incarnation (John 1:14), also makes Himself known through humble vessels of His choice. Gideon, Amasai, and Zechariah became "garments" with which the Spirit clothed Himself, in conquering victory, in sacrificial witness, and in simple personal loyalty.

A Quotation — Ministerial Dress

"PERSONALLY I confess to being utterly illogical and inconsistent in my attitude to the matter. I have never affected a form of clerical attire, and yet, on the whole, I am secretly glad that other ministers take a different view. For I like to recognise a minister when I meet one. His clerical dress is a letter of introduction. Without a word of apology, I feel at liberty to approach him, make myself known, and enjoy a chat with him concerning his life and work. How many hundreds of delightful and profitable conversations I should have missed if all the other ministers had insisted on my own informal and irresponsible way! Write me down, therefore, as a whole-hearted champion of a distinctive dress — for other people!"

Dr. F.W. Boreham in Boulevards of Paradise.

A Poem — Forget it!

IF you see a tall fellow ahead of a crowd,
A leader of men, marching fearless and proud,
And you know of a tale, whose mere telling aloud
Would cause that fine head to be instantly bowed,
It's a jolly good thing to FORGET IT!

If you know of a skeleton hidden away
In a cupboard, close guarded, and kept from the day,
A dark horrid secret, whose sudden display
Would cause shame and heart-break and life-long dismay,
It's a pretty good thing to FORGET IT!

Can a Child of God be Demon-possessed?

by Hugh B. McGowan
Pastor of our Dundee Church

MANY Christians are disturbed and somewhat confused by modern theories on the subject of demon-possession. The existence of demons cannot be denied, nor can the Scriptural teaching of overpowering spirits be overlooked. The question which concerns us, however, is, "Can a Christian be possessed by an evil spirit?"

Pentecostals believe the Bible to be the inspired Word of God, our all-sufficient rule for faith and practice. Our enquiry should not be directed towards what an individual has experienced, but to what the Scriptures say.

OPPRESSION IS NOT POSSESSION. In Acts 10:38 we are informed that oppression can be the cause of bodily sickness. Paul's thorn in the flesh was certainly oppression, "the messenger of Satan to buffet him" (1 Corinthians 12:7). The afflictions and hardships of the Apostle came from the devil, but we could never concede that Paul was demon-possessed. All sickness is not necessarily the result of satanic oppression. Sickness can be the result of natural causes and very often it is. Isaiah reminds us that the One who bore our sickness and brought healing by His stripes was Himself oppressed and afflicted. He was as much oppressed by the devil as by those for whom He suffered, but He certainly was not, nor ever could be, possessed.

DEPRESSION IS NOT POSSESSION. Can God's people be depressed? Yes they can, and often are! To be cast down, for this is the meaning of depression, is no sin. See 2 Corinthians 4:7. The Psalmist David knew something of the state of depression (Psalm 42:5,6,11). Paul was depressed (2 Corinthians 7:6), because he was troubled on every side, without were fightings, within were fears (v.5). Too often poor souls, who suffer from depression, have been cruelly told that they are possessed by a "spirit of fear". What a lack of compassion and Christian love this shows and what a total disregard for the Word of God! 2 Timothy 1:7 clearly states, "God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind."

Were the disciples of our Lord possessed by a spirit of fear when we read that they were in jeopardy (Luke 8:23)? They were scared stiff! Christ asked them, "Where is your faith?", but He certainly did not reckon them to be possessed by a "spirit of fear".

OBSESSION IS NOT POSSESSION. People can become obsessed with a variety of things or experiences. The accumulation of wealth can become an obsession. The athlete can become obsessed by an overpowering ambition for a strong and healthy body. The musician can be obsessed by the cadences of sound until he thinks of nothing else. Even the preacher can harp on one particular doctrinal theme until his obsession brings him into spiritual bondage. Obsession and fanaticism are not too far apart! The exercise and development of self-control (2 Peter 1:5,6), one of the graces of the Fruit of the Spirit, is the way to overcome an obsession. The incorruptible crown awaits those who are temperate in all things (1 Corinthians 9:25).

According to The New English Dictionary "possession" means "to have ownership of, to own as property, to have full power over, to control". The New Testament asks (and remember that Paul is speaking to believers), "What? Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own? For ye are bought with a price" (1 Corinthians 6:19,20). The purchase price of our redemption is the precious blood (1 Peter 1:19; Colossians 1:13,14), by which God's people overcome Satan himself (Revelation 12:11). In 1 Corinthians 3:16, Paul says, "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you?". How can a foreign, demonic power rule in the temple of God? "What concord hath Christ with Belial [Satan]?" (2 Corinthians 6:15). "What agreement hath the temple of God with idols?" (v.16).

14 When to fight and when not to (Genesis 13:8; 14:15)

by F. Lavender, Pastor of our Croydon Church

A DISPUTE had arisen between Abram and Lot, but Abram refused to fight over the matter, allowing Lot to take the best land. There was plenty of political trouble at that time, too. The land had been overrun by Chedorlaomer, king of Elam, and the kings of Sodom and Gomorrah were planning to rebel against him. When Chedorlaomer again invaded the land, Abram refused to be involved, yet later, against great odds, he attacked Chedorlaomer and rescued Lot.

The reason is clear why Abram refused to fight Lot or to be involved with the warring kings, yet attacked the victorious army with a handful of men at great personal risk: Lot and he were witnesses to the true God. Strife between them would have dishonoured the Lord; Abram would rather suffer loss than permit this. Further, Abram would not allow himself to be drawn into alliances with ungodly men, for he had been called to be separated unto the Lord, yet Abram would fight, putting his own life at risk, in order to save his brother, even though he might have justly said, "Lot deserved what came to him; his selfishness hurt me!"

We are called to be witnesses for the Lord Jesus, so Satan loves to stir up strife between us, not simply to annoy us, but rather to dishonour our Saviour, to give the world opportunity to sneer, and to cause earnest seekers to stumble. Knowing these things, we should be gentle in our dealings with other believers and not fight with them to defend or to obtain our rights. Like Abram, we should be willing to be wronged rather than dishonour the Lord. We should not enter into ungodly alliances, for thus we would compromise our testimonies. We should fight vigorously to defend other Christians when they are attacked, however, seeking their deliverance from distress, even if they have hurt us. In this way we shall show the true Spirit of the Lord Jesus.

The Gospel and Genesis Chapter 2

by Malcolm J. Frith, A.C.A., L.Th. (London)

Pastor of our Church in Wellington, Capital City of New Zealand

"THIS earth came into being by chance." "Man just happened." "The earth for one moment became a successful cosmic test tube." Can we really believe these statements and theories made by scientists and held by those who seek to disprove or deny the necessity of God? For me Genesis chapter 2 is a thrilling account of what actually did take place when man became a living soul.

Man – the Image of God

There is no doubt that man is the crowning art of God's creation. The more scientists study man, the more complex he is seen to be. Even the psalmist, who knew nothing about genes and chromosomes, declared, "I am fearfully and wonderfully made". We who do know something of them, marvel how such minute cells can so faithfully reproduce the characteristics of generations.

Our amazing complexity is one of the strongest arguments there is for the existence of God. We know as we look at a complex piece of machinery, be it a computer or the flight deck of an airliner, that great intelligence was necessary to make it all possible. The more complex the machinery, the greater is the intelligence that is needed. Man, the most complex mechanism that there is, demands a super-intelligence to make him both possible and understandable. Our chapter tells us that that intelligence is God who formed man out of the dust of the earth.

He is the One who gave the dust, the base elements from which we are made, their worth, for we bear His likeness, not a physical likeness, but a personality likeness, so that everything that makes up the "essential you" is in God's image. What tremendous potential we have for God as a result!

Today, genetics in particular shows that we are in the image of our forefathers physically and as regards personality. Think back to Adam. He had all the characteristics of God, even the very outlook of God, and he lost them, but, since they were there, we can strive to regain some of that perfection and to know again some of the image of our first forefather. Scripture teaches us that we may do this as we allow the fruit of the Spirit to develop in our lives and as we allow the glory of Christ to develop Christ-like lives in us, for the original perfection of Adam was but a preview of the ultimate perfection which was to come in Jesus, a perfection so complete that every word of teaching, every moment of living, every motive and reaction was a rebuke to sinful men, and they crucified the Lord of Glory.

The Garden planted by God

Years ago, as I walked amid the spring beauties of Kew, I felt so close to God, but the garden planted by God was better by far. It was the nearest thing to heaven upon earth, for God was not just close, He graced it with His very presence. It was indeed the garden of delight, which is the meaning of "the garden of Eden". Adam delighted to live there and God delighted to spend time there.

No doubt every time God went there, and, if He went in human form, it would have been Jesus Himself who walked there, another garden which was to come would have been before Him – the garden of Gethsemane. It would also know the presence of God and it would know God's judgment against sin. In that garden, God would require obedience from His Son, even as the one thing He required from Adam was his obedience.

In one sense the garden of Gethsemane would also be a garden of delight, for Christ fulfilled the Father's will, but how different were the circumstances, for Adam, with whom God spoke in the first garden, was going to make the second garden a necessity by his sin. Satan dared to challenge God's perfection of creation in the first garden and he won, but in the second garden, as he challenged God's perfection in Christ, he lost, and he has never recovered from that defeat.

The garden of Eden was watered by a river which divided into four rivers, the name of each being a type of the Baptism in the Holy Spirit. "Pison" means rushing waters; "Gihon" means overflowing; "Hiddekel" means power; and "Euphrates" means sweet waters. As the Holy Spirit flows through our lives, they can be like well-watered gardens, attractive, fruitful and a delight to those who share something of our lives.

Adam – named by God

It was not until the man God created was actually naming the animals, that he was called by his name – Adam. Because of Paul we know him as the first Adam, who was a pointer to Jesus the last Adam. He pointed to Jesus by contrasts and opposites, as evidenced in that great statement, "As in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive".

"In Adam all die", for, when he sinned, all generations were in his loins in the same way that one seed can hold a great forest. Adam's body was a clay casket which held the whole family of man and the taint of that body's sin was passed on to every generation. Since that body was condemned by God, every one born after Adam had to share that same condemnation, so that "there is none righteous, no, not one". Adam was the parent of the whole family of disgrace. Through his sin he crucified the world and the world later crucified Christ. How would Adam have acted had he known that his original disobedience would send Christ to the cross?

The first Adam brought sin, but the last Adam brought life. Jesus is the parent of the whole family of grace, for, as Jesus died, His blood was the seed which held great promise; instead of its being seed cast down as was Adam's, it was seed looking up. It is not the seed of sorrow, but of joy. It is not the seed of condemnation, but of deliverance. It is not the seed of defeat, but of triumph. Our loss in Adam was great, but our gain in Christ is far greater.

In the death of the first Adam we crumble in the grave and lie down in beds of darkness, but the death of the last Adam, Christ, is the gateway to eternal life and light. The two deaths were poles apart. We may have all died in Adam, but we are crucified with Christ and so enter into His lasting victory and the fruits thereof. Surely everything in life that Adam lost or lowered, and especially our place in God, Jesus has raised and restored.

May none of us be found walking in the footsteps of the old Adam. A better way is offered in Christ for the "Son of God . . . loved me, and gave Himself for me."

The Gift

John 3:16

Words and drawing by Sheila Price

TONY walked up to the counter in the big department store. "Can I help you?" asked the assistant.

"I want to buy something for my grandmother," replied Tony. "It's her birthday tomorrow."

"Well," said the assistant, "why not buy her a nice warm scarf or a pretty little vase?"

"I don't really know," said Tony. He gazed at all the gifts displayed on the shelves. There were so many to choose from that he could not make up his mind which to buy. Then he spotted a pale blue tea-cosy with a tassel on the top. "Ah, that is what I will buy," he decided. "Grandmother could do with a new tea-cosy. How much is it, please?" he asked.

"Thirty-four pence," said the assistant.

"I will take it, please," said Tony.

The assistant wrapped the tea-cosy in some tissue paper and packed it in a box. "Here is your penny change," she said. "I hope your grandmother will be pleased with it."

"Oh, she will," said Tony. "Thankyou!"

Tony's grandmother was indeed delighted to receive the tea-cosy. "The tea tastes much nicer now," she said, with a twinkle in her eye.

When Jesus was born in Bethlehem, God gave to the world the greatest gift of all, the gift of His only Son, and each day God gives us tokens of His wonderful love, His great gifts of joy, happiness, strength and peace. To those who know Christ as their own special Friend and Saviour He promises the wonderful gift of Heaven itself. How marvellous to know that our God is not only a living God, but also a giving God!

A brief account of the ten years of work and progress of the Maranatha Evangelical Movement in the South of India and its present fellowship with the Elim Movement.

Maranatha

About India

EVERY seventh person in the world is an Indian. India, the great sub-continent with its nearly 600 million people has a bit of everything. The Indian people, belong to most races known to mankind: Negroid, Polynesian, Dravidian, Mangolid, Semitic, Aryan. Some of them are blonde and blue-eyed, some are as ebony black as the Africans, some have slanting eyes, high cheek-bones and flat noses like the Chinese, while some have coal black hair and beaked noses like the Arabs and the Jews. More than eighty-three per cent are Hindus. The offshoots of Hinduism, such as Buddhists, Jains and Sikhs, maintain their separate religious identities. The third largest Muslim population in the world is in India. It numbers sixty-two millions and has a colourful variety of sects. Christians come third and have about fifteen millions. Besides, there are Parsees, Jews and Armenians.

The alarming sign of the modern trend is that many of the younger generation subscribe to no religion and are atheists or agnostics.

India and Christianity

Christianity in India has been wrongly branded as a Western religion. It is in fact Asian in origin and India's connection with it is believed to be one of the oldest in the world. As far back as 860 B.C. a flourishing trade existed between India and Babylon and Indian elephants were transported to the Euphrates Valley. This lends strong support to the traditional account that the Apostle Thomas, one of the twelve disciples of Jesus, travelled to India and preached the Gospel in the middle of the first century starting in the South Western India, now known as Kerala State.

The discovery in March 1957 of a first century Christian Church building in ruins in the elephant-infested forest of Nilackal in Kerala State, further supports the belief in the possible fruitful ministry of the Apostle. He eventually made his way to a small place in South East India, where he continued the ministry with great success until he fell by the cruel spear of a Hindu Brahman and spilled the blood of the first martyr of Christian faith in this land.

During the period of 2,000 years, this small place has developed into the city of Madras, with a population of about two million people, the fourth largest city in India and the capital of Tamilnadu state. The Mount on which the Apostle Thomas was killed has all along been known as St. Thomas Mount and a part of the city is called San Thomé and has a Cathedral.

In A.D. 339 a great company of Christians came from Syria and settled in the south and are known as Syrian Christians. Centuries passed by and it is stated that in the sixteenth century the Indian Christian was a person of consequence commanding the respect of his Hindu neighbours, but they lost all zeal for evangelism, waxed cold and came to be known only as respected citizens.

With the coming of the Protestant missions to India in the 18th century, Christianity began to enter every stratum of Indian society. When India became a sovereign Republic, and had its own national policies in relation to industry, education, etc., the old methods of pre-independence days in spreading the gospel needed to be changed to suit present-day conditions. The Maranatha ministry with its headquarters in Madras has been designed that way.

Maranatha Evangelical Movement

That this movement should function as it does today in the preaching, teaching, printing, radio and children's ministry, was indeed in the eternal plan of God. An ambitious young man, a government servant (auditor in the office of the Accountant-General) had one aim in his life – to become a successful cine-artist. He exerted every nerve towards achieving his cherished goal. Man invariably strives in his own flesh and rebels, but God always wins and that with His deep, unchanging love. This young man fell a victim of that constraining love. God saved him and filled him with the Holy Spirit. He was a Lay-Preacher, a part-time servant of God, as he was a government servant full-time, but it was the other way about. His ministry was largely among young people and the burden of them increased. The seed thought of training Indian young men for preaching the Gospel to their own people in their own language, was sown in the heart of this young man at this time.

During a period of fifteen years he won many precious souls for Christ and some were led into full-time ministry. He was an active leader of a Gospel team and the secretary of the Pentecostal Fellowship of Madras. Seeing that one could not usefully serve two masters for long, God enabled him to enter full-time ministry in 1961 after serving the government of India for nineteen years, and led him to the International Bible Training Institute, Sussex, England.

The young man met a fellow-student from Northern Ireland and the two hearts were knit together for a greater purpose of which they were then not aware. After completion of training he returned to India with his Irish friend. In March, 1963, the Maranatha Bible Training Institute came into existence with Pastor and Mrs. Henry Joseph and Pastor and Mrs. John A. Prentice as founders.

Our first Bible class for four students was held inside a tiny palm-leaf thatched shed which was so weather beaten that it let in through its numerous holes in the roof the sun-rays to accord us a real welcome. With no regular financial support we looked to God for every need. We remember with thanks the tireless labour for the Maranatha work during this time by Mrs. A. McDermott, Mr. David Burgess, Mrs. Davidson, Mrs. Rowlands in the United Kingdom and Rev. Erich Theis in Germany and the late Rev. Karl Schneider in Switzerland. The Lord blessed the efforts of Maranatha and we moved into a bigger rented building where we have continued until now.

In 1965, Pastor and Mrs. John A. Prentice left the Maranatha ministry to become Elim Missionaries. They went to North India to carry on the Elim work. The Lord continued to bless and prosper the Bible school and the other work in Madras. Over 120 students have gone through the school during these ten years and are working in seven states of India and in the Andaman Islands in the Bay of Bengal. There are thirty Maranatha Full Gospel churches run mostly by young men trained in the Bible Institute.

The present position in India is that no new missionaries can enter and the existing strength of missionaries is gradually being brought down. It is feared that the time may not be far away when there will be no missionaries in India. The only answer to that situation is the functioning of an effective, well-backed Bible School training the national young men to preach the good news to their own people.

Maranatha Printing Press has been the medium of sending out millions of Tracts in English and in Tamil. Maranatha, an English monthly magazine, has been a God-blessed medium to many in different countries.

In 1970, the visit of Pastor and Mrs. G.W. Gilpin to Madras and the return of Pastor and Mrs. John A. Prentice along with the Gilpins, and the visit of Pastor D. Henry Joseph to the United Kingdom in September to November 1972, opened a fresh chapter in the history of Maranatha. It was a great time of fellowship, blessing and refreshing for the writer to be present with his wife and daughter during the Elim Missionary Conference with the leading brethren and the Ministers and several members. This was followed by a brief itinerary around London, Birmingham, Yorkshire, Scotland and N. Ireland, preaching in Elim Churches. After discussions with the members of the Elim Missionary Council, Maranatha, while continuing its ministry as hitherto, enjoys a very special relationship with Elim and the two are affiliated with each other. Pastor and Mrs. John Prentice represent Elim in the Maranatha work. Earnest prayers are solicited from all God's people in the British Isles that this link may result in a great harvest of precious souls in the coming days. "Maranatha"!

From T. H. Stevenson

DR. Billy Graham gave the address at the first inauguration of Mr. Nixon the Republican Party President of U.S.A. He also preached at the funeral service of the former Democratic party President, the late Lyndon B. Johnson. Dr. Graham is a Baptist minister, but neither President belonged to the Baptist Church. Dr. Graham is, of course, directly thought of as an outstanding minister not confined to a denomination. In a U.S.A. poll he has, for the second successive year, been next to Mr. Nixon as the man of the year. How different seems Dr. Graham's standing from that of any other Protestant minister or evangelist, or more to the point, how different American attitudes are from, by way of example, British attitudes. Who is the nonconformist leader in our land who could be chosen to officiate on any such comparable occasion affecting the first citizen of our nation? The position of the Established Church cannot be over-ridden. We may criticise R.C.-dominated countries or "free-for-all" U.S.A., but our British structure is very questionable, despite the value many seem to place on age-long traditions and ceremonial splendour.

In his address at Lyndon Johnson's funeral, Dr. Graham referred to the former President's proposal to him to stand as a candidate for the American Presidency as a man who could unite the country and pull it out of its problems. Billy Graham had answered that his calling as a preacher was the highest in the world. A point of interest is that, when Lyndon Johnson was elected as President, Dr. Graham had publicly supported Mr. Nixon's platform. Two questions arise. Would Dr. Graham be a successful President because he is an outstanding evangelist? (C.H. Spurgeon contended that a successful minister would be successful at anything else!). More important: is it right for a minister to be an active politician? Billy Graham has decided in his own case to plough a single furrow, but this does not answer the basic question, or any other individual case. None can ignore that the greatest Protestant reformers were involved in most vital social and political affairs – Luther in Germany Calvin in Geneva, and John Knox in Scotland. Were these "men for their times" wrong? Many Christians even in Ulster, query Dr. Ian Paisley's position as a faithful gospel preacher and active politician. Perhaps active Christian political laymen could have made the latter capacity unnecessary. If he had the authority to do so, none can say whether Dr. Paisley could cure N. Ireland of its ills. One thing is undeniable; Ian Paisley was foremost to see and to state the symptoms, to diagnose the disease, and to expose, as he believed, the weak physicians and the plague to come. God alone can cure N. Ireland's sickness, but He requires co-workers.

Prayer and Praise

by F. H. Coleman

My telephone bell rang one morning, which was not unusual. On lifting the receiver, I heard the friendly voice of another Elim pastor. He told me that someone had 'phoned him asking that an Elim minister would without fail that day visit an old man in a London hospital. Realising that the hospital was only about half-a-mile from my church, he asked me to visit the man.

On arrival at the hospital I found that the man was in a private room. Before being allowed in, I was asked to go to the Sister's office. She explained to me that the man had had a successful operation for the removal of his gall bladder, but that he was not co-operating in trying to pull himself together. The doctor estimated that he had only twenty-four hours to live and I was their last hope. I asked quietly in my heart for help and wisdom and entered into the room.

I asked the man why he had sent for me. He replied that he had not done so, but maybe his son had. He told me that, since having the operation, he felt "frozen" all over his body and, try as he would, he could not pull himself together. I asked him why his son had asked for an Elim pastor. With this, his face brightened up and I was told that this good man had been an Elim member for many years, but that since retiring he had gone to live with his son in the country. So we talked together. He was saved in one of the great campaigns of Stephen Jeffreys at Barking. What amazing healings they saw! We talked of the good old days. Then the miracle happened. Life began to flow into the old man's body, the frozen feeling left him and now he was glowing all over.

Needless to say, a few days later he went back to his home to live a few more years for the Lord.

It is worthwhile talking over with others what God has done. We sing a chorus: "Let's go on talking about the Lord. I feel so much better talking about the Lord".

Let us talk of the wonderful answers to prayer. It will bless us and others as well.

Try Thanksgiving

WE are still near the beginning of 1973 and if you haven't adopted a motto for the year, may I suggest the words, "Try thanksgiving".

The following editorial comment appeared in The Pentecostal Evangel of America and was such a blessing to me that I want to share it with you.

Transcendental Meditation (TM for short) is becoming a popular way to cope with everyday tension. Time magazine says that as many as 250,000 Americans have now taken up the practice of pausing two or three times a day and meditating for fifteen to twenty minutes at a time.

The practice seems to be replacing such things as Zen, Yoga and group therapy among non-Christian experimenters. People pay good money to learn how to meditate. Courses in TM have been taught for credit at Yale, Stanford, and dozens of other U.S. colleges and now classes are starting in hundreds of American cities.

It is reported that each pupil meets privately with a teacher and is assigned a "mantra," or meaningless sound. The teacher chants the mantra while the pupil listens, sitting upright with eyes closed. Then the pupil takes it up himself, first aloud and then silently. As a result, he relaxes and appears to be asleep, but he experiences a deep sense of rest and alertness passing through his mind and body.

The practice has no moral or religious character. Whatever a person's occupation, TM helps him to do it better. If he is a teacher he will be a more effective teacher. If he is a thief he supposedly will be a more successful thief. TM simply summons the natural powers within a person, makes them sharper, more active, and convinces him that everything is going to be just grand.

Whatever value there may be in TM, it is a very inferior substitute for prayer. The Bible teaches us, "Rejoice evermore. Pray without ceasing. In every thing give thanks" (1 Thessalonians 5:16-18).

What a pity that people do not know the God of the Bible and therefore turn to Eastern philosophies for guidance and help. The practice of pausing at intervals throughout the day to lift the heart in prayer and praise to God is far superior to TM because it links the person with Him who can strengthen, sanctify, and guide unerringly in all the affairs of life.

Daniel followed that practice. When he lived in the promised land he prayed three times a day and when he was carried away to Babylon as a captive he continued the custom. "He kneeled upon his knees three times a day, and prayed, and gave thanks before his God, as he did aforetime" (Daniel 6:10).

David likewise paused to pray and praise at intervals throughout the day. "Evening, and morning, and at noon, will I pray," he declared (Psalm 55:17). "I will praise the name of God with a song, and will magnify him with thanksgiving" he promised (Psalm 69:30).

Prayer is the pause that refreshes, especially if it is mixed with thanksgiving and involves meditation on the Scriptures. Prayer and praise are like the two wings of a bird. Both are needed. One without the other will send us round in circles, but prayer and praise together are a pair of spiritual wings that can lift us out of our troubles and bring us into the very presence of God.

When the outlook is dark, try praising the Lord. Let us offer the sacrifice of praise to Him continually, that is, the fruit of our lips giving thanks to his Name – for the Lord is good, and His mercy endures for ever whether the situation be bright or threatening.

Try thanksgiving. Make it a motto. Print the words on a card and place it on the wall, or in your Bible, as a constant reminder. It is true that prayer changes things. It is also true that praise changes some things that prayer alone cannot change. For praise is powerful. It expresses faith and fixes the heart on God's adequacy to replace our inadequacy, whatever challenge we may face.

Building up the Walls

by David Williams
Pastor of our Silverdale Church

"Let us build up the wall of Jerusalem" (Nehemiah 2:17).

"KEEP Britain tidy" is a sign which we have all seen. Ministers and councillors, governments and authorities are always on about pollution in our country. We breathe the dirty air from our chimneys and furnaces and the exhaust fumes from our cars. Our rivers, lakes and seas are polluted. We cannot have a decent swim in some places due to oil slicks. One sees the terrible eyesores in our cities, the tall sky scrapers and chimneys which tell us that this is the age of modern architecture. Even the lovely countryside is spoiled by the tall pylons and the slag heaps of disused pits. Many of our villages exhibit waste ground, derelict houses, broken-down churches, walls and buildings.

It is very refreshing to come across the sign: "DANGER MEN AT WORK" and to see instead of machinery being used to destroy buildings, signs of reconstruction, restoration and preservation. It's like a breath of fresh air.

Perhaps you have returned to a former house, or church, maybe your old school, after being away for some years and have found nothing but ruins. What did you feel like – sad, remorseful, horror-struck, nostalgic?

You will partly understand how Nehemiah must have felt when he heard the news concerning his beloved city, Jerusalem. Nehemiah was in exile; he was reared and lived in the Persian court. He heard that the place of his father's grave lay in ruins. There was great affliction and the walls of the city and gates had been burned with fire. The walls of a city meant STRENGTH and SECURITY, but now they were broken, open to attack and plunder.

Although Nehemiah had an important job as the cup-bearer to the king, he was deeply moved inwardly and outwardly to action.

Man of Intercession

For four months he prayed, wept, fasted. Even his countenance changed, because of his sorrow of heart (Nehemiah 2:2). He was afraid to appear before the king, because it was a capital offence to go into his presence looking sad. He did appear and God was with him.

Are you saddened when you hear that churches are empty, that some Christians whom you knew have backslidden? Are you moved to prayer as you see the walls of this country being broken down, Sunday being desecrated, and churches becoming bingo halls or warehouses?

Nehemiah was willing to lose his job rather than become willing to offend his conscience. Men can still do well in business and be out-and-out Christians but a good conscience helps towards material and spiritual success.

Man of Action

He not only prayed, he went to Jerusalem. He was armed with royal authority, thrilled that God had overruled. He was wise. He planned the work and worked the plan (2:13). There were forty-two different work groups, yet we never read that he had industrial disputes. They all worked near their own house; this gave them a special interest in the work. OUR FIRST OBLIGATION FOR CHRIST IS ALWAYS OUR OWN NEIGHBOURHOOD. Does that wall need repair?

Outside Opposition

The child of God always gets opposition when he begins to work for God. They began to scoff, mock, jeer, sneer and say, "What do these feeble Jews think they are doing?" The world says to us, "You're only a few people scattered in so many churches, saving one at a time while other organizations sweep them in." Nehemiah answered his critics by praying for them (4:4-6). Has your wall of prayer broken down?

The work continued, "for the people had a mind to work". If you pray and witness then the devil will not have the last laugh. The opposition then tried force (4:7-23), so Nehemiah watched and prayed (v.9).

They then tried being crafty (6:1–19), using pretence, bluff and then treachery, but still the leader stayed firm.

The Family Altar

Scripture Union Portions — Notes by R.A. Gull

Monday, February 26th — John 1:1-18

"The word was made flesh" (v.14); "comprehended it not" (v.5); "knew Him not" (v.10); "received Him not" (v.11).

WHAT was the problem? Why could not men recognize Him? John states that "No man hath seen God at any time" (v.18) and perhaps herein lies the difficulty. The world simply did not expect God to live among men and was afraid when He did.

Today the telescope of mysticism conveniently projects Him beyond our reach, while the microscope of intellect bewilderingly places Him beyond our comprehension. To those who will receive Him, trust Him, and let Him come close, He still reveals His glory.

Tuesday, February 27th — John 1:19-34

"There standeth one among you, whom ye know not;" (v.26) "And I knew him not: but . . . I saw, and bare record that this is the Son of God." (vv. 33,34).

WHEN John the Baptist knew Christ, he "bare witness of Him", for he was born to be a witness and was called to be a voice crying in the wilderness.

So are we! When we shrink from the world's spiritual wilderness, may God inspire us again with the vision of Him who even today stands in our midst, that we too might bear witness to Him.

Wednesday, February 28th — John 1:35-51

"What seek ye? . . . Master, where dwellest thou? . . . Come and see." (vv.38,39).

A MAN can often be measured by his desire.

The desire of these two disciples was to see Jesus in relation to the everyday events of life. Their judgment of Him in those humble surroundings is recorded dramatically in their proclamation, "We have found the Messias".

John was later to write, "We beheld his glory", not simply by Jordan and on the Mount of Transfiguration, but also in the crisis of Gethsemane and the climax of Calvary, and certainly no less in the circumstance and challenge of the everyday.

Thursday, March 1st — John 2:1–12

"Waterpots of stone" (v.6).

NOBODY could have guessed it – wine from waterpots! Only the servants knew at first, but later many of the guests must have excitedly examined those stone vessels. They had become the focal point of a divine provision in a moment of human need.

If God can use waterpots then He can use us. May we be filled today, not with the insipid weakness of powerless tradition, but with the joyous provision of the Holy Ghost, not for ourselves, but for the world.

Friday, March 2nd — John 2:13–25

"Destroy this temple" (v.19).

A NEW order of things is apparent here. The glory of the Lord had filled an earlier temple, but it stood now as a mausoleum in stone to human indifferences, a house of merchandise. They had defiled and destroyed His Father's house, but they would never utterly destroy His temple of flesh, for He would rebuild that in three days.

Now the Lord dwells in blood-washed temples of flesh. He promised that in His Father's house would be many such dwelling-places.

Saturday, March 3rd — John 3:1–15

"The wind bloweth" (v.8).

THE ancient vision of the prophet was soon to be fulfilled on a global scale. In the valleys of the world. that had long lain dead and dry, new life was astir. The wind was blowing!

Do not question this fact, for He who saw that the fields were white unto harvest shows here with equal authority and promise that the wind blows and the Spirit moves.

The Lord is dispelling the mists that men may see His kingdom. May God fill out our sails, that we may voyage under His direction and finally enter Heaven's harbour.

Lord, let the wind blow on me!

Sunday, March 4th — John 3:16–21

"Light is come" (v.19).

HOW has the light come? – like a merciless tropical sun pulsing its power, scouring the shadows; like a gentle ray of a dawning day; like a blinding, searing flash of intuition that leaves a man shocked and trembling; like a rainbow of promise shining in tears of anguish? Regardless of His methods, may the Lord shine on us today!

Is there room for condemnation in our souls? Do we witness as we should? Do we give as we should? Do we love as God does? Without fear may we submit now to God's light.

The believer has been crucified with Christ and lives by faith because of the indwelling Christ (Galatians 2:20; Colossians 1:27; John 3:24). Can the living Christ be dethroned by any hellish foe?

Jesus is stronger than Satan and sin,
Satan to Jesus must bow,
Therefore I triumph without and within;
Jesus saves me now.

Opportunities around us

by Fred Dodds (Cardiff)

AS ambassadors for our Lord there are three ways by means of which we can make our representation known in the locality where He has placed us: by our lives, by our lips and by literature. The last two will make little impression if our lives do not recommend the gospel. Above all else, prayer is the most important factor in our Christian witness. We must earnestly commit every day to Him for guidance and help as we mingle with the opposition in this world. A prayerful life and a good knowledge of the Word of God will help us to radiate Christ and boldly to witness for Him.

Not all of us are called to take the platform at meetings. Do not be disheartened if, after you have tried, you have realised that public speaking is not your gift. Personal contacts may be more in your line than preparing sermons. Questions and answers on the "ground floor" with the Scriptures in your heart can sometimes be more effective in leading souls to the Lord.

Literature is where every Christian can come in, yet, surprisingly enough, very few realise the power of the printed page. The communists know its effectiveness as they saturate the world with their so-called gospel in attractive and challenging literature form. Jehovah Witnesses, too, publish in many languages and by these means are winning many converts. The enemy of souls himself, knowing full well the power of the truth of God's Word, does his best to discourage Christians, thus to stop their prayerfully sowing such life-giving seed as gospel tracts. Oh, that more of us would take up this worth-while opportunity of service for the Saviour!

In many countries abroad, prison sentences face those who are caught giving out Christian literature. The reason is obvious, yet, with no such persecution in this country, and with our responsibility towards our neighbours, surely more Christians should take up this golden opportunity. There are many Scriptures to encourage us to do so and the Lord always blesses the distributor who goes out for precious souls with the message of salvation.

When the Lord says, "My Word shall not return unto Me void", He does not promise that a soul will be saved through every tract, but none the less the invitation to accept His Son as personal Saviour is thus given through you. I have had tracts torn up in my face, but such action meant that my responsibility passed to those who thus refused the Lord's offer of mercy. God directed me to give this opportunity, which was turned down; they will now have to answer. I continue to pray that another chance will be given to them before it is too late.

If we do not win a soul to Christ through a tract we are likely to lead a soul towards Christ, for many sow and others reap even after many days. At the harvest-time sowers and reapers will rejoice together in their share in winning those souls for their Saviour. Every time you pray for a certain person's salvation, I believe that he is again confronted with the challenge of accepting Christ, perhaps by hearing the gospel or by reading a tract.

Be usable for the Lord. Invest in some attractive gospel literature today. No matter how weak you may be in your Christian faith, let a well-written gospel tract speak for you. The Lord will use it if you are willing to be a channel for Him.

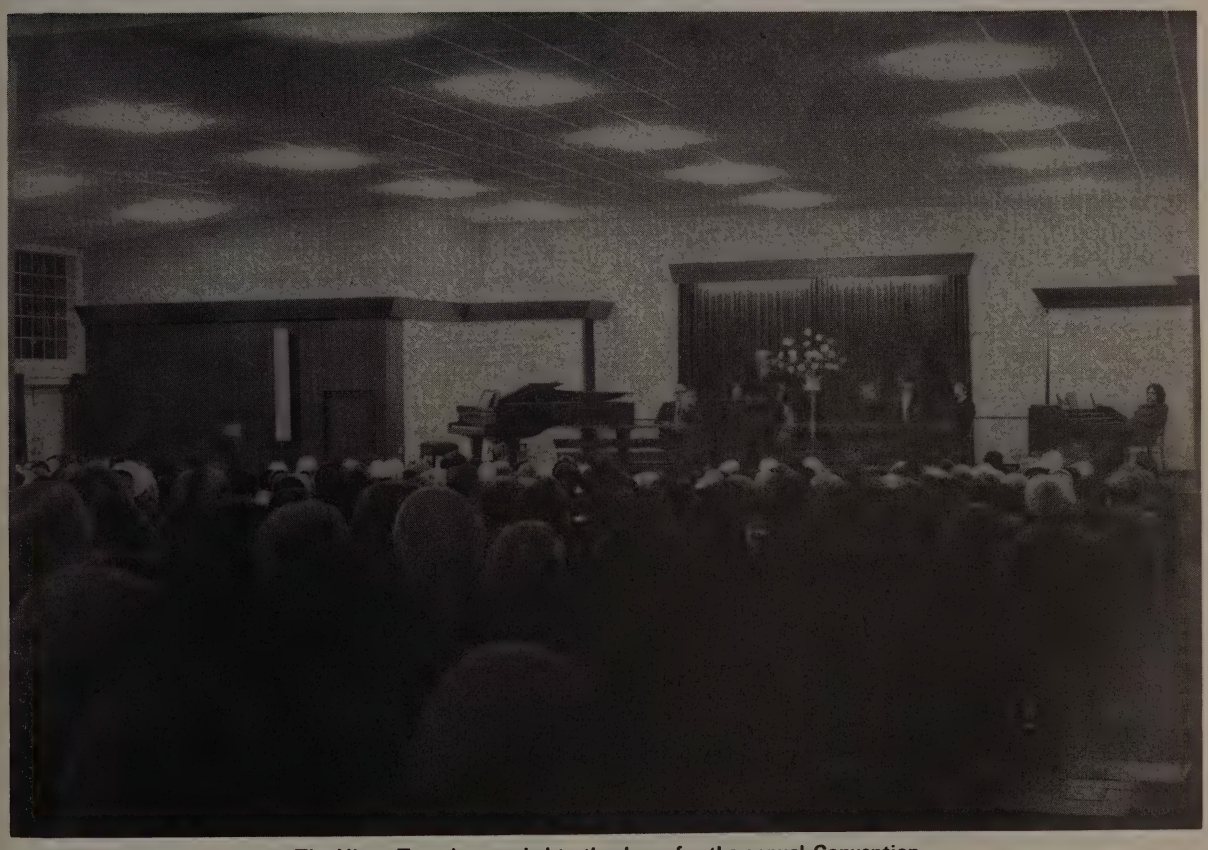
Inside Opposition

There was too much débris (4:10). It was heart-breaking as well as back-breaking. Many a minister and leader has given up because of too much rubbish. There was fear (4:11-14). They were looking at the opposition instead of at God. Nehemiah instructed them to look to the Lord and be ready. He placed a sword in one hand of each man and a trowel in the other. We must build up this wall. We need a Bible in our hand and the Spirit of God within.

There was greed (5:1-13). Some Jews were buying up the land cheaply, grabbing all they could while the going was good. Many a time the work of God suffers because of self-seekers and wrong motives. So Nehemiah had to deal harshly with them. He rebuked them (v.7) and he appealed to them by his own example (vv.8-11), and the offending party admitted their blame and made restitution (vv.12,13).



Victory

Within fifty-two days the wall was completed (6:15,16), because they perceived that the work was wrought by God. Despite the background and the problems, God overruled.

Jesus said that the gates of Hell would not prevail against the Church. If the walls of your Christian life are broken down, then rebuild them. When God sees your desire, He will equip you for the task, as he did Nehemiah. If you do not know Christ as your Saviour then you need a wall of defence: you need Christ.

Editorial

IT was recently my great pleasure to share a service with Pastor A.A. Biddle and with our brother Lewis Lancaster, brother of our President-Elect, Pastor John Lancaster. The occasion was both a Presidential visit and also a time of thanksgiving that the debt on the Petersfield church building had been cleared. I was told that the building had been a dwelling-house before Elim bought it some years ago, but that it was originally the Town Hall for this beautiful Hampshire town. It has certainly made a most suitable church and the friends there are to be congratulated on seeing the debt completely paid off.

We thank God for so many who stand by the work of God. Some hit the head-lines. Many are comparatively unnoticed, unsung. How do you measure success in the spiritual realm? In the end we must leave that judgment to the Judge of the earth who does all things right. Certain it is that our yardstick is often too short. There in Petersfield is a group of people who love the Lord, who are dedicated to His work and who are faithful in sacrificing to see that the Lord's work continues. Lewis Lancaster is a case in point. He has been humbly willing down the years to act as Church Leader or to step down and leave the way open for a Pastor to be appointed, always loyally serving the Lord whom he loves. He is typical of so many.

Some are able to communicate readily and sometimes may appear to be doing more than others. The work overseas is a prime example. There are those who labour in season, out of season, their hearts and lives totally dedicated. We hear but little of some of them, but they will in no wise lose their reward. We thank God for those whose labours are often publicised and gladly recognise how the Lord is using them. We also praise the Lord for the thousands of unknown warriors who are just as faithful. We depend on all our co-workers and thank God for them all.

LATE NEWS A SPECIAL request has reached us that we should particularly pray for Northern Ireland as the time draws near for the plebiscite regarding the Border issue. Pray for God's will to be done and uphold the Lord's people there in sacrificial intercession.

Church Reports

OXFORD Pastor: J. Hyde

WE have received rich blessing over the past six months. So many things have happened for which we thank God. It has been a great joy to see souls being saved. We thank our Pastor and his wife for their faithfulness in the Lord's work. It is good to see our Women's Fellowship meeting again and our Crusaders meeting each Wednesday. For some time we have felt the need of a new heating system so our gift day money was earmarked for this. Most of the work has been done by one of our members. Mr. J. Grisdale, who came to us from our Ipswich Church, is getting a very good mixed choir together and already we have enjoyed their singing. We thank those of our members for the splendid work they did in cleaning, painting, etc.

We have become more missionary minded. Our Pastor and his wife arranged two missionary shops, in East Oxford and the centre of the City, and these were very well patronised, the profits going to our Missionary fund. When our Missionary Secretary, Pastor L. Wigglesworth, came, the day was all too short as we listened to the wonderful work which our missionaries are doing in different parts of the world. Mrs. Hyde presented Pastor Wigglesworth with a cheque for £100 for our overseas work.

We thank God for His good hand upon us, and, as we go forward in this twentieth year in Oxford, may we give of our very best for Him.

T.S. GAMMAN

YORK Pastor: A. Brooks

I HAD the pleasure of being a guest at the Christmas party given for the children of our branch work at New Earswick. Every Friday night at six o'clock, some thirty children gather there to learn more of the love of God. Chorus singing is a part of the meeting which they enjoy. Sometimes, as children do, they make noises and talk when they are not supposed to, and the patience of the leaders is sorely tried, but their love for the Master and the work of the Gospel gives the leaders the encouragement to carry on the work.

Party time is always enjoyable, and this year's party was no exception. I wandered into the kitchen and watched the ladies preparing tea. They were busy. There is plenty of work to be done, and the labourers are few. Are you pulling your weight in working for the Gospel?

We thank God for the continuance of the work at New Earswick, though often under difficulties. Many children have given their hearts to the Lord and we trust that they will serve Him in the future and bring others to know His saving grace.

ALEX LAWRENCE

Elim on B.B.C.

WE are pleased to report that Douglas B. Gray and the London Crusader Choir will be conducting one of the popular series of hymn-singing broadcasts entitled-"Sunday Half-hour". This will be broadcast on Palm Sunday, April 15th, and will go out on BBC Radio 2 at 8.30pm as well as on BBC World Service.

Mr. Gray and the Choir have also been invited to take part in a broadcast on BBC Radio 4's Sunday Magazine and in "Pause for Thought" on BBC Radio 2 at 6.15 a.m. and 8.45 a.m. on each day from March 5th to 9th.

P.S. Brewster has been invited to conduct a service from our Cardiff Church on April 8th. This will be a wonderful opportunity as the broadcast is to go out on the BBC World Service at 10.30a.m. (GMT) on the 11, 13, 16, 19 and 25 metre bands, at 17.30 (GMT) on the 13, 16, 19, 25 and 31 metre bands, and at 1 p.m. (GMT) on the 19, 25 and 31 metre bands.

The prayers of all our readers are requested that God will cause these transmissions to be the means of many finding the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour.

New Zealand News

by Malcolm J. Frith

HERE in New Zealand the summer school holidays have just ended, most people have had their annual vacations, and in every church another year of activity and outreach is just beginning. Last year saw real progress in our movement, for which we give all glory to God. Undoubtedly the year's highlight was the visit of Pastor P.S. Brewster, which brought much blessing and which made the distance between Great Britain and New Zealand seem less.

BLENHEIM Pastor: Ian Bilby, B.Sc.

IT is twelve months since Pastor Bilby moved to Blenheim with his wife Margaret and their three children. From small beginnings, the message of Elim slowly reached out to the whole town, so that on some special occasions the church was full to overflowing. During the year each of the Elim ministers visited the church for special ministry, as did a number of the young people especially from Christchurch and Nelson.

This year the church programme includes two weekly meetings for prayer and Bible Study, a ladies' coffee morning with prayer and Bible Study on Thursdays, a campus life meeting for teenagers at the pastor's home on Fridays, and the usual Sunday services and Sunday school. This progress is a real encouragement for which we praise God.

CHRISTCHURCH Pastor: G.T.S. Dunk

AFTER a number of years of ministry from younger ministers, this church is enjoying having a senior minister for a change. Pastor Dunk was inducted into the pastorate of this growing suburban church early in September. Especially encouraging is the missionary interest and enthusiasm. In the last twelve months over £750 has been given towards the support of our missionary family in Japan.

It was a joy to the church to welcome Peter and Margaret Marsh. They came from our Elim church in Peterborough. Margaret was known to the writer when he was worshipping at Clapham church years ago. Their joining us in New Zealand strengthens our links as a world-wide family. Everyone has been greatly encouraged by the way the Lord has undertaken for them in housing, employment and many smaller things since their arrival.

HAMILTON Pastor: Henry Ogier

HAMILTON was one of the four churches which had new ministers last year. Pastor Ogier was inducted in July. Although there have been difficulties the Lord is encouraging them and giving fruit for their labour.

The Sunday school anniversary just before Christmas was entitled "All the Children of the World". The children in their costumes made a colourful picture as they stood before a large painting of Christ holding the world in His hands.

The New Year's meetings began in fine style with a visit from Pastor B.C. Verner (Wellington). He ministered in power and the blessing of the Holy Spirit on "The neglected Dimension" and "Laying a good Foundation".

Everyone is looking forward to a children's crusade in March.

Last year in New Zealand a series of Marches for Jesus and Jesus Festivals were held in most towns to call the nation back to Jesus. Following the Hamilton March for Jesus, this item appears in the evening paper:

A little Child shall lead them

Her home was deep in the heart of the King country, but the news of the Hamilton March for Jesus had penetrated to that remote area. She was six years old. "I do love Jesus, I really do", – day after day the little girl's parents heard the declaration. One afternoon her mother asked, "Why do you keep telling us how much you love Jesus?"

"I really do love Him, Mummy, and O Mummy, I do want to march for Him in Wellington."

So Daddy, Mummy, baby brother and grandmother too, with a very excited little girl, journeyed to Hamilton. On that bright Sunday afternoon, amidst thousands of marching feet, there were none more eager than this little child's.

As the marching concluded (it was a very long way for a little girl), she was heard to say, "I've marched for Jesus today, and I'm never going to stop."

Comments Mrs Ogier, "If you can't do great things, you can at least do small things in a great way."

NELSON Pastor: Les Covic

OVER the past year this church has seen much blessing and progress. Numbers have met with God in a new way and as a result have been baptised in water and in the Holy Spirit. Some who have been saved have found Christ through a Friday night outreach where films have been regularly screened. This has given a boost to the regular Saturday evening youth meetings.

Over the Christmas holidays the Church was involved in a combined beach and coffee bar outreach. On the beach Elim people held a children's mission every morning and some 150 children and adults attended daily. Of the many who were counselled twenty-five made decisions.

The coffee bar was held in the local town hall and the Anglican hall next door was used for counselling and prayer. The workers were divided into three teams working in turn in the coffee bar, counselling, giving out invitations on the streets, holiday camps and places of entertainment, and praying in the hall. Many holiday-makers were counselled and fourteen made decisions.

Before Christmas two ladies received wonderful healings from the Lord. One who was suffering from cataracts has not used glasses again since she was prayed for and she can see well. The other, who had constant heart trouble, has had no further trouble since she was prayed for. Praise the Lord!

WELLINGTON

Pastor: Malcom Frith, L.Th. (Lon), A.C.A.

IT is six months since Malcolm and Carol Frith left the blessings of Christchurch and moved north to Wellington, the first Elim Church in New Zealand. Over the years a proud succession of young people have gone from this church to the mission fields of the world and into the ministry, thus the church finds itself in the position of starting again.

A recent weekend house party mainly for young marrieds was a real blessing. Everyone got to know each other better. Pastor Ian Bilby led studies on the Holy Spirit. We are seeking a fresh move of the Holy Spirit and would appreciate your prayers.

WE remind Elim people, who are thinking of moving to this part of the world, that we have churches in these five centres in New Zealand. There are many opportunities for service and Christian work in each church. We will be pleased to hear from you.

TOKYO, Japan.

ELIM Missionary outreach by Pastor and Mrs. Frank Bickerton in Japan, where Frank works with a small evangelistic team, has recently seen much blessing. In pioneer campaigns, church-based campaigns with indigenous churches, youth outreach, and ministry at regular preaching points, the Lord has been giving the increase.

There is increasing interest in the contemporary charismatic move. Early in January 106 gathered for a two and a half day missionary men's conference on the work of the Holy Spirit. Practically every denominational group was represented. Frank has never known such a sympathetic understanding and interest from such a diverse group. The Holy Spirit was able to move freely and in a precious, ever-increasing way. Special meetings were set up for those wishing to wait upon God for His fulness and some received! A number of those attending report a deepening work in their lives.

At the end of January, Evangelist Don Odon of World Harvest Evangelism, who has recently arrived in Japan, spoke to a group of about twenty-five of those newly interested in the Spirit's current work. He spoke well on spiritual fulness and Divine Healing and some requested prayer afterwards.

This deepening interest and experience of many indicates a move into a new wave of blessing in this difficult and materialistic country. God keeps bringing the promise before Pastor Bickerton, "The desert shall blossom as the rose".

Pray for a divine move of revival power in Japan.

The passing of Mrs. R.E. Thorne

MRS. Rose E. Thorne, who died on February 12th, was well known to many of our Elim family. Her early days were spent in her home town of Romsey, where she was a member and a Crusader. She was known by her maiden name of Rose Lawrence. She later married one of our Ministers, Pastor A.S. Thorne, and together they served our churches for many years. The ways parted and, for their own personal reasons, they found their sphere of service in the Anglican church.

My wife and myself, with others we know and on behalf of many who still remember them, express our sympathy with the family in their sad and much-felt loss.

We came to live in the village of Banks, Southport, in July last year, and discovered that Rev. A.S. Thorne was the local Vicar. On our arrival he and his wife called to welcome us and to join with us in prayer and so paths that had parted came together again. We have enjoyed the renewed friendship of Mr. and Mrs. Thorne. What a splendid Christian she was. She combined the practical and the spiritual wonderfully. Her simple and constant faith in her Lord and her love for the Lord's work and the souls of men were beautifully consistent. It was a pleasure and a joy to know her and to share in some activities for Christ. She is now in His presence. Lovingly we salute her memory and say, "For ever with the Lord, Amen! So let it be!"

Another Slant

by Ken Smith

Pastor of our Erdington (Birmingham) Church

A SURVEY of Esso petrol stations' management and their attitude to stamps and promotions showed that they hate stamps, but in the society created by competition they are a necessary evil. I mentioned our Elim Missionary Society scheme for collecting Green Shield stamps for vehicles, but I got not one stamp, and that not for the want of trying. Green Shield has the overwhelming monopoly in this field; others tried too late to jump on the bandwagon. A permanent price cut in the cost of petrol would be preferable, but this is impracticable in the present economy, though I took some convincing. The survey ranged from one-man-pumps to massive stations employing large forecourt staff. Each managing director and site manager received a tract and a word of witness.

My usual quarterly architect's review came round recently. It included private practitioners and local authority architects. Each donated his fee to their benevolent scheme, which I thought was gracious. Private architects spent thirty minutes or less with me. The others had all day, but I had other work to do, including hospital visiting. Incidentally, one hospital phoned me at 4.20 a.m. to announce that one of my members had died at 4 a.m. I appreciated their co-operation, but I felt that it could have waited. I concluded that the sister must have been unmarried. If she was married, she cannot have two young boys, like us.

Getting round the Midlands interviewing and as evangelistic secretary, I am grieved by the closed churches and others adapted for commercial purposes. So often church buildings are available, but the money to purchase them is not so readily received. I always felt that the Elim Buildings Development Scheme ought to have been more enthusiastically received. The present "Helps" scheme is excellent. Have you sent your latest response? I must check too!

My experience must be multiplied time and time again by Headquarters brethren. I know of a beautiful church, strategically placed as to the overall pattern of the Elim work in the centre of a nearby town. Finance is the great problem. It seems a pity that church authorities will not sell at less than the commercial price, but Charity Commission regulations have to be borne in mind.

Presbyteries exist for expanding our work and to me at least the expanding of Elim's witness is God's work and ours. Is your Presbytery fulfilling its function by seeking to expand? Write to your District Superintendent or tell your minister if you know of a building available or of Elim people in a district where they have no assembly. Allow me to add this plea: "LET'S KEEP OUR GIVING WITHIN OUR ELIM FELLOWSHIP!" This is not denominational selfishness or narrow bigotry. Numerous worthy evangelical causes seek support from Elim people, but they have a much wider field than our restricted Fellowship from which to draw support. There are causes which one would not feel it wise to support, however sincere their ministry. One knows that money given to any department of Elim's work is acknowledged and accounted for. This may not be so with some societies which seek financial support from Elim people. By keeping our giving within our own Fellowship we could provide the necessary equipment and finance for both home and overseas enterprise, so that other sources would not be needed. If Elim members and friends do not support our work, who else will? The frustration of looking for halls, churches and openings to extend our work for God only to find that development is financially impossible is something to be experienced to be believed, and not pleasant at that.

For me, our Elim work, both locally and in its wider interests, is God's "storehouse". Money donated outside our Fellowship is that much less available to our Movement which seeks to use its finances wisely as faithful stewards of the Lord's resources.

Thoughts from the Book of Genesis

15. Abram and Melchizedek

by F. Lavender

LOT had been captured by Chedorlaomer following the unsuccessful revolt of the kings of Sodom and Gomorrah, but Abram, with a small band of friends and servants, had released his nephew. Following this battle Abram was met by Melchizedek who brought him physical and spiritual refreshing. From the account in Genesis and the further information in Hebrews 7, we learn a number of interesting facts.

"Melchizedek" means "king of righteousness" and the city where he reigned, Salem, means "Peace" so that he was literally "king of peace". He was without father, mother or genealogy and he had neither beginning of days nor end of life. He was made like unto the Son of God. His priesthood was not like Aaron's, which was ended by death. Because Melchizedek did not die, he has an unchanging priesthood. He united in himself the spiritual office of priest and the temporal office of king. Abram acknowledged his supremacy by paying tithes to him and Melchizedek showed his superiority by bestowing his blessing upon Abram, the friend of God.

Melchidezek is at least the most remarkable Old Testament type of Christ. We are Abraham's children by faith. The bread and wine speak of Him who is the "Bread of Life " sent down from heaven. In our times of trial and strain He comes to our succour (Hebrews 2:18; 4:16). We are engaged in spiritual warfare and we could so easily falter and faint by the way, but in tender love the Lord Jesus Christ, our Melchizedek, ministers to us so that our strength is renewed.

We welcome all our friends to the King Canute

by A.S.F. Horne
Pastor of our Ipswich Church

CANUTE was the son of a long line of pirate chiefs, but the Viking spirit in King Canute scarcely outlived his youth. His father, King Swain, was a pagan who hated Christianity. He died trying to destroy the Abbey of St. Edmundsbury.

Canute was distinguished as an earnest, devoted Christian sovereign. The absolute master of England, he reigned for nineteen years, not as a Danish conqueror, but as a patriotic Englishman. The outcome of the Danish conquest of England was not the establishment of a Scandinavian kingdom in the island, but the strengthening of Anglo-Saxon Christian power. England and Denmark became the most prominent and successful Christian nations in Europe. For nineteen years all was quiet and, for the first time for more than one hundred years, the Viking raiders were no longer dreaded. England enjoyed the blessing of profound peace for many years.

Kings make mistakes and Canute was no exception. He wrote, "I have vowed to amend my life in all respects, and to rule the kingdom and the people subject to me with justice and clemency and, if, through the intemperence of youth or negligence, I have hitherto exceeded the bounds of justice in any of my acts, I intend by God's aid to make an entire change for the better." I recall the words of Zaccheus, "Look, Lord, half of my property I'm giving to the poor, and if I've cheated anybody, I'm paying him back four times as much. Today salvation has come to this home, Jesus told him." (Luke 18:18, Beck). All was changed for these two men.

In The Letter to the English Nation a strict injunction was given to bishops and governors of the kingdom to take care that all church dues were paid punctually, i.e. God's tithe and the first-fruits payable to every parish church. Canute's Letter was worthy of King Alfred. It opened with the precept charging men to fear God and honour the king. Above all things, men should ever love and worship one God. The observance of the Lord's Day was earnestly pressed. On that day no popular assembly was to be held; there was to be no market and no hunting. Heathen superstitions were to be given up. How wonderful this is when we remember that Canute in his youth was a pirate chief and a descendant of a long line of pagan Vikings.

King Canute died in A.D. 1035. During his reign the traffic in slaves was denounced, as it was in Alfred's. English peasantry were commonly sold for slaves in Saxon and Norman times. Children were sold in Bristol market like cattle for exportation. Edward VI had a statute enacted that anyone who lived idly for three days should be brought before two Justices of the Peace and marked with a V with a hot iron. This vile trade was abolished by Austria in 1782 and by the French in 1794, but not until 1807 was slavery abolished throughout the British colonies, and not until 1834 was this act terminated and 770,280 slaves set free, 759 years after the death of King Canute.

There is another trade that I hate as much as the slave trade and that is the drink trade. It is holding and making slaves of millions of people. In 1971 this country spent over two thousand million pounds on drink. I would to God that our ministers and members would stand together and denounce this monster with no compromise. A lead must be given to the nation and the best way is by example by our Queen and all members of the Royal Family, by the Ministers of State and all church leaders.

It is said that, during the twenty-six years of the reign of Canute and his sons, no great Churchman arose in England. None was distinguished for great ability or originality, but plain, honest, God-fearing men did their duty quietly and unostentatiously. Their chief title to honour was the quiet influence for good that they exercised on the great Danish conqueror, Canute.

Our duty is to influence others for good. I believe that we shall influence others more by example than by doctrine alone. Paul wrote to Timothy "These things command and teach", the same word as in Acts 1:4, "Command . . . but wait for the promise of the Father". There would have been no Acts chapter 2 if they had not obeyed. Now we are beginning to see how important it is to obey. "Be thou an example in speech, conduct, love, faith and purity" (1 Timothy 4:12 Godspeed). In 1 Thessalonians 1:6,7 notice that "followers [imitators]" is said of Paul and of the Lord. God help us not only to be particular over our doctrines, but also as to how we live and order our lives, so that history will be repeated.

Three Measures

Words and drawing by Sheila Price

I WANT you to find Luke 13:21 in your New Testament. Jesus told the people about the kingdom of Heaven. He compared it with a woman placing some leaven in three measures of meal (v.21).

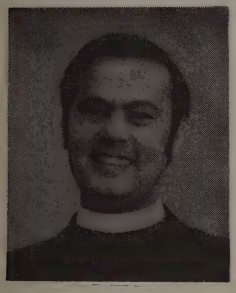
Why did Jesus mention three measures? Why did He not say two, or even four, measures?

This is what I think. Mary, the mother of Jesus, was a busy housewife, just like your mother. I expect your mother sets aside some time each week in which to do her baking and Mary, too, would have a baking day.

I can picture Mary standing at the table in her little Nazareth home preparing the mixture for her cakes and bread. I can imagine Jesus, when He was the same age as you are, running in from play and calling out, "Where are you, mother?" and Mary replying, "I'm in the kitchen."

I can think of Jesus hurrying up to the table and asking, "What are you doing, mother? What are you baking? Can I help you, mother?"

"Yes, you can pass me some flour, please."



"How much do you need, mother?"

"Three measures, please."

I can picture Jesus carefully measuring out three amounts of flour and pouring them into the mixing-bowl for His mother.

Many years later, when He was a man and telling the people about the kingdom of Heaven, I think He remembered that day when, as a child, He helped His mother with her bread-making. The three measures of flour came to His mind.

It is difficult to imagine Jesus as a young boy. The Bible tells us very little of His childhood, but Jesus lived and played in much the same way as children do today. It isn't too hard to picture Him as he helped His mother and asked His questions, is it? What do you think?

Faith's Anchor in a Shipwreck by David Ayling

One of a series of messages preached on Sunday evenings in the Ulster Temple, Belfast on the relevance of faith in the troubles in Ireland.

"I believe God, that it shall be as it was told me" (Acts 27:25).

WHEN Paul stated his faith and conviction as the ship swung at anchor in the idyllic setting of the anchorage at Fair Havens, it sounded as if he was whistling into the wind. The hearers shrugged their shoulders and put it all down to religious prejudice, but, when Paul stated his faith on the storm-washed decks of the same vessel, now stricken and breaking up off the rocks of Melita, he was so heeded that he was able to save everyone of his shipmates from a watery grave.

So it will always be. We must give our witness in season and out of season. There are times when all seems to be going well and no-one seems to listen. There are times, like these times, when we feel the ship of state sinking under our feet, when men are casting overboard all that they have trusted in for a lifetime, and still cannot find a way out of the storm. Then, too, we must raise our voices and cry in the face of the furies, "I believe God!"

Now is the time when men are looking for faith. Above the storm, let our voices be heard that, when everything else is giving way, we shout out the hope of triumphant faith. There is a deadly modern philosophy that suggests that it does not matter what you believe, as long as you believe in something. Nothing could be further from the truth. Paul was not the only one with cherished beliefs, but only his belief touched heaven.

Consider some of the false beliefs illustrated in the vessel and then the ingredients of real faith.

There were some who simply believed in established authority.

"They believed the master and owner of the ship." It seemed to be the most natural thing to do – to take the word of the ship's owner rather than that of the upstart prisoner, who simply refused to recognise his position. They touched their caps to authority with the discipline of soldiers without question.

The master and owner of this ship had very good commercial reasons for risking his ship. It was one of the grainships plying from Alexandria to Rome, laden with wheat. The longer the voyage lasted, the lower the commercial value of the cargo. Their business acumen demanded that they should sail. Everyone else fell in with their advice.

There are those who have established themselves as those whose word is heeded even when they speak on matters of faith, when in these realms they are utterly out of their depths. In the matter of revelation, true faith can bow to no other authority, but God and His Word.

There were some who believed in majority decisions.

"The more part advised to depart." God does not work by majorities. The godly have always been in the minority; it always seems that the ranks of evil overwhelm the thin line of the righteous. History shows again and again, however, that it is the man who knows his God who will "be strong and do exploits." If you are simply interested in hiding in the crowd and floating with the current tide of every opinion, you will never be able to say, "I believe God!"

Some believed in expediency.

"It was not commodious to winter in."

It did not have all the amenities of Alexandria. Lasea was not much of a city for spending time ashore. Fair Havens was its name but they wanted to find a better place than that in which to stay.

There are those whose whole interest is in lesser things. They would like to cast their anchors down somewhere, but there is always some reason why they should not trust God's promises and warnings now. The Church is too hot or cold. The preacher is too loud or you cannot hear him. He is too old or too young. The message is too general or too personal. All the time the real reason is that they do not want to trust God.

Some trusted in temporary advantages.

"The south wind blew softly". It always does. To the wilful soul the devil always makes sure that things seem to turn out well at the beginning. Jonah found a ship going to Tarshish. The Prodigal found plenty of friends in the far country who were willing to spend his money. The rich fool found that his ground brought forth plentifully.

They argued from the south wind that seemed to smile on their voyage, but it is not the beginning of the voyage that counts. It is the storm that is the test of your faith. "How wilt thou do in the swelling of Jordan?"

Some trusted in superstitious omens.

"They believed they had obtained their purpose". They looked upon that wind as a sign from the gods. Do not scorn them from the twentieth century when our scientific world is loaded with those who, with equal superstition, study avidly "what the stars say" and have an unhealthy interest in the occult. We show ourselves as pagan as any woad-covered worshipper bowing at Stonehenge. To them Paul's words were no more than just another portent or omen that they should follow or dismiss.

All their beliefs lasted until they reached the storm, when suddenly, "All hope . . . was then taken away." That is, all hope but one. The storm that blew away their wispy beliefs like morning clouds, only brought Paul's faith into its true element. Only in the storm did it reach its place of real usefulness. In the very storm in which they had given up hope, Paul enjoyed the visitation of the angel of God. Christ to the faith-filled heart is more real in the storm than out of it.

What are the ingredients of such a faith?

When you believe God you face facts.

It is the sinner, not the Christian, who is the real escapist when the storm breaks. The sinner has no answer, no anchor, no hope. He pretends that calamity does not exist. Do not think that finding real faith makes you abandon common sense. I notice that, after Paul had that remarkable vision on the boat, he set about sounding the depths, lightening the ship, preventing desertions, and feeding the mariners. He did all the things that they should have been doing all the time, but fear had robbed them of their senses. The man of faith should stand out in times of crisis. It should make you face the facts about the world, that without God, it is sinking, the seams are springing apart. In our Province we seek, as these mariners, to undergird the ship, to hold things together. We need a new vision from the throne to give us God's answer.

Faith makes you face facts about yourself, that you are a sinner and need salvation, that without God you have no hope

When you believe God you face the future.

The man with faith was the only one who could see a future at all. Where now were the eternal optimists? Where were those who relied on superstitious omens and signs? They were paralysed with the dread of the inevitable. Paul's vision saw beyond the sinking vessel; he saw a future secure in the providence and purposes of God. "Fear not, Paul; thou must be brought before Caesar" God told him.

The other Sunday evening we had a testimony here in the Temple from a young man maimed in the Abercorn explosion. He is now without legs, but he could say that his first thought, while awaiting rescue in the rubble, was to pray for those who did it. So the valiant in heart who trusts God sees beyond the storm the personal, present and eternal hand of God.

When you believe God you face God.

It is because you have faced God that you have faith. Paul did not wait until the shipwreck and then take faith, like one of those insurance policy machines that fill you with foreboding in the airport lounge before departure. Paul had faced God many years before, prostrate in prayer on the road to Damascus. The vision that filled his soul so long before still lingered. Everything that he had seen since, he had seen in the light of Christ's face.

Have you a faith that counts? Have you a belief that believes? Have you a Saviour who can make a storm a mere stepping-stone in following his purposes?

If we have, it is our duty and privilege to go out into the storm and to cry in the face of the fear and the panic of our city and our age, "I believe God!"

Forgive me, Lord

Forgive me, Lord, for all the foolish things I sadly do,
For time I waste with self instead of serving You
For all the occasions in my life that I have gone astray
For wandering in the world instead of going Thy way.

Forgive me, Lord, for all the times I answer Satan's call
And then cry out to Thee when I inevitably fall
Forgive me when these eyes of mine have been too blind to see
The better path, the way that You have paved for me.

Forgive me, Lord, when I have been too proud to speak of Thee
Too tired to speak of One who died on Calvary
Too weary to be refreshed by the Fountain's healing stream
Too taken up with self to spread Thy gospel theme.

Forgive me, Lord, when I turn to Thee in moments of distress
And then forget Thee when I find my happiness,
Lord, when I get too tired with burdening chores of every day
Forgive me if I fail to kneel at last to pray.

Oh, what poor, makeshift worship—
Small things of no great price!
How little I give Thee, Father,
By way of sacrifice!

But, trusting in Thy promise,
And leaning on Thy Word,
I stand alone, and ask Thee
Once more, forgive me, Lord.

Sheila Price

Happiness

by W. Crawford

Pastor of our Aberdeen Church

HAPPINESS was the first subject of the best-known sermon ever preached.

At the beginning of the Sermon on the Mount Jesus used the word "blessed" no fewer than nine times, and "blessed" simply means "happy". Perhaps this does not quite fit in with your impression of Jesus, but all the evidence is that, wherever God's Son was accepted, there was gladness.

Picture the delight of parents whose children He healed, the joy of the lepers He cured, the sparkle in the eyes to which He restored sight. His presence was an Eden to those whom sin had robbed of pleasure. Bliss must have flooded a life when He spoke forgiveness. A sense of well-being encompassed His followers.

This happiness is lavished, says Matthew 5:6, on those who "hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled."

By the river Ganges a young man asked one of India's holy men how to find God. Seizing him, the guru held him for long seconds under the water. While he gasped for air on being released, the old man said, "When you long for God as much as you longed for air when you were under the water, you will find Him."

Hunger for God is the great essential to finding Him. "All of your heart" must long for God and then He will find you.

True happiness is the consequence of a healthy spirit, and "a healthy spirit" is what our verse calls "righteousness". Perhaps you have thought that a lack of blatantly wicked acts puts you "in the clear", makes you free from sin. This is not so! Today in Northern Ireland there are some households whose members have never planted a bomb, or pulled a trigger, but they have harboured bombers and snipers. They have aided and entertained the guilty and must share the guilt for the murders and maimings.

In the same way your mind may have harboured evil and entertained sin, and your mind and spirit are polluted by it, for bitterness is the harbouring of violence, envy is the prelude to theft, lust is the nurturing of vice. "Why think ye evil in your hearts?" demanded Jesus of one group of men.

To enjoy God's happiness it is essential that we yearn earnestly for a healed, healthy spirit: that we long for it enough to pray: "Lord, heal my spirit, pardon my sin, and become my Saviour." Only when this longing produces such a prayer can real happiness begin as our nature is healed of guilt and God comes into our life (John 14:23).

To many unfortunates only alcohol or drugs seem to offer the promise of fulness, if only for a brief time. Without them life is dull and flat, and they so desperately want colour and depth in their experience that they end up hooked by habits which degrade. Others crave the applause of the crowd, the pat on the back. Only when they are popular do they find richness in their lives.

Jesus stated that hunger after a healthy spirit leads to permanent lustre in life: "They shall be filled."

The presence of Jesus in your soul gives the eternal dimension to life. Writing to people who had opened their lives to Christ, the Apostle Paul said, "You have come to fulness of life in Him" (Colossians 2:10, R.S.V.).

Happiness is available now to all who receive from the Lord Jesus Christ this inward health. Won't you pray now and invite the great Healer to come into your heart in all His fulness?

"Ask, and ye shall receive, that your joy may be full" (John 16:24; 17:13).

The Asokwa Sunday School

by Emmanuel Norbi

MANY will have heard of our Sunday school in Koforidua, Ghana. The blessing we experienced at the time was great. We questioned the affiliation with the Church of Pentecost at first because of the Koforidua Sunday school. This moving together meant that we had to leave and go to work in Kumasi, which involved leaving behind a Sunday school of approximately 250 children. After our move to Kumasi I travelled about 124 miles every weekend for ten weeks to supervise the Koforidua Sunday school until such time as Mr. Brian Cheal returned from leave when he and Stephen Tenobi took over from me. I am now convinced that what seemed an error was not one at all, for the Lord knew what He was doing and "we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to His purpose " (Romans 8:28).

When we settled down in Kumasi, Mrs. Mills and I decided not to sit down and remain idle. One Sunday morning we started the Kumasi Sunday school in the Asokwa Assembly with about seventeen children. Praise the Lord we now have 153 children and five members of staff. We have three classes. Class 1 has about seventy children, Class 2 has about forty, while Class 3 has forty-three. There is no doubt that the Lord has blessed us. Please pray for us that the Lord will supply more teachers in order that we may divide the school into smaller classes.

We had our first anniversary last November. The programme consisted of numerous songs in both English and Twi (the local vernacular). Other activities included reciting memory verses and action songs. Class 1 acted a play on the Bible story of the Ten Virgins. Class 2 acted a play on the theme of false prophets. False prophets are numerous in Ghana and we wanted to give a warning concerning them.

On Saturday January 19th we held our Christmas party. Rice and stew were provided, the rice donated by an Elder from the Asokwa Assembly. Mrs. Mills and Mrs. Scott (Mrs. Mills' mother) did the baking for the 153 children. Various games were played which the children enjoyed very much. These were followed by the eating and then a prizegiving ceremony. Prizes were given to children who had done well in their classes during quiz time and who were generally active in class. The party finished with a film entitled, "The small Wisdom of feeding Vultures", a Jungle Doctor story. Tired, but very happy, we said goodbye to the children at 7.30 p.m.

What a joy when one knows one is doing something for God! One's heart is at peace. Although sometimes, with the large number of children we have, the work is not at all easy, great is our joy when we see some of the children yield to the gospel and when we witness their lives being transformed.

What a tremendous opening in Ghana to reach out for children for God! Thank God the Church of Pentecost is seeking to extend her outreach among children and young Ghanaians are realising the need and catching the vision of working among boys and girls.

I extend my appreciation to all who have helped with prayer support or materials for our use. God is faithful because your efforts are yielding fruits.

Emmanuel Norbi has lived and worked with Pastor and Mrs. D.L. Mills for the last five years. He has caught the vision of child evangelism and has proved to be very helpful in this part of the work. He is now working with the Bible Society of Ghana, but he still lives with the Mills and works hard in the Sunday school at Asokwa, Kumasi, and wherever opportunities open up to preach the good news to boys and girls.

TEST YOUR BIBLE KNOWLEDGE

QUIZZES BY JOHN SEAMAN
Pastor of Wigan Elim Pentecostal Church

QUIZ NUMBER 110
THE CHRISTIAN'S ASSURANCE

Use your Bible to help you complete the following Bible verses.

1. " And we know . . ."—Romans 8:28.
2. " But we know . . ."—1 John 3:2.
3. " We know . . ."—1 John 3:14.
4. " We know . . ."—1 John 3:19.
5. " We know . . ."—1 John 3:24.
6. " We know . . ."—1 John 5:2.
7. " We know . . ."—1 John 5:15.
8. " We know . . ."—1 John 5:18.
9. " We know . . ."—1 John 5:19.
10. " We know . . ."—1 John 5:20.

ANSWERS

1. " And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God."
2. " But we know that, when He shall appear, we shall be like Him; for we shall see Him as He is."
3. " We know that we have passed from death unto life."
4. " We know that we are of the truth."
5. " We know that He abideth in us, by the Spirit which He hath given us."
6. " We know that we love the children of God."
7. " We know that He hear us, whatsoever we ask."
8. " We know that whosoever is born of God sinneth not."
9. " We know that we are of God."
10. " We know that the Son of God is come."

"Fear ye not, stand still"

(Exodus 14 : 13).

To many this " sitting still " may seem like laziness, and they may naturally think that nothing can be accomplished under such conditions. But we are only to sit still because God works. Our strength is never renewed in noise and bustle. These only weaken and waste it. Try it for yourself, dear reader. Only in the " silence of all flesh " can the " still small voice " be heard. A large part of the difficulty experienced by Christians in hearing the voice of the Lord arises, I am convinced, from the absence of this inward stillness. Our own internal clamour drowns His quiet speaking. We listen for His voice " in the wind " and " in the earthquake," expecting their thunder to sound above all our own clamouring, and because we are disappointed we complain that He does not speak at all, when all the while the " still small voice " of His love is waiting for the quiet in which it can be heard. I am convinced that there are many at this moment hungering for the voice of the Lord who would hear it at once if they would but " be silent before Him " for a little while. All the saints of old have insisted upon stillness as a necessity of true communion with God, and have exhorted their followers to cultivate it ; and every saint of the present day knows its value.

FIGHT EVIL

This is the Last Will and Testament

WITH A WILL !

Do not leave the distribution of your estate to chance. Here are some reasons why you should make a will:

1. It prevents misunderstanding over your intentions about your estate.
2. It provides opportunity for you to continue to exercise Christian stewardship.
3. It helps to avoid heavy expenses, which can sometimes drain away valuable assets.
4. It gives you opportunity to designate who shall benefit from your possessions.

You can show your gratitude for blessings received and also continue the fight against evil by making a gift to the Elim work in your will.

The following wording can be incorporated in a will or codicil:

I bequeath to the Elim Pentecostal Church, of 117 St. George's Road, Cheltenham, Glos, the sum of £ ..... free of duty for the general purpose of its work, and I declare that the receipt of the Secretary-General for the time being shall be a good discharge for the said legacy.

Is it not better to know that your possessions will be used for the Lord's work rather than be spent by those who have never honoured or revered His name ?

Sursum Corda

I PRICKED up my ears recently when I heard Rotherham mentioned in a radio talk on the serious increase in the number of suicides. It was suggested that the threat of redundancy in an area of declining industry may be partially responsible. I was saddened by this news, for I have always thought that my fellow-Yorkshire folk were too hard-headed and down to earth to indulge in self-pity and the dire extreme of self-destruction. The problem not only exists in one area or among one class of people, but also among all types and all ages. We read in our newspapers of a successful T.V. actor taking his life by hanging and a capable business executive found in the Thames, yet both these men had security, good home life and satisfactory careers.

I think of the clergyman who recently took his own life and of a teenage son of a doctor here in Wiltshire, who, it is suggested, was distressed because he had a low grade in his favourite subject in his school examinations and so ended his life. I do not wish to be unnecessarily gloomy, but we must face facts however disturbing and distressing. It is estimated that ten per cent of all hospital beds are occupied by would-be suicides. The stresses of life are such that many people are frustrated and fearful and others suffer from depression. I have sometimes wondered where is the point of no return for a poor tormented soul whose anguish can even over-ride the strongest human instinct, self-preservation.

It seems to me that in this unhappy world, faced with such appalling problems, the believer must brace himself and reassure himself that in God there are ample resources to carry him through. We have been forewarned by our great Friend and Saviour that a time of stress striking fear in many hearts is to take place before His return. The Christian's reactions must be unique, absolutely different from those of fearful unbelievers. Luke 21:25-28 contains no sense of dread or despair; various translations indicate the very opposite. We are to "hold our heads high", we are to "stand upright" and we are to "look up and lift up our hearts". This is a contrast to the attitude of the unbeliever! How comforting to have an uplifted heart instead of a failing, fearful one.

By an act of our will and by strong faith we can be fearless in heart. David cried, "I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me". Paul wrote triumphantly to young Timothy, "God has not given us the spirit of fear, but of power and of love and of a sound mind." Our faith backed by the Scriptures is able to stand up to the perils and pressures of today. In a world dominated by fear and gloom, we can by life and lip tell of our great hope. We can be good Samaritans in the truest, deepest sense. May we bring fresh hope and compassion to those who are sad and despairing and who need the good news of the Gospel.

Dear Friend and Father, grant us Thy sweet peace,
That perfect peace that comes from Thee alone,
No smaller gift than this we ask - Thine own
Sweet peace, dear Lord, grant us Thine own sweet peace.

We stumble along the narrow way,
Blinded with griefs, and burdened still with cares;
He halves his load who with the Father shares.
Send us Thy peace - Thine own sweet peace - we pray.

Increase our faith as troubles still increase,
As the world darkens let Thy glad light shine
Brighter within us, so we may have Thine
Own peace. Dear Lord, grant us Thine own sweet peace.

And when we fall, reach down Thy hand of love,
Reader of hearts, Thou knowest how oft we bear
The smiling face that masks the load of care,
Send us Thy peace, the peace of God's own love.

John Oxenham.

"Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee: because he trusteth in thee."

Self Help

by Adrian L. Hawkes

Pastor of our Grangetown (Teesside) Church

ACTION! - that's what we need! We live in a day when it is important to do, at least that is the impression that I get.

It seems to me that organisations for the betterment of man are on the increase, but do we get anywhere? More and more famine relief societies arise, yet there seems to be more and more famine. More and more helps for the homeless crop up and yet there are more and more homeless. More and more marriage guidance counsellors are available, but more and more marriages break up - one in four is the present running rate in Great Britain. We have more and more social security benefits and help, yet there seems to be more and more social unrest. Internationally there seems to be more and more talk about peace and how to stop war, and yet more and more war. The Psalmist in Psalm 60 says, "Give us help from trouble, for vain is the help of man." He was right then and he is now.

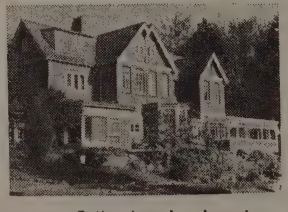
The problems of man do not lie in the practical administration of the helps, nor do we face in these days the need for more or better organisations. In all organisations - even in the Church - the problem is not one of better equipment, more money or even greater technology. What is it then?

The problem is that men are sinners. This makes us selfish. Selfishness produces exploitation of one's fellow-men. The real problem is not famine, war, marriage breakdown. The problem is the failure on man's part to recognise that he has a basic spiritual need.

Many still complain that the Church is not as involved as it should be in the myriad social helps of today. My complaint is different. It is that, in the many social helps, there is a complete lack of insight into the problem of spiritual need. Recently, I pointed out to a senior youth officer of a county that the county provides training in all sorts of skills, leadership, canoeing, filming, mountaineering, to name but a few. I asked, "What about meeting the spiritual needs of the youth of our county?" The reply was "That's nothing to do with us."

In a way he was right. It's to do with the Church. He is wrong, however, for unless the spiritual need, SIN, is met then nothing else will be in the right place. The whole effort will have meagre success, as experience is showing.

God has been given up as an out of date therapy. Some would have us believe that the Church should become a big welfare organisation. Perhaps this conception is due to our failure for we sometimes reduce God to just good advice.



God expects us to use our common sense, but, when people came to God, He did not just give good advice.

HE REALLY JOINED IN! For Moses, the Red Sea parted. For Joshua, the walls of Jericho fell down. At another time, the sun stood still. For the children of Israel, he provided clothes that didn't wear out and shoes with everlasting soles. The Shunammite woman had her son raised from the dead. Elijah saw fire from heaven. Nehemiah witnessed the softening of a heathen king's heart. Peter had the prison gate opened. Paul didn't die even when poisoned. Eutychus came back from the dead. The insane received their sanity. The sick were healed. MIRACLES were wrought for the people of God.

They were not puppets. We are expected to use what God has given us - our minds, our common sense, His good advice, but where is the God of miracles? Where is the God who never changes?

He is here! He is still just as able! He is waiting to be asked.

Scripture Union Portions — Notes by R.A. Gull

Monday, March 5th — John 3:22-36

"A man can receive nothing except it be given him from heaven." (v.27).

POPULARITY has always been a number one asset with most people.

When John the Baptist's followers began to go over to Jesus some became alarmed. John himself had no such ego problems. He was content to do what he was both called and equipped to do, using those gifts that he had received from heaven.

May the Lord grant us such a mind. Jealous of none and seeking no artificial aids, let us ask for and use only the matchless spiritual gifts from heaven.

Tuesday, March 6th — John 4:1-15

"Give Me" (vv.7,15).

WHEN Jesus said, "Give Me", this lonely woman of Samaria bristled with opposition. The prejudice of race (v.9), the practicalities of human experience (v.11), and the pride of tradition (v.12) exist in modern minds, too. Indeed, it ever seems to the human heart that God demands too much of us. "How is it that thou . . . askest . . . of me?" is ever man's indignant cry. Only when we compare God's gift and promise are those obstacles overcome, and we also cry "Give me"!

God give us today that gift of spiritual refreshment that shall ever be within us!

Wednesday, March 7th — John 4:16-30

"Give me" (v.15). "Go . . . and come" (v.16).

THERE is no break in the narrative here. Jesus was speaking a spiritual language. As earlier with Nicodemus, he was bridging the gap between mere conversation and meaningful conviction. The bridge is called, "Condition," and for the woman its message was first "Go", and then "Come".

The result of her startled obedience and final capitulation was her joyous use of the water that was already springing up into everlasting life, for "they . . . came unto Him" (v.30).

We would tread that bridge today, for the examination of self leads to a new experience with God.

Thursday, March 8th — John 4:31-42

"We believe . . . for we have heard Him ourselves, and know" (v.42).

IN these days, when men often glory in knowledge at the expense of faith, it is reassuring to read: "We believe . . . and know". Like Peter, we also declare that, "We have believed, and have come to know" (R.S.V.).

Faith in God's declared Word is not blind; it is reliance upon the character of One whose name is Truth. The more we trust, the more we are assured. It is faith first, assurance after!

How much more is this true when we can say, "We have heard Him ourselves", the One who said, "My sheep know My voice."

Friday, March 9th — John 4:43-54

"The man believed the word" (v.50); "He and his entire household believed . . . on Jesus" (v.53, Amplified Bible).

WE read these meaningful words elsewhere: "From faith to faith."

In this report there is a joyous deepening of faith. The father first believed that Jesus would do as He said he would do; he later believed that Jesus was who he said He was!

Strangely enough we, who claim to believe in Jesus, often doubt His word. Far from seeking only "bread" we often don't even expect it at all!

Saturday, March 10th — John 5:1-18

"Sir, I have no man" (v.7).

IF Jesus was disappointed with this reply, He did not show it.

Were those words a polite invitation to Jesus to be that Man? He fanned into flame faith like barely smoking flax. To a trembling reed He gave the strength of eternity.

"That I thirst not, neither come hither to draw" had been a similar misinterpretation, but again the Lord did not despise that meagre faith. He nurtured it to greater expectancy.

We cry with one of old, "Lord, help my unbelief."

Sunday, March 11th — John 5:19-29

"The hour is coming, and now is" (v.25).

THIS is a wonderful proclamation to a world that is rapidly running out of time. Now indeed is the fulness of time!

Whether it is for salvation (John 4:22,23), for spiritual refreshing (4:10), or for bodily restoration and spiritual life (5:25), the hour now is. Jesus came to change the past tense of divine promise into a triumphant present.

May we keep the timepieces of our spiritual lives and experiences fully wound. May we ever live in God's hour, in the continuous present perfect of His gracious promise.

A Pardon in his Pocket

by Tony Williams

Pastor of our West Bromwich Church

The year was 1830. George Wilson stared blankly ahead as he thought of what would happen in the next few hours. His eyes met only the unsympathetic bars and locks which imprisoned him. He had been indicted for robbing the U.S. Mail and almost killing a driver, and, though he had pleaded that he was innocent, he had been tried and sentence had been passed . . . death!

The then President, Andrew Jackson, had received a recommendation for Wilson's pardon and had granted it. It had already been delivered, but George Wilson refused to accept it and walked out to his execution with a pardon in his pocket! Why? Because he refused to acknowledge his guilt. He rejected his only means of life.

The Bible says that the whole human race is guilty. All have sinned and come short of God's standard (Romans 3:23). People resent being called sinners, so they plead "not guilty".

The Bible further states that God's Son, Jesus Christ, died in the place of every sinner and that God is prepared to pardon everyone, because of that one death on the cross.

According to the law books, a pardon is an act of grace (meaning that you didn't do anything to deserve it), proceeding from the proper authority and freeing the guilty one from punishment. It must be delivered and accepted! It can be rejected. If this is done, there is no power in court to force it upon the individual. It is strange that people insist that they are "not guilty" (i.e. not sinners), because not one person in the world can say that he has not done wrong in thought, word or deed!

History can call witness after witness to prove that humanity is guilty . . . war, want, disease, envy, pride, lust, greed, malice, hate, and the list could be extended . . . but God has made an offer so great that it is beyond description: "He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation but is passed from death unto life".

God offers his pardon, but it is only in acceptance that the pardon becomes effective. The cross recognises no rival. It is not A WAY to God, it is THE way.

George Wilson walked from life to death, you can walk from death to life . . . TODAY!

WHEN I visited the Devon and Cornwall Presbytery recently, I was privileged to preach at a fine rally at our Plymouth Church. A brother from Newquay gave a simple but very moving testimony of healing. Weight was lent to his words by the almost diffident manner in which he spoke. He had been wonderfully delivered of cancer, largely as a result of the prayers of his wife and himself and he is now rejoicing in his ability to live a normal life.

Two things struck me very forcibly. One is that I am convinced that far more answers to prayer take place in our churches than would seem to be the case. Only a tiny proportion of those who are delivered in one way or another ever have their testimonies published or ever even think of submitting them for publication. Experience shows us that Church Reports is the most popular feature in our magazine and regular readers will no doubt have observed that they often include really outstanding answers to prayer. They reflect the normal, regular life of our churches.

The other thing which dominated my thinking was the simplicity of it all. Lurid headlines, sky-shaking signs, noisy demonstrations - all such were totally absent and not even thought of. God had definitely moved, however, in a way which can only be described as miraculous.

There is surely a great secret here. What is supernatural to us is natural with God. What is miracle to us is but the expression of His loving, ever-present power. The normal atmosphere of the Early Church is shown in so many places in the Acts of the Apostles to be one of expectant faith on the part of God's own.

We plead for more and more opportunities for people to come into touch with God's power. Our meetings are often characterised by wonderful movings of the Holy Spirit and our desire and heart-felt longing should be that every meeting should be like this. Merely going through the routine of services is not enough. We need the power and demonstration of God the Holy Ghost to be in evidence.

We welcome very much the articles in this issue drawing attention to the authority of the Lord Jesus Christ. When He is lifted up and adored God is surely able to move.

WOOLWICH Pastor Lyndon Jones

WE recently celebrated forty years in the present building in Crescent Road. Elim first came to Woolwich in August, 1932. Pastor A. Longley was the first minister. In February, 1933 the work moved from New Road to the present site. Although things were slow at the start, the work grew and was soon established. Pastor and Mrs. H. Haith followed. They held many open-air meetings in Beresford Square in the centre of the town. During the second world war, Woolwich being a garrison town, soldiers were invited to the meetings and many were converted. We owe much to Mrs. Colton (nee Slade) for many years of faithful service in the Sunday school as Superintendant. Though the Sunday school became depleted during the war owing to the children being evacuated it never closed down. In recent times, ministry was provided by Pastors J.J.B. Hounsome and A.R.T. Whittall. Our present Pastor has been here since September 1970.

The celebration week-end started with a tea at which an inscribed clock and a lovely bouquet of flowers were presented to Mr. and Mrs. W.R. Laws in appreciation of forty years of faithful service. Mr. Laws has served as treasurer and deacon, and Mrs. Laws as missionary secretary, and both as Sunday school teachers.

Pastor L.W. Green's ministry was such a blessing. Even the smallest child understood the Gospel message at the prize-giving service on Sunday afternoon.

The local newspapers The Globe and The Kentish Independent gave editorial space concerning our anniversary. This co-operation has not been easy to obtain in the past.

Regarding the local television channel, we feel a great responsibility, not only as Pentecostal Christians, but also as members of the Elim family. Since our last report, we have had several opportunities to take part in religious broadcasts. Each programme is recorded during the week and televised at Sunday lunch time. The Bishop of Woolwich, the Rt. Rev. David Shepherd, was interviewed in December about his mission work in East London, and our Pastor was asked to speak for a few minutes. He also had the opportunity to conclude with a short Gospel message.

The producer of these programmes, a local Evangelical Minister, Michael Bentley, heard of our fortieth anniversary week-end and invited us to take most of the half-hour on January 28th for a programme entitled Cablevision looks at the Pentecostal Church in Woolwich. Mr. and Mrs. Laws told of the beginning of Elim in Woolwich and gave their testimonies. A question and answer time with Pastor Jones regarding Elim's teaching on salvation, healing and the baptism with the Holy Spirit plus singing items from Carol and David Tattersall followed.

16,000 local subscribers are now linked up to receive Cablevision, but the company cannot get much response to its programme favourable or otherwise. They were encouraged when they received enquiries after this programme. Please pray with us for this unusual opportunity that has come to us to bring the gospel into the homes of the unsaved, that we may know the anointing of the Holy Spirit and be used of God.

OUR Sunday school children have always been encouraged to praise the Lord. Many have graduated into the youth group and the Church,where they have continued to accompany the chorus singing with their timbrels. From this was born an ardent desire to become more professional in their worship of the Lord. Their tremendous determination encouraged them to enlist the help of a local Salvation Army young lady, who agreed to train them in rhythm and co-ordination. Their inspired playing has provided avenues of service for the Master, never envisaged by these dedicated young people. Request for their ministry has led them into welfare centres and to many of our Churches. A local paper published an article and a photograph of their ministry. We praise God for the eagerness of these young people to share with others the joy of salvation. We praise God for a wonderful Sunday School prize-giving service. Nearly sixty books were given to the boys and girls. Many parents heard the word of God preached by Mr. T. Barlow.

Elim Festival Songster No. 13, compiled by Douglas B. Gray. Published by Elim Publications Board, Price 15p (postage and packing 3p extra), ten copies and over 12½p each (postage and packing extra).

"A CALL For Loyal Soldiers" introduces Elim Festival Songster No. 13. In good tradition the contents are uplifting and inspiring. Giving needy material for choirs and groups, this fine collection offers a wide scope for singing ministry. Exultant praise, encouragement in Christ, devotional messages and inspiration for the future are sufficient subjects for melody teams who are anxious to uplift the Saviour. The fine talent which is bringing glory to the Lord in our Elim churches and stimulating the faith of many could use this series to great advantage and the final approbation will be the number of the redeemed who are saved because of the faithful witness in song.

Prayer and Praise

by F. H. Coleman

WILLIAM Cowper is said to have suffered from melancholia. Fits of depression caused him to sink to the depths of despair.

During a severe time of depression he felt that, although he was a Christian, he could endure life no longer. He decided to commit suicide by throwing himself into the River Ouse which flowed through the town where he lived. On leaving his home, he hailed a horse-drawn cab, and ordered the driver to take him to the river. As they proceeded through the town, suddenly a dense fog descended. The driver of the cab made his way slowly, but he could not find the river. The cabby decided that he could go no further and advised Cowper to seek accommodation at a nearby house.

Cowper left the cab and found the front door of a house. By the light of a match he found to his amazement that he was standing before his own street door! Entering the house, he went up to his study, sat down and penned the words of the well-known hymn:

God moves in a mysterious way
His wonders to perform;
He plants His footsteps in the sea,
And rides upon the storm.

It is possible that some who read this column may suffer from fits of depression. They may have been advised to "snap out of it." Alas, this is easier said than done, but we know of One who came to set us free. His name is Jesus. He is the great Emancipator Look to Him for your freedom! Tell the Lord all about it. The hand of the Lord is not shortened that He cannot save, nor His ear dull that He will not hear you.

Letter to the Editor

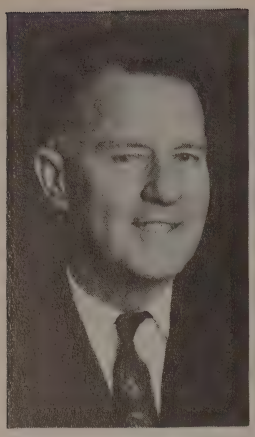
Dear Mr. Editor,

IN view of the knowledge and regard we all have for our brother, David Hathaway, I draw attention to the passage from Hansard regarding questions asked in the House of Commons on January 29th. I have seen our M.P., Mr. John Osborn, and have also written to him. He sent me the relevant questions and answers as recorded in Hansard.

The matter for concern is that the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, Mr. Anthony Kershaw, stated that he had received only sixty-one letters about Mr. Hathaway. Brother Andrew, of the book, God's Smuggler, declares that the thing to which the Communist countries are most sensitive is the weight of protest against their treatment of people, particularly foreign nationals. I would appeal through your good ofifces and our ELIM EVANGEL for a deluge of letters to Mr. Anthony Kershaw, Secretary of State for Foreign and commonwealth Affairs, House of Commons, London, SW1A OAA.

Remembering the command of our Lord Jesus Christ to go into all the world (Matthew 28:19) and to be His witnesses to the uttermost parts of the earth (Acts 1:8), we should applaud the courageous action of our brother Hathaway. I am sure he would do nothing knowingly that had political overtones. Let us never forget the Communist attitude towards religion. Lenin said that Marxism is relentlessly hostile to religion, and Geoffrey Bull, imprisoned as a missionary in China, says: "When you go into prison for any Christian activity, you are not so much accused for being a Christian but of doing things that are against the people ... that is, against the Communist State".

Let me urge you to write TODAY and protest against this vicious imprisonment.



ARTHUR V. GORTON

(The Secretary-General applied some two months ago to the Czechoslovakian authorities for a visa to enable him to visit David Hathaway in Prague. At the time of writing no such visa has come through.) EDITOR

They shall cast out Demons

Pastor Paulo recalls

ONE evening some years ago, a Moslem (identifiable by his fez and gown) asked to see me urgently. Soon he was pouring out his sad tale of many years of demon possession. He said, "I have been to many Moslem priests, some read the Kitab (holy book), others made spells. I have used my cattle to pay many witch doctors. See - here are their charms! My condition has got worse. I cannot retain food. All night I cry out and wrestle with demon visitors. If I fall asleep for only a moment, I have fearful nightmares. You can see for yourself how emaciated I am. Recently I went to the Roman Catholic mission. The father was very kind. He gave me a written prayer to read to the demons. As I read the prayer to the demons they laughed in derision. Can I get help in your church against my demons?"

I began to witness of the salvation in Yesu, His power to cleanse all sin, His mastery over all demons. At once, the man cried out, "I have need of this gospel." I perceived that he had a mind to be saved, but he was a sick man. First we must deal with the demons.

I called some of the brethren and we took him into the church. There, while we cut off the charms he wore, each one signifying dedication to a particular demon, I explained to him that we were convinced that he wished to give his life to Yesu. We would pray for him that Yesu would deliver him completely from the demons and all their power. This we did and he went home and to bed. The next morning he had to be awakened from his long, undisturbed and refreshing sleep. He arose a new man and testified to everybody. When his wives and children saw what Bwana Yesu had done for him and heard him testify to Yesu his Saviour, they too turned from the dead prophet Mohammed to serve the living Saviour.

How thankful we are that the message concerning God and His son came in Pentecostal fullness! We do cast out demons!

Do not disturb

(Jeremiah 33:14)

More than a hundred years ago an infidel died in Hanover, Germany. Before his death he ordered that above his grave several large slabs of granite should be placed, bound together with iron bands. Above it all should be hung a huge stone block weighing almost two tons. It was done. On one stone the inscription was put: "This grave is purchased for eternity; it shall never be opened." Somehow, a little poplar seed was enclosed in the mould within the tomb, A little shoot found a crevice between the iron-bound slabs. Its hidden power broke the iron bands asunder and moved every stone out of its original position. The whole structure is displaced completely and the grave opened. The tree still lives and wavesits branches over the rent sepulchre. If a little seed can burst open a grave, how much more can an omnipotent power make good His promise!

An outline "Be ye separated"

(2 Corinthians 6:17,18; Exodus 8:25-32; 10:7-11; 24:29; 12:31,32)

IN the compromises Pharaoh offered we are reminded of "the wiles of the devil"

In C.S. Lewis's Screwtape Letters, the senior demon chides the junior for allowing the young man to become a Christian. "But all is not quite lost; we can't reverse it, but we can minimise and negate it" he adds.

1. "Go sacrifice in the land". No need to leave Egypt. Religious tolerance. Don't be narrow-minded. "We will go three days". A clean break.
2. "Go, but not very far away". A concession. The appearance of separation at least. No need to go to extremes. As they say, "Moderation in all things".
3. "Go but leave the little ones". A kindly thought! But Pharaoh knows that, where the family is, the man will be. Don't ram religion down their throats. Let them choose for themselves. They rarely object to atheistic day-school or Hollywood propaganda being rammed down their throats!
4. "Go but let the flocks and herds stay". Leave your possessions out of it. No need to bring in business matters. Keep them separate from religion. But our possessions are also to be set apart.
5. Unconditional Separation, and a prayer for all who oppose us!

"Not a fragment, but the whole, shall be Thine, dear Lord".

An incident Little Joe

LITTLE Joe had polio. Someone took him to Sunday school, but the teacher neglected him. Young people ridiculed him and avoided him because of his crippled condition. As a result, he discontinued going and left with a hatred of the church and Jesus Christ. Continuing his studies, he finally earned a doctorate from Heidelberg University. One day a man slipped his arm around him saying, "Joseph, I think a lot about you; we could do much together." The young man responded warmly to this attention and encouragement, and, in time, Joseph Goebbels became the propaganda minister for that man, Adolf Hitler! If that Sunday school teacher and those young people had cared more, Joseph might have become a minister of the Nazarene instead of the Nazis!

"If ye have respect to persons, ye commit sin, and are...transgressors." (James 2:9)

A quotation "Search me, O God"

"I WAS born with music in my system. I knew musical scores instinctively before I knew the A B C. It was a gift of Providence, so I deserve no thanks for the music. Music is too sacred to be sold. I never look upon the money that I earn as my own. It is public money. It is only a fund entrusted to me for proper disbursement. I feel morally guilty in ordering a costly meal, for it deprives someone else of a slice of bread, perhaps a child of a bottle of milk. My beloved wife feels exactly the same way about things as I do."

Thoughts from the Book of Genesis

16. Abram's Shield and Reward (Genesis 15:1)

by F. Lavender, Pastor of our Croydon church

SOMETIMES, as with the prophet Elijah (1 Kings 19: 4), a great victory can be followed by a bad reaction. It seems that something like this must have happened to Abram. When Chedorlaomer realised how weak was the force which defeated him, would he return with his army to destroy Abram? Was Abram wise to have rejected out of hand the magnificent reward offered by the king of Sodom? Then the Word of the Lord came to strengthen and to reassure Abram. The Lord is the Almighty, so who could hurt Abram if the Lord was his shield and protector? If heaven and earth belonged to the Lord, how rich was Abram if He Himself was his exceeding great reward?

The Lord continually protected Abram from his enemies and He made abundant provision for Abram's needs.

The people around us are desperately anxious about protection for themselves and their families from things that menace their security, and about making all the money they can because of the things money can buy and the power it wields. Christians should remember that Abram's God is our God and that He has promised that He will never leave us nor forsake us (Hebrews 13:5). The Psalmist said: "The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want" and: "I will fear no evil; for Thou are with me". We ought not to be dominated by the hopes and fears of the world, therefore, but our Christian faith should be demonstrated by our constant, humble trust in the Lord, our almighty God. He will both protect us from all evil and supply our needs from His glorious wealth (Philippians 4:19).

Jesus is Lord

by Ramon Hunston

Notes of an address given in our Cardiff Church

THE lordship of Christ is the central fact of faith and as such averts the danger of depersonalising doctrine. The Scripture describes Christ as the Healer and the Baptiser in the Holy Spirit and with other such titles which emphasise the lordship of Christ as the central theme of truth. His lordship is not in the future only; He is Lord NOW. It is a present fact and the future will be the total revelation of it.

The Scope of His Lordship

Jesus said that all power (authority) was given unto Him. When He taught He spoke with authority, for He is the total revelation of truth. Words did not fall from His lips like insipid platitudes of ethical values, but as powerful, living truth.

When confronted with evil spirits, His word was of supreme authority (Mark 1:29). He commanded unclean spirits and they departed. Even those dark fiends knew Him, His eternal character and their future judgment at His hands.

There is no sphere in which the authority of Jesus is not recognised; even judgment has been given into His hand (John 5:26,27). Men marvelled at His authority over creation. He called to the winds and rebuked the sea and those who were with Him were astonished that even the winds obeyed Him.

The lordship of Christ was never in question, even at His death. He said, prior to Calvary, "I have power to lay down my life and I have power to take it again". Jesus Christ did not enter the cold portals of death in order to become the Lord of life; as Lord of life He plundered that dark region of its victory.

He conquered death before He died. When death touched an innocent child, He raised her to newness of life. When a young man in the vigour of health was struck down in the city of Nain, He stopped the funeral procession and raised the widow's son.

When death had begun to work out its natural consequences in the body of Lazarus, He requested that the stone be rolled from the mouth of that grave and, from the foetid stench of corruption, He raised Lazarus.

When Jesus Christ rose from the dead Himself, it was to reveal His total conquest. He rose from the grave to wave aloft the tattered shreds of what death had been, "for it was not possible that He should be holden of it". Jesus Christ is Lord of all. This is the source of all strength, the pivot of faith and the centre of the worship of His Church.

The Titles of His Lordship

The New Testament describes Jesus in many ways. He is called the Lord of the living and of the dead (Romans 14:9). His own victory and resurrection give Him the title of "First Begotten of them that slept", because, in His resurrection life, He will never again step into the darkness of death. He was raised after the power of endless life and as Lord He ensures that, for the Christian, to be absent from the body is to be present with the Lord.

He is Lord of the Church. John on the Isle of Patmos saw Him as Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end of all. To the Church, He is the Author and Finisher of our faith. It is of great encouragement to recognise that our fellowship in Christ is in HIS Church and that our efforts in evangelism are in the context of His own statement: "I will build My Church." The Church is described as a body, while Christ, who is its Head, is truly Lord of the Church.

Peter describes Him seated at the right hand of God on high as the Lord of the angels (1 Peter 3:22). These bright beings clothed with eternal radiancy are stated to be ministering spirits sent forth to minister to them who are the heirs of salvation (Hebrews 1:14). They are sent forth by Him who cares for and preserves His Church. Paul, writing to Timothy, encourages him by portraying Jesus Christ as the Lord of all things.

The Church does not apologise for her obsession with the fact that Jesus Christ is Lord, for it is the totality of her hope and the might of her witness.

The Greatness of His Lordship

Although Jesus Christ has been described as the incomparable Christ beyond any human description, nevertheless the New Testament expresses His lordship by comparison. The total wisdom of His words and purposes sets Him out as being greater than Solomon (Luke 11:31). In the lifetime of Jesus, the glory of the Temple was to the Jews the superlative expression of majesty, but in Matthew 12:6 Jesus stated that He was greater even than the Temple. In honour He is greater than Abraham, in blessing greater than Isaac, in leadership greater than Moses – He is Lord of all!

His nature and personality meant that He could not be anything else but Lord of all. He was Master of every situation in His earthly life. There was no disease that He could not defeat. There was no problem beyond His intelligence. There was no need that exhausted His power. There was no query that caused Him bewilderment. In His earthly life He was Lord of all. In His death He broke even the thraldom of sin and in His resurrection He trampled under foot all the dark design of evil.

Peter on the day of Pentecost said that "God hath made that same Jesus . . . both Lord and Christ". For every Christian heart, the conquering Saviour is not only a future hope, the lordship of Christ is not only a truth for future eternity, God has made Him Lord NOW!

In the spirit of this truth we reach out in evangelism for the souls of men, undeterred by the problems of our modern society, undismayed by the vastness of the task before us, unafraid of the opposition to truth, for the One whom we serve is Lord of all.

In the present-day outpouring of the Holy Spirit there is displayed the astonishing quality of the lordship of Christ as the Baptiser in the Holy Ghost. The prophecies concerning the outpouring of the Holy Spirit in the latter days were that it would be upon all flesh. National differences, social strata and religious denominations were to be no barrier to the mighty move of the Spirit of God. In these days we are seeing the beginning of an amazing outpouring of God's Holy Spirit. Although we are living in a materialistic age, an age of high education, of low morality and of godlessness, such conditions as these not being congenial to a spiritual awakening, yet, in these last few years, there has come a world-wide movement of God's Holy Spirit which has transcended such human limitations.

We would have deemed this outpouring to be impossible a few years ago. The central theme of a Holy Spirit ministry will ever be the lordship of Christ not least in these exciting days of Pentecostal outpouring. Spiritual signs are heralding the last days and we can only repeat with Peter on the day of Pentecost, "He hath shed forth this which ye now see and hear". It is imperative that His Church should recognise in these days the movement of God's Holy Spirit which exalts our blessed Lord.

That He is Lord of all is the spur to advance in evangelism by faith, since our victory is assured by the fact that at this present moment Jesus Christ is Lord.

MR. Robin Day reported on T.V. on February 11th, in "The Sunday Debate" programme, that only 20% of correspondence approved the "Permissive Society", 55% rejected it out of hand, and 25% "didn't know". From these figures it could cogently be argued that 80% of the population either reject out of hand or do not spontaneously align themselves with the current permissiveness. This links up with similar figures, some 85%, of parents who still wish their children to have a christian-based education.

People with insight into what goes on behind the worldly scene - wrestle against the evil powers in heavenly places - know something of how the Devil has used his dedicated but deluded minority to undermine the influence of the Christian faith and all it stands for. As the Lord has His dedicated minority, sold out for Him, so the Devil has his dedicated minority sold out for him. In between the two extremes are those who are influenced either way by the current climate of opinion. There is no doubt that the British Humanist Association tiny in minority though it be, and its fellow-travellers, have been used very effectively to increase social permisssveness though admittedly the traitors in the Church who deny the Bible and their Lord prepared the way by their assault on the Word of God in undermining the foundations of Truth;

It is now up to those who believe that society has been degraded by an evil-minded, Devil-inspired minority to stand up and be counted. This is no time for half-heartedness. God's praying minority have done much - they have responded to God's call for "a man to stand in the gap" when the forces of evil were breaking through - but now is the time for that silent majority of some 80% to stand up and be or the "God is dead"

by H.W.Gree

STRANGE though it may seem, this article must begin with a disclaimer. It concerns the title. Our theology as fundamentalists does not even conceive of such a God-dishonouring fantasy as is now popular among a small group of so-called radical theologians. There is no "Corpse in Paradise", for the eternal nature of the Almighty is not a figment of the academy, but is the revelation of His Word.

We have reached a phase of experience, however, where an aura of despair surrounds much modern religious teaching following the slanging match among those who profess realism of approach to the problems of our technological age. There is a smell of death in the air, as indeed there might be, for all around are reminders of decay and the final dissolution. A recent commentator on the BBC spoke rather lightly of the death of the £5 note, which, though passed over without discussion, reminded us sharply of the speed of inflation and of the danger to our way of life. Students of ecology tell us that life in the soil, in the sea and on the land is steadily dying: in the case of insect and marine life by pesticides and atomic radiation, in the case of man himself by self-imposed environmental asphyxiation. We are shocked as our morality has been given a death blow from the very centres of jurisprudence, where pornographic publications are no longer condemned as obscene. In one case Dame Edith Sitwell was constrained to write in The Times Literary Supplement: "The public canonisation of that insignificant, dirty little book" was "a signal to persons who wish to unload the filth of their minds on the British public." Even home life, once the bastion of honourable character, is dying as lax views on marriage and the ease with which divorce proceedings are hurried through the courts become more commonplace.

Having noted the irresistible descent to doom we discover the whole human family huddled beneath a menacing shadow more horrific and widespread than has ever been known before. Here is the tragic paradox – with the death rattle in its throat, society, with the curiosity of the rabbit for the ferret, is fascinated by the very terror of impending destruction. Not that most of our loving mums and dads are entirely free from responsibility in the fearful education of their offspring. Imagine if you will the modern Christmas scene at the super-store. Benevolent Father Christmas stands at the door of the toy department, on the shelves of which there are often more guns, uniforms, 'planes, in fact all the impedimenta of the mass murder business, than there are woolly dolls and cuddly animals, while in the background there emerges the sound of canned carols from the P.A. system giving cheap acknowledgement to the Prince of Peace. On Boxing Day a group of children come charging along the street wearing battle uniforms and cowboy outfits, blazing away with their rifles, pistols and sub-machine guns. Toys? Yes! Would that it could remain a childish game! The real thing is too loathsome to contemplate.

It is not suprising, therefore, that, having conditioned ourselves to the death scene, some of our theologians streamline their doctrines to the putrefying breezes. They adopt doctrines of despair in relation to God Himself. In frantic efforts to solve the problem of the silence of God they revive the creed of Friedrich Nietzche who, eighty years ago, declared: "The greatest recent event – that 'God is dead', that the belief in the Christian God has ceased to be believable – is even now beginning to cast its first shadow over Europe." Though Nietzche did not expect his idea to be accepted for a long time, the rapid advances of modern philosophies and the problems they present have turned the minds of radicals to the belief that God no longer exists to control the affairs of this tiny globe and its inhabitants: they have even adopted the illogical title Gospel of Christian Atheism of T.J.J. Altizer, which Richard Wolff describes as "linguistic nonsense". Anglican Bishop J.A.T. Robinson, in his controversial book Honest to God, which startled Christendom, has, in the minds of many churchmen, given credence to this dishonouring concept.

With God safely laid out in a utopian funeral parlour man began to feel easier in his conscience. As he stood proudly surveying the wonderful world he had made, his guilt complexes faded into insignificance. It is not suprising, therefore, to find humanism developing as an alternative to the divine revelation. Maldwyn Edwards describes humanism as a "ragbag of a word. It only means, in essence, that man is the measure of man. Man is the architect of his own destiny."

Society is at the crossroads of time. In one direction is Utopia, in the other is annihilation. This is the climax of our performance in science, medicine, surgery, and engineering. Man is master of all, even of his own body, which he is able to dissect to provide spare parts for other members of the human species. Knowledge has increased and spread its influence through lightning calculators and the mass media. Travel has advanced to the stage where the world is so reduced in size as to create a feeling of terrestrial claustrophobia, hence recent journeys to the moon. These adventures serve only to demonstrate man's limitations in an area measured, not in feet and inches, but in vast light years. He begins to tremble with uncertainty; he is not so sure about that corpse in paradise after all.

It is a strange anomaly, that, having studied theology for a number of years with the greatest care and critical acumen, we should have turned full circle in our discussions to find ourselves beside the centurion with his "God is dead" hypothesis. For let us make no mistake about it, if Christ is dead, God is dead, and, if God is dead, Christianity has no place in the universe apart from its moral codes, most of which are now rejected by a permissive generation. Like the bewildered Roman soldier our stab in the dark to explain our fading beliefs and miserable agnosticism leaves unanswered all the questions that man has been asking from the dawn of creation.

To the observer at the cross it seemed a reasonable explanation of the Good Friday phenomenon. Something about the crucified Nazarene, His head falling forward as He gave up His life, touched a chord in the pagan's mind. Jesus was no criminal, no ordinary man, no quack peddling useless nostrums, no political zealot stirring up His fellow-countrymen. There was only one category into which He could be fitted: He was the Son of God. He could not be the Son of God now, for He was dead! His deity must be described in the past tense!

Pity the man in his confusion. Conflicting ideas are revealed in his brief confession. Jesus had been the Son of God: He had performed miracles, had taught ennobling ethics, and there was the strange atmosphere with the fearful darkness of that terrible day, but now He was no more, He had succumbed in the encounter with death. As the soldier watched the drama come to its close, saw the Victim bleeding from the crown of thorns and the open side, and heard the agonising cry from His parched lips, "My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?", he affirmed his belief in the great Teacher dying there as the late departed Son of God – He was the Son of God, now dead, martyr to a good but lost cause.

If only we knew something of the subsequent history of this man! Did he meet Jesus after the resurrection? Did he ever hear that Jesus had emerged from the tomb? The blaze of that discovery would have dispelled all doubt and brought him the same assurance that sent the apostolic band shouting across the continents and made the growing Church the most explosive force in the religious culture of that age.

In many of our theological seminaries there is the miasma of death, for, while pedagogues discuss the death of God, they are preparing the funeral of their own institutions. They bear the name theologians, but they are not theological. Without God they have no relevance within the orbit of the Church. The deity of Christ is the foundation of Christian belief and practice. His resurrection was vindication of the fact that God was in Christ reconciling the world unto Himself (2 Corinthians 5:19). Over and over again the disciples declared that God brought again our Lord from the thrall of death. The very existence of the Church is evidence of the activity of God in the world today.

Never at any time was God absent from His world, no, nor can He ever be. Someone has said that the first essential of a quiet funeral is a willing corpse. God, though surrounded by mystery, can never be thus, for His nature is eternal. No ideas that in any way infringe this high vision of His glory must be tolerated. There are some phrases used by Christians that can be misleading. We have heard references to God's self-emptying. One gets an idea of the great Creator as an expansive perimeter surrounding a vacuum. This is false. He did not empty Himself – He gave Himself. He did not shed His glory – He gave it in Christ, that we might share His glory. The fulness of the Godhead was unveiled to us in the redemptive sacrifice at Calvary and in the mighty power of the resurrection. Let the inspired words sink into our hearts: "That the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may give unto you the Spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of Him: The eyes of your understanding being enlightened; that ye may know what is the hope of His calling, and what the riches of the glory of His inheritance in the saints. And what is the exceeding greatness of His power to usward who believe, according to the working of His mighty power, Which He wrought in Christ, when He raised Him from the dead, and set Him at His own right hand in the heavenly places, Far above all principality, and power, and might, and dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this world, but also in that which is to come: And hath put all things under His feet, and gave Him to be the head over all things to the church, Which is His body, the fulness of Him that filleth all in all" (Ephesians 1:17–23).

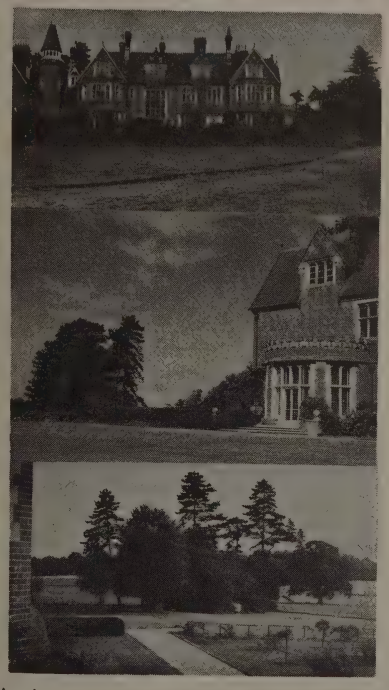
There are many Scriptures that become meaningless cyphers if we follow the "God is dead" school of thought. Paul tells us that "It is God that justifieth", that Jesus Christ makes intercession at the right hand of God for us; that the bond of God's love established in Christ is an inseparable union (Romans 8:33,34,35–39). Moreover, eternal glory is His right, "For of Him, and through Him, and to Him, are all things: to whom be glory for ever. Amen" (Roman 11:33,36). His word to the Roman church regarding the everlasting glory of God is repeated to Timothy, "Now unto the King eternal, immortal, invisible, the only wise God, be honour and glory for ever and ever. Amen" (1 Timothy 1:17). The writer to the Hebrews opens his Epistle with references to the union between God the Father and God the Son, and categorically declares their eternal nature: "And Thou Lord, in the beginning hast laid the foundation of the earth; and the heavens are the works of Thine hands: They shall perish; but Thou remainest; And they all shall wax old as doth a garment; And as a vesture shalt Thou fold them up, and they shall be changed: but Thou art the same, and Thy years shall not fail" (1:10,11). In his apocalyptic vision John saw the last great judgment set, God in awful majesty, in final victory over evil. Moreover he saw God giving light from the throne of His kingdom, caring for His people and giving them eternal rewards, executing judgment both for and against the righteous and the evildoer.

Of one thing we are sure: the finite cannot fathom the mysteries of the infinite. There are so many issues that must be left for the last great unfolding. "Now we see through a glass, darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known" writes the apostle Paul (1 Corinthians 13:12). In his Letter to the Ephesians he has a further comment: "Blessed be the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings . . . He hath abounded toward us in all wisdom and prudence; Having made known unto us the mystery of His will, according to His good pleasure which He hath purposed in Himself: That in the dispensation of the fulness of times He might gather together in one all things in Christ, both which are in heaven, and which are on earth; even in Him: In whom also we have obtained an inheritance, being predestinated according to the purpose of Him who worketh all things after the counsel of His own will" (Ephesians 1:3,8–11).

If there be a faint spark of realism in this effort of the moderns to adjust theology to the prevailing mood, it can only be in the admission of the original existence of God. We cannot help but look on this new fashion, however, as a further attempt of members of the Church hierarchy to shock our generation. Honest they may claim to be in their researches, but, as a danger to the souls of men and the whole structure of the Church, they must be rebutted with all possible vigour, for there are too many attempts to undermine the authority of the eternal Deity. Malcolm Muggeridge may have been too sweeping in his criticism of the clergy, yet there is an uncomfortable sting in his observation that, "A butcher who advocated vegetarianism would be a rarity; but clergymen with strong atheistic proclivities are as common as blackberries." The theism of those who tell us that God is dead differs from the blatant philosophy of the atheist only in the realism of the great Creator set against the final void of His extinction. In the beginning God said, "Let us make man." Now Man says, "Let us bury God." The natural deduction from such a miserable idea is that, having written their obituary notices, it becomes useless to seek the dead among the living. If God is dead our belief in future spiritual life and progress ceases to function. Christ even loses His credibility as a living Saviour, for the Bible sets His life force in relationship to and dependent upon God the Father. The superlative of divine power is used in connection with the resurrection, for Paul, speaking of the "Father of glory" refers "to the working of His mighty power, which He wrought, in Christ, when He raised Him from the dead" (Ephesians 1:19,20).



Speaking of the "death of God" as an unfortunate label, the former Bishop of Woolwich tells us "I can see its shock-value" which we may be forgiven for saying is a rather expensive treatment in its power to destroy the faith of multitudes of mystified people, nor does it help when the notion is described as "Christian atheism". W. Hamilton is more forthright when he refers to it in a magazine, "The phrase is, you might say, non-soluble in holy water, even when uttered with extreme unction." The assumed death of God leaves the radical theologians with the responsibility of telling us where He has gone in a creation where He is omnipresent. To invoke a writ of habeas corpus would not be as facetious as some might imagine, indeed, where does one put a dead omnipresent spirit?

Evil teachings begin with small perverted ideas. Is it possible that the "Jesus Only" cult now adopted by many Christians is a veiled attempt to isolate God from the Trinity, to leave us a human Jesus as a lone appendage of a faded twentieth century myth and the Holy Spirit a mere indefinable influence? Such a thought may be declared abhorrent by many who accept the "Jesus Only" doctrine, yet a word of caution is necessary, for history teaches that the path to heresy begins at the seemingly innocent concept which assumes the garb of truth from an isolated verse of Scripture.

Present-day fulfilment of prophecy provides evidence of the inspiration of the sacred Word of God, and the writings there know nothing of the dishonouring doctrine that God is dead. The predictions of the last days are important, for that is the direction in which we are travelling. They are more relevant than all the garbled philosophies. It is more important for us to read the time on the prophetical clock than to explore the differences between the immanence and transcendence of the Almighty. Better for us to show our neighbours the positive signs of the times as they relate to the end of the day of grace and that all men must stand at the bar of the final judgment, lest we ourselves are caught up in the condemnation and banishment from the One we have ourselves banished from our lives. "For a person to risk damnation", writes Richard Wolff, "to bet that God is dead, to live without moral imperatives, to gamble that the death of God leads to liberation and not to nihilism, to sanity and not to madness, reflects an unholy defiance and personal pride which the Bible calls rebellion that will fall under the judgment of God." Can it be that the judgment is here already in the destruction of ideals, laws, values, truth, goodness, and that man by his own folly stands alone in the midst of an alien and self-destructive environment?

"Shall their unbelief make the faith of God without effect? God forbid: yea, let God be true, but every man a liar; as it is written, That Thou mightest be justified in Thy sayings, And mightest overcome when Thou are judged" (Romans 3:3.4).

From T. H. Stevenson

IN the Shell Guide to Scotland an interesting reference is made to Scotland's lovely capital city. Moray McLaren writes: "Like another famous city, the real Edinburgh is built on seven hills." In general reading through the years I have learned that in the British Isles alone there are at least three such cities. Scotland's capital is accompanied by Durham, England's north eastern cathedral city, and by Ireland's ecclesiastical capital, the small cathedral city of Armagh. I wonder how many cities on seven hills there may be in all the world? That Rome, "the city of seven hills", is intended by John in the book of Revelation is surely beyond even discussion, it being the capital of a country and empire in John's day. The other cities named were yet unborn. When imperial Rome fell, the city remained the capital of the religious empire that superseded it and remains so today.

As for the other prominent symbol in Revelation, the number 666 given to the beast with seven heads and associated with the city on seven mountains, Rev. Beasley-Murray in The New Bible Commentary remarks: "Six hundred and sixty six is his number. The solutions of this riddle amount to almost as many." Such solutions have been from Nero and before to Hitler and Mussolini.

The following may be less known. I quote from The Diary of Samuel Pepys, 1666. "January 18th (Lord's Day). It being a brave day I walked to Whitehall, where the Queen and ladies are all come. Thence took coach and home calling by the way at my booksellers for a book writ about twenty years ago in prophecy of this year coming on (1666), explaining it to be the mark of the beast. 19th. I am told for certain of a Jew in town that in the name of the rest do offer to give to any man £10, to be paid £100 if a certain person now at Smyrna be within these two years owned by all the princes of the East, and particularly the Grand Signor as King of the World – and that this man is the true Messiah." Pepys added: "Certainly this year of 1666 will be a year of great action: but what consequences will be God knows!". It was a year of action: the plague; war with the the Dutch and the French, and the Great Fire of London.

The possible if fanciful interpretations of such symbolic prophecies cause us to think of the contemporary European Economic Community administered from Brussels (not overlooking the European Parliament long established at Strasbourg). The E.E.C. is of the greatest import, but to assume it is the revived, or revised Roman Empire, as Dake's reference Bible names it, is speculation rather than interpretation. Scotland, Ireland, Germany, to name but some, are in the Common Market, but they were not in the Roman Empire. Spain, Portugal, most of North Africa and Asia Minor together with some Middle East countries were in the old Roman Empire. The nine countries of the Common Market do not vaguely describe the domains of Caesar. The present main significance of the E.E.C. is the realisation of policies and trends once only prophetic, but now factual and indicative.

Love is supreme

"I WISH they could declare love instead of war", wrote Deirdre aged 11. Liz aged 7 with the supreme wisdom of childhood wrote, "Sometimes when there's lots of wars they ration love." I came across these pearls of wisdom in the book of children's sayings collected by Nanette Newman entitled God bless Love.

It was Christmas time when I purchased the book and, as I thought of the war in Vietnam and the violence in Ulster, the hatred and the sporadic fighting in the Middle East, a feeling of sadness and intense longing came over me. The message of the Manger was and is that God loves and so gave a Saviour, the message of the Angels was peace on earth, goodwill to men, yet, almost twenty centuries later, mankind still rejects that love and peace.

We are well launched into 1973 and, at the moment of writing, despite the ceasefire, North and South Vietnam are at each other's throats and all over the world the aggressiveness and lovelessness of the human race are on the increase. I wonder if even Christians have become conditioned to the sorry state of the world and are in danger of becoming insensitive?

I ask myself the question, for I still remember a childhood incident. At my grandmother's home was a set of books on the history of the 1914–1918 war and they contained many photographic illustrations. I ventured to look at the books one day and was horrified by the pictures. They haunted me for a long time, yet today through the medium of T.V. we see all the agony of war live on our screens and it seems just a killing game.

We read in our newspapers of muggings, murders and a wholesale increase in violence. I learned today that violence had doubled in four years among teenage girls, the so-called gentle sex. Knowing little of the tougher sporting pursuits a recent T.V. documentary was in every sense an eye-opener. I had to agree with the psychiatrist and author Dr. Anthony Storr who concluded that man is naturally aggressive. Dr. Storr made his deductions after collecting and observing available evidence.

How remarkable is the insight of the Lord Jesus. John the apostle describes it: "And He did not need that any one should witness concerning man – He needed no evidence from anyone about men; for He Himself knew what was in human nature. (He could read men's hearts)." (John 2:25 Amplified Bible). He did not mince His words. In Mark 7 He reveals the extent of man's depravity: "From within, that is out of the heart of men, come base and wicked thoughts: sexual immorality, stealing, murder, adultery, coveting, dangerous and destructive wickedness, deceit; unrestrained (indecent) conduct; an evil eye (envy), slander (evil speaking, malicious misrepresentation, abusiveness); pride – that is the sin of the uplifted heart against God and man; foolishness (lack of sense, recklessness, thoughtlessness). All these evil purposes and desires come from within and they make man unclean and render him unhallowed." (Amplified Bible).

In view of the Saviour's knowledge of the human heart how wonderful it is that He came to be the full expression of God's love, to reveal the most profound secret of the ages, that God is love. The very essence of His nature is love. A seven-year-old named Louise is quoted in the book mentioned. Her wistful words are surely echoed in every heart, "If only the world were made of love."

Every true believer knows that this age of war and hatred is going to pass away. Bible prophecy will be fulfilled and the weapons of strife will be destroyed. Men will not learn war any more. Who will bring all this about? Who else but our God of love when at last mankind will learn to be gentle and loving. Peace will overcome war, gentleness will replace violence and God-given love will obliterate hatred for evermore.

Thought for the week: "Love makes everything lovely; hate concentrates itself on the one thing hated." George Macdonald Ll.D.

Affluent Agnostics or the Parable of the rich young Ruler from today's News

by S.D.Huntly B.D. Pastor of our Smethwick (Warley) Church

THERE was a certain young man who had a dazzling career with a £10,000 plus salary per annum. He owned a £30,000 luxury villa, drove a Rolls-Royce Silver Cloud car, had girl friends galore, and had frequent holidays abroad. He had the world at his feet, but he did not have peace and contentment in his heart. He realised that life consisted of more than dribbling a ball about to the delight of capacity crowds. When faced with the ultimate issues of life, he opted out.

Before we too readily condemn this young man, let us realise that in this one respect at least we are very much like him. We find it hard to face up to reality, to live with the fact of what we are. Young people are always trying to be something or someone else. Why are we afraid to live with ourselves as we are, while at the same time we like to believe that life is more than the little of it that we have experienced so far? This one of the paradoxes of human nature. What makes people want to run away from what they really are in search of "reality"? Why are we afraid of what we are? Why do we entertain the hope of a better life?

I believe that the answers to these questions are found in the Bible. We were made by God, for God, and in the image of God. God has planned a dignity and a destiny for man which he has not yet fully realised. We can never really be content to live life on a lower level.

People try to run away from what they really are because they are so painfully aware of their weaknesses and failures. We are all like this. The Bible says, "For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God" (Romans 3:23). The elusive reality for which they search is eternal life and they can never be fully satisfied until they have it. God has set eternity in their hearts (Ecclesiastes 3:11R.V.M.).

The tragic truth is that, in reaching for the stars, many get only stardust. In the search for eternal life, men settle for the etceteras of life.

Are you really content with your life as it is now? Have you found life's missing ingredient? Are you running away from reality in the hope of finding a different reality?

Stop running! Face what you are – a sinner in God's sight. Then let Jesus change you. Turn your life over to Him. God's Word promises: "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creation" (2 Corinthians 5:17). All your problems will not be solved immediately, but deep in your heart will be a sense of fulfilment, joy, and peace, and you will be able to face the real world with confidence. To turn away from God will make you "very sorrowful" (Luke 18:23).

The Family Altar

Scripture Union Portions — Notes by R.A. Gull

Monday, March 12th — John 5:30–47

"He was a burning and a shining light" (v.35).

JOHN the Baptist was not the true light; he merely witnessed to its existence so that, through him, people could trace its source. Disciples of John invariably became followers of Jesus.

The secret of his shining surely lay in his burning zeal. Such zeal cannot be manufactured, for there can be no real flame without fuel. Of John it is written that he was filled with divine fuel from before his birth.

God give us men today who burn with spiritual fuel, shine with divine light and direct men to its source!

Tuesday, March 13th — John 6:1–21

"He Himself knew what He would do" (v.6); "There is a lad here" (v.9).

HAD no one but Andrew seen the lad?

Jesus knew how He would feed that multitude, but only one of the disciples caught the cue of His glance, only one even half guessed the method He would employ. Like the servant of Elijah, who saw a cloud the size of a man's fist, he voiced his vision with something akin to an apology: "But what are they?"

Those, Andrew, were God's provision!

Our lack, our limited supply, is God's source of plenty. Lord, don't let me overlook the seemingly insignificant!

Wednesday, March 14th — John 6:22–40

"Labour not for the meat which perisheth, but for that meat which endureth" (v.27).

MUST we then work for spiritual reward?

Notice that Jesus speaks here to those who had energetically sought Him, not so much for His message, but for the thrill and convenience of His miraculous provision for practical need.

He would rather that they had laboured so enthusiastically that they might listen and learn of that spiritual food which of itself would give eternal life.

He affirms again (v.29) that the work which God demands is that men might believe in Him who came from heaven.

Thursday, March 15th — John 6:41–59

"I will raise Him up at the last day" (vv.40,44,54).

WAS there ever any doubt that Jesus was the Lord of life? Here He was promising not merely a full, happy life, but life that would triumph over death itself. While He proffered such life to men, however, they debated the finer(?) points of His claim to divine origins (v.41), His known human genealogy (v.42), and His mystical message (v.52).

We haven't changed even today. Many prefer to talk about you, rather than attempt to talk to you. May God help us today to take and partake of Him, that we might truly live.

Friday, March 16th — John 6:60–71

"This is a hard saying; who can hear [listen to] it?" (v.60).

CAN the follower listen – he who disciplined and ordered his life according to the teachings of Christ? No, for they murmured.

Can the intellectual listen – he whose mind acclaimed this Man as a great man amongst men? No, for they left Him. The mere flesh profits so little from this Man.

Can the believer listen – he who can say, "We believe and are sure" and who will go to none other? Yes – he alone can trust where he may comprehend so little!

Lord, I listen!

Saturday, March 17th — John 7:1–13

"My time is not yet come" (vv.6,8).

JESUS was acutely conscious, not only of the hour hands of responsibility, but also of the very second hands of opportunity. He who had come in the fulness of time and was later to say boldly, "My time is at hand," now moved with extreme caution.

He could not have trusted His brethren as companions, He knew, now they were gone ahead. With fine consciousness of divine planning, He moved to Jerusalem and, at the precise moment of divine purpose, He stood in the temple.

Lord, teach me to walk circumspectly.

Sunday, March 18th — John 7:14–31

"If any man desires to do His will [God's pleasure], he will know" (v.17, Amplified Bible).

A COMPLETE willingness to accept unconditionally the desires of God is a prerequisite to the knowledge of God's will. Such willingness imparts utter satisfaction, a complete sustenance of spirit, so that Christ could say, "My meat is to do the will of Him that sent Me". It results in new knowledge of God in a relationship never experienced before. Jesus promised: "Whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is My brother" (Mark 3:35).

Journey into Life

VICTORIA Coach Station is a place where many start or end a journey. For Richard, a travelling companion whom I met in that place, it was the start of a journey which would take him to a place where he found new life in Christ Jesus.

It was the last weekend in January and, due to my involvement with the Youth For Christ in Tyneside, it was necessary for me to travel 300 miles north to help in arrangements for a rally being held on the Saturday night. We had seen a move of God (and ourselves!) in the area around Elim Bible College and, as I recalled the happenings of the week, I prayed that God would again work to bring glory to His name.

Richard was travelling to Newcastle, too, and the conversation turned to the revolution in which young people in the Western world are getting excited about Jesus. This seemed to be something new to Richard, for he had been looking for God in a church and had found images instead of the risen Lord.

I felt that God was doing a work in his life, so I invited him to the rally to see other young people enjoying life in Jesus Christ.

At the rally, about 250 young people met and the message of God was told in folk song and in word. Pastor Mac Kingsbury of our Bishop Auckland Church ministered the word and twelve people came forward to show their desire to accept Christ as Saviour. One of them was Richard!

Jesus said, "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it MORE abundantly." (John 10:10).

Bringing a Friend

by Sheila Price

JOHN, Peter and Andrew were on their way to Galilee. They had spent a busy week away from home. Now it was time to return to work in their fishing-boats. They heard that Jesus would be going to Galilee after He had attended a wedding in Cana and since the three friends had been invited to the wedding, they all set off on the journey together. They had many miles ahead of them and they walked quickly in order to reach Cana before nightfall. On the way they caught up with their friend, Philip. He was very eager to get to Cana, because his friend, Nathaniel, lived there, and Philip had some wonderful news to tell him.

When the little town came into sight, Philip ran ahead of his friends. When he found him, he cried, "Nathaniel! Nathaniel! I have found Jesus, the one whom Moses wrote about!"

"I don't believe you," said Nathaniel.

"Oh, it's true," said Philip. "I've seen Him! He comes from Nazareth."

"Don't get so excited," said Nathaniel. "You could not have seen Him! I know that some day a great Man will come, but not the One whom you have seen, Philip. He would surely not come from Nazareth. Nothing good has ever come from that place!"

Come and see for yourself!" pleaded Philip.

"Right," said Nathaniel, "I'll come just to please you."

As soon as Nathaniel set eyes on Jesus, he knew Him immediately. Jesus began speaking to Nathaniel as if He had known him all his life.

"Master," said Nathaniel," "how do you know all about me? You even know what I am thinking!"

"Nathaniel," Jesus replied, "I saw you long before Philip did. I watched you this morning while you were praying beneath the fig tree."

"You are indeed the Son of God!" exclaimed Nathaniel.

I think that Philip was glad that he had brought his friend to Jesus. I also think that any of us who know Jesus would want to bring our friends to know Him, too. Don't you?

Editorial

"SPECTATORISM", one of the new-fangled words to which we are becoming ever more accustomed - or inured - has been applied to many aspects of modern life. Television has rightly been blamed as a cause of the problem, but it is far from being the only cause. The very pace at which we live and the enormously increased demands placed upon us by travel, knowledge, rapid communications and the wider horizons thus created all play prominent parts too. At our recent District Superintendents' Seminar, which was a truly worthwhile event, our National Youth Director reminded us of Billy Graham's likening the Church to a football match wherein there were twenty-two players in need of rest and 100,000 in need of exercise!

The malady of sitting watching while other people get on with the job is a fatal one for the Church. We enjoy freedom and blessing which place us in the category of the privileged, but we must recognise that privilege and revelation always bring responsibility. If only we could harness the potential in service and witness in our churches, we would surely be on the way to revival.

"Buck-passing" is another modern euphemism. It is often expressed by the use of the word, "They", that mysterious, anonymous, blameworthy group of unidentified potentates who seem to do everything which we feel is against us. It reminds me of my mother. If anything went wrong at home and my brother and sister and I would not admit to being the cause, she would remark, "Mr. Nobody again!".

We would do well to recall former President Harry Truman's famous placque on his desk which bore the legend, "The buck stops here!"

All of which brings us to that delightful passage in Numbers 11:24-29. Joshua was horrified in case Moses's position was being usurped by the seventy elders. Was not the revelation of the will and power of God the special preserve of Moses and Aaron? I like the lovely remark, "When the Spirit rested upon them, they prophesied, and did not cease."! The sublime statement of the meekest man upon the face of the earth was, "Would God that all the Lord's people were prophets, and that the Lord would put His Spirit upon them!" Amen and Amen!

The President presents a cassette tape recorder to Mr. Arthur Pocock, watched by the Eastbourne Church's Pastor, John Lancaster (President-Elect).

Photograph by Eastbourne Gazette and Herald

EASTBOURNE Pastor: J. Lancaster

IT was a great joy to welcome the President, Pastor T.W. Walker, to a recent Sunday evening service and the Church was greatly inspired and challenged by his forthright ministry of the Word.

A happy feature of the President's visit was the presentation of a cassette tape recorder to Mr. Arthur Pocock in recognition of his long service as Head Usher. Mr. Pocock is a foundation member of the church and for forty-five years he has served in many different capacities. His ministry as Head Usher has been greatly appreciated, not least by the many holiday visitors he has welcomed into the church.

We are grateful to God for His continued blessing on the work in Eastbourne.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA Pastor: A.Nicolson

THANKS to the formation of the Home Film Fellowship, a film projector and films have been made available to assist us with our outreach ministry. There were unconverted people present when "God loves you" showed a modern presentation and challenge through a prodigal son story. We trust that the showing of the film may yet bear fruit for God's glory.

We were pleased to welcome three young men to our church recently. Two are medical students in their final year and the third is a bank official. They gave convincing testimonies of conversion and of what Christ means to them in everyday living.

The missionary challenge has been brought to us recently with the aid of coloured slides. We saw something of the work of Miss Vera McGillivray in Hong Kong. It rejoiced our hearts to see some young people who attend the Pentecostal High School where our sister teaches Scripture, and to learn how God is moving among them. We also saw the Church Kindergarten where again Miss McGillivray teaches the children to love and serve the Lord. The commentary by Pastor Nicolson was based on one received from our missionaries in the Far East.

On the following day we enjoyed the ministry of Pastor and Mrs. L.V.D. Tiller from Israel. In the afternoon Mrs. Tiller spoke to the Sisterhood about the work among Israeli women. She spoke again at the evening service and told of the wonderful move of the Holy Spirit among the Christians. She brought greetings from one of our own young ladies who is a receptionist at the Baptist Student Centre in Jerusalem. Mrs. Tiller told how God had been using her as a witness to many young Israelis. Mr. Tiller then showed slides centred around a year in Israel. These included views of the main Jewish Festivals, and by contrast some slides of Christian celebrations of the same Feasts. We were shown slides of Israeli Christians most of whom have to suffer in a variety of ways for their new-found faith. The religious Israelis, we were reminded, are like the Jews of Christ's day - anti-Christ and therefore anti-Christian - and they do not hesitate to show their disfavour. As the eyes of God's ancient people have been blinded to the Light of the World, we were requested to pray that their eyes may be opened, that the preached word may be clear and challenging, and for the outworking of God's love through individual lives to be so effective that an increasing harvest may be reaped.

LATE NEWS

News has just come to hand that E. Stanley Jones has gone Home to be with the Lord (see page 14).

SCUNTHORPE Pastor: M.J. Baker

ON a recent Sunday evening, we held our first baptismal service since our new Pastor came to Scunthorpe. It was a memorable occasion for us and for the young couple who went through the waters. How thrilling it was to hear the testimonies of this young husband and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Buchanan, who have only been in our Church a short time. We pray that God will bless them.

Our Pastor gave a suitable address and Ivan Gibson led the meeting while our Pastor baptised the two young candidates.

We thank God for the way He is working through our Pastor's ministry. We had the joy of seeing two girls give their lives to Christ. We pray that this is the beginning of great things.

JAMES H. MORFITT

HARLOW Pastor: J.H. Bradbury

SATURDAY, February 10th, was a memorable day for our Church. Seven years previously, almost to the day, the Assembly was founded by Ron Mussared and those years have brought much hard work and, praise God, many great blessings for the small number of members. A further step forward has now been taken in the induction to the pastorate of John Bradbury.

The service was convened by F.H. Coleman, District Superintendent, and Pastor G.L. Taylor challenged the Church with a powerful message concerning the type of church which God has chosen and the kind of people whom He expects to find within it. The church secretary welcomed Pastor Bradbury and presented him with the church keys. Seven-year old Helen Broughall presented a bouquet to Mrs. Bradbury.

The Assembly looks forward to further rich blessings under the ministry of its new Pastor.

JOHN W. BROUGHALL

Church Secretary J.W. Broughall presents the church keys to J.H. Bradbury on the occasion of his induction to the pastorate of our Harlow Church.

RAYLEIGH Pastor: W.R. West

SINCE the opening of our new Church last December, blessings have continued in our meetings. Recently seven new members were received into fellowship.

At our annual fellowship meeting there was rejoicing at the way God had met both spiritual and financial needs during the difficult time of building. There is still a sizeable bank loan to pay off, but our members are responding and we are looking to the Lord to meet every need.

Recently a new venture for girls under fifteen was started and is going well.

KEN YATES

SHEFFIELD Pastor: A.V. Gorton

OUR assembly is in rich blessing. The Lord has been pouring out His Spirit upon us and there is a far greater manifestation of the Gifts of the Spirit in our midst.

There have been conversions among both old and young people. A remarkable conversion is that of a man of 75, husband and father of members, who was prayed for about forty years. Nurses, teachers and a journalist have come to Christ. The nurses were baptised recently. A sister of one of the nurses, in the service for the occasion, requested baptism and joined the others who included a sister of 88 years. It should be mentioned that the nurses and teachers had come into the church through tract distribution and invitation. We can also report some remarkable healings – a sister of cancer and a brother, newly converted, of hiatus hernia.

A recent feature was a week-end with our Elim Bible College students. We are proud to say that two of our young men are preparing for the ministry in our Bible College.

Our church party brought the largest number ever to a tastefully prepared high tea and a happy, precious time of fellowship was enjoyed by all. We give God the glory for His faithfulness and for the faithfulness of our Pastor and his wife.

Thoughts from the Book of Genesis

17. The Fruit of Unbelief (Genesis 16:3,15)

by F. Lavender, Pastor of our Croydon Church

SOME years before this incident, the Lord promised Abram that He would give him a son. It seemed to Sarai and Abram, however, that the Lord needed some help, so they planned that Abram should obtain the heir through Hagar, Sarai's Egyptian maid. They lived to regret their impatience, as has Israel and the whole world, for from this foolish act has flowed all the misery of the Arab-Israel enmity. Even in our day this is a supreme source of anxiety to the world. If only Abram had been willing to wait patiently for the Lord to fulfil His Word, what sufferings could have been spared both to his children and to all the nations.

The Lord has given a general promise that He will cause all things to work together for good to those who love Him and who walk in His way (Romans 8: 28). Perhaps He has, in addition, given some special promise to our hearts. When His promise is not immediately fulfilled we, in this push button, instant-whip age, tend to become impatient and, in our impatience, we are tempted to do something foolish. We should recall what once-impetuous Peter said, "The Lord is not slack concerning His promise, as some men count slackness". To be impatient with God will certainly produce evil fruit. He is the all-wise God who knows what is right and the right time to do it. Let us, then, "rest in the Lord and wait patiently for Him" (Psalm 37:7). In His own time and way God will bring His Word to pass and, when that time comes, we shall acknowledge that He knew best.

10th Pentecostal World Conference

SEOUL, KOREA. Delegates and guests planning to attend the Tenth Pentecostal World Conference in Seoul, Korea, on September 18-23, 1973, can receive information and travel arrangement advice from a central office in Seoul, according to Dr. Yonggi Cho, arrangements' committee chairman.

The Tenth Pentecostal World Conference Office has been opened to work with the Republic of Korea in making arrangements for the international event as well as to provide information and assistance to persons from other countries who plan to attend.

The office is located at 84-11 5th St Namdaemoonro, Chunggu, Seoul, Korea, telephone Seoul 28-1987. The telegraph address is PENTEKOR, Seoul, Korea, and the mailing address is: C.P.O. Box 6172, Seoul, Korea.

The local committee has expressed concern that foreign delegates and guests make travel arrangements well in advance. Failure to do so may result in unexpected confusion and possible inconvenience in securing hotel accommodation. The committee also stressed the importance of registering for the conference well in advance. For registration information write to the Tenth Pentecostal World Conference office in Seoul or to: Tenth Pentecostal World Conference, 1445 Boonville Avenue, Springfield, Mo., 65802, U.S.A. People living in the United Kingdom should book through the Secretary of the British Pentecostal Fellowship who is: Pastor F.H. Coleman, 23 John Campbell Road, Stoke Newington, London N.16.

Alexander Tee's Crusade in Nairobi, Kenya

Mr. Tee before the cameras of Voice of Kenya

FOR almost two years, our Church has been planning and praying for the Crusade which has recently taken place in the beautiful City Hall in Nairobi. This city, with over a half million people, is the capital of Kenya and is also a strategic centre on the continent of Africa. It is a beautiful city, modern in every respect.

The Church Committee invited Alexander Tee to lead the Crusade. God blessed it in a remarkable way. Although the meetings were of only one week's duration, over 500 decisions were recorded. Each person was counselled by trained personnel. On the Sunday following the Crusade, the Church was packed with men and women seeking the Lord and many people were unable to get into the building. They had to stand in the doorways in order to share in the meeting.

Many who accepted the Lord are people in high office in the country. We ask you to pray for these in particular, for they can wield great influence for God in the coming days in the national affairs of this land. An average of 600 people attended the crusade nightly and on Youth Night, when Mr. Tee spoke on the drug menace, over 750 were present. When asked how many were under thirty years of age, almost eighty-five percent of the congregation raise their hands.

The Crusade is now over and the task of following up those who made decisions has begun. Please pray for us as we send teams all over the city contacting these people. This was a Crusade organised and arranged by one local church, taking the most central and attractive building in this beautiful city. We believe that the results will be conserved and many added to the local church so that we might see them growing in the Lord.

The Church Committee, Members and friends thank Mr. Tee for his anointed, challenging ministry, and for coming to us from afar in order to present the Gospel to this great city. Many in Nairobi are rejoicing in the Lord, filled with the Spirit, saved from their sins, or healed from their diseases because of the faithful ministry of Elim's well-known evangelist.

Decisions

by William Dunn

Elim Bible College Second Year Student

BILLY GRAHAM was making an appeal at the close of one of his mass crusade meetings. He said, "The decision that you make this evening may determine where you will be 1,000 years from tonight."

Christians agree that a decision to receive Christ or to reject Him will determine a person's eternal destiny. Sometimes, however, we fail to understand that the decisions that we make after that all-important decision to follow Jesus Christ may determine how we will spend eternity. The apostle Paul, in his Second Epistle to the Corinthians wrote, "For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ; that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad". (2 Corinthians 5:10).

The Bible shows that the child of God is in a fight (1 Timothy 6:12), a battle (Ephesians 6:12), and a race (1 Corinthians 9:24). There are prizes to be won. These are spoken of in Scripture as crowns: the crown of righteousness (2 Timothy 4:8), the crown of life (James 1:12), and the crown of glory (1 Peter 5:4).

A solemn warning is given as to the possibility of our losing our prize: "Behold, I come quickly: hold that fast which thou hast, that no man take thy crown" (Revelation 3:11).

It is good to reflect on our walk with and dedication to the Lord and to compare our lives with the lives of other great men of God. Most of all, we should compare them with that of the One who is our Saviour and great Example, Jesus Christ Himself (1Peter 2:21). Are we willing to follow Him all the way, no matter where He leads us, even though persecution or rejection may come our way?

During the Apostolic period, Rome was very tolerant of foreign beliefs. The Greek gods had long been familiar. Even the strange cults of Isis from Egypt and of Cybele from Asia Minor were permitted. The Persian worship of the sun god, Mithras, took a wide hold, especially in the army. Mithras, represented as a warrior slaying a bull, seems to have become the favourite deity of the legionaries. No attempt was made by Roman statecraft to interfere with the religions of the provinces.

There was, however, one exception to this general rule: the importance of religion in binding together a community was recognised by the emperors. Instead of attempting to force Jupiter or other Roman gods on the empire, a new religious bond was established in the worship of the emperor himself. From the time of Caesar Augustus onwards, temples to the reigning emperor were erected in the provinces and sacrifices were offered to him as the embodiment of the genius of Rome. For a provincial to refuse to take part in such worship could certainly cast doubt on his loyalty; he would be thought to be equivalent to being a traitor to Rome. Had the Christian been content to sprinkle just a few grains of incense on the altars of the emperor, he might have worshipped Christ with impunity. Christians, however, knew that God would never be placed in the same category as Isis, Mithras or Augustus. Christ was all in all and every other religion was false. The early Christians decided not to lay up treasures upon earth, where moth and rust could corrupt and where thieves could break through and steal. They determined, no matter what opposition came their way, to lay up treasures in heaven where neither moth nor rust could corrupt, nor thieves break through to steal (Matthew 6:19,20).

If twentieth century Christians looked at life and at the decisions we have to make, in the same manner as did these early believers, it could also be said of us, perhaps, "They have turned the world upside down" (Acts 17:6).

It has been said "History is made every time we make a decision". Let us, then, be history-makers for Christ in the decisions we make.

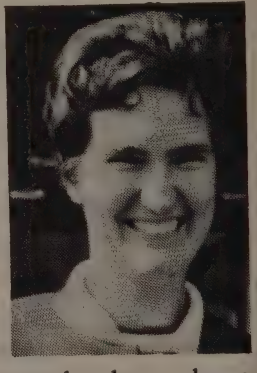
Missionary Biographies

Alan Renshaw

I THANK God for a Christian home. All my earliest memories centre around church, the Bible, being taken to church by my sisters, and my father reading the Word at night before we went to sleep during the blitz of London. We were Methodists and the church which we attended was one of the first in the East End to be hit, so my father sought for a church near to our home which had not been closed because of the raids and so we came to Elim. The main meetings were on Sunday afternoons and we went regularly. When evening services were restarted and then when Sunday school was reopened, we became some of the first children to be enrolled.

At a Sunday school service when Miss Marion Paint was the visiting missionary speaker, I gave my heart to the Lord. When I was in the Bible class, my father went to be with the Lord, just at the time when I needed him most. I had a Father in Heaven who cared for me however.



After leaving school, I became an apprentice electrician. I served some of my time and then my firm sold up over night. All the records disappeared and I was back where I started. National Service was looming. I decided to learn a trade at the same time as my service time, so I joined the Royal Navy for seven years. Some may ask, "Why should a Christian join the forces?". I had seriously thought and prayed about this and Mark 16 was impressed upon me: "Go ye into all the world". It was not so much the question of whether I should enlist or not, but whether I should leave out a whole section of the community from "all the world". I know that the Lord was certainly with me during those years when I served under the flag.

While I was on foreign service in the Indian Ocean, the Lord called me into His work. It was nothing dramatic, just a series of events, each one building on its predecessor. Finally, an officer said to me, "Renshaw, why aren't you a padre?". Before sailing from home I had become engaged and we were planning to marry on my return. With the conviction that the Lord had called me to the mission field, the question of continuing my engagement faced me. I knew that, if God had called me, however much we loved each other, I had to go. I wrote to my fiancée and suggested that maybe the engagement was over in the circumstances. Imagine my delight and gratitude to God when I received a letter from her, written before she had received mine, saying that she felt that the Lord was calling her to the mission field!

I was demobbed from the Royal Navy and entered Elim Bible College. Later, we were married and were given the charge of the Llanelli Church, where we were very happy. One day, we received a 'phone call which said, "A teacher is required in Rhodesia, are you and your wife prepared to go? We need an answer by tomorrow morning!". Should we stay or go? We had felt led to go to Tanganyika (now Tanzania) and had never really thought of Rhodesia. We decided to go, so that, being in the way, the Lord could lead us. He did. We came to Rhodesia and were later transferred to Tanzania. After our furlough we were asked to return to Rhodesia, where we have been ever since.

(Pastor Alan Renshaw is Chairman of our work in Rhodesia).

The Testimony of Mrs. Renshaw

MY first recollections of going to church are when a friend invited me to go to the Elim Cadets, just after the war ended. To attend Cadets you had to go to Sunday school, so the next Sunday saw me in Sunday school. From that time on, I went to Elim. In the Sunday school I gave my heart to the Lord a few years later. I graduated from Cadets to Youth Club, run by Pastor F. Shadlock, and then, when I reached the age of fourteen, I was persuaded to go Crusaders. That year, 1951, was an eventful one for me. I first heard of the North London Presbytery Elim Youth Camps and so, with some Crusader friends, I spent two weeks under canvas among Christians. To me, it was two weeks in heaven, as, coming from a non-Christian home and often being too shy to talk boldly about the Lord, it was wonderful to sing and pray freely among other Christians. At that Camp, I received the Baptism in the Holy Spirit. I knew very little about the teaching, but I know the Lord graciously gave me His Comforter, for, barely a month after I'd been to Camp, my father died very suddenly. My mother was left with four children from three to fourteen years old and life became very insecure, especially for me, the eldest.

The Lord was very good to us all in those days. I continued to serve Him in the Church, relying on His Spirit to help me to testify for Him. I often think back and thank God for the wonderful years I had as a Crusader. We had a grand group of young people at the East Ham Church and we had great fun and fellowship together, which has sustained me in the more lean years.

In 1955, I left home to go to Southlands Teacher Training College in Wimbledon, London. I had never lived away from home before, but I soon linked with fellow Christians and had fellowship with the folk at our Wimbledon Church.

Before I went to College, I had become engaged to Alan Renshaw, a fellow Crusader who was then in the Navy. During 1956, he had to do a year's service abroad. I was left to continue my studies. At Easter 1956 I went as usual to the Royal Albert Hall meetings. That year, Dr. Brien returned for furlough and, during the afternoon service, he spoke of the need for teachers in Rhodesia. Before the meeting, I had met a friend who had just started teaching. I thought how wonderful it would be if she were called to be a missionary. She was called, but the Lord was also dealing with me! I cannot say that I heard a voice telling me to go to the mission field, but the thought that the Lord wanted me was very persistent. It would not leave me. It followed me back to College, until I knew that I had to say yes to the Lord.

With much heart-searching, I sat down one Sunday afternoon in the College grounds to write to my fiancé. I had no idea of his reactions; perhaps it would be the end of our life together. As he was at sea, mail came infrequently, so it was not until some time later that I received a letter from Alan telling me that he felt that God was calling him to East Africa. He made no mention of my call and I realised that the Lord had called us both at the same time even though we were thousands of miles apart. This was confirmation for both of us.

I finished my training and started teaching in 1958, while Alan went into Elim Bible College to train for the mission field. When he had finished, we married and he was appointed to our Church at Llanelli. We settled there very happily, waiting for an opportunity to go when He called. We had planned to go to Tanganyika as we felt that was what God wanted. When the call came, it was to Rhodesia – and a decision had to be made within twenty-four hours!

We are both extremely glad that we did not reject God's call to Rhodesia thinking that we must wait to go to Tanganyika. We agreed to go and within three weeks of being asked we were sailing to Africa. On January 1st, 1959, we set foot in Cape Town and, apart from furloughs, have been in Africa ever since. We did get a chance to go to Tanganyika and we believe that the Lord led us that way. We returned to Rhodesia in 1964. This is our fourteenth year of missionary service and all we can do is to thank God for His great goodness. I praise God that He found me willing to follow Him and from then He has enabled me to work for His glory.

Does God Care?

by Vernon Ralphs

THOUGH most of us will immediately give a positive answer to this question, it must be agreed that this can be a sticky question when posed by the man in the street. How can we say that God cares when we see all the suffering, starvation and famine in the world? What do we say when, like the Psalmist, we see the poor oppressed and the innocent suffering rather than the guilty? How do you speak of a God of love to a man who has lost his wife and child in the space of a month, or of a God who cares on the streets of Northern Ireland? Does God care?

Trouble, in one shape or another, distorts our view of life and quite often blinds us to the quiet movings of God in the world. This article invites you to open your eyes and minds to take another look at the world, at Christ and at the Word of God.

The World around us

William Paley, a former Archdeacon of Carlisle, made this statement about God's love for the world: "When God created the human species, either He wished their happiness, or He wished their misery, or He was indifferent and unconcerned about both." We can see suffering in the world, but we cannot say that life is an endurance test. There are evidences that life has been arranged to be enjoyed.

In Genesis, the Bible says that God made everything "good". His creation was His work, the projection of what He is. Man was created in His image and the Scripture says, "God blessed them" (Genesis 1:28). This still goes for today, despite the advent of sin in His world.

If God wished our misery, He would have made sure of His purpose. He would have made our lives unbearable, our environments painful, our living terrible. To eat would be horrible, everything would taste bitter. To see would be loathsome, everything would appear distorted and ugly. To touch anything would be painful, there would be a sting in everything. To smell would be nauseating, everything would produce a stench. To hear would be deafening, every sound would be discordant. These things are not so, however.

Sin and disease may mar the original purpose of the Designer, but His care is to be seen if I think before I shout. Teeth are for eating - not for aching. Joints are a wonderful aid to movement; they were not intended for dislocation or arthritis. Bones support the body and give protection to vital organs; if they are misused they can be broken, but this is not their purpose. Food is for energy and bodybuilding, not for poisoning. So we could go on.

Paley, quoted above, believed that life was to be enjoyed and he used human experience to show this. He looked at a child and saw there the innocence, trust, enjoyment and life that God had intended.

As a pastor I have seen the evidences of God's care again and again. I remember feeling compelled to visit a certain senior citizen. When I arrived at her home, she sighed with relief. She was wondering how she could get to her appointment at the chiropodist's in ten minutes' time. I was able to take her by car. This small event teaches a big lesson. Those who live their lives prayerfully experience God's care. Those who complain of the lack of their Maker's concern are concerned about Him only when they are in trouble.

The Life of Christ

The Bible teaches that, to understand God, we need a revelation of what He is. He has revealed Himself in the world He has made, in the Scriptures He has inspired, in the lives He has changed, but most strongly in the Son He has given (John 3:16).

In being made man, God in Christ showed His care. "The Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us" said the Apostle John (John 1:14). Think of it! The Owner of inestimable riches became a commoner. The eternal One became a man in time. The glorious One limited Himself in manhood. Read Philippians 2:7,8.

In His ministry, Christ showed the care of the Father. He touched the untouchables. He reached the wretched. He gave sight to the blind, healing to the sick and strength to the lame. To those weak in faith He gave confidence. He brought comfort to those in sorrow. He gave deliverance to those tortured and bound by evil powers and forgiveness to the repenting sinner. His ministry was motivated by compassion. Love is seen in every word, in every deed. He is continuing this ministry today!

If I was to give one reason for my belief in the care of God, I would mention the cross. The suffering and death of the Son of God are the answer to my questionings in the deepest experience. Often, in suffering, our emotions will give little place to the logic of the mind, but, if I know that He has suffered, then I know that He cares. "Christ also suffered for us" (1 Peter 2:21).

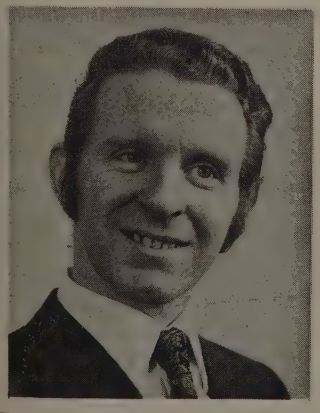
The Word of God

If we care for someone in need who is at a distance from us, we can do definite things to show our concern. We can personally visit them or we can write a letter expressing our good wishes. God has done both. He came in Christ to show His love for the world and He inspired the Scriptures to reveal His heart and mind to a world in need.

1 Peter 5:7 is a gem of a verse: "Casting all your care upon Him; for He careth for you." Here God says that He cares and He invites everyone to cast their anxieties upon Him. Do it, and prove that He loves you!

In John 10 Jesus shows the kind of care He has. He said that He is the good Shepherd and cares for the sheep. The hireling fleeth, because he is an hireling and careth not for the sheep. He is the Good Shepherd; the Good Shepherd gives His life for the sheep. Jesus Christ has loved you and given His life for you. Trust Him as your Lord and Saviour and experience His care!

The dark experience of the disciples in Mark 4 caused them to awake the Master with the question, "Master, carest thou not that we perish?". Jesus rebuked the wind and brought peace to the boiling sea. Then, rounding on His own, He asked them, "Why are ye so fearful? How is it that ye have no faith?" (Mark 4:4). Here the finger is turned on us. We are so quick to question the Almighty, but do we ever consider our selfishness, greed and hatred as reasons for many of the world's pains? How many of us have no time for God and yet we expect Him to show special concern for us when we are sick or in need?



It is a marvel to me that God cares for us at all, but He does!

Vernon Ralphs, the pastor of the Assembly of God in Brentwood, Essex, was saved as a teenager in 1950. He was then in fellowship with the Methodist Church. Coming into contact with the Assembly of God in Denton, Manchester, he was baptised in water and later in the Holy Spirit. While serving the Lord in the Denton Assembly, he received his call to the ministry. He has pastored the churches in Golborne, Lancashire, and Newark, Nottinghamshire, as well as the present one.

Mr. Ralphs is, at the moment, very involved with the youth side of the Fellowship. He is Youth Secretary of the Essex District Council, and edits the magazines Pentecostal Youth and Young Folk.

As a trained nurse he is involved in a modern unit in Brentwood that caters for mentally handicapped men, women, boys and girls. He is the organiser of voluntary services.

Married, with a wife and two children, Mr. Ralphs has a quiet ambition to serve the Lord well. His aim in life is found in Philippians 1:21, "For to me to live is Christ".

Tithing

by G.S. Wyborn

Pastor of our Aberystwyth Church

THE Scriptures command us: "Honour the Lord with thy substance" (Proverbs 3:9). The idea that tithing is an out-of-date, disused method of supporting the Church is completely false. The excuse that tithing started under the Law and is therefore out of date shows the ignorance of some Christians. Both Abraham and Jacob tithed (Hebrews 7:2; Genesis 14: 17-20). Jacob said, "Of all that Thou shalt give me I will surely give the tenth unto Thee "(Genesis 28:22). From these Scriptures we can see that tithing (the giving of a tenth) was very much in operation long before the birth of Moses and the giving of the Law.

Abraham paid tithes to Melchisedec, "king of Salem, priest of the most high God". Jesus was made "an high priest forever after the order of Melchisedec" (Hebrews 6:20). His priesthood succeeded the Levitical or Aaronic priesthood, which was supported by the tithes of Israel. By simple deduction we conclude that the work of the Lord Jesus under His priesthood, should be financed by the same method as were both these priesthoods, namely by the tithes of God's people. It does not alter our belief in tithing if we accept that Melchisedec was the Lord Himself, an angel or just a human being. We still must tithe towards the Lord's work. In the Book of Hebrews Melchisedec is portrayed as a type of Christ; Abraham paid tithes to Melchisedec therefore we should pay our tithes to Jesus.

Tithing is to do with our money, not with our time, talents, or any other thing. To give only one tenth of our time to God would be less than two and a half hours per day. Many would encourage us to tithe various parts of our lives to God. Does this mean that the other nine-tenths are not used in His service?

"Will a man rob God?" (Malachi 3:8) Many do. They are robbing themselves as well. "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in Mine house, and prove Me now herewith, saith the Lord of Hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it," (Malachi 3:10). Only when we have paid our tithes can we say that we are giving an offering to the Church.

The tithes are to be brought into the "storehouse". What man would have his storehouse a hundred miles away or in a far-off country? The storehouse is always local; it is close to where the person works. Our tithes should always go into the local church. When there is a surplus in the local church it can always be given away to another part of the work. In the Book of Acts we find examples of one church aiding another church in a different country, but the tithes went to the local church first.

"If we have sown unto you spiritual things, is it a great thing if we shall reap your carnal things? . . . Do ye not know that they which minister about holy things live of the things of the temple? And they which wait at the altar are partakers with the altar? Even so hath the Lord ordained that they which preach the gospel should live of the gospel " (1 Corinthians 9:11,13,14).

If all God's people tithed, special appeals would end.

"I say, 'God' "!

THE doctors said that he would never walk again, but E. Stanley Jones, aged 89, the venerable Methodist missionary-author, who has spent fifty years in India, is on his feet again. He suffered a crippling stroke a year ago and spent five months in Boston Hospital, U.S.A. Using a cassette recorder he worked his way back to normalcy of speech and even began to "write" a book on tape. The paralysis persisted, however.

At his request his son-in-law, James K. Matthews, of the Washington, D.C. area, took him to the Himalayas for further recuperation. When Jones asked his family and friends to pray that he might walk, they mounted a round-the-clock prayer vigil. Matthews fitted braces and walking devices, enabling Jones to take a few assisted steps each day. After reading Acts chapter 3 one day, Jones insisted that he be awakened daily with the summons, "In the name of Jesus, rise up and walk."

On Columbus day, Jones wrote to Matthews, saying, "I walked 1,492 steps today." He has even been preaching on occasion lately. "I haven't had a blue moment yet" he wrote recently. Readers Digest will soon publish an account of the healing miracle he experienced. The title of the book he started in the Boston Hospital is The Divine Yes.

CHRISTIANITY TODAY

Back in the thirties, in his book Christ and Communism he testified: "Eighteen years ago I had tried the resources of doctors and of climate to regain my health and for a year and a half sought in vain. Then in a quiet moment of prayer I was touched into health. Whatever the future may have for me in the shape of physical suffering, for eighteen years the difficulty has never returned and I have never had such health. The Life-saver

(Romans 10:13)

by Sheila Price

"For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved."

JIM and his friends were playing football on the bank near the river. Jim's team was losing four nil, so he was glad when Paul, one of the forwards, got the ball and kicked it towards the tree.

"Goal!" shouted Jim. "It's a goal!"

"Oh dear," sighed Alan, the goalkeeper. "You kicked much too hard. The ball has rolled into the river. We'll never get it out!"

"Yes, we will," said Jim. "I'll pull it towards the bank with this branch." Jim knelt at the edge of the bank and tried to reach the ball, but it was too far away. As he leaned over the edge, he lost his balance and fell into the river.

"Help!" he cried. "Help! I can't swim!"

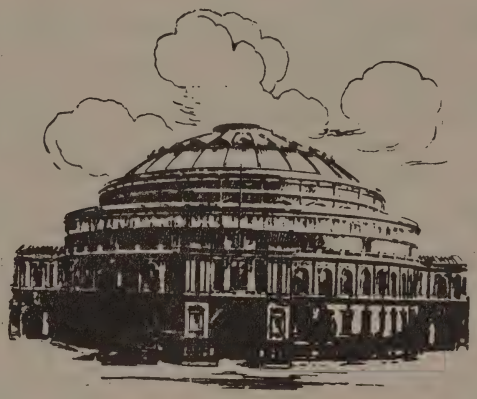
Paul ran as fast as he could to Jim's house. "Come quick, Mr. Brown," he cried. "Jim's fallen into the river!"

Mr. Brown raced to the river bank and, without stopping to consider his own safety, he dived into the river, gathered his son in his arms and pulled him on to the bank.

"You are very brave, Mr. Brown," exclaimed the boys. "The river is very deep."



"Yes, it is," said Mr. Brown. "You are very foolish to play so near the edge. In future you must remember to play away from the river."

Mr. Brown risked his life to save his son. This is just what Jesus did. Knowing that we were in danger of sinking deeply into sin, He went to the cross of Calvary to save us, not only risking His life, but giving it freely.

Jesus was very brave, but much more than bravery took Him to the cross. It was His great, wonderful love for you and me.

No Man's Debtor

by Hugh Sawyer

THE casually accepted marvel of television enables the viewing public to indulge in the fantasy of speeding down the avenues of fast-receding time and partaking in a programme of some supposed train of events resurrected from the dim ages of the past.

If we peruse a Gospel narrative, relax and meditate upon it, we can in the spirit vividly participate with those concerned and relive that actual experience of long ago.

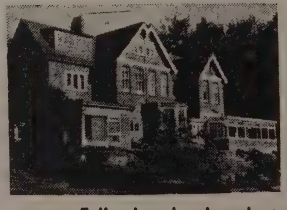
By this process, in the early morning hours, before the blazing sun had reached its zenith, I found myself upon the shores of Lake Gennesaret. In the midst of an excited multitude stood Jesus, cool, calm and collected, preaching the good news of salvation. The swaying crowd, eager not to miss a word of the Master's discourse, was slowly but surely forcing Jesus nearer and nearer to the water's edge.

Beached nearby were two fishing boats, their owners busily washing their nets in the shallow water. Cynics conversant with this narrative immediately inquire, "Why wash their nets when they had caught no fish?". The simple explanation is that the nets would nevertheless be fouled with the weeds and underwater growth trapped therein.

While indulging in this arduous task, the fishermen were listening intently; otherwise Peter would have failed to hear the Master call. Stepping aboard, Jesus called to Peter to push the boat a little offshore. Seating Himself, He continued to address His followers. On finishing His preaching, Jesus dismissed the crowd and turned to Peter. He gave him a practical demonstration that God was no man's debtor.

"Launch out into the deep, and let down your nets for a draught" He commanded. Peter and his weary, dispirited crew looked at Jesus. "Master," said Peter, "We have toiled all the night and taken nothing: nevertheless at Thy word I will let down the net." Jesus honours faith, as Peter quickly discovered.

Jesus had the power to calm a howling gale and to still the raging seas at a word. By exercising this same power He could direct a great shoal of fish to swim into the lowered net of Peter. Thus the miracle happened!



How did they fish long ago? Perchance the nets of Peter and those of his partners, the sons of Zebedee, were strung alongside from starboard to port of their respective ships and, as they drew apart, the outstretching nets would dredge the intervening waters.

So great was the strain as the fish became entangled in the net alongside Peter's boat that the net broke. He had to appeal to his partners for help. Even so, so great was the catch that both ships were filled and in great danger of sinking! The very presence of Jesus in the boat was the divine guarantee that all would be well, however.

Amazement at the unique catch caused Peter to fall at Jesus' feet and, from a humbled heart, to cry, "Depart from me, for I am a sinful man, O Lord", to which Jesus gently replied, "Fear not, from henceforth thou shalt catch men". Then, having brought their ships to land, they immediately left all and followed Jesus.

"What happened to the catch?" enquires the practical mind. Zebedee and the remaining crew would see to its ultimate disposal to their great financial benefit, because this business was their livelihood. Furthermore, the Lord did not believe in waste, as is demonstrated in the feeding of the 5,000. When all had had their fill from the five barley loaves and two small fishes, Jesus commanded, "Gather up the fragments that remain, that nothing be lost". Twelve baskets were filled and, if these were returned to the youngster who had so generously surrendered his lunch, then he was indeed well repaid, showing again that God is no man's debtor. Peter was repaid for the loan of his boat with a gigantic haul of fish and the kindly boy was perhaps rewarded with more food than he had before. From praising hearts we gladly exclaim, "How great is our God!".

Get involved!

by Barbara Sawyer

IT is tragic that, in these days of man's great power and of automation, fatal accidents are reported every week. Someone is knocked down when crossing a road. Last year in a disastrous air-crash, an air-liner lay burning, its passengers struggling to find a way of escape. Think of how near death is to each of us. We must be ready to face our Maker at every minute of the day. The thought that impressed me concerning this incident, however, was that many people came to look on, but they would not become involved, afraid perhaps of the effect that involvement would have on them.

In Devonshire last August Bank Holiday I was motoring with some other young people when we found ourselves to be the second car to arrive on the scene of a road accident. The passenger in the car that had received the impact of the crash stood in a pitiful state, obviously seriously wounded, having received many cuts and suffering from severe shock. I had received First Aid training some years earlier, but I never imagined that I would need to use it in this way. Like others, I had often thought, "It can never happen to me", but it did, and I found myself the only one able to help the wounded passenger. What I would have done without knowing that I had Someone with me who could help me, I do not know. I shot a quick prayer to heaven and asked God to help me as He has promised so many times in His Word.

On asking if anyone was attending to the girl, I was told that someone had telephoned for a breakdown lorry! Once again I saw the unwillingness of people to become involved in something that could be demanding. I administered what medical help I could and I tried to comfort the young lady until an ambulance arrived. After the incident was over, I went to a neighbouring house to get cleaned up. When the door was opened, I explained the situation and the occupier said in a non-committal way, "I thought there had been an accident". I could not help feeling that instead of just thinking, the offer of blankets and hot tea would have been far more useful.

This lack of involvement is not limited to such incidents. All around us are men and women in need of the saving grace of the Lord Jesus Christ and of the spiritual and practical help that Christians can give. Sad to say, so many in the Church are prepared to be onlookers only. They are unwilling to get involved, because of the personal cost of involvement and the demands it makes.

It is also true that many people do not want to become children of the King, because they are afraid of the demands that discipleship will make. The common excuses made for not becoming a Christian, like "I'll think about it tomorrow", "I can't stop now", or "I'm in an emotional state at the moment", are in reality covers for unwillingness to get involved.

In times of emotional stress we need a Saviour, not as a special kind of insurance policy, but as a Friend who has been in our situation before us and who can thus understand us. When we rely on Him, we know how real and precious He is. The unsaved miss the fact that we were born, not to die, but to live in the power of eternal life, which is ours when we accept Jesus Christ as Saviour and Lord. By that life we are able to meet all the demands that total discipleship makes upon us. Jesus did not promise a life of ease, but God has promised His never-dying love and strength to meet the tasks that He has set for us. He has given the assurance that "the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory that shall be revealed in us" (Romans 8:18).

YOUTH PAGE

The modern Sunday School

Eldin R. Corsie, National Youth Director

THERE always have been difficulties in Sunday school work. In one of the very first Sunday schools run by Robert Raikes and his helpers, some children had heavy iron balls fastened to their legs so that they could not run away! Even when they did not require such fierce treatment as this, they had to be taught to read and write in order that they might understand the Bible. Their social and home backgrounds and the moral atmosphere of the times were so bad as to be almost beyond our imagination.

When we are over-impressed by the degeneracy of present-day Britain, we should read the description of those times in books like England before Wesley by Bready. Sunday schools began in the worst conditions, but they flourished because the workers were convinced not only as to the need, but also as to their ability to meet it with God's help.

Nevertheless, the situation at the moment is bleak. Why bother with Sunday school when there is a thriller on the television or a quiz where people are winning money? Added to this is the teaching that the children are getting at school. The Cambridgeshire syllabus, for instance, has this to say: "The distinction between history, legend and myth should ever be in the mind of the teacher and should affect the manner in which the stories of the Old Testament are told."

Promoting and building the Sunday School

We must be concerned to build a better Sunday school before we build a bigger one. Every church member and youth worker should promote the Sunday school. The Americans are past-masters at this; everything is geared to it.

Consider these ideas for promoting and building the Sunday school.

Make the Sunday school a vital part of the Church. Remember that the Bible talks about the Church as a body. It is not mechanical in its growth and life, but organic. What is true of the universal Church is true of the local church. It is a pity that youth departments are separated from the mainstream of the church life. Pastors should talk about Sunday school...pray about it...write about it...discuss it at diaconate level. It should have an important place on every agenda of the Church Session.

Promote door-to-door visitation, thus making the Sunday school a vital part of the community. Appoint a visitation secretary with complete responsibility for the visitation programme. Divide the area into sections with section leaders. Appoint children's visitors from the Church.

Organise a Sunday school parent/teacher association, thus making the Sunday school a vital part of the homes. The object is to interest the parents of the scholars in the work of the Sunday school. This often results in the parents attending the church and their subsequent conversion.

A meeting of the Association should be held at least once a year. Should any special youth worker be in the district at a particular time, an additional meeting should be arranged so that a talk can be given and questions invited. Special invitation cards should be printed. A covering letter of appreciation and invitation signed by the Minister should be sent to the parents.

The programme for the meeting should include: simple instruction by the Minister, introducing the Sunday school staff - superintendent, secretary, and teachers, stating at the same time the particular class for which each teacher is responsible.

Parents should be told something about our methods of teaching (including audio-visual aids). A good musical feature should be given and light refreshments should be served to complete a most profitable evening. It is essential that the whole programme should be very informal so that the parents can talk.

Establish Sunday school prayer partners, so making the Sunday school a vital part of the life of the individual Christian. The object is to enlist church members as prayer partners for Sunday school teachers in their work and ereating interest in the work of the school throughout the church.

Appeal to the church for people to pray for ten minutes each day. Each prayer partner should be encouraged to share the needs of the individual children, in addition to any particular need or problem, with the prayer partner.

Prayer partners should be regarded as members of the Sunday school staff and invited to all Sunday school functions (parties, outings). Give each partner a special prayer card as official recognition and as a reminder to pray.

Start home Bible study groups for children. The homes of the children are wonderful places for promoting the Sunday school. Through the children one can reach the parents. Great care must be taken not to

The Family Altar

Scripture Union Portions — Notes by R.A. Gull

Monday, March 19th — John 7:32–52

"Out from his innermost being springs and rivers of living water shall flow (continuously)" (v.38, Amplified Bible).

THEY are springs that gush forth, bubbling and gay, that, unchecked, tumble and splash with fine abandon, torrents that cut and carve and cleave, rivers that run, watering the land, joining, uniting to surge silently and powerfully towards the sea, there at last to become one with the awesome ocean. This is a glorious picture of the purpose of God's Spirit in man, but let not the bubbling springs despise the steady rivers, nor let the sombre torrents criticise the dancing streams, for all derive from the one Spirit.

Tuesday, March 20th — John 7:53,8:1–11

"He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone" (v.7).

CHRIST alone could cast that stone. Only His righteousness was worthy to condemn. His spotless character judged all men and they fled silently from Him. None other was worthy to judge, able to forgive. Today a sinful, lust-ridden world is often broken in spirit by His sympathy and understanding: "Neither do I condemn . . . go, and sin no more."

"Sin no more": herein lies a glorious hint of victory, a promise of broken bonds and loosed chains, a joyous call to responsible self-government and a stern warning of barely-suppressed wrath.

Wednesday, March 21st — John 8:12–30

"I go My way" (v.21).

HE had said it before (7:34) and He was to warn of it again and again. He was going away in just a little while and, unless they believed, they would never follow Him.

"Yet a little while" was the expression He repeated often in those days and weeks of unrivalled opportunity, yet so many lost their chance for all eternity.

There are ever "little whiles" of opportunity for joyous communication and thrilling service. The more often we accept them, so the more closely we enjoy the experience of "Lo, I am with you alway".

Thursday, March 22nd — John 8:31–47

"The servant abideth not in the house for ever" (v.35).

SERVANTS certainly spend much time in the house of their master, but it is never their home. They may well handle the property of the master and even enjoy his daily provision, yet they have no inheritance in any of those things. It is not so with sons.

Mere attendance, even faithful attendance in God's house, the enjoyment of His benefits and even service in His name, will never afford such an inheritance. It is personal relationship that counts. Whether one counts its legality through adoption or birth, it is certainly only sons who can sing, "I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever".

Friday, March 23rd — John 8:48–59

"But Jesus hid himself" (v.59).

HE who had come to reveal was forced to hide.

By their hostility they relinquished their right to revelation and He was "hid from their eyes". To those who rejected His divinity, He became like a mere man and was hidden in the crowd.

It is ever so. If we insist on dethroning Him, we will lose Him among the seemingly mighty. If we lower Him to the levels of mere humanity, He is hidden from our gaze.

We thank God that we "beheld His glory".

Saturday, March 24th — John 9:1–23

"That the works of God should be manifest in Him" (v.3).

JESUS looked at things so differently from the way His disciples viewed them. They saw the tragedy; He saw the opportunity. They saw the scars of sin; He saw the works of God. They were of the earth. The clay daub on the man's eyes was symbolic of the great earthiness that blinded not just eyes, but souls. With the clay, Jesus pinpointed the reason, but He also highlighted the remedy.

We should ever look on the realm and ravages of sin and see them, not as sombre discouragement, but as glorious fields in which to harvest hope.

Sunday, March 25th — John 9:24–41

"Give God the praise" (v.24).

HOW subtle are the disciples of the Devil! "Worship God," they cry. "Ignore this Jesus" they plead.

How simple it would have been to have side-stepped the issue and to have paid lip service to their demands, but with imperfect yet dogged faith the man owned Jesus as being of God.

How quickly Christ sought him out. Here again faith was nurtured until he could cry, "Lord I, believe!"

We share a similar, but more glorious experience and willingly worship the Lamb who is worthy of our praise.

Truth by A.S.F. Horne

Pastor of our Ipswich Church

TRUTH comes from the Anglo-Saxon word treowe, i.e. true, the state and quality of having been tried. Jesus said, "I am the way, the truth, and the life". In both Old and New Testaments we are told that God is a God of truth. It stands to reason, therefore, that the children of God must be people whose word can be relied on. David wrote, "Thou desirest truth in the inward parts" (Psalm 51:6). The cleverest man in the world is he who tells the truth, not occasionally, but all the time.

Someone said that "Lying is a game". Sometimes it is a very exciting game, but it is essentially gambling and any sort of gambling is not business. Washington said, "It is the child of avarice, the brother of iniquity, and the father of mischief". All lying is forbidden, hateful and an abomination to God. It is a hindrance to prayer. Satan is the father of lies. Many fail to realise that exaggeration is lying. In business if we desire to stay in town and want regular returns, increasing, satisfied and friendly customers, it will pay us to stick to the old-fashioned truth. This is true in the business world, so what of the business of the one who is called the Truth?

Exaggeration never glorifies God. How can lies bring glory to His name? Today we are surrounded by lies. Most advertising by the world is exaggerated. We must be very careful not to follow in their steps. If we continually overstate and vociferate, we must keep on getting louder, until soon we become incoherent. If we habitually state only what is soberly honest and true, however, people will learn to trust us.

A man's reputation for truthfulness is as much a part of his capital as are his stocks and shares, so much so that he can raise money on it. Business is becoming more and more an affair of credit, of trust. The very foundation of big businesses is trustworthiness. To get beyond the stall and push-cart stage, we must establish a basis of dependability. Let us see to it that we are people whose word is as good as our bond.

Dr. Kitto said, "A man has no more right to utter untruths to his own disparagement than to his own praise. Truth is absolute. It is obligatory under all circumstances and in all relations."

"What we have in us of the image of God is the love of truth and justice. General abstract truth is the most precious of all things; without it man is blind; it is the eye of reason" (Rousseau).

It is good for us to remember what Pascal said about truth: "Argument may be overcome by stronger argument and force by greater force, but truth and force have no relation – nothing in common, nothing by what the one can act upon the other. They dwell apart and will continue to do so till the end of time."

Truth – falsehood – the one is of God, the other is of Satan; the one will always glorify God and the other will glorify man for a while. How will others know that we serve a God who is Truth? They will recognise it by what they see.

Charles Wesley wrote:

Ye faithful souls who Jesus know,
If risen indeed with Him ye are,
Superior to the joys below
His resurrection's power declare.
Your faith by holy tempers prove,
By actions show your sins forgiven;
And seek the glorious things above
And follow Christ your Head to heaven.

overstay one's welcome. Encourage the members of the Church to start Bible study groups in their homes as an avenue of introduction to the church. Imagine fifty home Bible clubs for children with ten in each!

Hold Sunday school exhibitions in the church, schools, empty shops, public halls and exhibitions.

Link Sunday school with Elim camps, one of our greatest hand-maids to youth work. The camps have them for 168 hours in the week, that is three times the weekly Sunday school hours for the year.

Encourage the formation of Christian Unions in Schools. Invite school choirs to take part in the Church programme. Take the trouble to get literature on Christian Unions from C.S.S.M. and give it to the children to read.

Don't forget the value of Vacation Bible School. Details can be obtained from the National Youth Office.

Local Newspapers are always looking for news. Why shouldn't it be news of your Sunday school? Be sure to present news that is worth reporting. Our local paper gave us a whole page with photographs and reports.

Have an annual Sunday school rally in conjunction with a Sunday school enlargement campaign.

Engender a social conscience in the lives of young people. Make them community-conscious by visiting old folk, helping with the physically handicapped, etc. The whole church should be deeply involved in Sunday school work.

THE ELIM EVANGEL

Vol. LIV. No. 12 March 24th, 1973 5p

On the occasion of their silver wedding anniversary, Pastor and Mrs. W. Holohan were presented with a hors d'oeuvre tray and an inscribed silver rose bowl by members and friends of Elim Church, Newtownards. The presentation was made by elder Mr. T. THE wife of one of our ministers was making her way home by 'bus. She got out her copy of THE ELIM EVANGEL and began to read it. The lady sitting next to her suddenly asked her, "Are you an Elim Member?". The resultant conversation showed that the questioner had been converted twenty years or so ago in one of our churches and had lost contact with our movement because of moving away from her original home. The minister's wife was enabled to share a precious conversation about the things of God and gave a cordial invitation to her new—found friend to renew the ties with Elim in the nearby Church.

The Evangel Secretary of one of our churches had to leave home because of her desire to be obedient to the call of God in a new sphere of service. Her mother was appointed to be Secretary in her place. This sister has made a real ministry of this opportunity. Her latest idea was to contact the matrons of welfare homes for old people in her area and the result is that she is now supplying the EVANGEL to several such homes with the hope of more to follow. Other Secretaries might well copy!

Many local libraries are glad to have magazines for their reading rooms and some of our Churches already take advantage of the witness thus afforded. Very useful contacts can be made with the librarians, especially if the person responsible takes the Evangel personally every week. The stamp of the Church's address somewhere in the magazine can materially add to the potential of this outreach effort. We are pleased to tell you that our circulation has been on the increase for several months by a few copies every week. The efforts of our Ministers and Evangel Secretaries are greatly welcomed and appreciated. In these days when there is so much anti-God literature, we are glad to recall the hard work of so many in producing and distributing our official organ.

We mention these things to show you that our magazine has a definite ministry. We invite your kind regular prayer support.

BANBRIDGE Pastor: T. Mahood

AT our annual meeting and fellowship tea, after a sumptuous tea provided by the Women's Fellowship, Mr. Mahood received two brothers and one sister into fellowship.

The meeting continued with reports of the Sunday school, Sunshine Corner, Crusader and Gospel meetings. It is with great joy that we report that souls have been saved, young people have passed through the waters, many have been baptised in the Holy Ghost and one sister has testified to being healed in our Breaking of Bread service. We were greatly encouraged when we heard from our Treasurer that our offerings for the year had reached an all-time record, as had our missionary giving.

For these many blessings we praise God. We are looking for greater things in the year ahead.

J. MITCHELL

DEWSBURY Pastor: G. N. Miller

WE have been stirred to pray for the young people and our Pastor has not spared himself in working very hard to win them for Christ.

Each Friday evening, following the regular youth meeting, the Pastor and the young people from the Church set out to reach the youth of Dewsbury in various situations, perhaps on the streets or in the public houses. Leaflets are prepared and given out inviting young people to the "Late Night Special" in the Church. Once a month special gospel films are shown in the Temperance Hall preceding the "Late Night Special". Through these means many young people have given their hearts to the Lord.

Following these special meetings, a combined Baptismal Service was held in our Bradford Church. Among the candidates were eleven from Dewsbury. The privilege of baptising them was shared between Pastor Derek J. Green and our Pastor.

Many believers from Dewsbury have been wonderfully baptised in the Holy Spirit recently. It is a joy to see the Spirit of God moving among the young people. Our grateful thanks go to the Pastor and his wife for their dedicated service.

(Mrs.) ZENA HATHAWAY

OUR Elim Family will be thrilled to know that among the candidates who were baptised were Sharon and Carol Hathaway, daughters of Pastor and Mrs. David Hathaway. Praise God!

G. N. MILLER

EAST HAM Pastor: H.L. Dawson

WE recently held our Sunday School Prize-giving. We welcomed Pastor J.J.B. Hounsome to minister the Word and to present the prizes to the children. We had over 100 books to be presented, some of which were Bibles or Golden Bells hymn books. Fifty-three of these books had been won by children who sat for our Scripture examination last November.

The Church was filled with children, parents and members. Jacqueline Storer read Psalm 23, after which the children sang some of their favourite choruses. Pastor Hounsome spoke especially for the children on the text "Be sure your sin will find you out", after which he presented the prizes.

We thank God for His blessing upon the children here in East Ham and for the increase in the numbers in the Sunday school. We also praise the Lord for our dedicated Sunday school superintendent, Mr. L. Hillary, and for the teachers.

We pray that our Sunday school will continue to increase.

E. E. HIGGS

GREENOCK Pastor: R. Lighton

ON October 8th, 1972, John (Jack) Findlay passed into the presence of the Lord after a prolonged illness. Our beloved brother was a member of the Greenock Church since its foundation and was a very ardent participant in its work and testimony. He served the Church as a deacon for many years, holding the offices of Sunday School Superintendent, Church Secretary, Choir Master, and Presbytery and Conference Delegate. A local preacher since the first issue of the certificates, he ministered in a number of Elim churches, and in other missions and churches in the district. He was well loved by all who came into contact with him. A very strong personality, he worked endlessly for his Lord in every way possible and was responsible for many changes in the local assembly. In the town his testimony was well known and recognised. As a councillor he was admired by all concerned.

His absence is very obvious, but we who served with him in the Church look back and praise God for his efforts to extend His kingdom.

Having followed him in the Secretary's office, I testify to the thoroughness of his work and am grateful for assistance given.

We assure his wife and family of our Christian sympathy and prayers.

W. CRAWFORD

GRANGETOWN, Teesside Pastor: A.L. Hawkes

AN EVANGELIST who tells the message of God with a guitar visited Teesside, hoping to meet many young people. He is 27-year-old Peter Conlan, who has toured the world in connection with Operation Mobilisation. He is staying with the minister of the Elim Pentecostal Church at Grangetown and on Saturday he had tea with people of all denominations before taking part in an evening rally at Grangetown Mission. Mr. Conlan came to Teesside as a newly-wed for he is accompanied by his wife Birgitta, who comes from Sweden. Between them they speak several languages and have done evangelical work in countries all over the world.

After their present British tour is over, Birmingham-born Mr. Conlan and his wife are to visit Ethiopia, where they hope to meet Emperor Haile Selassie, and Egypt, where they plan to see President Sadat.

They met students at Teesside Polytechnic.

RYDE Pastor: I.R. Hall B.D.

ELIM Church, Albert Street, celebrated the second anniversary of their Young Adult Fellowship when the American Gospel musician, Rev. H. Doug Fincher, was guest speaker. Mr. Fincher, who is from Springfield, Missouri, while visiting Britain on research work is directing the music department at Elim Bible College in Surrey. As well as preaching at the evening meetings on Saturday and Sunday, Mr. Fincher played piano solos, accompanied congregational singing on Sunday morning, and sang a duet with Mrs. Ian Hall, the Minister's wife, on the Sunday night. Other items were contributed by the Young Adult Fellowship. On the Saturday night Messrs. Parkman and Rowe sang a duet, Mrs. M. Johnson gave Christian testimony, Mr. J. Bettenson recited, and Mr. D. Diggines read Scriptures. Each evening the Young Adult Choir also sang two pieces. The Minister presided.

Isle of Wight Times

STIRCHLEY, Birmingham Pastor: J. B. Coleman

OUR Saturday evangelistic rallies are held once a month. We have shown two Billy Graham films. The first, "His Land" was a beautiful and interesting film. Cliff Richards and Cliff Barrows explained how God's Word has been wonderfully fulfilled in the history of Israel. Two teenagers wanted to receive the Lord Jesus Christ after the film. We later learned that a lady from Acocks Green, after seeing the film wrote to the Billy Graham Organisation to know about receiving the Lord Jesus as Saviour. She is now doing a Bible correspondence course and has started to attend a local Pentecostal Church.

The second film, "The Lost Generation", included a message by Billy Graham and interviews with young people who testified to the change which God had made in their lives. The New Creation group from Sparkbrook sang.

Maurice Paine recently showed slides of the work in Greece, where men and women are turning to Christ and serving Him faithfully in spite of much persecution. We were also privileged to have a visit from Dr. Gaston and other members of the Gideons International.

We recently held a baptismal service at our Selly Oak Church. Five candidates from Stirchley were baptised by our Pastor. We were pleased to receive six new members into fellowship. We have had much for which to praise the Lord over the past eighteen months. Our offerings have increased from £5 per week to £30 per week over this period.

STEPHEN BROWNE

NEWTOWNARDS Pastor: W.H. Holohan.

AT our annual Church business meeting a goodly number gathered to hear what the Lord had been doing during the past year. Reports from every department were very encouraging and the financial statement exceeded that of previous years.

At our annual fellowship tea we were joined by many local friends and special guests from Belfast, Bangor, Millisle and Newcastle. We were very happy to have with us Pastor and Mrs. D.J. Ayling and family, Pastor and Mrs. W.J. Martin and our Irish Superintendent, Pastor A. Wilson and his wife. Pastor Holohan chaired an excellent programme which brought much blessing. The special feature was introduced by Mr. Thomas McDowell, elder and treasurer for many years, who spoke of how the Lord was blessing and moving in our midst. As Pastor and Mrs. Holohan had celebrated their silver wedding anniversary on February 12th this gave the church an opportunity to show them how much their work for the Lord in Newtownards over the past six and a half years has been appreciated. Mr. McDowell presented them with a silver hors-d'oeuvre tray and an inscribed silver rose bowl. He wished them every blessing and many more happy years together. Pastor Holohan suitably replied expressing his pleasure at being in Newtownards and assured us all that the desire of both Mrs. Holohan and himself was to work for the glory of God and the extension of His Kingdom. Pastor David Ayling's message from Psalm 23 brought rich blessing. Following the cutting of a beautiful anniversary cake by Pastor and Mrs. Holohan, an excellent supper was enjoyed by all. The hearty singing of, "How good is the God we adore" and prayer by Rev. E. Palnoch (E.M.F.) brought a very happy evening to a close.

Jesus Christ the Saviour

by John Hyde Pastor of our Oxford Church

THE Lord Jesus Christ is the most discussed Person the world has ever known and about Him there are varied opinions.

Some think that He was an impostor and deserved to die on the cross. Others believe that He was a martyr to a good cause. There are those who think that He was a fine Man and a great Teacher. Others have found Him to be the eternal Son of God, the only Saviour to free from the guilt and burden of sin.

Some students think that Jesus was a nationalist rebel whose career was cut short after running foul of authority. The Bible rules out such an idea completely. There is overwhelming evidence that Christ deliberately co-operated with His heavenly Father in allowing Himself to be put to death. People still ask why. The Bible explains by showing how a holy God was able to condemn sin and yet forgive guilty men. According to the Word of God, all have sinned. Jesus made this clear by pointing out that by God's standard even the thought or intention to do something wrong is as sinful as actually doing it.

God's solution was to regard His own sinless Son as man's substitute and to condemn all sin in Him. Jesus Christ paid our penalty and offers us God's pardon today. The eternal Son of the eternal Father died by execution on a criminal's cross, a death which by God's design was a public spectacle. This was followed by a miracle, when the Saviour of the world was raised from the dead as recorded in the Bible.

It was God's plan that His Son should not only pay the penalty of man's sin, but also overcome death and defeat the Devil. Because Christ's sacrifice and victory are unique, timeless, and universal, the cross stands today as no mere memorial of the past. Every time a man, woman, or child accepts Christ as the only answer to sin and the only Giver of a fresh start in life, God's wonderful plan of salvation is being worked out.

A certain judge, a most prominent man in his town, appeared before a committee of the local church, asking to be received into membership on confession of his faith. There had been no intimation of a change in his heart and life. He went on to say: "I am not influenced by anything that has occurred in the church; I have not been converted by any sermon. But I cannot stand the influence of the life of my neighbour. For thirty years I have observed that old man and at last I am convinced that his life is governed by a higher power than I have ever known. I have sought to learn from him how I might have this same influence in my life and I have surrendered my all to his Lord."

Here is the key to what happened on the cross. It was the manifestation of the power and love of Christ to the sinner.

Our response to this amazing Christ should be unquestioning, for every person ought to confess Christ as his personal Saviour for, in the light of Christ's authority, His atoning work, His resurrection, ascension, and soon coming again, it is vital that we make our decision now. Our response should be to thank God that He loved us enough to die for us and to be ready to identify ourselves boldly and proudly with Christ and His cause in the world today.

"Nobody wants me!"

Words and Drawing
by Sheila Price
Luke 10:30-37

IT seemed that no-one wanted to buy the little dog curled up in the window of the pet-shop. It was understandable, I suppose. It looked an untidy sort of dog, with its one bent ear, ragged tail and dirty yellow coat sticking up in tufts all over its body.

Everyone stopped to admire the other pets in the window, but, when they noticed the little dog, all they could find to say was, "What a scruffy animal!" or "What an ugly dog!" No-one wanted it at all, no-one, that is, but Tommy. The moment he set eyes on it, he knew that it was the sort of dog he had always wanted. "What a friendly-looking dog!" he exclaimed. "It will make a wonderful pet."

Tommy gazed lovingly at the dog. "I shall call it Goldie", he thought, "because it has nice golden curls. I'll be able to play with it and train it and take it for long walks. I'll be able to feed it every day and maybe it will wait by the gate for me when school is over. I must hurry home to ask daddy if he will buy it for me. I have enough pocket-money saved for a collar and lead."

The people who had seen the dog in the window had been quick to notice its bad points, but Tommy had immediately seen only the good things. He loved the little dog just the way it was.

What a wonderful picture this is of our Saviour! Whenever He met people who others thought were bad, if there was any little bit of good in them He would see it immediately. When Jesus sees us, with all our faults and failings, He doesn't pass us by. He loves us just as we are. He died on Calvary just for us.

The Purpose of the Holy Spirit's Ministry

by Ramon Hunston

Co-Pastor of our Cardiff Church

IT is important that in our thinking as Christian believers we give the Holy Spirit His rightful place. The Pentecostal outpouring of today must never relegate the Holy Spirit to any lesser position than that revealed in Holy Scripture.

The Holy Spirit's task is to bring all things to fruition. The names accorded to Him in the Bible reveal this fundamental fact. In the Old Testament He was called the Spirit of wisdom, the Spirit of Jehovah, the Spirit of burning, and the Spirit of judgment. In the New Testament His designation is the Spirit of the living God, the Spirit of truth, the Spirit of Christ, the eternal Spirit, the Spirit of promise and the Spirit of grace and glory. One distinctive title stands out, however: He is our Advocate. Jesus Christ is Lord positionally and the Holy Spirit's ministry is that of the Divine Executive.

Jesus said, "I am the Way, the Truth and the Life", and a similar sequence of revelation can be seen in the ministry of the Holy Spirit. Jesus said, "He shall guide you into all truth" – the way. John declares (1 John 4:13) that the Spirit is truth. Another statement concerning the Holy Spirit is: "It is the Spirit that quickeneth" (life). It can be clearly seen that the purpose of the Spirit is to bring all things to completion.

The Executive of the divine Purpose

God is a God of activity and in every realm God moves through His Holy Spirit. In the very beginning of creation, the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters, bringing order out of chaos. As the Executive of God's creative purpose, the Holy Spirit was in evidence from the earliest moments of time.

In the realm of the redemptive work of Christ, the energy and power of the Holy Spirit are revealed. The plain statement of Scripture is that Christ offered Himself to God through the Holy Spirit (Hebrews 9:14). Subsequent to the work of redemption the believer's rejoicing is that he is sealed with the Holy Spirit of promise. The divine purpose expressed in every realm reveals the Holy Spirit in an executive capacity.

The Executive of the divine Power (John 6:63)

"It is the Spirit that quickeneth". Spiritual life is given to us through the Holy Spirit. The Bible states that we are born of the Spirit (John 3:8). Spiritual life has become our experience by the executive power of the Holy Spirit transmitting the life of God into our experience. Whereas this expression of divine power is subjective in the context of our inner experience, the same facet of truth is applicable to our objective experience in that spiritual power is given to us through the Holy Spirit: "Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you" (Acts 1:8). Even our mortal frames are to know the surging of God's power by the Holy Spirit (Romans 8:11). The quickening of our mortal body is said to be by the Holy Spirit. He is the Executive of the Resurrection in both a spiritual and physical sense.

The Executive of the divine Truth (John 16:13)

As Jesus Christ is the vehicle and the content of supreme revelation – the Truth incarnate, so the Holy Spirit is the revealer of truth about Christ to men. Jesus said that the Spirit's purpose was to guide into all truth, to speak of Christ and to glorify Him. The Holy Spirit reveals the things concerning the Son of God to men.

This is not the total of His revelation, for Jesus also said that the Spirit would reveal things to come in the primary sense that, after Christ's ascension, there would be, through the Holy Spirit, a fuller revelation to be recorded by inspired writers concerning Christ. There is a secondary aspect in which through the Holy Spirit we are made aware of the prophetic significance of our times. There are many signs which reveal the imminence of the return of Jesus Christ, but one of the greatest is the world-wide outpouring of the Holy Spirit in Pentecostal power in our day. The Christian Church today must be aware of the prophetic significance of our times, that we are on the threshold of the Second Advent and that the Holy Spirit is now being outpoured in a greater measure than has ever been known before throughout the annals of church history.

Only through the Holy Spirit can spiritual truth be received and appreciated (1 Corinthians 2:11–13). It is fundamental to the progress of an individual believer or of a church that our programme of evangelism and progress be planned in the light of the Holy Spirit's guidance and initiative. In the Early Church it was said, "It seemed good to the Holy Ghost and to us". The days in which we live call for spiritual initiative and power and nothing less than these will meet the twentieth century situation.

The Executive of the divine Favour

The Holy Spirit is the supreme Witness to the individual believer of his own conversion. Circumstances may bewilder, analysis of experiences may confuse, but the inner witness of the Holy Spirit to the believer gives a supreme confidence and serenity of spirit and mind, that we are the sons of God (1 John 4:13). This witness is unshakeable in its strength and conviction as we remain true to the Lord. That we are the sons of God is the strength of our assurance given by the Holy Spirit in these turbulent days.

As the Executive of divine favour the Holy Spirit is the witness of the divine presence. After Jesus had ascended, having previously given the command to tarry in Jerusalem, there was no sign in the sky, no mighty miracle, no radiant angel or any other token to the disciples that their Lord was in heaven or that He would continue with them. In faith they waited in prayer in the upper room. Suddenly there was a sign, a sign from heaven that Jesus their Lord was at the right hand of God and that God was with them in power. The Holy Ghost had come. Peter said on the Day of Pentecost that Christ had "shed forth this".

The Pentecostal experience witnesses to the world of a living, mighty Saviour working in and through His Church in power. The Baptism in the Spirit is a witness to the Church that God is with His people and is the enabling enduement for their witness. The Baptism in the Holy Spirit is an ever-increasing witness to the individual that his life and experience are in Christ (1 John 4:13).

The Executive of the divine Freedom

When Jesus began His ministry by stating His aims in the synagogue in Nazareth, He commenced His quotation from the Old Testament by saying, "The Spirit of the Lord is upon Me". Thereby He stated a principle that the Holy Spirit frees from limitations that are human and finite that the work of God in Pentecostal evangelism might be accomplished.

By the Holy Spirit's power the Christian believer has been lifted from the bondage of the governing principle of sin to the liberty of the governing principle of life (Romans 8:2). The Holy Spirit is the Executive of divine Power that liberates believers from the enslavement of sin.

As the Executive of divine freedom, the Holy Spirit leads men in worship out of the natural limitations of time into a spiritual experience of communion with God. In its highest experiential aspect, the Baptism in the Holy Spirit grants to the individual the capacity and the ability to worship God on the highest plane so that as he speaks with tongues in worship and adoration, he is pouring out the inexpressible worship of his experience.

Where the Spirit is Lord there is liberty, liberty to know the power of God, to express worship and adoration.The purpose of the Holy Spirit in this executive sense is fundamental to every aspect of Christian living.

It is imperative that the Pentecostal Church of today truly recognises the personality and position of the Holy Spirit, the Third Person of the Trinity, for thus the full purpose of Pentecost is realised.

The Elim Pen
Marton

by R. Clarke

MARTON Elim Pentecostal Church started as a house meeting. At Christmas, 1934, it opened as an independent mission, named Hermon Hall, on the present site in Fredora Avenue. The mission went through difficult times until, eventually, it asked to become part of the Elim Movement. The deeds were transferred in 1943. This was followed by a crusade led by Pastor John Woodhead assisted by Pastor William Evans. The latter stayed on as the first minister and he consolidated the work as a Pentecostal witness.

The original building

As the work progressed, it became obvious that the little wooden building which had served so well was becoming inadequate. It had to house not only the church and Sunday school, but also every function and activity. The Sunday school was now so overcrowded that one of the classes had to be held in a nearby caravan. The church did not possess its own baptistry. This necessitated baptismal services being held in neighbouring churches. Not only was the building on the small side, but also by this time the fabric was rapidly deteriorating. For many years there was talk of replacement. On one occasion the then minister, Pastor A.J. Downes, and one of his deacons, toured the area on their cycles looking for a suitable alternative site. This went as far as a plot of land being secured from the corporation. Later it was found to be unsuitable.

Work commences

In 1968 the first stage of the building programme commenced. We were fortunate in having in the church Mr. L. Hanlon, a building inspector employed by the local authority, who was able to supervise the operations. We were able to make the best use of limited manpower and resources. The plastering and electrical work were carried out by men who did not even belong to the church. Even the women helped with the initial stages by unloading and stacking a lorry-load of bricks. The driver was amazed as he had never seen his vehicle unloaded so quickly before!

Alongside our church was a piece of land that belonged to us, but it was continually wet and boggy and thought to be quite unsuitable for building purposes. The people of Marton were not easily discouraged. Into the mud they dug to lay a concrete foundation. This was followed by a brick-walled plinth and a concrete oversite. On the plinth was erected a concrete, prefabricated, Marley building which unfortunately arrived three months later than scheduled. It was all-out work with the formation of a barrel vault ceiling, excavations, concreting and tiling of the baptistry, the forming of the walls, laying of the drains, concrete forecourt, and numerous other jobs.

In March, 1969, when Pastor D.W. Cartwright was the minister, the first stage of the project was complete. Our main hall was opened by Pastor G.W. Gilpin, principal of Elim Bible College. Also present were former ministers Pastor W. Evans and Pastor F.W. Jones.

In March, 1972, after a well-earned rest, the second phase commenced. This involved the demolition of the old wooden building and a repeat of the first stage on the ground where it had stood. This hall divides into two sections for Sunday school and youth work. The two buildings were then joined together with a connecting link which houses the vestibule, toilets, vestry and kitchen. The extension is being opened on March 24th, by Pastor John C. Smyth, the Administrative Secretary of Elim. We are to follow this with a crusade conducted by Pastor E.J. Thomas.

The first stage completed.

The building at Marton is a splendid example of how, with initiative and effort, a church can be built even though resources are limited. It is estimated that the completed church has cost somewhere in the region of £7,000. This idea could possibly be used in other parts of the country, as it can be completed in stages and the prefabrication of the main structures suits a limited budget.

Phases I and II finished.

We are greatly rejoicing in what the Lord has done for us over the past years. We trust that the year ahead will be a truly blessed one. The work done on the building has been a great testimony to the locals and has aroused much interest in the area. Should the Lord tarry it is our intention to continue with the work of evangelising Marton. We have recently started a youth meeting led by a fine young couple and our new spacious accommodation will enable us to commence other evangelistic activities. To God be all the glory.

Your Missionary to Zaire

A report by Jennifer Quirie

I HAVE now been in Zaire (formerly the Belgian Congo) for over eighteen months. The time has flown by, for there is so much to do. The Lord has been very good to me during these months. I have had many new experiences, not all of them happy ones, but He has undertaken at each step.

I teach in the Secondary School at Kipushya. We now have up to fifth form. When the pupils have finished fourth year, they are qualified to teach in the primary schools, but many desire to continue their education. All the teaching is in French, this being the official language of the country, but the local people speak Kisonge.

Many words are similar and I have had several funny experiences while learning the local dialect, for example, Mukashi (wife) and Mupashi (Saviour). In the first Sunday school lesson that I taught I fell into the inevitable trap by saying, "Yesu e mukashi ande " —"Jesus is my wife", instead of "Yesu e Mupashi ande!".

After the church meetings we usually chat outside the church. One old leper lady had been suffering with her legs for several weeks. She was rather astonished when I asked how her sheep (mikoko) were, instead of her legs (mikolo)! Anyway, it shows that the missionaries are human, too, as we all laugh together.

My health has been up and down during recent months. The weather is extremely hot, thus every little ache and pain seems magnified several times. Just as school reopened last year I had a bad attack of migraine. It was so painful that I couldn't see properly and had to go to bed. I was near to tears when two of our missionary sisters came in. They saw my need and immediately knelt down beside the bed to pray. The pain disappeared instantly — praise the Lord!

There are some discouragements in the work, such as when a boy who seems strong in the faith falls into sin and has to be expelled from school or when the Sunday school children become so unruly that discipline is difficult, but even so the work is most interesting and very worthwhile.

There are many encouragements, too. Last week, in our school Youth for Christ meeting, a pupil came to the front of the church to give a testimony. He is a young man of about seventeen. He said that last year he had been away from God. He had come to church, but he had no deep spiritual experience. At the beginning of the school year, the Lord spoke to him, telling him to pray regularly each day. He followed the instructions and last week called a friend in to pray with him. During that time, he saw the face of an angel surrounded by fire. This Messenger asked him, "Are you truly worshipping God?" He felt that he could not yet truthfully answer in the affirmative, but he continued to wait on the Lord for victory in his life. Three times the vision of the angel appeared. Since that day he has found himself to be in closer touch with the Lord. Praise God, Acts 2:17 is coming to pass in these days!

We have also been encouraged by the boys who have been seeking the baptism in the Holy Spirit during the last weeks. We are looking for a new anointing on the work and we know that the Lord is moving.

Thank you for your prayers on my behalf.

An Outline — Unanswered Prayer
John 11

STRICTLY speaking, there is no such thing. Perfect Love always listens and delays are due to the fact that His love is perfect.

"None liveth to himself." Think of the ever-widening circles created by a stone thrown into a pool. The sorrow and tragedy at Bethany had many reasons. It was for:

1. The Disciples' Sakes (v.15). "Glad"! Is our church fellowship like this?
2. The Friends' Sakes (v.45). They came to sympathize and stayed to believe - what a happy ending for them!
3. The Acquaintances' Sakes (v.42): "the people standing by", in the street, workshop and office.
4. The Family's Sake. Mary, Martha, and Lazarus. Martha came better to "know" Him, Lazarus, "the power of His resurrection", and Mary, "the fellowship of His sufferings" (Philippians 3:10).
5. The Father's and the Son's Sakes (v.4). The tragic cross became a platform for the glory of God and His Christ: but how else, if our lives were all plain-sailing?
6. The Miracle was the last Link in the Chain that led to the Crucifixion (v.53).

A Poem — "Unanswered" Prayer

HE asked for strength that he might achieve;
He was made weak that he might obey.

He asked for health that he might do greater things;
He was given infirmity that he might do better things.

He asked for riches that he might be happy;
He was given poverty that he might be wise.

He asked for power that he might have the praise of men;
He was given weakness that he might feel the power of God.

He asked for all things that he might enjoy life;
He was given life that he might enjoy all things.

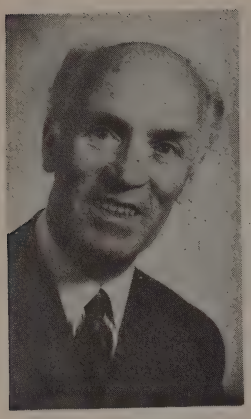
He received nothing that he asked, all that he hoped for;
His prayer was answered.

An Illustration — The City Foursquare
(Revelation 21:16)

TWO and a quarter million square miles is its area! London covers 140 square miles. It is fifteen thousand times bigger than London, forty times larger than the whole of England, much bigger than the whole of India. Measuring by the population density of London, it would accommodate sixty times the present population of the world.

It is only a symbol, however, a type, and the actual is always greater than the symbolic! "O, what will it be over there?"

PRAYER and PRAISE



by F.H. Coleman

ONE of my books which I use most frequently is The Oxford Dictionary. Recently I picked up this volume to look up a word beginning with the letter "P". In turning over the pages my eyes lighted on the word "Prayer". What did the Dictionary say about this word? Let me give it to you: "Prayer is to make solemn request to God". Well, does this fit you and me? Do I come to make solemn requests of Him? I leave your answer to you, but think about it first.

Sometimes we ponder much before we come to God in prayer. At other times, we have to pray in an emergency, with no time for thinking.

I recall what happened to some very dear friends of mine. The family had just three members, father, mother and daughter. Father worked at the docks in London and much of his time was spent going from one ship to another. He came home one winter's day, tired, cold and hungry. Lunch was soon ready. The meal over, mother was washing the dishes. Father remained sitting at the table. Drowsiness came over him and soon he was fast asleep, with his head on his chest pressing against his heart. When his wife came into the room, her husband was blue in the face. She rushed to him, lifted up his head, praying that God would undertake for him. A doctor was called. He saw him still sitting at the table and pronounced him dead. He had no pulse and did not appear to be breathing. His wife protested that he was better than he had been ten minutes before. To everyone's joy, the man opened his eyes and said that he felt better. Two hours later he appeared to be none the worse for his experience.

This was an emergency. There was no time for thinking about prayer. Prayer was offered by a loving wife earnestly and sincerely. She received an answer at once. Is the word "solemn" used by my dictionary a correct word or should we substitute another for it? I leave that to you!

From T. H. Stevenson

TWO weeks ago I commented on the relevance or irrelevance of the Common Market to the Second Advent of Christ. What follows may appear related. At least, it is on the theme of our Lord's return.

Having been a preacher from my early teens, I am aware that dogmatism does not always mean inspiration, any more than revivalism can be equated with revival. Perhaps one has wished on hindsight to forget certain statements which one has made and has hoped that the congregations would do so also. Without expressly exercising a critical faculty, I have been amazed at statements on prophecy by preachers whom I have heard through the years.

On returning to our digs one evening many years ago, I remember suggesting to my senior colleague that he had somehow misplaced the Great White Throne by having it set upon the earth, when the context of the particular Scripture reveals that then the heaven and earth will have already fled away. His explanation the next week at the Bible Study seemed to complicate matters even more.

A visiting preacher in a former pastorate of mine declared specifically the year in which Christ would return. He justified his pronouncement by qualifying our Lord's words that "Of that day and hour knoweth no man". The sincere but sincerely mistaken brother affirmed that our Saviour only limited the unknown day or hour, not the year. The year has gone, the minister is yet here, but the Lord has not come.

Dr. Grattan Guinness in Light for the last Days calculated 1934 as the year of great fulfilment. Perhaps influenced by this, a London bank manager, Mr. Ward, resigned his post and on a certain day met with followers of like mind on Box Hill, a vantage point in Surrey, to await Christ's advent. It was all in vain and only attracted widespread adverse publicity.

In striking contrast to such examples of date-fixing, I heard a preacher assert that the Lord certainly would not come that day in which we were gathered. The speaker's talking and the congregation's thinking about Christ's advent proved the claim, because "In such an hour as ye think not, the Son of Man cometh". Other Scriptures exhorting us to watch, to wait, to work and to wish for the great event were overlooked. Besides which, I cannot conceive of a solitary moment in which a remnant of God's people are not actively thinking and talking about it all. The Word of God reveals facts about the signs of the times and the times of the signs, but here, as in much else, "We walk by faith, not by sight" (2 Corinthians 5:7). Paul wrote those wonderful words by which I have been blessed throughout my life in my daily walk, nevertheless the words explicitly refer to the certainty of the Lord's coming and the uncertainty of the time of His reappearing.

Thoughts from the Book of Genesis

by F. Lavender, Pastor of our Croydon church

THERE was a definite purpose in the Lord changing Abram's name to Abraham, for this change foretold the future. "Abram" means "high father," i.e. a city elder held in honour by the people of Ur of the Chaldees; "Abraham" means "Father of a multitude" (v.5), showing that he would be held in honour by many nations. Abraham is honoured today by Israelis, Arabs and Christians. Of some he is the natural ancestor, of others the spiritual father. The true reason why Abraham is honoured, however, is that, in the wonderful purpose of God, he was chosen to be the forefather of the Messiah. The change of name was a revelation of this divine purpose.

In some parts of the world it has become a common practice for a person to adopt a new name when they become converted to Christ, the new name being intended to testify to their new allegiance. Though we retain our natural names when we are converted, we are nevertheless called by a new name; we are named with the name of Christ, "Christians" or "Christ ones."

Abraham not only witnessed to his God by a new name, but also by a living faith. We must not be Christians in name only, but also by what we do and what we are, for people judge our Master by what they see in us. If our lives are honourable, folk will honour our Saviour, but, if we do what is unworthy, it will dishonour Him. Let us make sure that our new name as Christians is accompanied by a new walk in Christ.

Margaret M. Ladlow's page

A Man called "Happy"

"WHAT'S in a name?" asked Shakespeare. What indeed! "Joy" is a popular name, but would you like to be called "Happy"? My mother once had a budgie named "Happy", and I seem to recall that in the Disney version of Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs one of them was lovable little "Happy". Did you know that there is an Old Testament character whose name was Happy? I refer to Asher, eighth of Jacob's sons and his second child by Zilpah, Leah's maid. He brought Leah great joy and she gave him the name which means "happy".

This child, who grew up to be the founder of one of the twelve tribes of Israel, seems to have had a character and career in keeping with his name. When Jacob the great patriarch gathered his sons together, first to prophesy concerning their future destinies and secondly to pronounce his blessing, he gave Asher the promise of well-being and abundance (Genesis 49:20). One writer comments on this verse: "Asher is happy and is well nourished on good food and has good things to spare for others, he yields 'royal dainties'".

In a prophecy and blessing in Deuteronomy 33, Moses the great leader of the nation of Israel continues the theme of abundance and esteem which Asher is to enjoy. The tribe is to be signally blessed, its population will increase and remarkable prosperity is foretold in the words, "Let him dip his foot in oil". A note in The Amplified Bible shows that this Old Testament prophecy of nearly 4,000 years ago has been fulfilled in our life-time: "The maps of the territory of Asher suggest sometimes the sole of a foot, sometimes the shape of a leg, but in either case the great International Iraq Petroleum Enterprise, opened in 1935, crossed the area just at the toe of Asher's 'foot'. Oil brought nearly 1,000 miles across the sands from Mesopotamia began pouring through the pipes into the Haifa harbour, a million gallons of oil a day. Jacob too had said 'In the latter days . . . Asher, his bread shall be fat'". Doesn't it thrill your soul when confronted by such remarkable evidence of Bible truth and accuracy?

Asher's descendants are promised security and strength. The much-loved Authorised Version of the Bible renders verse 35: "Thy shoes shall be iron and brass." The Amplified Bible gives another facet to this text: "Your castles and strongholds shall have bars of iron and bronze". The overall metaphor conveys the promise of more than adequate protection from all that menaces the people of God. The last part of the verse is beloved by many Christians: "As thy days so shall thy strength be." How many times have we claimed this lovely promise and proved it to be true!

At the end of the prophecy and blessing given by Jacob, we discover that "He blessed them, blessing each one with the blessing suitable to him" (Genesis 49:28, R.S.V.). These sons were grown men, their personalities clearly defined and their characters formed. Would it not seem that the individual prophecies, the blessings and the stern words of rebuke were in a measure merited by these sons? As F.W. Robertson comments: "Destiny is fixed by character and character is determined by separate acts; the sensual life and the indolent life, each carries with it its own eternity."

So Asher is a type of the happy Christian, deserving the abundant blessing of God and able to share his blessings with others, one of those delightful people who just overflow with joy and goodwill and are always able to minister to others. Such believers (I call them, "Members of the tribe of Asher") have, as Moses prophesied, found the source of rich provision in God and draw their strength from Him each day.

Happy, oh happy, is that people
Whose God is the Lord;
Happy, oh happy, if they know Him,
And are trusting in His Word.
Won't you come and join this happy band,
Singing as we're marching to the glory land?
Happy, oh happy is that people
Whose God is the Lord.

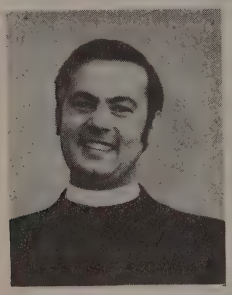
YOUTH PAGE

Sunday School Teaching in Modern Times -2



by Eldin Corsie National Youth Director

"AFTER I was eleven, I learned nothing new," asserted Clive, "just the same old stuff dished up all over again; it was so boring." He was trying to explain to the master of Form 4 Technical why he had deserted Sunday school and the Church. At this point Claire chipped in: "There was always such shocking discipline, too; they let you get away with anything. Nothing was ever properly organised." This prompted Leslie, who just hated adult authority. His father never let him forget that he was a mere step-son and not half as satisfactory as the real offspring. "Well, it was only a weekly pep-talk, after all. You soon knew exactly what was coming. They didn't face up to real life. The chap who taught me couldn't tell you what education really meant, but he was always condemning it. If you mentioned a pop singer, he asked you what football team he played for."

Does this dialogue describe our Sunday schools?

The writers of the report, Citizens of Tomorrow, perhaps had this position in mind when they wrote, "Children we are told, are often pagans . . .but, as a rule, they are open-minded pagans prepared to be interested in religion suitably presented; and even the toughest is conscious of a need for some spiritual background. Undoubtedly there are many young people today groping for help and guidance in matters of truth and conduct and there is much sampling of the Churches. We believe, too, that parents would have more confidence in sending their children to Sunday School if more could be done to improve the quality of the work done there."

Scripture Union Portions — Notes by R.A. Gull

Monday, March 26th John 10:1–21

"I am the door" (vv.7,9); "I am the good shepherd" (vv.11,14).

NOT in the permanent villages, but in the semi-permanent thornbush kraals of the African grasslands, the shepherd closes the gateway with his own body. He "counts" the sheep in, not numerically, for this is taboo, but by name, characteristics or pedigree, for he knows his sheep.

In the pasture, too, he is always with them for protection.

He is responsible also for watering his flock, for water is often inaccessible to the sheep in wells or rocky clefts.

While the elders care for cattle, the sons care for the sheep.

Let us again today trust in the Good Shepherd's knowledgeable loving care.

Tuesday, March 27th John 10:22–42

"Out of My hand" (v.28); "out of My Father's hand" (v.29).

JESUS equates His hands with the hands of the Father. As though to clarify the issue, He follows these statements with one of His briefest declarations of His deity: "I and my Father are one". Amazing is the thought that arises from this – "Whose hands were pierced for me?".

There is more here than a mere equation. A sweet harmony of purpose is revealed, for Jesus said that the Father "gave them [to] Me". The picture is inescapably of the ceremony where the Bride is given by the Father's hand into the hands of the Son.

Believers are the Bride of Christ. They are in good hands today.

Wednesday, March 28th John 11:1–16

"There is no light in him" (v.10).

JESUS went to Bethany knowing what He would find and do. He was met by those whose faith had stumbled in the darkness of tragedy.

They had sent first saying, "He whom thou lovest is sick." Now, with sorrow in their souls, they say, "my brother". Was there doubt of the reality of Jesus' love in that darkness?

Then it was banished for ever, for the Light came. "Behold, how He loved him," they whispered.

May we never doubt the love of Jesus! May His light ever shine within us!

Thursday, March 29th John 11:17–27

"She went and met Him" (v.20).

HER faith was not dead, though it stumbled in the darkness. In such a situation she could not imagine what even Jesus could do, but, with sheer doggedness, she voiced her confidence – "I know" (vv.22,24).

As we have seen Him do so often already, Jesus fed that faith until she could cry, "Lord, I believe" (v.27).

In her darkness she met the dawn. There were yet dark clouds of fear, but even her cry, "Lord . . .he stinketh", was swept aside to reveal the sunrise of resurrection power.

May we go to meet the Lord today.

Friday, March 30th John 11:28–44

"She arose quickly and came unto Him" (v.29).

JESUS had not moved any nearer to Bethany, but had waited for Mary to come. She herself, hearing of His call and of His nearness, "rose up hastily".

Throughout this passage Jesus promotes and even demands similar actions based on faith. "Take away the stone," He ordered. "Loose him and let him go," He said.

Jesus says to us today, "Do what you can and leave the rest to me. You do the possible; I'll look after the impossible!".

Let us rise up hastily and do as He requires of us.

Saturday, March 31st John 11:45–57

"What think ye, that He will not come?" (v.56).

HIS enemies plotted and schemed His destruction. Now a misrepresentation of spiritual truth had clothed their evil plans with respectability. Jesus must die, they claimed, instead of the people, that the nation itself should not perish. They thus conveniently translated gospel truth to suit their own ends and vested their actions with the authority of a divine crusade!

Where there were many who longed to "purify themselves" and those who "sought for Jesus", there was no doubt of the outcome. He would come!

Where there is need, where there is hunger, He will come today.

Sunday, April 1st John 12:1–19

"Against the day of My burying hath she kept this" (v.7).

MARTHA filled the house with delicious smells of a hearty meal, Lazarus filled the house with the joyous laughter of a miraculous release, but Mary filled the house with the heady aroma of spices. Even though her own brother had died, she had kept them for Jesus alone.

"I" crossed out

by A.R.Williams

Pastor of our West Bromwich Church

THE Bible teaches that the greatest sins can be those of omission. The world in general is not half as impressed by the evil things that are done as it is by the good things that are not done.

One of life's greatest failings is selfishness. Too many are so taken up with Number One, "I", that no-one and nothing else seems to matter. "The brotherhood of man" has very little meaning today.

It is not easy to be unselfish, but God can supply the power to take an "I'm all right, Jack" nature and reverse it into one which produces unselfish living.

Unless belief in God helps people to help each other, faith stands condemned. The proof of love for God is the extent to which that love reaches out to those who are in need.

The essence of true love is in the word "give". John 3:16 contains it: "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life." To make salvation possible, God's Son died on a cross. The only way by which self can be put to death is when that cross captivates the vision and that big "I" is crossed out.

The Christian life, if it is to be worthy of the name, demands that the life of selfishness is crucified. Only the power of the living Christ can make this real personally. The sooner it happens to more and more the sooner the world will start to know the glory of love, peace and joy.

Had He not said, "I am the resurrection, and the life", however? No longer was it necessary to keep the spices for His burial, for resurrection does not die!

It was His, though, and she rightly poured out her treasure for Him.

We express our gratitude to Ronald A. Gull for his excellent Notes. From next week our writer will be Laurence E. Lambert, Pastor of our Blackpool (Jubilee Temple) Church and District Superintendent of our Lancashire Presbytery.

Editor.

Sunday school teachers all over England are concerned about the rate of drop-out from the Sunday school. They see promising youngsters start in the church youth departments and watch three out of every four who enter the primary and junior departments break off all contact with the church before they have reached fifteen years of age. Most of the casualties are lost for ever, for, although about forty per cent of all school children in England join a Sunday school, by the time they have gone out to work only ten per cent are still connected with any form of religious activity.

There are three basic questions which I propose to ask regarding Sunday school teaching in modern times:

1. Have we the right aims? – MOTIVES.
2. Do we understand the children? – METHODS.
3. Are we concerned to be trained spiritual leaders? – MINISTRY.

Please keep your eyes on Youth Page for the next few weeks. We shall be dealing with these most important aspects of Sunday school teaching.

AS you will know, our Executive Council felt burdened by the spiritual needs of our country and called our movement to four special weeks of prayer in 1973. The idea was not to replace other special efforts or normal local arrangements, but to seek to lay upon the hearts of all our fellowship the great value of corporate and individual intercession.

The next of our weeks of prayer begins tomorrow, April 1st. We trust that you have been able to incorporate seasons of prayer into your church programme and into your own private devotions.

It has been my great privilege to travel widely during this last ten months. It has been a rewarding and wonderful experience. None the less it has had its sad, worrying side. I have of necessity been involved in journeys at weekends and have been to towns and cities in many parts of the country. It is sombre to witness the vast numbers of pri - vate cars on the roads at weekends and then to observe that so many churches, certainly in England and Wales, are so poorly supported. The large cities are spiritual deserts in many instances. It is gloriously true to say that young people are coming into the Pentecostal churches in larger numbers and many centres have virile, active witnesses in being. Unfortunately, however, it is also certain that, on a national scale, the United Kingdom is backslidden. It is tragic to know that hundreds of people who have come to Great Britain as Christians have gone back into the world - and sometimes have gone into the world for the first time - because of the influence of the godless, giddy round of pleasure-seeking which preoccupies so many of our fellow-citizens.

Our Executive Council is certain that our whole movement will rise in response to pray for a mighty outpouring of the Holy Spirit. There is no other answer. Organisation, enthusiasm, leadership and determination play important parts, but the real way to meet the national need is to see God pouring out His Spirit.

Our beloved brother Joseph Smith has exhorted us for years to stand in the gap. His oft quotations from Charles G. Finney have challenged us. He is right. Our country cries out for intercessors as never before.

TAMWORTH Pastor: R.T. McDonald

AT the induction service for Pastor R.T. Mcdonald, Pastor R.J. Morrison, the District Superintendent, convened while Pastor S.D. Huntly was the speaker. About ninety gathered from other Churches, including ministers in the Presbytery. Items were rendered by the Tamworth Choir. The Church Secretary welcomed Pastor and Mrs. McDonald on behalf of the Assembly and said that he hoped that they would have a long, happy stay. Our new Pastor expressed his pleasure at coming to Tamworth and said that his one desire was to see souls saved and God's kingdom extended. Pastors R.J. Morrison, W.J. Patterson, K. Smith, and S.D. Huntly laid hands on Pastor and Mrs. McDonald, committing them to God's love and praying that great blessing would come to our assembly. The meeting closed on a note of praise to God, for the consciousness of His presence with us.

At the Sunday school prizegiving, about 130 parents and children attended. Items were given by the children. Prizes were presented by Mrs. McDonald.

Pastor: A. K. Chamberlain

A THRILLING missionary week-end began with a pageant arranged by Pastor L. Wigglesworth on Saturday, 14th February. An exhibition of photographs captured the spirit of the tremendous work being accomplished by our Elim missionaries. The joy of the Christians contrasted sharply with the shallow merry-making with fire-crackers in Taiwan and with the satanic grip of black magic in Brazil. It was a great privilege to have Miss Joan Caudell with us. She talked of her personal experiences at Inyanga North, Rhodesia, and of the opportunity for evangelistic outreach at the hospital and secondary school.

As the church lights faded, the names of missionaries and their countries on bright day-glow posters were picked out by ultra-violet lamps. The special lighting also illuminated a tableau of young Christians dressed in colourful native costumes, providing a living background for the pageant. Mr. Peter Rammell took us on a tour of the mission fields with the aid of colour slides, his narration being interspersed with musical items. Mr. Fred Bullivant enabled us to appreciate the needs abroad as he sang, "Cross every ocean". Barbara Faulkner's rendering of "Together" encouraged our daily walk with Christ no matter where He might lead us. Our folk group, Tapestry, related the urgency of the task in the light of Christ's soon return, with Mrs. Lillian Moody's anointed appeal song, "So send I you". A very deep sense of Christ's presence affected the congregation and many responded with renewed consecration to the Master's command to "Go into all the world and preach the gospel."

TOM STROUD

WOOLWICH Pastor: L. Jones

RECENTLY our Sunshine Corner celebrated its second birthday. Over the past two years, a great number of children have visited us and have heard the gospel. We now have a faithful nucleus of twenty-five children who attend each Monday evening.

The highlight of these two years came at this anniversary when the children presented the story of the prodigal Son with the aid of puppets. Unsaved parents were among the people who packed our hall to see and hear the Gospel, for which we give God the glory.

As a result of this effort, the children were asked to present the prodigal Son on Greenwich Cable-Vision, the local television network. This was a great success; we know that God's Word was really blessed that day.

L. HARRINGTON

BRECON Pastor: G. H. Neale

WE celebrated our twenty-first anniversary with a service in the Brecon Guildhall, the place where the original crusade conducted by Pastor P. S. Brewster and party was held. Guests included former ministers

Pastors K. J. Hathaway and P. Daw and their wives. The Mayoress of Brecon was also present. The preacher was Pastor H. W. Greenway who spoke to a congregation of over 200.

Since then the Church has had many special events which include the annual children's carol service when over 120 gathered to hear many items by the scholars. The youth department presented a choir item. Parties were held for the Sunday school and Crusaders, the latter being concluded with an epilogue by Pastor J. J. Glass from Llantrisant. Mr. Noel Richards, also from Llantrisant, sang.

At the Sunday school prizegiving over sixty books were distributed by the Superintendent, Mrs. M. Higgins. During our Missionary Month Mrs. D.E. Bull brought us the realities of missionary work in Tanzania.

The Lord has now given us the desire of our hearts for we have received in memory of their parents the gift of a new electronic organ from Mr. and Mrs. John Davies (our Church Treasurer and his wife). To add to the blessing we have received in gifts enough to purchase 110 new chairs.

We praise God for His goodness and thank His people for their faithfulness.

SPRINGBOURNE, Bournemouth

Pastor: J. Osman

"THE best church campaign I can ever remember," were the words of one of our oldest members during the short campaign conducted by George Canty. Nightly Mr. Canty painted an oil picture and often he gave an explanation and commentary while painting. Items were provided by The Pentecostal Church, Millbrook, the Foursquares (Southampton), The Springbourne Five and our own youth choir. The pictures were donated to those who brought the largest number of strangers to the meetings.

Every meeting was well attended, the church being comfortably filled. The Word was expounded with fervour, passion, inspiration and clarity. There were decisions at every meeting and to our great joy they were mainly from the immediate locality. Several claimed divine healing including one woman who was deaf and whose hearing is now perfect.

Altogether it was a great week and we are glad that Mr. Canty came to Bournemouth. What a help he could be to many of our churches!

J. OSMAN

AYLESBURY

THE Crusade commenced. It was rushed, as the only hall in town, the Assembly Hall, was booked solidly throughout 1973 and for most of 1974, apart from four days, so we had to go in without saturation publicity. We had just one advert. in the newspaper. On the first night, despite heavy rain, we had just over ninety present and the next night there were over sixty.

I. W. LEWIS

HUDDERSFIELD Pastor: J. Fry

ROWS of terraced houses joined by quiet cobbled streets, with an occasional Pakistani grocer's shop and Punjabi store is the setting of our Huddersfield Church where the Young Searchers Club and the F. B. I. (Faithful Bible Investigators) meet each Wednesday. Indian, Pakistani, West Indian and English work together with no evidence of any colour bar present. There are about fifteen boys in the F. B. I. and thirty-five girls in the Young Searchers Club, all between the ages of eight and fourteen.

The groups commence with varied activities like Bible darts and Bible skittles, and different handicrafts. After these activities comes the most important part of the evening as far as the leaders are concerned – the devotional time. Hindu, Sikh, Muslim, Catholic, and Protestant alike listen attentively to Bible stories illustrated by flannelgraphs and pen drawings. The work is hard and it may be some time before there are any visible results, but we believe that "our labour is not in vain in the Lord" and that "we shall reap, if we faint not". As the clubs enter their second year, we look back with gratitude to God in that numbers have increased and the work is progressing.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Mr. Editor,

I would, with your permission, like to comment on the Letter to the Editor in your issue of February 17th from B. Street and G. Parsons.

First, may I quote from a reply to my own letter to my local M.P., Mr. Robert B. Cant. Writing to me (dated February 21st) re the Erroll Committee report and possible extended licensing of liquor he states, "I doubt whether it is likely to be debated in the House of Commons in the near future and certainly with so much other legislation lined up it is even more doubtful whether the Government will introduce a Bill".

My second point is not of a complacent nature, but rather to urge on all who hate the liquor trade, as I do, to pray and watch (and even snoop) to stop the instances of under eighteens still managing to get served and to prevent instances of eyes being closed to drinks being served after permitted hours.

Yours faithfully,
Harold Holmes.

Dead and Gone

by A.S.F. Horne
Pastor of our Ipswich Church

ONE of the oldest desires in the human breast is to live after death. John Fiske says that it is coeval with humanity. This desire not only finds vent in beliefs in personal immortality, which is good, but also in efforts to impose our wills upon our children's children after we are gone, and that is bad. Most ancient frauds, tyrannies and wrongs come from dead people. People's minds are still being corrupted by filthy minds long dead. It is also true that the works of saints long dead are still helping and blessing us in the Church today. It is said of Abel, "He died, but by his faith he is still speaking to us".

This is true of men like Henry Ainsworth, an ancient Puritan who in 1639 translated the Pentateuch, Psalms and Canticles. He was a great Hebrew scholar. John Lightfoot is renowned for his historical, chronological and topographical remarks on the Old Testament. He died in 1675. He was a profound scholar and a very godly man. What a great help Matthew Henry is to us all. This is also true of Dr. Doddridge, John Wesley and Dr. W. Dodd, to mention only a few. Dead and gone they are, but, because of their faith and sense of duty, God is still using their labours.

An old Methodist hymn has a verse that reads:

To serve the Present Age,
My calling to fulfil,
O may it all my powers engage.

The duties of life are almost too numerous to mention. Let us remember that we do not deserve special credit for doing our duty, but we deserve censure if we neglect it. Many today have lost their joy. Work is a duty, a boon, a privilege and there is no joy without work. The idle are not happy; there is ever the danger that, "working not at all", they become busybodies (2 Thessalonians 3:11).

The old saints were workers in their day and their works are still with us (Hebrews 6:11,12, Jerusalem Bible).

Our one desire is that every one of us should show the same earnestness to the end, which will be the perfect fulfilment of our hopes, never growing careless, but imitating those who have the faith and the perseverance to inherit the promises.

In Hebrews 11 we have the exemplary faith of our ancestors, who were all workers and in chapter 12 the example of our Lord Jesus, who came not to be ministered unto, but to minister. Carlyle said, "Blessed is he who has found his work". Have you found your work?

Go labour on; spend and be spent,
Thy joy to do the Father's will;
It is the way the Master went;
Should not the servant tread it still?

To serve is to live, to be happy because it brings satisfaction, and satisfaction brings health. "And the Lord will guide you continually, and satisfy you with all good things, and keep you healthy too; you will be like a well-watered garden, like an ever-flowing spring" (Psalm 58:11, Living Bible). As F.F. Bruce translates it: "and the stiffness remove from your joints". "Guarding you without fail, He will refresh you in dry places and renew your strength" (Moffatt). Stiffness of joints and of minds sometimes arises through lack of exercise. The strength and suppleness of muscles come and go according to use. God help us to use all our powers in doing our duty to God and to man. Let us forget ourselves in favour of the task at hand.

Awake my soul, stretch every nerve,
And press with vigour on;
A heavenly race demands thy zeal,
And an immortal crown.

P. Doddridge

"With so many witnesses in a great cloud on every side of us, we too, then should throw off anything that hinders us, especially the sin that clings so easily, and keep running steadily in the race we have started" (Hebrews 12:1, Jerusalem Bible). "But one thing I do: I forget what is behind, reach for what is ahead, and with my eyes on the mark, I go after the heavenly prize to which God has called us in Christ Jesus" (Philippians 3:14, Beck).

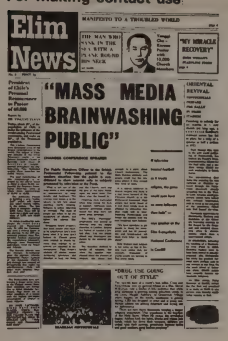
If we have done our duty, then at the end, when others are saying, "He is dead and gone", we shall hear, "Well done, good and faithful slave! You proved you could be trusted with a little; I will put you in charge of something big. Come and be happy with your Master" (Matthew 25:21, Beck). We shall not be dead and gone, but alive and happy, for ever with the Lord.

Thoughts from the Book of Genesis



19. The Intercessor (Genesis 16:3,15)

by F. Lavender

THE wickedness of Sodom and Gomorrah clearly brought the judgment of God very near to the cities of the plain. When Abraham understood the purpose of God, he made earnest intercession in an endeavour to obtain a reprieve. The Lord declared that He would spare the cities if He could find ten righteous people in them. There are several points that we should observe in Abrahan's prayer. His deep concern was both for his own nephew, Lot, and for other righteous folk who may have been living in Sodom and Gomorrah. He clearly recognised that, because of the character of the Lord, He would not punish the righteous with the wicked. Abraham's attitude toward the Lord was one of humble boldness. He never questioned the justice of God in His condemnation of human wickedness. Both in his attitude and prayer, Abraham had a supreme regard for the glory of the Lord.

As we pray for our evil generation remember that we are the children of God. He calls us to "pray without ceasing" (1 Thessalonians 5:17). We can come before Him with reverent boldness (Hebrews 4:16). The Lord is just in punishing sinners, especially following their rejection of Christ (Revelation 16:5), yet He does not desire the death of even one sinner. He desires his repentance and salvation (1 Timothy 2:1-4). In days like these we ought to be deeply concerned both for our unconverted loved-ones, for the city where we live, for our nation and for the world in general (John 3:16). We should especially pray for all who preach the gospel and who witness for the Lord Jesus. Our supreme motive even in praying for the salvation of sinners should be the glory of God. In this way we can be true intercessors, as was Abraham.

"MASS MEDIA BRAINWASHING PUBLIC"

A Tool for Evangelism

MANY methods are used for spreading the gospel. Our task is by all means to seek to reach into all the world in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ.

One of the means which has proved to be valuable has been the distribution of ELIM NEWS. Many churches have used this publication with much benefit and blessing.

Some people seem to be in some confusion, however, and it should be pointed out that ELIM NEWS is not intended as a tract. It seeks to set out the ministry of Elim. It is of particular value when it is used as an accompaniment to the spoken witness. Many people in our country are not yet aware of the marvellous truths for which Elim stands and ELIM NEWS can help considerably towards informing them.

The printed word can be more permanent in value than the spoken word. The tabloid newspaper-type presentation of ELIM NEWS adds to its attraction.

"Shall I push the Button?"

by Bernard J Epton

Pastor of our Liverpool Church

A YOUNG man asked a very serious question, one that many young men may have to settle for themselves in the near future. The young man is looking forward to going to University and later into the R.A.F.

He was worried because in an interview he was asked what he would do if he was in charge of an aircraft on a bombing mission and it was his responsibility to press the button to release one of the modern, death-dealing bombs on the enemy, maybe on a city of civilians in enemy territory.

He was concerned because, as a Christian, he felt that it was his responsibility to save life, not to destroy it. The thought of the horrors that would follow the dropping of such a bomb made his whole being cry out in outrage.

What would you do? The question came over to me also. What would I do? The decision could well involve my family, my friends, my country, my allies, as well as the lives of my enemies, both innocent and guilty.

Decisions have to be made by us all. I was once faced with such a situation some years ago. I had to make a decision which affected the life of my wife. Choice is the privilege of free people and it needs careful thought. A careless choice can bring a lifetime of misery. In choosing the one who will be your partner in life, your choice can bring happiness or misery.

The Bible also demands a choice on our part. We must choose whom we will serve, God or the world. One brings peace, security and real happiness; the other brings disappointment and ultimately disaster. Jesus made a choice. He had to choose between staying where He was or coming to this world, knowing that, if He came, He would have to die for people like you and me. He made His choice. He died for us.

You can choose to accept Jesus and the life that He offers you because He bought it for you with His own blood, or you can reject Him.

Christ's Magnets

(John 12:32)

by Sheila Price

"WHAT are you looking for, mummy?" asked Paul.

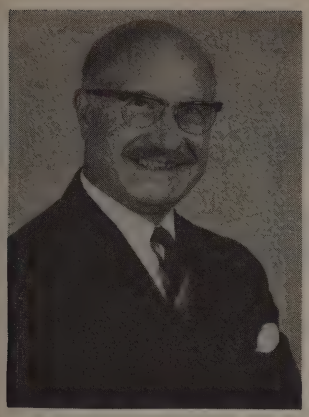
"I have dropped a pin," replied Mrs. Brown. "I must find it before someone steps on it."

"I will help you," said Paul. He got down on his hands and knees and began looking over the floor. The pin was nowhere to be seen.

"I've an idea," said Paul. He dashed upstairs, got out his toy-box and searched inside. "Here's the very thing," he said. "My magnet will soon find the pin, mummy."

Paul moved his magnet over the floor and soon located the pin behind the stool. As he pushed his magnet nearer the leg of the stool the pin seemed to come alive. It moved towards the magnet and suddenly jumped, attaching itself to the magnet as-if-it had been pulled there by an invisible thread.

"Here you are, mummy," said Paul.



"Thankyou," said Mrs. Brown.

"My magnet is very useful, isn't it, mummy? I wish I knew why pins and other bits of metal act so strangely when near a magnet, though." Paul wondered.

"It has to do with the electric forces in the magnet, Paul. We cannot see these forces, but they are so strong and powerful that they attract any metal object. Reminds me of Calvary, Paul," his mother said.

"Why, mummy?" Paul asked.

"Because Jesus showed His wonderful love for us all on the cross. His love, which is still as strong and true today, attracts men, women, boys and girls all over the world. We become more and more alive as we are drawn more closely to Him."

Family News. Births. To Pastor and Mrs. J. Fry, a boy; to Pastor and Mrs. D.J. Green, a boy; to Pastor and Mrs. M.E. Sherwood, a boy; to Pastor and Mrs. P.G. Parsons, a boy; to Pastor and Mrs. D.G. Holmes, a boy; and to Pastor and Mrs. D.L. Mills, a girl. Boys certainly seem to predominate at the moment. We extend our hearty congratulations and good wishes to all concerned.

Sickness. A number of our ministers and their wives have undergone trials in sickness lately and we would value your earnest prayers for them.

Retirements. In recent months some of our ministers have entered the ranks of the retired and these include: J.C. Kennedy, L.N. Knipe, and H. Palliser (due to ill health). May God bless our friends as we say "Thankyou" for loyal services rendered to Elim.

Deaths. Pastor L.P. Cowdery's mother, Pastor B.C. Richardson's mother-in-law and Mrs. Brenda Griffiths' mother have died; our sincere sympathies are extended to all involved in these personal losses.

New Responsibilities. A number of pastors have changed their churches recently. Amongst them are: T.S. Miles to Kirkintilloch; W.J. Malcomson to Hadley; M.J. Baker to Scunthorpe; B.J. Killick to Derby (Assistant); S.C. Cain to Whitehaven; A.O. Johnson to Neath; R.T. McDonald to Tamworth; F. Lavender to Croydon; W.J. Maybin to Southampton; T.J. Broomhall to Gloucester; R.H. Elliott to Penzance; F.A.N. Halsted to Ilkeston; I.G. Clarke to Clydebank. May God bless these brethren in their labours for the Master.

Annual Thank-offering. We are deeply grateful to all who have been kind enough to contribute towards our annual appeal for evangelism. To date we have received £3,000. We have considerable commitments with pioneer campaigns in Aylesbury and Birkenhead this month and others on the "drawing board". From this you will realise why we are so thankful for the generous giving of our loyal friends.

"SO teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom" (Psalm 90:12). This Psalm is probably the oldest Psalm. We are reminded of our transience and of God's permanence. Equally clear is that there is no escape from God's dealing with our sin, but rising above our morbid fears is the mercy and grace of God in beauty upon us.

These lines are being written in our Ilan home, with rain steadily pouring down outside – mostly (there are still some spots where the roof leaks and the floor gets wet!). Every few minutes, fire crackers punctuate the silence, while the streets become rapidly deserted of people doing their frantic last-minute shopping. It is Chinese New Year's Eve; the Year of the Rat is ending and the Year of the Ox begins. This is the greatest holiday of the year for Chinese people. For weeks before, mops, brooms, dust-cloths and wash-rags are applied to every part of each house. A canal in front of our gate provides an ideal trough in which doors and windows are washed. Businessmen try to close all accounts. Hundreds of customs and traditions which date back into past legends are observed by the superstitious.

We praise God for His protection as we have travelled thousands of miles in Taiwan (which has the highest traffic accident rate in the world!) and in S.E. Asia. The VW Microbus which transports children to the Eden Kindergarten, though aging a bit, still reminds us of those in Evangel Temple, Toronto and in the Elim Churches in England who made this important transportation possible. It has a new distinctive three-note air horn that sounds like a bugle call and that brings children scurrying out of their homes to climb aboard.

Already we have begun to receive gifts of books for the Ilan Children's Library. We could still buy some more Chinese Christian children's books as it becomes possible. We don't need any more children's books in English, especially since a group in Canada wrote recently: "In another three or four months we should have several tons of books for you"!

The social life of the Chinese people in Taiwan is developing rapidly with the influence of foreign TV in their homes (there are more than a million TV sets in Taiwan). The decade of the 1960s brought industrialisation, commercialisation and urbanisation at a greatly accelerated rate. The resulting shift in living patterns for people is affecting all the churches. We are trying to meet these changes in some of our methods, since there has been an undeniable decline in evangelistic returns and mounting difficulties in pastoral ministry. One adjustment has begun in the weekly Bible Study. First, beginning with a small, younger group, numbering about twenty, we initiated total participation prayer and discussion study groups. This has been so significantly successful, that the method has now been introduced into the regular meetings with encouraging results. Never have we been more aware than we are now that we must be alert to changes in method, while the content of the Gospel is unchanging. Please pray that we may be wise in this day of compromise and not mistake one for the other!

Overseas visitors do not come our way very often and ones from the U.K. quite rarely, so, it was with much joy that we had Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Ravenhill from Kensington Temple, London, and Mr. Charles Pendrill of Ilford for visits of a few days each. We have not heard yet whether or not Brother Pendrill got his Ilan orchid safely back to England via the US! Larger numbers of visitors are expected this year before and after the Tenth World Pentecostal Conference in Seoul, Korea in September.

Ken McGillivray was born in Chone, Kansu, N.W. China, of missionary parents. He received most of his education in England. He was saved at Easter 1931, at an Elim Rally in the Royal Albert Hall, London. A few years later he entered Elim Bible College, London, graduating in 1937. He went to Mongolia as a missionary in 1940. He was interned by the Japanese from 1942–45. After the end of the war, he went to Canada and married Miss Winnie Jessop, who was at that time a missionary to China with the China Inland Mission, in Winnipeg. After their marriage they resumed work in Mongolia, but, with the civil war between the Communists and the Government and the total occupation of the area by Red forces, it became impossible to do missionary work. In 1950 they were compelled to leave the country. After furlough in Britain and Canada, Mr. and Mrs. McGillivray went to Taiwan (Formosa) in 1953 where they pioneered a new work in the Yi Lan area and established a number of churches. The number of churches has grown since then. Kindergartens have been established, a radio ministry begun, literature programmes initiated and recently a valuable property purchased, further to develop the depth of the work.

"This same Jesus"

by Evelyn E. Green

THE two men did not say "This same Christ", or "this same Lord", but "this same JESUS". His blessed sameness is linked with salvation; "Jesus" means "Jehovah saves".

The Ascendant Jesus

The Lord Jesus Christ and His beloved chosen disciples had come to the parting of the ways. On that memorable night of His arrest in Gethsemane, He had declared clearly and simply that, after a brief absence from them while He lay in the grave, He would return to them for a while, after which He would return to the Father.

So it came to pass. On the third day He rose from the dead, and went to His disciples. For nearly six weeks (Acts 1:3), the risen Christ shared their lives, walked the familiar paths with them, talking of things pertaining to the kingdom of God, that realm of divine sovereignty.

During the first hours after His resurrection, the disciples had been a prey to various misgivings concerning their Lord. An empty tomb and the undisturbed grave-clothes had argued that He indeed had conquered death, as He had predicted that He would, but no one, save Mary Magdalene and her companion, had actually seen Him. The disciples were not disposed to give credence to the testimony of those grief-stricken, loving souls whose devotion to the Master could easily have led them into wishful thinking.

Later that day, Christ revealed Himself to two other disciples after they had talked with Him on the Emmaus road, they failing to recognise the identity of their Listener. Still later that day, He had appeared in the upper room, where the disciples were in hiding for fear of the Jews. As He stood before them, they had gazed, terror-stricken, on Him, supposing Him to be some spectral visitor with evil designs upon them. Seeing and wholly understanding their terror, He showed them His hands and His side. "Then were the disciples glad when they saw the Lord" (John 20:20). To prove conclusively to them that He was no spirit – a being outside the realm of their humanity – but their own Friend, Jesus, He partook of their evening meal (Luke 24:36–43). At last they knew Him, Jesus, the Man of Galilee.

He was the same as before His death on Calvary and yet, in a way, not the same. In the weeks that followed, He manifested new qualities. He could and did appear and disappear at will. This was not all. No Roman army, no howling mob, no evil conspirators would ever again be able to lay wicked hands on Him and make Him the target for their vicious hatred. On Calvary He had spoiled principalities and powers, triumphing over them (Colossians 2:2).

For mankind's redemption, in order that He might suffer death for every man, He had permitted Himself to be subject to the limitations of mortal flesh and in the suffering of death for every man He had conquered death and sin. By His resurrection He was proved to be the Son of God with power and was raised by the Father far above all principalities and powers, "angels and authorities and powers being made subject unto Him" (1 Peter 3:22). Death hath no more dominion over Him. He is the ascendant Jesus!

The authoritative Jesus

Some of the first words uttered by the risen Christ on that wonderful day of His resurrection were: "As my Father hath sent Me, even so send I you" (John 20:21). The sending of the Son to be the Saviour of the world was a commission which could not have been performed by angels or prevented by devils. When the Father sent His Son to fulfil His will, namely, man's salvation, He invested Him with all the necessary powers to execute His purpose, ["God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Ghost and with power" (Acts 10:38)], which culminated in that consummation on the cross, when Christ "through the Eternal Spirit offered Himself without spot unto God" (Hebrews 9:14) as the sin-offering for the expiation of mankind's transgression. As He stood before His disciples in all His risen power, He declared, "All authority [right, privilege] is given unto Me in heaven and in earth" (Matthew 28:18). He went on to indicate: "Because of this, go and teach all nations" (Matthew 28:19) Through His Word and the Holy Ghost He transformed this timorous band of believers into dynamic, spiritual revolutionaries, who, so their enemies complained, turned the world upside down (Acts 17:6).

Having been freed by Him "from the law of sin and death", we are not free to live our lives to the selfish fulfilling of our own wills. He has bought us, has laid claim to us, has sealed us unto the day of redemption as His purchased possession, and has all power and authority in heaven and in earth to equip us for the implementing of the Father's will. "As the Father hath sent Me, even so send I you" (John 20:21). He is the authoritative Jesus! What is our response?

The active Jesus

The Holy Ghost has given us in the Scriptures a glowing, an exhilarating portrayal of Jesus the risen Lord. He is not shown as a pale, ethereal Being, coldly remote from human affairs, a passive Spectator of His dear ones' struggles and disappointments. On the human level He actively concerned Himself with their hopes and fears and, a little later, with their fishing venture which, until He arrived on the scene, had been so conspicuous a failure.

His disciples had signally failed to obey His command, given on the night of His betrayal by Judas, to leave Jerusalem after His death and to return to Galilee, where, after His resurrection three days later, He would meet them. Despite their disobedience, He tarried in Jerusalem and revealed Himself to them, first to the despairing Mary Magdalene, later that day to the two disciples bound for Emmaus, with whom He discoursed on the matters that were tormenting their hearts. At the meal-table afterward, He revealed Himself to them in the breaking of bread. From that joyous scene He went back to Jerusalem to the upper room, where He settled once and for all the painful doubts of some of His unbelieving disciples who were secretly assembled there. Eight days later He again visited the upper room, this time for the sole benefit of that chronic doubter, Thomas called Didymus. Thomas's fears and doubts were utterly laid to rest.

Jesus went back to Galilee and appeared one morning at the lakeside as a group of His disciples were returning from a wholly unsuccessful attempt at fishing. He called instructions to them from the shore, which, when obeyed, resulted in a great catch. On their coming to land, they found that He had made a fire for them and had cooked a meal for them, after which He renewed the commission given earlier to His defaulting follower, Simon Peter (John 21:1–17).

The Spirit of God through the Evangelist John (20:30) declares, "And many other signs [tokens] did Jesus in the presence of His disciples". The Holy Spirit refers to Christ's post-resurrection activities thus: "All that Jesus began both to do and to teach until the day in which He was taken up" (Acts 1:1,2).

The two white-robed men, who, with His disciples, watched His departure from them and His return to the Father, said, "This same Jesus . . . shall so come in like manner as ye have seen Him go into heaven", which is a wonderfully comforting thought. When He returns for us, we shall see that the lapse of time will not have wrought one iota of change in our blessed Redeemer.

There is that time-lapse, however, and we can say with the hymn-writer: "And dark are the days ere Thy coming again". Christ Jesus is not just a fact in history or a remote future prospect, however; He is relevant to every age in the human drama, even to this very moment and its needs (Hebrews 13:8).

"This same Jesus" is ascendant, authoritative, active, for "They went forth and preached everywhere, the Lord working with them, and confirming the Word with signs following" (Mark 16:20). The record ends with "Amen". So say we!

Turn over any Stone, by Edna Hong. Published by Coverdale House Publishers Ltd., Price 50p, postage and packing 6p extra.

I AM mother to two boys who are normal and healthy though rascals. There is the tendency to take one's blessings for granted. This book is a graphic reminder of the condition of so many children who are not so blessed with health. It is the impassioned, heart-felt record of the authoress's thoughts as the grandmother of a mentally-retarded grand-daughter. The style appears to be disjointed on first reading; its staccato wording is not the easiest to follow. She invites the reader to observe her "thinking aloud", for it is deeply, intensely personal, giving a very subjective view of life's problems.

The book is akin to the spirit of Job and the poetical writings of the Old Testament, though in a modern idiom. It seeks to grapple with the problem of human suffering. Though not easy to follow at times, one felt a deep sense of thankfulness for the health of one's own children and that at least one has not to tread this particular path of human suffering, though His grace is sufficient for all.

Reminiscences of Smith Wigglesworth, by W. Hacking. Published by the Author, price 25p, postage and packing 4p extra.

THE name of Smith Wigglesworth is revered as he was one of the early Pentecostal pioneers. In his reminiscences, W. Hacking has recaptured for us some intimate memories of this apostle of faith.

I like Wigglesworth's advice to "repeat in your heart often: 'Baptised with Holy Ghost and FIRE, FIRE, FIRE!'" Many of his characteristic sayings sum up deep spiritual truth in a few words, e.g., "To hunger and thirst after righteousness is when nothing in the world can fascinate us so much as being near to God" and, 'Never say, 'I can't!' if you are filled with the Holy Ghost".

To those who never knew Smith Wigglesworth the price is a small amount to pay to get to know him and His Lord better.

HERE we have a well-produced, reasonably-priced addition to the range of quiz books. We live in a questioning age and the attraction of the quiz never seems to lessen. The questions are rather hard on the whole and would be most suited to teenagers. There are sixty quizzes. This works out at less than ½p per quiz, which seems good value to me. It is a pity that there are only three types of quizzes; a little more variety might have been an advantage. Although the copyright description is strongly worded I have checked with the publishers and they assure me that they have no objection to the quizzes being reproduced on blackboards or by overhead projectors, etc., for use in public meetings. This could be a useful aid to a hard-pressed Junior Crusader leader.

Thoughts of Chairman Jesus. Published by Kenneth Mason Publications Ltd. Price 10p, postage and packing 3p extra.

ONE must welcome any opportunity of putting Scripture into the hands and handbags of modern society; however, first impressions of this booklet were not too favourable. After further readings they had not materially changed. The Thoughts of Chairman Jesus presents short, to-the-point statements, but, without their contexts, some are made ambiguous, to say the least, to the casual, uninformed reader.

The pages develop into teachings of Jesus by way of abridged parables. Perhaps it will find its use in the possession of Christians as a potted form of the sayings of Jesus. I am not sure about its effectual reaching of the unsaved, unchurched, unscriptured masses, which present the greatest need. Nevertheless, God says, "My Word will not return unto me void".

Buy it, judge for yourself and use it how you will.

FOR many years we have enjoyed daily readings in our family life. This book is a creative tool for an effective ministry. It reminds me of Dr. Campbell Morgan's books and preaching. I sat under his ministry for fifty-two Friday night Bible studies. His ministry was creative. He often led one to other avenues of thought, not only by what he said, but also by what was left unsaid. Reading this book carefully and prayerfully is instructive and helpful. I recommend it

The Sting like an Adder's

(Proverbs 23:32)

NEXT door to our Church in Salisbury is a small public house and I am both amazed and appalled at the number of young people who frequent it every night in the week. Boy and girl teenagers appear to spend their evenings there. Social drinking is an accepted pastime today. I can well believe from what I have seen that the move to alter the licensing laws of our country will find support from many quarters. Moreover there is a notion abroad that it is the "in thing" to become good Europeans and as such it is only right to conform to the more "enlightened" drinking habits on the Continent.

The mass media, T.V. advertising, the increase in holidays abroad, the sale of canned beer and wines in supermarkets, and women's magazines with articles on home brewing and table wines, all foster the idea that it is fashionable to drink alcoholic beverages. At the risk of being thought square and unenlightened I stand uncompromisingly for total abstinence from all intoxicating liquor. I hate drink. I hate even the smell and sight of it and take my stand with the wise man who wrote the Proverbs and said, "Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise". I was very pleased when some ammunition came through the letter-box this week in the form of a pamphlet issued by the Church of Scotland Total Abstainers' Association. It is headed, "Call Yourself a Christian?" and is well worth our consideration for it packs a real punch with its undeniable facts and serious challenge.

It begins: "If you could do something about the third deadliest killer disease in the world, would you?". According to statistics issued by the World Health Organisation, that disease is alcoholism. "Alcoholism has earned itself this terrible title. Serious crime, sexual vice, disease, insanity, road accidents and industrial loss are alcohol's cost to society. If all deaths attributable to alcoholism were included, it would easily be the Number One killer disease."

You probably didn't realise this or perhaps you don't believe it. Perhaps we believers in total abstinence have been our own worst enemies. Instead of facts, maybe all you can recall are phrases like "broken homes" and "evils of alcohol". We've used them because they are true, so we make no apology, but now you'll get some sobering facts to set you thinking.

Alcohol is a poisonous, habit-forming drug. Its grip starts with social drinking. One in every ten social drinkers is already an alcoholic. There are 300,000 alcoholics in Scotland. Alcohol loses industry six million working days every year at a cost of around sixty million pounds. Alcohol is identified with crime. Any paper on any day carries a court story where drinking is part of the defence excuse. Edinburgh University researchers discovered that in almost half the convictions for murder in recent years, alcohol played a significant part. In Scotland, among admissions to mental hospitals of men aged over forty, one in three is for alcoholism. These are undeniable facts.

Anyone is likely to become an alcoholic; science cannot separate the potential. Since one in ten become alcoholics, doesn't total abstinence from the beginning make more and more sense?

"CALL YOURSELF A CHRISTIAN and do nothing about all this? For the love of God do something to help", comments the pamphlet. When I read it I could not help thanking God that in the Church of Scotland at least, there are those who are willing to stand against popular opinion and to fight against a growing evil. It seems to me that, as in the case of permissiveness in our land, Christians have remained silent for too long. We shall meet with criticism. The old cry will be heard that the Church is not here to condemn society, but to give a positive witness and encouragement of goodness. Neverthe-

Sunday School Teaching in Modern Times -3

Have we the right Aim?

by the National Youth Director, Eldin R. Corsie

IT is worth pausing to ask what should be our aim in Sunday school teaching. Paul commends the way in which Lois and Eunice taught the Old Testament to Timothy (2 Timothy 3:15–17). The Holy Scriptures are profitable in five ways, to quote G. Campbell Morgan in The Bible and the Child.

"They give information upon which, if men act, they will find it to their advantage. The information is the truth concerning Christ. That information does not save, but apart from it there can be no surrender to it.

"Those holy Writings teach us the truth of God. We cannot philosophise our way to God; we need first to learn the true facts of the matter as therein revealed.

"They provide a test (called in the A.V. a 'reproof') of the life we are building; they are God's plumb-line by which alone we can see how far our life is upright and true.

"They correct the crookedness they thus reveal.

"They supply instruction in righteousness – a kind of mental and moral bath."

Our aim, then, must be to teach the whole counsel of God. We have to deal with children who are growing up in a society which we have described in the terms of life around us, which the Biblical words fit only too well: "a crooked and perverse generation" (Philippians 2:15) or "a warped and diseased world" (Phillips). God is ignored in ordinary calculations and His law disregarded.

The first requirement, therefore, as we begin to frame our policy, is a comprehensive Bible syllabus for the whole Sunday school, adapted to their ages, abilities and aptitudes. Nothing less than this will do justice to God's self-revelation as it is given in the Bible. A child needs to begin to know God's power,

Scripture Union Portions — Notes by L.E. Lambert

Monday, April 2nd — John 12:20-36

"Sir, we would see Jesus" (v.21).
WHEN the request of these worshipping Greeks reached Christ, He immediately began talking about His death on the cross in terms of a corn of wheat falling into the ground and dying (v.24), hating one's life (v.25), it being the very cause for which He came (v.27). Being "lifted up" signified what death He would die (vv.32,33).

Many see in Jesus a great teacher, a moral example, a great prophet; He is all these, but most of all He is God's Son dying as a suffering Saviour.

Can others see Jesus in you?

Tuesday, April 3rd — John 12:37-50

"They loved the praise of men more than the praise of God" (v.43).
DIVINE revelation and human responsibility, which so many have put asunder, are joined in this passage. "Who hath believed . . . and to whom hath the arm of the Lord been revealed?" (v.38). Many influential people were convinced, but they would not confess. They feared loss of position, and of the plaudits of men (vv.42,43).

We must beware lest we hide the fact of our faith. We must never be ashamed of the gospel, or of Christ. Secret discipleship is nowhere commended in Scripture. By our lives, our lips, the things we laugh at, even by stickers on our cars, let us confess Christ.

Wednesday, April 4th — John 13:1-17

"The servant is not greater than his lord" (v.16).
SOME Christians are profoundly moved as they contemplate Calvary; others are as they gaze at Gethsemane. To watch Jesus washing the disciples' feet touches the depth of one's soul. How sublime was Jesus! He came from God and went to God. All things were in His hands (v.3), yet He stooped so low that He girded Himself with a towel and performed the menial task of a slave. Peter, stubborn as ever, at first was rebuked by the Lord: "If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with Me." (v.8).

There should be no task too menial for us to perform for Christ or for our fellow-Christians."

Thursday, April 5th — John 13:18-30

"One of you shall betray Me" (v.21).
THE meal was the Last Supper (Matthew 26:20–25), wherein Jesus instituted the communion service. The man, Judas, was called, "one of you". Whenever Judas is referred to, it mentions that he was "one of the twelve". Judas betrayed the Lord with a kiss; the token of affection became the signal for rejection.

If we go to Communion bearing enmity against another believer, we betray Christ. If we claim to be His and yet continue in sin, we betray Christ. If we take what is holy and sacred and use it for our own selfish indulgence, we betray Christ.

How much better to get so close to the Master that we feel His presence, hear His voice, and know His will (vv.23,25).

Friday, April 6th — John 13:31-38

"Love one another; as I have loved you" (v.34).
HIS hour had come; He was about to die. There was no fear, no failure. He spoke about it as His being glorified (v.31). So is death for every child of God. Christ's only concern was that His disciples should remain in love and unity.

"Love one another" (v.34) was a command; it was not optional. He gave the comparison: "as I have loved you", undeservedly, undyingly, unfailingly. This is the measure that He expects of our love one for another. He mentioned the consequences: that "all men may know that ye are My disciples" (v.35). Great singing, immense talent, superb buildings, are useful, but love is essential.

You must, you can, love through Christ even the most difficult, most obstinate person in the assembly.

Saturday, April 7th — John 14:1-14

"I would have told you" (v.2).
WE have a great future (vv.1-6); the eternal home of the Christian is with Jesus. We have a wonderful Father; He is just like Jesus (vv.7-11). He grants us tremendous favours: "Whatsoever ye shall ask" (v.13).

Jesus was very candid: "If it were not so, I would have told you". He never deceived, never lowered His standards, never offered easy discipleship. He was profoundly conscious of the eternal realm, because He had lived there from eternity. He was able to comfort His followers, for they feared separation. We can rely absolutely on His word. Can others rely on ours?

Sunday, April 8th — John 14:15-31

"Peace I leave with you" (v.27).
HAVE you been remembered in a will? You have been really, for Jesus bequeathed to us the most sought-after thing in the world: peace, His peace, in quantity, kind and quality.

In the world there is tribulation: unrest in society, strife in industry, disturbance in sport, tension between the races. The Lord offers peace of conscience and rest for the fevered mind and the tormented soul.

Child of God, this is your inheritance. Enjoy it today. Let the peace of God rule in your heart and in your home.

less, I believe that to show the true values of morality and righteousness, we must place them against the contrasting background of sin and evil. I also believe that our Christian duty is to work for the salvation of man both body and soul and this includes trying to save him from "the sting of the adder".

wisdom and authority, before he can begin to feel any responsibility to God. He needs to see what happened when men disobeyed. For all this, the Old Testament is invaluable and any adequate syllabus must devote considerable space to its numerous stories, which are full of interest and drama.

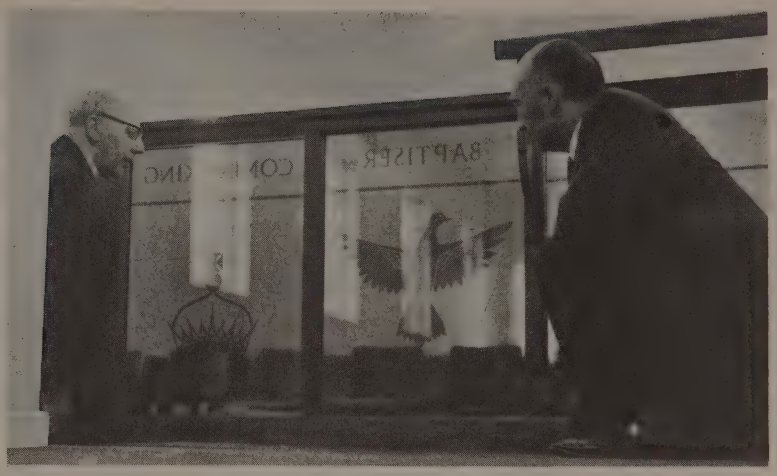
WE are nearing Easter and the list of our Easter Conventions grows apace. It is rewarding and comforting to know that many of God's people will gather in God's House to worship and to magnify the risen Lord.

Sheila Price and Stephen D. Huntly write in this issue of Gethsemane. To me, it remains one of the most wonderful and hallowed mysteries of Scripture. The exquisite suffering of the Lord Jesus Christ is poignantly shown in the Authorised Version's words: "And being in agony He prayed more earnestly: and His sweat was as it were great drops of blood falling down to the ground." (Luke 22:44) — and it is pointed and truly pathetic to observe that Luke the physician is the one who records these details of the physical symptoms.

The load of sin, the curse of the cross already coming upon Him, the sheer loneliness of it all, for the disciples slept through His terrible experience, the fear, perhaps, of physical disintegration, the dread sense of separation which was to culminate in the agonised cry, "Why hast THOU forsaken Me?" –Oh the wonder of it all, yet how moving it is, how sadly, gloriously disturbing, "He took my sins and my sorrows, He made them His very own", and our hearts cry, "Hallelujah!", but Gethsemane was part of it.

We can but see that the cross must have been far, far worse, even though the Garden witnessed such anguish, its very soil being watered by the Saviour's blood and sweat. There was no cause for Him to suffer thus as to deserts. He knew no sin, but, as Maldwyn Jones points out in his article in this issue on God's grace, He was made sin for us. "Alas, and did my Saviour bleed, and did my Sovereign die?" the hymnist sorrowfully ruminated, adding to his mounting queries the most sublime of them all, "Could He devote that sacred Head for such a worm as I?". " 'Tis mystery all", indeed!



Unworthy, thrice unworthy, we are, but the Garden, the betrayal, the judgments, the cross, the tomb are all part of God's wondrous plan to save fallen mankind. Was there ever such a message? Was there ever such a Saviour?

"Gethsemane" — the very name has become synonymous with a catch in the breath, a lump in the throat, a wound in the heart. After His ministry of about three and a half years, when He went about doing good, when nonecould conclude Himunder sin, when none could find fault in Him, wherein He consecrated Himself utterly to the Father's will, crying that He would lay down His life, the Garden of Gethsemane added its quota to the sum of all that went into our redemption.

The place is holy ground to us, not in itself, but for what our loving Saviour bore for us there. Our minds cannot fathom this; it is of the language of love.

"Set on fire our heart's devotion"!

ST. HELENS Pastor: J. Tetchner

A CONGREGATION worshipped in a small hall and waited for the day when their new church would be built, but as numbers diminished and money became scarce, plans for a new building were forgotten until twenty-one years later. Then, last May, work started on the new Elim Pentecostal Church in Duke Street, St. Helens, and tomorrow the building will be opened by Lord Pilkington.

The church's minister is Rev. John Tetchner, 74. He retired in 1966, but was asked to look after the church and travels from his home in Southport to take services on Sundays and Thursdays.

The interior of the new church

He told me: "The growth of the church over recent years has been remarkable. I've seen the congregation grow from a mere handful to such a size that it could not comfortably be accommodated in the former sixty-seater building.

"All this has happened within the last five years. Until then there had been no need for a larger building. Although the hall was put up twenty-one years ago it was only supposed to be temporary.

"But there was financial worry and the congregations weren't so big to warrant extending the hall. Now our prayer meetings and Bible studies are well-attended and youth leader Ron Robinson is doing a grand job with the teenagers.

"It is felt that this will grow even more when the new church is opened."

A total of about £10,000 has been spent on the new church, which has a number of exciting and unique features. One of them has been provided by Pilkington Brothers, who have used a new process to produce four glass panels, each with a symbol.

The church's men have decorated the building throughout and also put in double windows in a noise-proof room specially made for mothers and young children.

St. Helens' Reporter

THE opening day of the new building had everything - glorious weather, grand numbers, good ministry and above all the gracious ministry of God the Holy Ghost, as He descended on us in all His glory. Hundreds of people from many parts of Lancashire shared in the joy of the local congregation. The opening service was most ably led by the Minister, Pastor Jack Tetchner. The opening ceremony was graciously performed by Lord Pilkington, who spoke with obvious sincerity and personal faith. He seemed really pleased to be among us. There were presentations of Bibles to the builders and the architect and of flowers to Mrs. Tetchner and to Lady Pilkington.

The building is delightful, a credit to the local church and to the Elim movement. The congregation have done much and given much to make the opening possible. The previous building, which seated sixty had become too small; it is now an excellent minor hall. The new building will accommodate 200. It is tastefully decorated and furnished. The work here is forging ahead under the fine leadership of Pastor Tetchner, who is supposed to have retired several years ago. His enthusiasm and efforts are an inspiration to the Presbytery.

The Lord gave special liberty to the speakers for the day, Pastors R. B. Chapman and J. T. Bradley, and anointed the singing of Mrs. Chapman. At night the glory of God so filled the building that hundreds stood praising God with hands upraised. At the dedication of the Temple of old they could hardly start, for the glory filled the house; we could hardly stop as the same glory permeated the place. We pray much for the future enlargement and blessing of our work in St. Helens. To all who worked so hard, including the splendid caterers, we say, "Well done!"

DARLINGTON Pastor: G. Fearn

I PAID a visit recently to the Elim Pentecostal Church in Bowman Street, Darlington and, while I am fully aware that similar small organisations are making equally brave efforts, I was so impressed with Pastor Fearn and his work there that I felt a bouquet was in order.

I don't think anyone would be insulted if I said that they have premises which, before they began, would have broken most hearts - dilapidated, draughty, dowdy and depressing, like so many long neglected Victorian buildings that, so often, are the inheritance of small sects.

But Pastor Fearn is a remarkable man. He has a quality of supreme confidence - confidence that his followers will share his willingness to work and move mountains. His premises have the basic advantage that they are solidly built and there is plenty of space - and already a transformation is being wrought.

He is bursting with ideas and conveys his enthusiasm to the young. His appeal is that he offers them a chance to create something for themselves - a youth and community centre where things happen and where all ages can rub shoulders in a variety of activities.

Nothing different in that, you may think, from most church organisations; except that in Pastor Fearn's case he and his nucleus of workers have started from scratch, and already they have overtaken most of their opposite numbers.

It is cheering to know that, quite certainly, up and down the country, there are countless Pastor Fearns using their special gifts to rewaken our latent talents to "help ourselves". Let us not let them down.

NEWCASTLE UPON TYNE Pastor: D. G. Woodfield

HERE on Tyneside we have experienced the moving of the Holy Spirit in our meetings and have been blessed tremendously. The Sunday morning services have been rich in fellowship and worship around the Lord's Table. In our weekly meetings for prayer and Bible study God has been speaking to us through the Gifts of the Spirit and drawing us together in love and adoration. On a recent Lord's Day evening, a baptismal service was attended by about 150 people. Our joy was great when ten young people, including some students and one young girl of twelve years passed through the waters of baptism. Our Pastor gave a challenging message from the Word and three people responded to the appeal.

G. R. SIMPSON

CANNING TOWN Pastor: J.C. Ritter

WE praise the Lord that we are beginning to see some new faces in our congregation. My wife and I were blessed with a baby daughter, born on December 30th, named Rachel Elizabeth, and dedicated on February 25th.

We were all blessed by a visit from Joseph Smith, who at 83 is a living testimony of what walking with Christ is like. We were inspired to go out witnessing and handing out gospel tracts and we truly thank Mr. Smith for the time he spent with us and the inspiration he left us.

We had a baptismal service at East Ham on March 15th when three candidates went through the waters of baptism. We thank Pastor Dawson and the East Ham members for the use of their baptistry and for the fellowship. It is wonderful to be in another Church and to feel the same warmth as in your own place of worship.

On March 18th we welcomed four new members into our fellowship and we pray that their addition will strengthen our ability to serve our precious Lord.

PETER SULLIVAN

STOCKPORT Pastor: E. Snelling

IT was a great joy to welcome fifty young people from the Lancashire Presbytery for a youth weekend. They gathered on the Friday evening from Blackpool, Southport, Wigan, Accrington, Oldham and the local Assembly. The presence and blessing of God were felt from the commencement. On Saturday morning after breakfast, Pastor G.I. Potts, the Youth Commissioner, led the young people in a time of devotion. After the coffee break, Pastor Alex Tee spoke on the Baptism in the Holy Spirit, following which open discussion took place. During the prayer time, four received the Baptism with signs following. Lunch was served and then the afternoon was taken up with personal witness in the town centre and door-to-door evangelism.

At the evening rally, many young people took part. Pastor B.J. Epton gave a message on "Friendship".

Some remained with us throughout Sunday and took part in the services.

The last remark we heard was, "When is the next one, and where?"!

P. GIBBONS

SELLY OAK, Birmingham Pastor: A.K. Chamberlain

A BAPTISMAL service was held when five candidates went through the waters. At yet another such service, no less than fifteen people confessed their faith and followed the example of our Lord Jesus Himself. The outstanding factor in these recent baptisms was the number of young persons taking this step, something like eighty per cent of the total number.

As one sister mentioned in testifying, we seem to be governed in these days by an age limit. We are too old for some things, and too young in other spheres, but God has no age barriers. It is most encouraging, however, to see the response of the younger folk, especially in these dark days!

We thank God for the many blessings which He is bestowing upon our Assembly and pray that these will continue in the days that lie ahead.

The Letter to the Romans

22 The two Israels (chapters 9-11)

by J. Alexander Wright

In order that you may derive the fullest benefit from these studies, we would encourage you to have a Bible by you, so that you can check quotes, references, and allusions.

FOLLOWING chapters 1–8, Doctrinal, and remembering the theme of this great letter, viz. the Righteousness of God (1:17), we see that Paul turns to consider God's dealings with His ancient people Israel, their sad apostasy, and His unfailing purpose which continues, despite that failure. This section is sometimes referred to as Dispensational. We admit the term in the strict sense of its meaning only, i.e. God's dealings with us, but not in any way as a "time" word. It is basic to a true understanding of Paul's Letters to appreciate that in the New Testament Churches, wherever they were founded, there were Israeli nuclei. In the primary use of the term, these were "the saints" (Psalm 148:14), i.e. the godly in Israel, who had found their Messiah. There were no wholly Gentile churches. For centuries, all over the known world, there had been Israelites from the earlier dispersions (700–500 B.C.), the "Diaspora" (see John 7:35; 11:52; Acts 2:5; James 1:1; 1 Peter 1:1), who had built their synagogues for the worship of the true God (Acts 15:21). Wherever Paul went, he sought out these groups and preached the gospel to them. These were, in particular, from the greater body of Israel, the ten-tribed Northern Kingdom, who were carried away captive by the Assyrians in 721 B.C. Concerning these Paul now writes (7:1) and addresses those in the capital city of Rome ("us from among the Gentiles", 9:24). His reference which follows (vv.25,26), is to Hosea's prophecy to that Northern Kingdom (read Hosea 1:6–10; 2:22,23). Among these "Gentilised" Israelites God still had a faithful remnant.

First then we have the Election of Israel (9:1–29). He begins "white-hot with love and wild with all regret" (J.S. Stewart, A Man in Christ, see vv.1–3), protesting his "unceasing anguish" (R.S.V.) for his people because of their unbelief. "I was wishing [lit.] myself accursed", "cut-off" (R.S.V.). A.S. Way amplifies, "Fain O fain would I be myself the accursed scapegoat, driven from Messiah's presence, if so I might deliver my brothers" (see Leviticus 16:10). As would Moses in his similar, passionate outburst (Exodus 32:32), Paul himself would have been that sacrifice. "There is no shepherd found like Moses, who was willing to lay down his life for the sheep" (Midrash, Adam Clarke.), but there was only ever One whose vicarious death could save them and us, and this Paul knew: "I lay down My life for the sheep" (John 10:15). The mood of the verb the apostle uses indicates that he did not actually ask to be cut off from Christ. He knew that such a severance would be impossible (8:39). Living Letters seems too strong in rendering this: "I would be willing to be forever damned". "No man in his right mind could wish himself to be eternally damned in order to save another, or to save even the whole world" (Adam Clarke).

How great, though, was Paul's love for his so-misguided nation. What a marvelous birthright He provided for them! – vv.4,5: the Adoption ("Israel is My son, My firstborn" Exodus 4:22); the Glory, the visible Shekinah of His presence; the Covenants, Abrahamic, Mosaic, Davidic; the Services, the tabernacle and temple with their ministries and sacrifices, all "a vast parable of Christ" (H. Moule); the Promises, the great Messianic announcements of the prophets, now so gloriously fulfilled; the Fathers, those illustrious patriarchs striding across Old Testament history; and greatest of all, Christ, in fulfilment of them all, born of the House of Jacob and of the Seed of David, who is "God over all, blessed for ever" (v.5, Phillips), of which rendering Prof. N.P. Williams in A new Commentary says, "No other interpretation of the passage is surely possible". Yet they so utterly failed God's original intention for them and were almost destroyed by His judgments. Exalted to heaven, they were in danger of being cast down to hell (Matthew 11:13). It was a case of "Of the Lord's mercy that we are not consumed" (Lamentations 3:22; Isaiah 1:9,10).

"Not as though the Word of God had taken none effect", declared v.6, since His original purpose lay not in "the sinful nation and people laden with iniquity" (Isaiah 1:4), but in the true "Israel of God" (Galatians 6:16), "elect from every nation". On the face of things it might seem that indeed the Word of God had taken none effect, since the Christian Church was largely Gentile in composition, but the truth lay in the fact that all were not Israel who bore the name of Israel (v.6), that not all of Abraham's descendants were his children, and that there was a spiritual Israel as well as a physical one. Orthodox Jewish teaching had it that God was bound by His promises to Abraham to save Israel as a corporate whole, whatever their attitude or behaviour. Paul refutes this belief and introduces the doctrines of selection and exclusion. They would recognise this in the instances which he quotes concerning Isaac, Jacob, Esau, and Pharaoh (vv.7–24).

Book Reviews

The unique World of Women, by Eugenia Price. Published by Lakeland Paperbacks, price 50p, postage and packing 6p extra.

VERY often the title of a book misleads one, but this is not the case with this book. The title suggests something unusual and the reader is not disappointed. Eugenia Price has chosen for her subject women of the Bible about whom little has been written or is known. After intense research she has, with romanticism, imagination and candour, told their stories from a very different angle from the usual. She brings to light certain aspects of their characters that are very like the twentieth century and convincingly applies them to present-day living. This is not a comprehensive book for the person who is looking for complete sermons suitable for women's meetings, etc., but it is full of unique thoughts that could, with advantage, be added to already developed messages on any one of the women mentioned.

MARJORIE GORMAN

The Ideal Church: papers read at the Carey Conference. Published by Henry E. Walter Ltd., price 45p, postage and packing 7p extra.

HAVING read some fifty books on the subject of the Church in the past two years, I approached the above with some caution. The most interesting paper given at this conference in July 1971 at Nottingham was by David Fountain of Southampton, who spoke on "Authority and Elders". I found it strange to read: "We do not hold that two or three may constitute a church". We know what he means, but such a statement needs much more careful explanation. I was more impressed by the wise words: "I have often wondered if men who believe they have been called to the ministry but do not. . . manifest the necessary gift, should consider whether or not God is calling them to the work of a ruling Elder, and seek to help those whom they know and have confidence in to strengthen them in their own work."

D.W. CARTWRIGHT

30 Years a Watchtower Slave, by W.J. Schnell. Published by Lakeland, price 40p, postage and packing 6p extra.

I WOULD like to think that this book was in the possession of every Christian family. It sounds an alarm, alerting its readers to the subtleties of the pushers of the Watchtower Society poison. The author writes compellingly of his personal experiences within the organization and exposes the system at its varying stages. He quotes freely from Watchtower publications and reveals how the writers twist the Scriptures, quote texts without reference to the context, and use only six and a half per cent of the Scriptures distorted by ninety-three and a half per cent J.W. jargon.

To loan a copy of this book to any whom you know to be taking the slightest interest in the teaching of the J.W.'s would be to render a very real service.

The last chapter, "When they come to your door", should be read and practised. It works – I've proved it more than once!

GRACE has been defined as a favour, a kindness, an act of mercy, a virtue. A gracious act contains one or possibly all of these things. Grace is employed by the Biblical writers with a considerable variety of meaning, e.g. that which affords joy, pleasure, delight, charm, sweetness, loveliness, good will, loving kindness, mercy, the kindness of a master toward a slave. So grace has come to signify the kindness of God toward man. In addition, the word is frequently used to express the concept of kindness bestowed upon someone undeserving thereof. Grace is that unmerited favour of God towards fallen man.

O to grace how great a debtor
Daily I'm constrained to be!
Let that grace, Lord, like a fetter,
Bind my wandering heart to Thee.

Saving Grace

"For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men". The great concern of the Almighty is the salvation of souls. Although the Church through the centuries has concerned herself with the great needs of humanity, Christianity is not a social Gospel. While the Christian faith contains wonderful creeds, it is not a religion of dogma. While Jesus Christ is rightly looked on as being a perfect man, He did not come to this earth merely to set us a good example. He came for the sole purpose of providing salvation for men and women. "This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners" (1 Timothy 1:15). Is it too much to expect non-church people to understand the word "salvation"? Of course not, for the word explains itself. It reveals a great need and it shows that need can be met. Man is in great need of salvation from sin; this need can be met through the grace of Almighty God. The mystery of the grace of God is that man is totally undeserving of it.

We are now living in the dispensation of grace. This Gospel grace brings salvation, hence it is called the Word of Life, for it brings to faith and so to life. "It hath appeared to all men". Salvation is open to all and all are invited to partake of the benefits of grace. Grace and salvation by the Gospel are for all ranks and conditions of men. "And it shall come to pass, that whosoever shall call on the name of the Lord shall be saved" (Acts 2:21). "Therefore as by the offence of one judgment came upon all men to condemnation; even so by the righteousness of one the free gift came upon all men unto justification of life" (Romans 5:18). "For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved" (Romans 10:13). "The Lord is not slack concerning the promise, as some men count slackness; but is longsuffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance" (2 Peter 3:9).

This saving grace is given to us for a purpose: "Teaching us that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world" (Titus 2:12). The grace of God not only teaches us to do these things, it also enables us to do them. When we repent of our sins and turn to God we have an obligation not to the law, but to grace. We are not given a permit to do just as we please. It is a hard thing to decide for Christ. "Then said Jesus unto His disciples, If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow Me" (Matthew 16:24). In the light of this great grace, we are further exhorted in Titus 2:13, 14, "Looking for that blessed hope and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ; who gave Himself for us, that He might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto Himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works".

Sovereign Grace

We note that it is "the grace of God that bringeth salvation". This emphasis on the Divine origin of the grace that brings salvation is substantiated in Ephesians 2:8, "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God". God is the Author of salvation and its means. Many rely on their good works to get them to heaven, but we cannot gain eternal life by our own merit, for Paul says "not of works, lest any man should boast". Remember that Divine grace is "that unmerited favour of God towards fallen man".

In the first part of Ephesians 2, Paul describes the depth of sin and the greatness of the divine plan of redemption. How wonderfully low God stooped in order to reach the point to which man had sunk. Paul bids the Ephesian Christians to contrast their present experience with the life which they lived before they knew Christ (vv.1,2): "And you hath He quickened, who were dead in trespasses and sins, wherein in time past ye walked according to the course of this world, according to the prince of the power of the air, the spirit that now worketh in the children of disobedience". This world lies in the lap of the wicked one. "This world" means human society as it organises itself for its own purposes of pleasure or profit without thought of God. These Christians had formerly ordered their life and conduct according to the demands and expectations of the worldly world, obeying its motives, governed by its fashions and its laws, and indifferent to those considerations which it repudiated or ignored. To belong to the world in this sense was, in Paul's mind, to belong to the kingdom of Satan. The worldly world had its origin from a false desire for independence on man's part. He did not want to be controlled by God; he wanted to live his own life for himself. So he fell into sin and thus became a slave under the dominion of Satan.

of God

Jones

After depicting the state of sinful man, Paul then describes the method by which God dealt with man in such a state. Undeterred by this condition of moral and spiritual death, God, out of His rich mercy, simply because of the great love He bore to men, has brought them by one act into the new life of His Son. He has quickened them together with Christ. What was previously dead and insensitive has been made alive by the power of God. "Quickening" and "saved by grace" are very important, in that the first step in salvation is an act of divine power. God has taken the first and greatest step in the plan of salvation. Every individual has to decide for himself as to what step he is going to take, but it is God who by His sovereign grace, draws men and women unto Himself. No movement or merit on our part procured salvation for us.

The scriptural doctrine of salvation may be summed up as follows: Man is sinful by nature and by conduct; God is infinitely holy; Christ redeemed us from the curse of the law by taking our sins upon Himself; we share in the benefits of salvation only by becoming one with Christ; the Holy Spirit alone can apply to us the salvation which Christ has wrought; salvation is a continual process as well as an initial act.

Sacrificial Grace

"For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though He was rich, yet for your sakes He became poor, that ye through His poverty might be rich" (2 Corinthians 8:9). How can we possibly begin to understand the great condescension of Christ? The Infinite became finite, the Rich became poor, the Creator took upon Him the form of the created, the Son of God became the Son of Man that we might become the sons of God. This is what grace is all about. We cannot understand it, but we would be very foolish if we were to reject it. Christ sacrificed His all in order to purchase our redemption.

The wording is very significant: "though He was rich". What a wealth He had in glory! All that was made came into being by His creative word. He threw the world into the vast emptiness of space. He spoke the word and the sun was formed to project its beams of light and warmth. He created the stars of the night. Every creature that lives derives its breath from almighty God. Man is the handiwork of the eternal Christ. What riches He possessed, what great wealth lay at His disposal, yet "for your sakes He became poor". This speaks of the great humility to which the eternal Christ of God subjected Himself. For you and me He suffered untold agonies, became subject to such abominable degradation and shame. He did it for us, "that ye through His poverty might become rich". We can sing with the song-writer: "The wealth of all heaven is mine".

Sufficient Grace

"And He said unto me, My grace is sufficient for thee; for My strength is made perfect in weakness. Most gladly therefore will I rather glory in my infirmities, that the power of Christ may rest upon me" (2 Corinthians 12:9). Have you ever asked the question, "Why?" Things go wrong and we are quick to ask the Lord, why He allowed it. Paul says, "And lest I should be exalted above measure through the abundance of the revelations, there was given to me a thorn in the flesh, the messenger of Satan to buffet me, lest I should be exalted above measure". This "thorn in the flesh" gave Paul much trouble, but, though he sought the Lord three times that it might depart from him, the only answer he received was, "My grace is sufficient for thee", and this was enough! His grace will sustain us in every difficult situation.

Points for Preachers

by J. Alexander Wright

An outline – Resurrection Alternative
(1 Corinthians 15:12–19).
"THE rising of Christ from the dead is the very heart of our message" (1 Corinthians 15.12, Phillips). The seven ifs of Paul's great affirmation are arresting.

1. "The very heart of our message" is confirmed by the record of apostolic preaching (v.12).
2. Mankind's hope lies in ressurrection, otherwise, life is vain (v.13).
3. All our preaching and believing is meaningless (v.14).
4. The Church of all time is impugned: Millions have become lying witnesses (v.15).
5. Jesus Christ did not rise after all – a ghastly travesty of truth (v.16).
6. The universal testimony of Christian experience for nearly two thousand years, the sense of forgiveness, the joy, the rest are all deception, imagination, unreal, and all those Christians are "utterly dead and gone" (Phillips, vvs. 17,18).
7. The Christian Church is the object of the world's derision, "of all men most to be pitied" (v.19,N.E.B.).

"But now is Christ risen from the dead" (v.20)!

A quotation – Top Hats
THE top hat was the symbol of respectability and commercial status, but, when every man who was unable to attain that standard nevertheless wore a top hat in order to make it appear that he had reached it, the vogue of the top hat was doomed.

Therein lies the pathos of all symbols. The symbol has a tragic tendency to outlive the thing that it symbolises. A man may continue to wear a ministerial garb after he has lost the ministerial spirit. His people may go on taking the bread and wine upon their lips long after they have ceased to be moved to deep emotion by the deathless sacrifice of which those hallowed emblems so eloquently speak.

An incident – The best Buy
JOHN Wanamaker, of the great stores by that name in U.S.A., was eleven years old when he bought his first copy of the Scriptures. In later years, referring to the event, he said, "I have made large purchases, involving millions of dollars, but it was a boy in the country that I made my greatest transaction. Having attended a little mission Sunday school, I bought an inexpensive red leather Bible for $2,75, which I paid for in small instalments. Looking back, I see that this Book was the foundation on which my life has been built and its influence has made possible all the things that have counted in my experiences. It was the wisest, most important, and far-reaching investment I ever made."

Children's Corner

One Step

(Psalm 119-105)

Words and Drawing by Sheila Price

JIMMY had spent a busy day helping on the farm. He climbed into bed and snuggled under the blankets. He was about to close his eyes when he heard a cry. He sat up and listened. Somewhere in the distance a sheep was crying.

"Grandfather!" he called down the stairs. "I can hear one of your sheep crying." "Yes, I hear it too, Jimmy. It must be old Maisie. She is always jumping the fence and wandering off. I expect that she has got herself trapped in the ravine again. I will go to see," said Jimmy's grandfather. "Can I come with you, please, grandfather?" Jimmy asked. "Yes, Jimmy, but put on your coat and scarf. It is very windy." was the reply. Jimmy hurriedly dressed and went downstairs. "It is dark outside, grandfather. We will need a light," he said. "There is a lamp on the wall near the door, Jimmy. Will you fetch it for me, please?" his grandfather asked. "Here you are, grandfather," said Jimmy.

When his grandfather had lighted the lamp they set off in search of the sheep. "This lamp isn't giving much light, grandfather! I cannot see very far ahead at all. I can see only just in front of me."

"Well, Jimmy, that is all you need to see isn't it?"

"But grandfather, it's only one step at a time!"

"Well, Jimmy one step at a time is far enough. There is sufficient light in that lamp to guide you all the way. Just like the Word of God, Jimmy." "What do you mean, grandfather?" "We must make many journeys as we go through life, Jimmy. We cannot see what paths lie ahead of us, but the Word of God, just like a lamp, shows us each step of the way. It does not tell us of the future, but it tells us to take one step today and that is to ask Jesus into our hearts. Then we will walk safely through the years, step by step with Jesus."

Thoughts from the Book of Genesis

20. The Destruction of a Testimony

(Genesis 19:14)

by F. Lavender, Pastor of our Croydon church

LOT made a selfish choice when he chose the plain of Sodom for his home and selfishness never brings final blessing. Perhaps he intended at first to be a faithful witness to the Lord, for he simply "pitched his tent toward Sodom." When the angel of God visited him later, however, he had a house in Sodom! What is more Lot "sat in the gate;" he was an elder of the city. He had so conditioned himself that he was able to live in Sodom's filth. When the angels warned Lot that the city was to be destroyed, he at last tried to testify and gave warning to his sons-in-law, but they laughed at him. His belated, desperate attempt to testify was a total failure because his manner of life contradicted his words. The materialism of Sodom had so entered his heart that he and his family were saved only after a great show of reluctance; they nearly perished themselves!

We ought to pay attention to this account of the destruction of Lot's testimony, because we are living in an age that is under divine condemnation and wherein materialism, wickedness and spiritual indifference are on every hand. To this age we bear our Christian testimony, but, if we are to be effective, we must keep the world out of our hearts. If we live as the world lives, men will mock our attempts to win them. Very soon the Lord Jesus is coming again and we shall give account to Him concerning our witness, so let us see that out testimony is pure and faithful. May it be like salt and influence others for Christ. Then, in that Day, He will honour us before His Father.

From T. H. Stevenson

I WORSHIPPED in a village Anglican church on a recent Sunday morning at the Communion service. The order of Communion service used is known as Series III. It became official for use from the beginning of February.

Such action confesses the need of change and the three options for the present give opportunity for variety. Opinion in Anglicanism about such changes or options must at least be equally varied. We cherish the freedom of worship in Pentecostal churches and particularly in our Communion or Breaking of Bread services, nevertheless, we question whether all Pentecostal churches really experience what we profess. We may refuse a written form of service, but some must have less freedom than the three-fold option of Anglicans in their present experiments. The pastor may minister the Word of God before the open worship or at another time minister after the worship and Breaking of Bread. He may for some reason omit any preaching. Whether it be the ministry of the Word of any other aspect of our worship, as we earnestly seek to observe the exhortation, "Let all things be done decently and in order", we may do so by variety, or rather, diversity.

Recalling the Anglican service I noted that even the written responses have the effect of involving the congregation considerably in the worship. I also witnessed informality as a layman read the Scripture, ladies and youths shared with men in receiving the offering, and young children went to the Communion rail and knelt beside adult communicants. Where I was seated I was unable to see these young children after they went forward, but the Vicar's wife informed me that they did not receive the emblems. They were being encouraged to be fully involved and received a "blessing" from the Vicar. They would, I am sure, receive a blessing from the Lord.

On the evening of that day I went to the village Free Evangelical Church. There were a hymn, a prayer, a hymn, a Scripture reading, announcements, a hymn, the sermon, a hymn and the Benediction. I remember it well as I was the leader and preacher. I shall continue to remember it well. I was walking towards the church when, at the corner of the road just a few yards from the building, and fewer moments from the commencement of the meeting, I was met by two members approaching from opposite directions. The preacher had failed to turn up and these good friends, surmising that I would be at their service, had made a pincer movement to catch me and request me to fill the gap. It was a pleasure to do so, but in conforming to their nonconformity I felt much more a one-man-band than the Anglican Vicar appeared to be in the morning.

PRAYER and PRAISE

by F.H. Coleman

PRAY about everything. "Don't worry about anything; instead, pray about everything: Tell God your needs and don't forget to thank Him for his answers". (Philippians 4:6, Living Letters).

This verse tells us firstly not to worry. There are a number of reasons why we worry. One is that we do not know how we can meet a sudden situation or demand. God tells us not to worry and He shows us the way out: tell Him everything and He will answer our prayer.

The second thing is: Pray about everything. There is nothing too small or too big to pray about. A young woman told me recently that, when she was a teenager, she was on holiday at the sea-side. While playing with others, the strap of her wrist-watch broke, but it was sometime before she discovered her loss. She ran and told her Mother who instructed her to pray while she went back to the spot where she had been playing. She did so and there was her watch. Many people were about, but no one had picked it up or trodden on it.

The third thing in this verse is that we can tell God everything. "What a friend we have in Jesus, All our sins and griefs to bear." We cannot tell some people, for they would not understand, but He does. Jesus is a constant Friend, even when we may cause Him to be hurt.

The last thing is very important. Don't forget to thank Him for all His answers to your prayers. We live in an age when people are unthankful. Shop assistants, 'bus conductors, take our money without muttering a word of thanks. People do not thank us for what we do for them or give to them. Don't take the answers to your prayers from God and forget to thank Him!

The Observance of Lent

I LISTENED to a radio programme in which a B.B.C. roving reporter interviewed people on a city street and questioned them about their keeping Lent. The answers given were typical of society today. One said, "I'll give up cigarettes", another, "I'll forgo sweets", while others were vague. Some replied that they had no intention of keeping Lent.

I know little about the observance of Lent, except that it is a period of forty days of fasting preceding Easter by certain sections of the Christian Church, during which self-denial is practised. I have searched several books on Church History to discover when and why this custom was introduced, but I can find no reference or information. This brings me to the conclusion that it is merely a man-made custom which, in the passage of time, has become an established Church tradition.

I cannot resist recounting a rather comical anecdote told to me by an Irish friend many years ago when we ministered in Glasgow. He worked on a baker's delivery van. One day during Lent, in a predominantly Roman Catholic part of the city, he overheard a conversation between two women in a shop. Apparently one had been the victim of another woman's gossip and was recounting this to her friend. She added with dire emphasis, "I'm saying nothing for I'm in a state o' grace the noo, but wait till I'm oot of it!". It is hardly necessary for me to comment on such a shallow conception of religious observance. I'm glad that in many truly evangelical churches the keeping of Lent is unknown. It is certainly not Bible-based and I cannot conceive that Lent in any way impresses Almighty God.

How much better is the simple practice laid down in the New Testament of a regular remembering of the Lord's death and a daily, weekly, all-the-year-round appreciation of all He suffered to bring us a free salvation. Surely God does not desire special acts of self-denial at a set time of the year, but, as our Saviour challenged all His disciples, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross daily and follow Me" (Luke 9:23). Our Lord said these words immediately after revealing for the first time that He was to suffer, die and rise again. The meaning of Easter contains the solemn truth that, as His followers, we are identified with His cross and involved in cross-bearing. The message of Easter is deeply moving. It is also glorious in its triumph. It is the most stupendous happening in all history, yet we have a part in it.

We see the extent of our sin in our Saviour's suffering and the greatness of our redemption in His death and resurrection. Even as the world has felt the impact of the cross, so we cannot escape the call of the Christ of the cross to follow Him every day. Dare we catch something of the spirit of the Apostle Paul who could say, "I die daily – that is I face death every day and die to self" (1 Corinthians 15:31, Amplified Bible)?

The Way of the Cross

He carried the cross to Calvary,
Carried its burden for you and me,
There on the cross He was crucified
And, because He suffered and bled and died,
We know that whatever "our cross" may be,
It leads to God and eternity . . .
For who can hope for a "crown of stars"
Unless it is earned with suffering and scars,
For how would we face the living Lord
And rightfully claim His promised reward
If we have not carried our cross of care
And tasted the cup of bitter despair? . . .
Let those who yearn for the pleasures of life
And long to escape all suffering and strife,
Rush recklessly on to an "empty goal"
With never a thought of the spirit and soul . . .
But if you are searching to find the way
To life everlasting and eternal day –
With faith in your heart take the path He trod,
For the way of His cross is the way of God.

Sunday School Teaching in Modern Times -3

by the National Youth Director, Eldin R. Corsie

We must not overlook the knotty parts of the Bible, but present the whole picture. It may not appeal to liberal theologians, but who are they anyway? If it is a fact, for instance, that God punishes sin, then we must not omit the stories that show Him doing this, simply because we have decided that we want to convey a picture of God as Father and Friend.

We must beware also of a false picture of the real state of the child before God. A children's evangelist whose work was signally blessed of God, Hudson Pope, wrote in To teach others also. "What then is the state of the child? It is either (a) a born-again child truly converted to God, a child of God by faith in Jesus Christ, a child of light, or (b) an unconverted child of Adam, wrong in heart, and, according to age and opportunity, wrong also in practice. This is true of the well-brought-up child as well as of the rougher one. The unconverted are spoken of in John 3 as 'blind' (v.3) 'outside' (v.5) 'perishing' (v.16) and, should anyone question the truth of this in regard to a child, I would direct his attention to Matthew 18 where the Lord Himself tells us many things about children, among them that they are very precious (v.10), lost (v.11), have gone astray (v.12), are perishing (v.14), can be stumbled (v.6), can believe in the Lord Jesus (v.6). It is hard to accept the statements about children 'going astray' and being 'lost' and 'perishing' for most of them seem such jolly little people. But God looks upon the heart. Read His description of the heart (Matthew 7:21). This is our Lord's picture of the human heart, even the heart of a child."

A syllabus means that each teacher will have his course of work planned for him. There need be no suspicion that this restricts the Spirit's leading. To order and plan so that one stage leads to another is not to restrict, but to recognise the leading of the Spirit, for this is His method. This is an important pedagogical principle as well. This is the way children learn and understand; the alternative is haphazard, frequent repetition of a few well-known stories, so that children become more and more bored, and boredom is the curse of Sunday school teaching. It takes the whole Bible to convey the whole message. To teach the whole Bible is the only way to obey the command of Matthew 28:19,20. As we do so, the Bible will do its own work (2 Timothy 3:15-17), making the children wise unto salvation, instructing them how to live godly lives, and equipping them for every good work. This means hard work and intense learning on the teachers' behalf, but the teacher who ceases to learn, soon ceases to teach. Sunday school teaching in modern times demands this application and dedication.

Our aim is to present the whole counsel of God and to bring children to a saving knowledge of that truth.

Scripture Union Portions — Notes by L.E. Lambert

Monday, April 9th — John 15:1–11

"Without Me . . .nothing" (v.5).

AS the branch is dependent on the vine, so are we dependent on Jesus. He is the true Vine (v.1). This beautiful metaphor was spoken on the way to, or actually in, the Garden of Gethsemane, where there would be vine trees growing.

We need His life flowing to us and through us. Whether for salvation, for service, for supplication, there is without Him . . . nothing. We must abide in Him and He in us (v.4). No perfunctory relationship is here, but a constant, continuous, close fellowship with and reliance upon Him: "fruit" (v.2); "more fruit" (v.2); "much fruit" (v.5). The Fruit of the Spirit is described in Galatians 5:22, 23.

Tuesday, April 10th — John 15:12–17

"I have called you friends" (v.15).

FRIENDSHIPS are among the most precious things in life. From schooldays right through to old age, it is a great thing to have good friends.

Jesus proffers His Friendship. He never lets us down and He never lets us go. The very best of earthly companions sometimes fail, "One day soothe, the next day grieves us, but this Friend will ne'er deceive us, oh how He loves."

To those who might be low or lonely today, to some walking in a bitter pathway, to some who feel a complete failure: remember "What a Friend we have in Jesus". He is a Friend indeed to those who are in need.

Wednesday, April 11th — John 15:18–27

"The world hateth you" (v.18).

WE all shrink from unpopularity. We long to be loved. We enjoy the praise of men. To walk with God, however, involves us in the same kind of despising that Jesus endured. We are not of this world (v.19). The world hated Jesus (v.18); it therefore hates the Father (v.23). The reason for this enmity towards God is simply that the holy life of Jesus reproves their sin (v.24). Darkness hates light.

Do not think it strange today if at school, in the office or the factory you are persecuted for righteousness' sake; it is really a proof that you are following the Lord Jesus. If we suffer with Him, we shall also reign with Him.

Thursday, April 12th — John 16:1–15

"When He is come, He will" (v.8).

OUR reading gives us glorious glimpses of the work of the Holy Spirit: His ministry in relation to the sinner, the saint and the Saviour.

To the world He brings conviction (vv.7–11). In this permissive age, when fools mock at sin, we think that there is no sense of conviction, but God still pricks men's consciences and brings awareness of evil.

To the saint He brings comfort (v.7), guidance (v.14) and revelation (v.14). He is the divine Paraclete, "One alongside to help". Then it is His office to glorifying Christ (v.14). Have you received the fulness of the Holy Spirit? If not He can come to you today.

Friday, April 13th — John 16:16–33

"Your sorrow shall be turned into joy" (v.20).

"PARTING is such sweet sorrow," said Shakespeare, but he qualifies it with the hope of meeting on "the morrow". Jesus spoke of His impending departure (v.16). The disciples were crestfallen at the idea. Life without Jesus was unimaginable, but He was going away via the cross. With His customary care, He was preparing them for the ordeal of separation. Travail would be turned into triumph (v.20). He would see them again (v.22). He would conquer death and live for ever in the power of an endless life.

God can work the same metamorphosis in your life and turn your sorrow into joy. He can even turn thorns into a crown.

Saturday, April 14th — John 17:1–12

"I pray for them" (v.9).

WE enter here one of the Holy of Holies of the Bible, the great high priestly prayer of Jesus. This is really the Lord's prayer. His great burden was for His own: "Those whom Thou gavest Me" (vv.6,12). It is marvellous to know that God has given us to Christ. It is always assuring to know that folk are praying for us, but to realise that Jesus Himself makes intercession for us can transform each day: "He ever liveth to make intercession for us," (Hebrews 7:25). When we are harassed by the enemy, when we are assailed by doubts, when we work with sickness, when we are frightened by fears, we can take heart, Christ is praying for us. Recall His words to Peter: "Satan hath desired . . . but I have prayed for you".

Sunday, April 15th — John 17:13–26

"As Thou hast sent Me, even so have I also sent them" (v.18).

THE Lord is praying, not only for the disciples of His day, but also for those who have believed afterwards (v.20). He prays for our sanctification, that we will be kept from evil (v.15), for our unification, that we should be one (v.22) and for our glorification (v.24).

Backed by this prevailing prayer, He sends us out into a hostile world. Here we have the great comparative commission: "as . . . so". He was sent motivated by love, enabled by the Spirit, to redeem the lost. These three things must be seen in us as we work for Jesus. He never sends us where He has not been.

"ASSEMBLE at the top of Downing Street with banners" runs the instruction to those who intend to support the presentation of the National Petition for Public Decency on Tuesday, April 17th. "This is our chance to show the government and the world through television, radio and the press how the British people reject permissiveness and how many people still believe in Christian values. Therefore please get as many people as possible to Downing Street and the House of Commons," the hand-out goes on. The same evening will see a mass rally at the Central Hall, Westminster, London, at 6.30 p.m., when speakers will include Ross McWhirter, Mrs. Mary Whitehouse and Stanley Voke.

Did you sign the petition? It appears that thousands of believers did. We cannot surely but be glad that there are those who are ready to take their stand.

The Old Testament Prophets make fascinating but disturbing reading nowadays. It seems at first sight astonishing that God's ancient People, Israel, could have become so spiritually blind that they did not see that the way people treated one another was a clear indication of their spiritual standing. Israel had lapsed in Amos's day, for example, into thinking that outward religion of the most traditional and of the most compromised kind was enough. A veneer of religious performance sufficed and, even worse, the so-called prophets, many of them, prophesied of strong drink, as Scripture puts it, and, as one writer says, "The very priests were the worst of brigands".

Our nation has been on a slippery slope for some years. The degrading spectacle of the bingo craze followed on the lax legislation regarding betting, which has proved to be but symptomatic of the whole permissive trend. Our television screens and, it would appear, even more so, our cinema screens, are often befouled by indecency. It is said that the output of books calculated to deprave has greatly increased. These are only indications of deliberate effort by some to bring our nation ever lower under the pretext of introducing alleged "freedom"

God bless those who take their stand for righteousness' sake!

Church Reports

BRISTOL Pastor: W. R. Jones

WORK on the Bristol City Temple's building project will start any day now. Bulldozers have already demolished the church hall and Sunday school rooms on the site in Jamaica Street, Stokes Croft, as my picture shows. The original church will remain as construction goes on around it.

The building programme, which will be carried out in a number of stages, starts during the church's twenty-first anniversary year.

The Minister of the City Temple said, "The whole complex should be complete and fully operational by 1975."

Stage One is the building of a new church, which will include Sunday school rooms for about 300. Stage Two is the building of five flats in Thomas Street for the church staff. In the summer, work should start on flats for thirty-five old people, followed by another residential block for thirty-five more. "The first block will be self-contained units, while the second block is for people who cannot look after themselves," Mr. Jones said.

The final stage will be the remodelling of the present church building into a nursery.

HALIFAX Pastor: G. H. Wallace

ON Saturday, December 16th, we held our annual senior members' treat, which I attended with my wife. After having had dinner and listening to the address by Pastor O.G. Miles, the guest speaker, I was taken ill with a serious pain near the heart. My son had to help me out of the meeting and into the lounge. I was still in the Lounge when the meeting finished.

When Mr. Miles heard about my pain, he came to see me, and, placing his hand on the spot where the pain was, asked God to take it away. I had suffered from this pain from time to time for over six months and had been to the doctor for treatment. I felt that God would surely hear our brother's prayer.

The pain did not go immediately as I had expected, but, having known the Lord to be my Saviour, Healer and Baptiser for over forty-two years, I felt that I could trust Him to do His will in me. Mr. Miles's prayer was answered sometime during that Saturday night, for, when I awoke, the pain was gone, and I have not had it since.

I do praise God for His goodness to me and I trust that this testimony will be a source of blessing to others.

ARTHUR KILNER

CLYDEBANK Pastor: I.G. Clarke

THE induction service for Pastor and Mrs. I.G. Clarke was held on March 17th. Despite a local bus strike, the Church was well filled. At the conclusion of the service an excellent tea was provided by the members.

The charge to Church and to the new Minister was given by Pastor F.W. Jones, the District Superintendent, and the service was ably convened by Pastor E. Garner. A very warm welcome was extended to Pastor Clarke and his wife and mother-in-law by Mr. Hugh Tait, Church Secretary. There was a lovely anointing on the service.

The great climax of the weekend came when three hands were raised after the message on the Sunday evening. One lady whose children attend our Sunday school brought a friend to the service. This lady was completely broken down. She was counselled by Mrs. Clarke.

The Church feels that God has set His seal upon His choice of the man for Clydebank. We look forward to the coming days with joy. We feel that God is starting to move in this very needy district.

(Mrs.) NESSIE TAIT

ROTHERHAM Pastor: P. Smith

A YOUNG woman who has suffered from multiple sclerosis for eight years and has been confined to a wheelchair for the past eight months believes that a miracle happened in Rotherham when she walked again and left her wheelchair behind.

Mrs. Carolyn Horner, aged twenty-seven, was attending her second crusade meeting at the Elim Church.

She told The Advertiser that after the meeting she was in considerable pain.

"I went and sat at the back of the church with two friends to stay until I felt well enough to go home. One of the ministers came to me and asked me to go back into church with him and said he would pray for me," said Carolyn. "We just sat quietly and chatted on our own in the church. There was no hysteria or anything like that and the Pastor told me that before I went home he would pray for me.

"Just as he started to pray for me I realised I could feel the chair with my legs. I previously had no feeling from the waist down."

Carolyn said she had been completely confined to a wheelchair since last September. "I remember thinking that God would not effect a partial cure, so what was I doing still sitting in the wheelchair? I immediately got up and walked to the back of the church and then back again," she said.

Carolyn was examined by a specialist on Tuesday morning and he said he could only find some "slight weakness" in her legs. "He just turned round to me and said 'You are nearly a miracle.' He wants to see me again in a year's time," she said.

Carolyn has been a Christian from the age of fourteen and has been a member of the Elim Church for the last six years. "I honestly believe it was a miracle that happened on Saturday. I just cannot believe it could have happened without God putting his hand forward and touching mine," said Carolyn.

By the way of celebration, on Monday Carolyn went to the hairdressers' and then went on a shopping expedition in Sheffield. "I played like a child on the escalators," she said.

Carolyn, the mother of a three-years-old son, said her husband Roger was "absolutely delighted" by what had happened, "He has had to carry me up and down stairs for the last six months," she said.

Carolyn was back at the Rotherham Elim Church on Sunday morning and she said people just could not believe it when they saw her walk into church.

She and her husband moved North only eighteen months ago from Colchester, and regularly attend the Elim Church in Sheffield. She emphasised that she did not consider what happened on Saturday to be a faith healing. "I just do not believe in faith healers at all," she said. "Saturday's meeting was an ordinary crusade meeting."

The man conducting the crusade at the Elim Church was Richard Lighton, Minister of the Elim Church at Greenock, Scotland.

He agreed with Carolyn's description that what happened was a miracle. "This is God's work, and we must give Him all the praise. It has nothing to do with me," he commented.

BRISTOL Pastor: W. R. Jones

AS OTHERS SEE US

IT was perhaps with a few misgivings that we accepted the invitation to join the congregation at The City Temple, Bristol on Sunday evening. We had been told to get there early, and getting there early didn't mean 6.15p.m. for 6.30p.m. but 5.50p.m. for 6.30p.m. By 6.15p.m. the stewards were adding chairs to the aisles! We were very warmly received as we entered the Church, and were impressed by the comments of some – "Nice to see you!" said one. "Good evening, friend!" said another, and so on. We soon felt at home.

The front of the Church was very simple – a small cross, and the words "He is Risen", and a few flowers, with two rows of chairs – empty for the moment, not for long, though, as presently in filed a group of young people who were to lead the congregation in their singing. Pastor Jones introduced them with these words: "Each one of these young people has accepted Jesus Christ as his/her personal Saviour – isn't that so, friends?" – and back came the prompt reply, "Yes, yes, yes!".

We were soon joining in the choruses, some long forgotten, but, unlike our own hymns, we didn't just sing them once – oh no! once, twice and three times we sang

He made the stars to shine
He made the rolling sea;
He made the mountains high
And HE MADE ME!

Each rendering of the last line becoming louder and louder. Were we perhaps, in competition with the organ, piano and drums? We were especially impressed with the singing before the actual service began. It seemed somehow to bring the service alive, and when we rendered "Then sings my soul, my Saviour God to Thee – How great Thou art! How great Thou art!" our friends at Eastville Park must surely have heard us.

We were also amazed to see very young children at the evening service, some between the age of three and four years. Half-way through the evening, after the choruses, they quietly filed out of the Church into an adjacent room, where we assumed they were being cared for.

The sermon given by Pastor Jones was simple and meaningful, and we were quite sorry when he announced the closing hymn. We hadn't timed him (of course not!) but we think that he must have spoken to us for a good twenty minutes, and we were surprised to find that we had been in Church for just over two hours. It certainly had not seemed like two hours.

As we left, we all three agreed that we had taken part in a service which vibrated to the praises of our Lord and Master, a service which was alive and forward looking. May we in our Church look forward to the time when we too can say to friends, "Come but come early"

PONTYPRIDD Pastor: R. Hughes

IS God able to do more than we can ask or think? Pontypridd Elim Pentecostal Church would certainly answer, "YES". Some years ago the Church realised that it was working under a handicap in its limited facilities for Sunday school, youth and catering. A substantial Congregational Church almost opposite came on to the market, but every effort to obtain this was of no avail. Its owners were hoping that it could be put to commercial use and thus bring in a maximum return. Prayer was made by the local Church and no planning permission for alteration of use was forthcoming. The timing of God was revealed in the next sequence of events. First all other bids were refused, then the Church put in a bid approximately one-sixth of the original asking price and this was accepted, only to learn subsequently that the local council were preparing a bid for the property but that it had been delayed just long enough for the Church to finalise the deal. Soon the main hall will be used for Sunday school. It is already being used for Junior Crusaders. An excellent kitchen will be installed. The adjoining prefabricated youth hall is being demolished and garages are being erected so that the rents obtained can supplement our income.

Mzee Bull, Tanzania

Without Money and without Price!

Pastor Emanueli Kazimoto remembers

Masai warrior in Tanzania rests on his stick as he listens to the way of salvation explained to him by a Christian.

WHEN Mzee Bull asked me to go with him to evangelise the Masai, I had great doubts in my mind. We Wakweli have suffered so much from their arrogant, quarrelsome ways. "Wanyama wa porini [beasts of the bush]", we called them. Before Yesu came into my life, I hated them.

The women fled from us, shrieking, "Mzungu [European]!". "Who are you? What do you want?" demanded the men. Soon we were telling them of Yesu, the Son of the Great Spirit. His power over demons thrilled them. Truly there is not another tribe like them, for so many of the women are demon-possessed. We had an interview with the chief and, a few days later, we picked up our warrior guide. He and his long spear were accommodated in the Landrover with difficulty, but soon he was out again and, boldly perched on the bonnet, he picked out the best path for our wheels.

There were many at the Baraza. The warriors were standing, squatting or lounging, their spears stuck in the ground before them, the long blades pointing to the sky. The elders passed their horn snuff-boxes, discussing cattle and the price of wives. The hostile looks of all changed to curious stares as the chief introduced us. All eyes were fastened on Mzee as he rose from a grass hammock on which we were seated. He told them of Yesu, who appeared to destroy the works of Ibilisi (Satan). God and His Son send this message to all men: "Whoever believes will be delivered from all the power of Ibilisi."

"Demons cast out?" they exclaimed, "What are the fees for this powerful medicine?" "No charge," we answered, "Only believe". They rejoiced at the message. "Many will believe" they said. The delivery of two demon-possessed women sealed God's Word.

On our next trip, another woman was delivered. Hostility was replaced by such statements as the one made by a warrior who had loped across the plain to intercept us: "I rejoice to see you. My wife is barren. I have busied myself with demon doctors everywhere, not sparing the expense. Now, if it is as I hear, that there is power in Yesu, I will bring my wife to Him."

"If she believes, it is possible," we answered.

"I believe completely," he replied. His wife came out wearing the charms of the many demons whose help had been sought. As we cut the charms off, we told her of God's Son, the Deliverer of the oppressed. "Even I believe," she said. Praise God, the demons fled! Her first child is running around now.

On another day we were guided to a Manyatta. The elder called his wives together. "I am putting you all into Kristo" he said. As we began to testify, one of the women started to shriek and bark, then she rolled in agony as the demon took over. Her immediate deliverance was hailed with great joy. Three more were turned to the Lord that day.

Back at Msolwa, we talked of and prayed for these new sheep. "We must get a shepherd among them," we pastors said. I was not surprised when Mzee approached me. The great Shepherd had been talking to me. Now, I live far away from my own tribe among the people whom I now love.

Children's Corner

One who cares

Words and drawing
by Sheila Price

THE disciples are very puzzled. Soon their Master will leave them and they want so much to share the remaining hours with Him, but it seems as if Jesus does not want their company.

"Jesus is so very quiet", one of the disciples remarks, "I wonder what is troubling Him?"

"It's as if He has some great secret on His mind", says another.

Jesus appears to be deep in thought and the disciples are afraid to approach Him.

"I must be alone to pray to my Father", Jesus tells them. "Wait here and watch with Me".

Jesus walks a few paces and then falls to His knees. "O, my Father, if I must go through this agony, Thy will be done", He prays, and great drops of blood, tears and sweat run down His face.

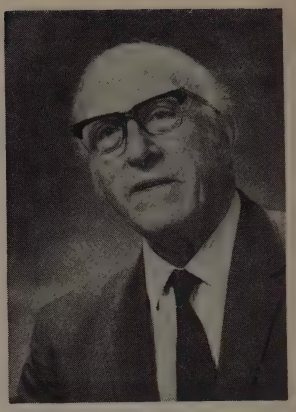
Three times during His agony, Jesus longs to be near His friends. Three times He needs their company and friendship, but each time He turns to find them fast asleep. How hurt and upset He must feel to be let down by His friends just when He needs them. It seems as if they do not care what is happening to their Master. Jesus is not angry with them. "It is not that they do not care", He says, "they are just tired and weary after the long, busy day. I understand exactly how they feel".

He has all the burdens of the world on His heart, but He still thinks of His friends! He is concerned for them.

This same Jesus is our Friend, too. We can turn to Him at any time, knowing that He still cares and understands.

Thoughts from the Book of Genesis

21 Hindrance and Blessing (Genesis 20:2-3,17)



by F. Lavender, Pastor of our Croydon church

ON a previous occasion Abraham's failure of faith had caused trouble (Genesis 12:11–13) and here again we read how his fear of man brought a failure of faith. The Lord had promised to make Abraham a blessing to the nations, but instead he became a hindrance to Abimelech and to the Philistines. Only divine intervention prevented complete disaster. Abraham received a double rebuke, firstly from Abimelech who was clearly shocked by Abraham's deception and secondly from the Lord Himself who made clear by His intervention how groundless were Abraham's fears. When Abraham was restored to faith, the Lord used him again and, in response to his prayer, Abimelech and his people were healed (Genesis 20:17).

Are we hindrances to men and women or are we of blessing? We know that we are called to be witnesses to our Saviour in our generation (Acts 1:8) and it is certainly His intention to make us a blessing to other people. Like Abraham we can lower the standard because of fear of men and thus become stumbling-blocks to those around and hindrances to their becoming Christians. We do things which we know to be wrong because we do not want people to laugh at us, whereas our stand for Christ and truth would cause thoughtful folk to think of Christ and, perhaps, even to become Christians. When we walk by faith and honour the Lord by doing what is right, He uses us in blessing others, our prayers are answered and people are turned to Christ. Let us not be fearful and faithless, but loyal and steadfast in our witness. If there is consciousness of failure, then let us turn in humble repentance to the Lord. He will cleanse and restore us to usefulness.

The Letter to the Romans

23 The Two Israels (chapters 9—11)

by J. Alexander Wright

The "children of the promise" (Romans 9:8) in Paul's insight take on a spiritual character (2:29; 4:16,17; Galatians 3:7–9, 16:29). This was taught by our Lord (John 8:37–39). This election is of God and does not depend on the worthiness of the chosen (Romans 9:11–13). Let us be clear at this point that the election of which Paul speaks was not to personal salvation or to eternal damnation. (There is an election to salvation: "in Christ"). Augustine, and later John Calvin, arguing from this analogy of the potter and the clay (v.21), said, "From the same human clay God makes the elect and the damned", which is true, but only in a limited physical sense. Anyhow it is quite beyond the point of this passage which is historical and national.

What we have here, in keeping with the principle of God's election and exclusion, is the choice of a people, with all but a remnant and a seed of the original chosen nation (vv.27–29, Isaiah 6:13), through whom His great purposes for all men will be carried forward and His ultimate harvest will come. These are His "vessels of honour" and "vessels of mercy" (Romans 9:21,23). As to His rejection of Pharaoh, whom He elevated for a part in His great plan, what might have happened had he co-operated with Jehovah? His stubbornness and implacability brought disaster upon himself and his great nation, however. He hardened his heart again and again, as it is written, so that when we read that "God hardened Pharaoh's heart" we must understand that there was no arbitrariness in God's action; rather He was but ratifying Pharaoh's own choice. Psalm 81:12 illustrates the principle. God never compels anyone to act out of character. Thus all His ways are vindicated (Romans 9:14).

As with Egypt and Pharaoh, so it was with the nation of Israel. They too became "vessels of dishonour" and "vessels of wrath fitted to destruction" (vv.21,22), for what good is a vessel if it does not serve the purpose for which it was made? God had no secondary purpose for His people. Some things may have a secondary use, but not Israel (Ezekiel 15:1–5). Paul's allusion to the potter and the clay doubtless refers to Jeremiah chapters 18,19, the former with its beautiful and well-known message of hope and restoration for all ("He made it again another vessel"), and the latter with its stern, solemn alternative of judgment and destruction for those who refuse that mercy ("I will break this people and city, as one that breaketh a potter's vessel, that cannot be made whole again", Jeremiah 18:4; 19:11).

We have seen how God's ideal Israelite was not necessarily one born of Abraham's flesh and that His purpose envisaged a greater Israel from all peoples, a holy nation which would truly fulfil the original names and titles given to the Israel of old (Deuteronomy 7:6; Exodus 19:6; 1 Peter 2:9,10) and bring forth the harvest that God sought and failed to find in biological Israel (Matthew 21:43). This is Paul's "mystery of Messiah" (Ephesians 3:4–6). He saw that from this "divorced wife" (Romans 9:25,26; Hosea 1:9,10; 2:23), these dispersed Israelites, would come a godly remnant (v.27) as the nucleus of a new Israel, the Christian Church, the olive tree of chapter 11. Peter, writing to these groups (1 Peter 1:1, R.S.V. and other versions), like Paul, likewise quotes Hosea's prophecy and makes the same application of it (1 Peter 2:10).

God had fulfilled His promises to Abraham; his natural seed did become as the stars of the sky for multitude and as the sand of the sea innumerable (Romans 9:27; Deuteronomy 1:10; 10:22; 28:62; Hebrews 11:12). He gave them the land that He had promised them and they possessed it (1 Kings 4:20,21; Nehemiah 9:23–25), but they became so degenerate as to merit the fate of Sodom and Gomorrah (Romans 9:29).

A Glimpse at Gethsemane

AN EASTER MEDITATION

by Stephen D. Huntly, BD

Pastor of our Smethwick Church

"Though He were a Son, yet learned He obedience by the things which He suffered; and being made perfect, He became the Author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey Him" (Hebrews 5:8,9).

AS we look into the Garden of Gethsemane nearly two thousand years ago we see someone praying in great anguish of soul. It is Jesus praying over the sins of the world -- your sins and mine. What did this Gethsemane experience mean for Him? What can it mean to us nearly two thousand years later? To begin to understand what Gethsemane meant for Him we must first consider who Jesus is.

The Son and His unique Person

Jesus was not simply the Son of God, but, quite properly, God the Son. It is essential to affirm the deity of Christ at a time when this fundamental doctrine is being questioned. It is equally important to maintain the humanity of Jesus. He took upon Himself human flesh and blood. He was not in any sense a freak, for His two natures were wondrously, perfectly united. Jesus was fully divine and fully human – yet without sin. It was not simply because He was divine that He was sinless. If this were so, then there would be little hope or encouragement for us to attain to holiness of life. We must understand that Jesus was sinless as far as His human nature was concerned as well. Deity is incapable of committing sin, neither can He be tempted. In order to understand what took place in the Garden of Gethsemane it is essential for us to see that, because He possessed human nature, Jesus Christ was as open to temptation just as much as you and I are. He "was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin" (Hebrews 4:15).

What happened in Gethsemane then when Jesus "offered up prayers and supplications with strong crying and tears" (Hebrews 5:7)? "Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from Me", He said (Matthew 26:39). Was He afraid of death? Was He unwilling to die? Was it fear or unwillingness to face what constitutes the great unknown for humanity?

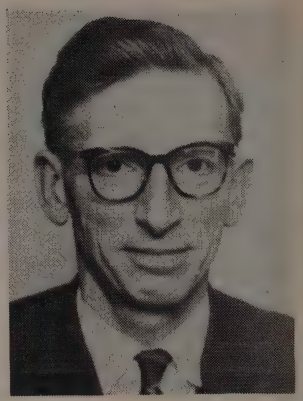
He cannot have been afraid to die, for concerning His impending death He had said, "For this cause came I unto the world". It certainly cannot be seen as unwillingness to die either, for He said, "I lay down My life, that I might take it again. No man taketh it from Me" (John 10:17,18). Was He afraid of physical pain? I think not. What was it then? It was the agony of His sinless soul being made sin for us (2 Corinthians 5:21) and all that this involved. His sinless humanity recoiled at the prospect of being violated by being made sin. He tasted death – "the wages of sin" – in order that we might never need to taste it. It is important, therefore, for us now to see how Jesus became willing to be made sin for us.

The Submission by which He was perfected

The crucial words in the prayer in Gethsemane were, "Nevertheless, not My will, but Thine be done". Being human as well as divine, Jesus had a human will distinct from and yet submissive to the Father's. "My will" as distinct from "Thy will" suggests that Jesus had an independent will.

The prayer of Jesus was heard by "Him that was able to save Him from death" (Hebrews 5:7), yet Jesus prayed, "Nevertheless, not My will, but Thine be done". In this way He was perfected when His will and all the urges and ambitions of His human nature became completely subject and obedient to the Father. Jesus was perfected by the obedience in refusing temptation throughout His earthly life, by the obedience of suffering in Gethsemane and during His trial, and finally by the obedience of death (Philippians 2:8). Through this submission to the Father's will in the face of extreme human sin and suffering, Jesus attained human in addition to divine perfection which qualified Him as our Saviour. Jesus was the only one ever to know sinless perfection.

The Salvation which He provides



Because He was perfected in His human character, Jesus qualified to be our Saviour, Leader and Lord. The greatness of our salvation is that it is eternal. Eternal life does not merely describe the duration of that life, but also its quality. Furthermore, eternal life begins, not when we are ushered into eternity, but here and now in time – at the moment when we yield to Christ as Saviour and Lord. The gateway to this salvation is obedience. He gives "eternal salvation unto all them that obey Him". We enter into this eternal salvation when our rebellious human will is totally surrendered to the will of God. Will you surrender that will to Him now? You will be raised from suffering of humanity to the experience of eternity.

Why human Wisdom has failed

by Reginald Ashby

Reginald Ashby is Pastor of the Assembly of God in Rainham, Essex. He teaches Religious Knowledge in a sixth form college in Grays. He is keenly interested in the new move of the Holy Spirit in non-Pentecostal churches and among students. He has conducted evangelistic and divine healing services in Belgium on several occasions in recent years.

"For since, in the wisdom of God, the world did not know God through wisdom, it pleased God through the folly of what we preach to save those who believe."
(1 Corinthians 1:21, R.S.V.).

WE live in a world which is at the end of an age – and perhaps even of the Age – which began with the dethroning of God, the denial of the possibility of divine intervention, and the deifying of human reason. It started with eighteenth century rationalist philosophy and was carried on by the spread of Darwinism, scientific materialism and the application of evolutionary theories to human development and even to the Bible itself.

Popular opinion still largely accepts Darwin's views and the media continue to proclaim the evolutionary theory as if it were scientifically true, but the theories themselves have been weighed in the balances of human experience and found wanting.

We are left with a de-natured "natural" man – a pitiful shadow of reality, just a very intelligent animal.

Alienated as it is from humanity's full, true heritage and empty of present purpose or future destiny, it is no wonder that the prevailing scientific and philosophical mood is deeply pessimistic. On all sides there is a desperate cry for sanity, love, happiness and fulfilment in a world that has lost the key to its meaning.

In the most ruthless experiment in atheistic materialism that the world has ever witnessed, godlessness has failed to satisfy the highly educated youth who have been indoctrinated with it from their earliest years.

Man does not live by bread alone.

Human wisdom has failed to tell us the truth about our origin. We are not just highly intelligent animals. We were created distinct from them in the image of God and the Almighty gave man dominion over the animal and vegetable creation. "He breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul." (Genesis chapter 2). This is the dignity of our origin which human reasoning has neither right nor power to dispute.

"What is man, that Thou art mindful of him?" cried David. "Thou madest him to have dominion over the works of Thy hands; Thou hast put all things under his feet" (Psalm 8). Original sin did not destroy original dignity and in the fulness of time "a second Adam to the fight and to the rescue came." Sinful and fallen we are indeed, but it is still gloriously possible, through our great Rescuer, to be "renewed in knowledge after the image of Him that created" us (Colossians 3:10).

Human wisdom has failed to give enough consideration to man's moral nature. There was a famous psychologist who, to a great extent, built up his theories on experiments conducted on the pre-mealtime salivation of his dogs. From Pavlov's dribbling dogs came the development of behaviourist "conditioned reflexes". Human conduct was submitted to the same treatment and man, too, became a predictable creature of habit, with all the sinister implications of "brain-washing". There was always a reason, if you probed deeply enough beneath the surface, hence the development of psycho-analysis and psychiatry.

Our behaviour is not always "reasonable", however, as the twentieth century has shown us. Nineteenth century optimism has given way to twentieth century pessimism. We are not just predictable animals, however intelligent; we are constantly faced with moral choices, value judgments, and make decisions, sometimes sensibly, sometimes not. When we least expect it, we are made aware of the claims of that inbuilt umpire of human conduct which we call "conscience". It is not only the result of upbringing and social pressure. "The spirit of man is the lamp of the Lord, searching all his innermost parts" (Proverbs 20:27, R.S.V.).

Human wisdom has failed to provide an adequate understanding of human destiny. The cry of the age is: "Is there a meaning to life?", yet the Church and its message do not seem to touch the masses. Life is lived on a day-to-day basis without getting too concerned about what lies at the end of the road, but people die. There is a fatal crash, a family funeral, a dumb sense of protest. Is life only a sea-mist which vanishes away when the sun rises?

"Thou hast made us for Thyself and our souls are restless till they find their rest in Thee" runs the oft-quoted saying of Augustine of Hippo. Restlessness is a symptom of this age. We have no ruling purpose, therefore we live for anything or everything, and devote our lives to the trivial and transient. We are afraid to think, afraid of silence, afraid to be still and hear the voice of the Pursuer, yet He is telling us that in Christ there is forgiveness, reconciliation and wholeness. Your body is to become a temple in which His Spirit condescends to dwell. Your mind is to be transformed to prove His perfect will. In your spirit you are to enjoy fellowship with the Almighty.

This is not the end. There is to be a change, a transformation. "Thine eyes shall see the King in His beauty". He will wipe away all tears and lead us to everlasting streams of the water of life. What does human wisdom know of these things? For "eye has not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God has prepared for them that love Him" (1 Corinthians chapter 2).

Most seriously of all, human wisdom has no remedy for man's spiritual plight. In its mistaken trust in man's natural goodness, it has failed to get to grips with the root of the human tragedy – the fundamental God-rejection, the frustrations of self-will and corrupt human nature which the Bible calls sin. The basic alienations of man from man and man from God are the symptoms of a spiritual disease so radical that there is no human cure. Man made in the image of a loving God is found guilty, vile and helpless before the God who created him. For this situation human reasoning has no remedy to offer.

Man's extremity is God's opportunity! The amazing glory of the gospel is simply that THERE IS A REMEDY! The message of the cross, which is folly to those who are perishing, becomes to those who come in their need the manifestation of the grace and power of God. The Christmas message is still good news. "Thou shalt call His name JESUS, for He shall save His people from their sins". He, and He alone, is the divine Rescuer. The mood of men may well be pessimistic, but in the good news of Christ's salvation there is a hope which is the anchor of the soul. To men gripped by fear, frustration and sin comes the glad message of forgiveness, deliverance, restoration and peace with God. To an age which has lost its sense of purpose comes the glorious realisation that the whole creation reaches out to see the manifestation of the sons of God.

What has human wisdom to offer to compare with this?

An Elim Missionary Society feature

My Testimony

by Joyce Pickering S.R.N., S.C.M.,

Elim Missionary, Rhodesia

I AM the second of four girls, born on a small farm outside Pickering, Yorkshire. My father was a helper on the Methodist plan, but both he and my mother joined the Elim Pentecostal Church before I was born.

We said prayers at mother's knee and read the Bible before dad prayed. We often accompanied dad when he went preaching. I knew what the Bible was all about and the way of salvation, but not the Author. I did not know of the many struggles which my parents faced. I usually got the things that I badly needed and I always felt that things would turn out all right in the end.

When I was fifteen, having left the farm and by then living a short distance from York, I made my peace with God. I was attending the technical college in York. Everyone was talking about the "Mission to York" by the Welsh Evangelist David Shepherd. On Thursday, March 14th, 1957, we went. I can still hear Charlie Potter, the ex-communist, giving his testimony, which ended with the words, "Now is the time". I knew that it was my time. I struggled, not wanting to give in, but on the last verse of "Just as I am", I surrendered. Later that year, my sisters and I were baptised on the same night by Pastor J. Woodhead, in our York Church.

On January 1st, 1958, I left home, a shy sixteen-year-old, to live in at a hospital. Little did I know of the exams, and the times of testing and temptation that were to come, but God was faithful and He helped me. When I was nearly twenty-one my S.R.N. training nearly finished, I decided to do my R.M.N. This meant that I could live at home and in eighteen months I would be doubly qualified. I never consulted God, and His ways are not always our ways. As the time drew near for me to go, I became very uneasy. One Sunday morning, I was in the Communion service. Pastor Woodhead said a strange thing, "Don't do things for the sake of others, if you think they are wrong!". This is just what I would have been forced to do if I was to carry out all my duties as a mental nurse. I did not cancel my appointment until I had been to another Communion service on the following Sunday and was told through the gifts of the Holy Spirit not to go. I went to the Matron on the following Monday morning. She was understanding, withdrew my notice and offered me a job in the operating theatre. I thought I would never be able to do it, but she assured me that I would be taught if I was willing to learn. I accepted, feeling sure that this was God's will for me. I now saw that God not only wanted me, He wanted my will as well. I spent a very happy two years in that operating theatre.

I visited the Filey Crusade one Thursday night missionary rally. God was speaking to me. All those who were challenged were asked to go forward, but I didn't. Afterwards, the same Welsh evangelist said, "If you didn't come out before, come now." I went. I read the literature, but decided that it was not for me. I wasn't called to be a missionary. I told the Lord I would do anything but go overseas.

I was always careful to ask the Lord for leading and guiding in regard to new jobs, so, after much prayer and heart-searching, I went to Bolton as a junior theatre sister on November 7th, 1965. The job was poor in comparison to the one that I had left, but I finally stopped resisting God regarding overseas work. I went to a nurses' fellowship and there the Lord really spoke to me. I sought the quiet of my own room and at last got the victory. This was a blessing in disguise, for I didn't like the hospital. To work overseas I had to do midwifery – a good excuse to leave. Midwifery was another thing I didn't want to do, but, having made up my mind to do God's will, I applied and started on February 1st, 1967.

A year later I again was wondering which way to go. After much prayer and thought I had a word with my pastor who said that if I was not sure, I should get another job. I secured a post in a hospital theatre at Nottingham and lived with an uncle and aunt in Leicestershire. Because of this I later got a full grant for my first year at Elim Bible College.

After the Conference in Blackpool, things were set in motion. In September, 1969, I went to Elim Bible College for one year. At the end of that year I was anticipating going to South Africa as a Lightbearer. I had made up my mind to stay for one year. Again I had to yield to God and I agreed to stay for the second year. I shelved the problem of what I would do after finishing at Bible College.

The last term arrived and I was no nearer a solution than I had been in the first term. I felt sure that I had to go into full-time work, but how and where I didn't know.

I applied to Mildmay Mission Hospital for a sister's post, but they only had a vacancy for a staff nurse. I decided to accept the lesser job, but the next day brought a letter from Inyanga North Mission, Rhodesia, asking if I was still interested in mission work. My joy knew no bounds. I was laughing and crying at the same time. I took a temporary job at home until all the details were sorted out.

I should add that I was baptised in the Holy Spirit at Elim Bible College. I had sought for a number of years and was often discouraged thinking that God did not want to give it to me. I saw that it was I who was in the way and stopped resisting. He is more willing to give than we are to receive.

Easter Musings

"FOR God sae loved the warld as tó gie his Son, the Only-Begotten Ane, that ilka ane wha lippens till him sudna dee, but hae Life for aye" (John 3:16, Braid Scots).

"LET not your heart be troubled" –
Let not your soul be sad –
Easter is a time of joy
When all hearts should be glad,
Glad to know that Jesus Christ
Made it possible for men
To have their sins forgiven
And, like Him, to live again . . .
So at this joyous season
May the wondrous Easter Story
Renew our faith so we may be Partakers of His glory.

Helen Steiner Rice

MARY stayed at the foot of the cross when the Apostles shrunk away, two only following afar off.
What she receives is after the kind of rewards that our Lord confers.
It is no crown of glory, no guerdon that men or women would dream of. She is given a closer knowledge of things divine. When the eyes of others are holden, she discerns the Lord. To Mary Magdalene – and in some degree to women-kind in her person – was given an honour that could not be taken away. To her, first of all living beings, the risen Lord appeared" from The Risen Master by Henry Latham

SPRING comes with silent rush of leaf
Across the earth and cries,
"Lo, Love is risen!". But doubting Grief Returns, "If with mine eyes

"I may not see the marks, nor reach
My hand into His side,
I will not hear your lips that preach
Love raised and glorified.

"Except by all the wounds that brake
His heart and marred His brow
Most grievously for sorrow's sake,
How shall I know Him now?"

Love came, and said, "Reach hither, Grief,
Thy hand into my side:
O, slow of heart to win belief,
Seeing that for Grief I died.

Lo, all the griefs of which I died
Rise with me from the dead!"
Then Grief drew near and touched the side
And touched the wounds that bled,

And cried, "My God, O blessed sign,
O Body raised, made whole,
By this I know that thou art mine,
Upholder of my soul!".

Laurence Housman

LAST night I drew up mine account
And found my debits to amount
To such a height, as for to tell
How I should pay's impossible.
Well, this I'll do: my mighty score
Thy mercy-seat I'll lay before,
But therewithal I'll bring the band
Which in full force did daring stand.
Till my Redeemer, on the tree,
Made void for millions, as for me.
Then, if thou bidst me pay, or go
Unto the prison, I'll say, "No";
Christ having paid, I nothing owe:
For this is sure, the debt is dead
By law, the bond once cancelled.

Robert Herrick, 1648

Sunday School Teaching in Modern Times - 4

Do we understand the children ?

by Eldin R. Corsie National Youth Director

SUNDAY school teaching in modern times demands not only a Bible-centred message – a programme to teach the whole counsel of God – it also demands thorough understanding of children. A teacher who understands his Bible can still be ineffective if he does not also understand the minds of the children and the methods of teaching them. A Bible-centred message and child-centred methods are our guide-lines.

It has been well said that, if you would teach Latin to Johnny, you must know not only Latin, but Johnny. To tell a story is not necessarily to teach. It is a fallacy to equate all talking with teaching. Preaching is not necessarily teaching.

You must know the child's mind. If we buy a camera, we realize that we shall not get the best results unless we understand how it works; to click the shutter anywhere, at any time, does not necessarily produce results. Children's minds are more complicated than cameras and merely to talk at children without making sure that all the conditions for learning are right is not likely to produce the results for which we hope. We seek to reach their souls via their minds and this involves teaching according to the laws of their minds.

We must remember, however, that they have more than souls and minds; they have bodies. The mind is influenced by the body. An uncomfortable body will hinder and even stop the working of the mind. The child is one and indivisible; we have to deal with him as a whole.

Then there is the matter of personality. Can you recall any subject in your schooldays in which you could not get interested or make headway for no other reason than that you didn't get on with the teacher? The hindrance originated not with our minds or our bodies, but with the relationship between the teacher and ourselves: it was a matter of personalities. Physical and mental conditions were in order, but psychological factors were not properly adjusted and were making themselves felt. There was a wrong climate in the classroom and for no other reason than this, learning was impossible.

In the past psychologists have stressed the importance of instincts and drives in human behaviour and it has all seemed too intricate and abstruse for the ordinary person, but the present social psychology emphasises the importance of the basic human needs which may be summed up as follows:

The need for appreciation;
The need for participation;
The need for insight.

To vary the teaching, different methods of teaching should be used: the lecture, a story, question and answer, discussion, Scripture search, visual and project methods. These are all examples of modern methods' teaching. By employing different methods of teaching we touch each personality in the class. You must ascertain the habits, needs, hobbies and interests of each individual in the class. The Bible authors compare the art of the Christian teacher to the skill of farmers, physicians, fishermen and other such people. The farmer takes account of the soils; we must recognise that the personalities and characters of young people affect the productiveness of the good Seed just as much as its own inherent life. Remember that children are naturally curious.

I keep six honest serving men,
They taught me all I know.
Their names are What, and Why, and When
And How and Where and Who.

Rudyard Kipling

Efficient and effective teachers study carefully how children's personalities develop.

Scripture Union Portions — Notes by L.E. Lambert

Monday, April 16th — John 18: 1–14

"The cup which My Father hath given Me" (v.11).

HIS hour has come. He is in the Garden of Gethsemane. While He sweats drops of blood, the disciples sleep, the soldiers come with stones and swords, and Judas arrives to betray Him with a kiss. To the unperceiving crowds it seems a miserable ending to a majestic life, but Jesus knows that it is all part of the divine plan: "My Father hath given" the cup, our guilt-filled cup. Jesus drinks it. He takes our sins and our sorrows and behind it all is the eternal plan for our salvation.

It makes all the difference who hands us the cup. If it be an enemy, we might suspect poison; if it is a loving Father, we know that all will be well. His cup of bitterness has become our cup of blessing.

Tuesday, April 17th — John 18: 15–27

"The high priest then asked Jesus" (v.19).

THIS portion reveals two strange silences. We all know of Peter's outrageous denial (v.17), but John was known to the high priest (v.15), and yet when Jesus needed him most, John remained silent. We can betray Jesus with a sign, like Judas; with a sentence, like Peter; but also with a silence like John, who missed an opportunity to speak for Christ. Caiaphas asked Jesus about His doctrine and His disciples, but Jesus answered only about His doctrine (v.19). His disciples had all forsaken Him and fled. How could He commend them when they had failed Him so? May the Lord ever save us from cowardly discipleship and help us to stand up for Him.

Wednesday, April 18th — John 18: 28–40

"No fault at all" (v.38).

A SINLESS Saviour is at the centre of our salvation. He knew no sin, He did no sin; in Him there is no sin. He is the Lamb without blemish. His perfection was acknowledged by enemies, agreed by friends, approved by God. We are so imperfect, conscious that in us dwells no good thing. "Vile and full of sin I am", wrote Charles Wesley. Some feel that this is unnecessary exaggeration, but, when we are honest with ourselves and with God, we know that it is true. How glad we are, therefore, to have such a Saviour. When we talk about the Lord we have complete confidence. Poeple can find fault with the Church, the clergy and Christians, but they can find no fault in Him. Let us then "talk about Jesus".

Thursday, April 19th — John 19:1–16

"Behold your King!" (v.14).

WHETHER Pilate's words were said mockingly or meaningfully, to us who believe they are true. John the Baptist said, "Behold the Lamb" (1:29). Pilate said, "Behold the Man" (19:5) and "Behold your King" (v.14). Christ's kingdom is not of this world; it is in the hearts of men. It spans the centuries and today millions acknowledge Him as King of kings and Lord of lords. As King, does He rule every part of your heart and life, or are there areas still in rebellion against His control? When the sovereign is in residence a flag flies above the building. Consecration is the emblem of Jesus' residing in the heart.

Good Friday, April 20th — John 19:17–30

"I thirst" (v.28).

ON Good Friday not many shops or factories close nowadays. There is still some semblance of reverence for this day, but the majority are thinking more of the coast than the cross. Massive indifference, like that displayed by the gambling soldiers at the foot of the cross, is startlingly evident today, yet Jesus still hungers and thirsts for the love of men and women. We say that Jesus can satisfy the heart, and so He does, but in a wondrous way we can satisfy the very heart of God. Do you thirst that the Scriptures might be fulfilled (v.28)?

Saturday, April 21st — John 19:31–42

"They shall look on Him whom they pierced" (v.37).

THE detailed description of Christ's death should be read slowly and reverently. We should "look on Him whom they pierced". We would see the antipathy of the soldier who thrust his sword into Jesus' side. We would sense the apathy of those who gambled for His garments. We would know the sympathy of Joseph as he begged for the body. The suffering of our Lord was much more than physical, for His soul was made an offering for sin. Nevertheless we should "survey the wondrous cross", and "see from His head, His hands, His feet, sorrow and love flow mingled down".

When the Lord returns, Israel will then "look on Him whom they pierced".

Easter Sunday, April 22nd — John 20:1–18

"Why weepest thou?" (v.13).

BE gone all gloom! Dismiss all doubts! Send away all sadness! JESUS IS ALIVE! "He must rise again from the dead" (v.9).

Mary was full of false notions. She thought that Jesus was dead, that the body had been stolen, that the Stranger was the gardener. Her tears were misplaced. Easter is a time of triumph, not of tears. Rejoice today: Christ is risen – He is our living Friend. God can wipe away all tears from your eyes. You need never be lonely again. Your departed loved-one in Christ is alive in God's presence. There are many things that cause people to weep, but in Christ we can conquer.

Mary turned back and saw Jesus. Look back and remember how good God has been to you.

YESTERDAY

by
A.S.F. Horne

Pastor of our Ipswich Church

JOB said, "For we are but of yesterday" (Job 8:9). The older we get, the more we talk of yesterday, yesterday when the sun always shone, when we were happier than we are now. Greater were the blessings of yesterday. All the great and powerful sermons were preached yesterday. Do you know that people are not what they were? Who made those profound statements? – the people of yesterday!

I believe that people are just as wicked as they have always been and I also believe that there are those now who are as godly as those of yesterday.

The past is gone. Its effect upon our destiny will be gauged by how we translate it into the future. If we brood over the past and weaken ourselves with vain regrets, self-contempt and remorse, then it will poison and undo us.

I know One and only One of yesterday who is the same today as yesterday and for ever (Hebrews 13:8). He is the only One who is able to blot out the sins of yesterday, so that they cannot be remembered against us any more. The Greek of Hebrews 13:8 is more emphatic. It could be rendered: "Jesus Christ is yesterday and today the same and for ever."

God had one eternal Son. Now, through and by His work on Calvary, we who believe are the eternal sons of the eternal God. We have a future, therefore, a hope, and hope energises, "for we are saved by hope", not just yesterday, but today and tomorrow. So rise up and face the future! Whatever the past has been, let it nerve us to spend our remaining days on earth in faithfulness and loyalty.

Tennyson wrote:

I hold it truth, with him (Goethe) who sings
To one clear harp in divers tones,
That men may rise on stepping-stones
Of their dead selves to higher things

Paul wrote: "No, my brothers, I deem not that I have grasped it yet, but one thing I can say is this, that I forget all the course left behind, that I strain on, on, over that which stretches before me. With the goal in view am I racing on, onward to the prize to which God is calling us upward, the life in Messiah Jesus" (Philippians 3:13, 14, Way).

Are you a "yesterday Christian" – always talking of what you have done and been? I know a woman who always told of her operation of twenty years ago! May the experiences of the past help us to believe that our Lord Jesus Christ is able today and for ever. We shall overcome; His power is an unchanging power. He is able to keep today and for ever. If you have only a yesterday experience, you are of little use today. There are souls to be saved and victories to be won today. Not in yesterday and past things, but with Jesus of yesterday, who is the same today and for ever, we go forward to more wonderful experiences than we have ever known. Yesterday we have seen Him through a darkened glass; one day still future we shall see Him face to face.

Is your church a soul-saving centre with plenty of workers, or are you living in the past or in the future? Spirit-filled believers are not living in the past; God has filled them with His Spirit for the work today.

The God of glory walks His round
From day to day, from year to year,
And warns us each with awful sound
"No longer stand ye idle here!"

One hour remains: there is but one;
But many a shriek and many a tear,
Through endless years the guilt must moan
Of moments lost and wasted here.

O Thou by all Thy works adored,
To whom the sinner's soul is dear;
Recall us to Thy vineyard, Lord,
And grant us grace to serve Thee here."

R. Heber.

THE conversation between the risen Lord and the two on the road to Emmaus makes fascinating reading. The underlying cause of their failure to recognise the risen Lord is expressed in Luke 24:16: "Their eyes were holden that they should not know Him." It soon becomes obvious that they were engrossed in the recent events. As you read their words in verses 19-24, you get the strong feeling that the rebuke of the Lord Jesus Christ was very well justified when He said, "O fools, and slow of heart to believe".

Observe, however, that the focal point of their unbelief is adequately expressed: "O fools, and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken: Ought not Christ to have suffered these things, and to enter into His glory?" They were immersed in the immediate; He was involved in the infinite. They succumbed to the overwhelming sense both of frustration and of bewilderment; He was completely aware of the predestinated, foreknown purpose of God. Further, He knew that the secret of God was already there for them to see, indeed it was really an open secret, for the Word of God had clearly foretold what would take place.

A Baptist friend said to me the other day that of course Whitsuntide was the great convention time for Pentecostals. I agreed, but pointed out that Easter was an even greater one. There would have been no Pentecost but for Easter. In this sense Pentecost, as are all other spiritual benefits and blessings, indeed all that accrues to God's people and to the world, is derivative. Easter is fundamental, foundation, if you like, while Pentecost is of the superstructure. The finished work of Christ on the cross and the glorious resurrection are the complete essentials. This is not to belittle Pentecost, but to place it in its rightful order. A visit to the Upper Room must follow one to Calvary!

This is revealed by our Saviour in His words in Luke 24. Twice in the chapter He is shown as giving a panoramic view of Scripture truth. Verses 27 and 44 comprehensively involve the whole of Scripture in the pivotal events of Calvary and the empty tomb. The living Word, Jesus, fulfilled the written Word.

See, then, that the promise of verse 49 followed and derived from the Atonement and the Resurrection: "Behold, I send the promise of My Father upon you: but tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem, until ye be endued with power from on high." Then in the power of the living Spirit we can declare the risen Saviour from the mighty Word!

Pause a moment. Recall how blind were the two on the way to Emmaus. We are sometimes, often. The truth is there, revealed, but preoccupation with the immediate robs us of the vital, experiences and declarations. When you apply this to the Second Advent of Christ it is even more true.

This is Easter, however, and we rejoice! He did die, but He is alive and He will come! Hallelujah! The Word says so, and we believe the Scripture of Truth!

Show us Calvary!

"Christ . . . being made a curse for us" (Galatians 3:13)

by James F. Hardman, Pastor of our Ilford church

A PARTY of sightseers trudged obediently behind the guide as he showed them the sights of Jerusalem. As they moved from building to building, from one sacred spot to the next, one in the crowd became impatient. Suddenly he called out to the guide. "Why don't you show us Calvary?"

There is something about our world, with its overwhelming sense of bewilderment, that seems to cry out to the Christian Church: "Why don't you show us Calvary?". The ordinary man seems to exhibit a pathetic nostalgia as he looks at the cross of Christ and at the Christ of the cross. He wonders if they have any meaning. Someone has well said, "The cross doesn't make sense until a man accepts the Bible's explanation of it, that 'while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us' (Romans 5:8)." Peter says, "Christ also hath once suffered for sins, the just for the unjust, that He might bring us to God" (1 Peter 3:18). John adds, "He is the propitiation ["atoning sacrifice", Amplified Version] for our sins" (1 John 2:2).

Where did these Apostles learn these views of the cross, but from Christ Himself? There is no mistaking the fact that Jesus anticipated His death as an atoning sacrifice (cf. Matthew 20:28;26:28)."The philosophy of the death of Christ". says Robert Clarke, "is too big and too many-sided for the finite mind to comprehend fully. We cannot expect to be able to put the contents of the Christian faith, which is a divine revelation, into the vessel of a finite mind. Although Christian truths, among them the atonement of the cross, are not capable of full comprehension, it does not follow that they are beyond any apprehension." It was wonderful that Jesus, the Son of God, should come to earth, more wonderful still that He should die – but why such a death – "even the death of the cross" (Philippians 2:8)? It was a criminal's death. We trace His steps from His arrest in the garden and recall His experiences with the soldiers. He was scourged, a purple robe was placed in mockery upon Him and a crown of thorns upon His head. They smote Him and spat upon Him, and then He was led away to be crucified. There He hung, exposed to the mocking raillery of His enemies. "Cursed is everyone that hangeth on a tree" (Galatians 3:13) God's law by Moses had proclaimed long centuries before.

O the exhaustless love and humility of Christ, that he should stoop to become a Babe, a Servant, but, greater still, to become "a curse"! "Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the law, being made a curse for us; for it is written, Cursed is every one that hangeth on a tree: That the blessing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles through Jesus Christ, that we might receive the promise of the Spirit through faith" (Galatians 3:13.14). God's law is perfect; that is why imperfect men cannot keep it. The Law condemns the least violation of its enactments: "Cursed is every one that continueth not in all things written in the law to do them" (Galatians 3:10). Those who remain under the law can expect only the law's curse. Christ died in order to redeem us from that curse, so that, instead of the curse, the blessings of justification and of the promised Holy Spirit might come to us through faith (Galatians 3:11,14). Those who seek salvation by "works of the law" (Galatians 3:10) soon discover that they have attempted an impossible task. The curse of the broken law rests on them (Deuteronomy 27:26, cf. Galatians 3:10).

The curse of the law is the penalty of the law, even death. Christ by His death has delivered us from eternal death, the penalty of a broken law. A law without penalties is powerless. The only thing that makes a law to be feared is that it demands punishment if it is broken. The curse and sentence of the law lies on record against sinners. God will not reject or destroy His law. Unless it be answered, there is no hope for sinners. Christ answered the curse of the law when He became a curse for us, voluntarily undergoing its penalty and submitting to the utmost indignity it imposed – hanging on a tree. As to the penalty the law threatened, He bore it, removed it, and took it out of the way. "So hath He made way for forgiveness", say John Owen, "through the very heart of the law; it hath not one word to speak against the pardon of those who believe".

"Christ . . . being made a curse for us" – the infinite cost of our salvation is suggested here: "a curse". This strong statement reminds us of an even stronger one in 2 Corinthians 5:21. "He made our doom His own", wrote Dr. Denney in his great book, The Death of Christ, "He took on Him not only the calling of a man, but our responsibliity as sinful men. It is in this that His work as Redeemer lies, for it is in this that the measure, or rather the immensity, of His love is seen."

These great truths determined one of the verses in Anne Ross Cousin's hymn:

Death and the curse were in our cup,
O Christ, 'twas full for Thee!
But Thou hast drained the last dark drop,
'Tis empty now for me.
That bitter cup, love drank it up,
Now blessing's draught for me.

The Letter to the Romans

24 The two Israels (chapters 9—11)

by J. Alexander Wright

FOLLOWING the Election of Israel (9:1-29), we now have the Rejection of Israel (9:30–10:21). Again, as in 9:1–3, Paul repeats the burden of his heart, viz. the salvation of his nation. In following the way of good works and of human merit, they had with culpable ignorance missed the only true way of acceptance by Almighty God, i.e. "the righteousness which is by faith", which was the very essence of God's covenant with Abraham. They stumbled over that big Stone in the way, that protruding and confronting Rock in their path – Jesus Christ (9:30–33). They sought divine acceptance by the keeping of the law, which Moses himself, their leader and law-giver, never did! The law was for living by, in personal and social relationships, but, because of human inability to keep it wholly, it could never lead to acceptance by God. Jesus Christ terminated all that striving (v.4). Faith in Him and confession of Him as resurrected Lord bring the salvation so earnestly sought otherwise. There was no need of them to mount the heavens in search of their Messiah-Deliverer, to cross the seas (Sept.) or even to explore the shades of the dead [the deep], as though He had not risen from among the dead ones. He was there, present and alive, to save all who would call upon Him (vv.6–13). "Lord over all" (v.12) is a plain pointer to His deity. "No difference [no distinctions]" (v.12) was a bitter pill to the Israelites, who felt themselves to be so superior. In God's sight it has ever been so, however; it was they in their exclusiveness who had differentiated.

Paul writes some thirty years after Christ when the "glad tiding of great joy which shall be to all people" had been carried to the uttermost bounds of the Roman Empire, at least to those Israelite communities scattered therein (vv.14–18). From one of Isaiah's great "Redemption of Israel" chapters (52), chapters which tell of Zion's awakening to universal blessing, Paul sees the prophet's rhapsody on "beautiful feet" fulfilled in those early messengers of the gospel as they went on their anointed errand (v.15). Of them, Dr. Handley Moule commented, "There is nothing more lovely than the bearing of the name of Jesus into a needy world." (Romans).

The apostle's dialogue with the Jewish objector, which began at 2:1, continues. This rejection of the gospel on Israel's part is not simply a matter of their not having heard it, or of its being presented to them by delegates not authenticated by God, or even of their not having understood when they did hear. The proclamation was "as plain as the day" (v.18, quoting Psalm 10:4). Thousands of Gentiles – "no people", "fools for Christ's sake" (v.19) – who did not have the knowledge of God that Israel had, were joyfully embracing the message and entering into the experience of salvation. It was sheer perversity on Israel's part; they just would not respond to God's messengers. In this they had not changed since Moses' day (v.19; Deuteronomy 32:21).

How beautiful, yet utterly sad, is the picture of the heavenly Father, with everlasting arms spread out in love and mercy all the day long to His prodigal nation, even as Christ wept over them at Jerusalem. "How oft" indeed would He have gathered them, but they would not (v.21).

Church Report

WEOLEY CASTLE Pastor: D.D. Phillips

IT was a glorious day when many members and friends gathered to witness the opening of the new Elim Pentecostal Church at Weoley Castle. After thirty years of faithful, consistent witness they were to enter their magnificent building.

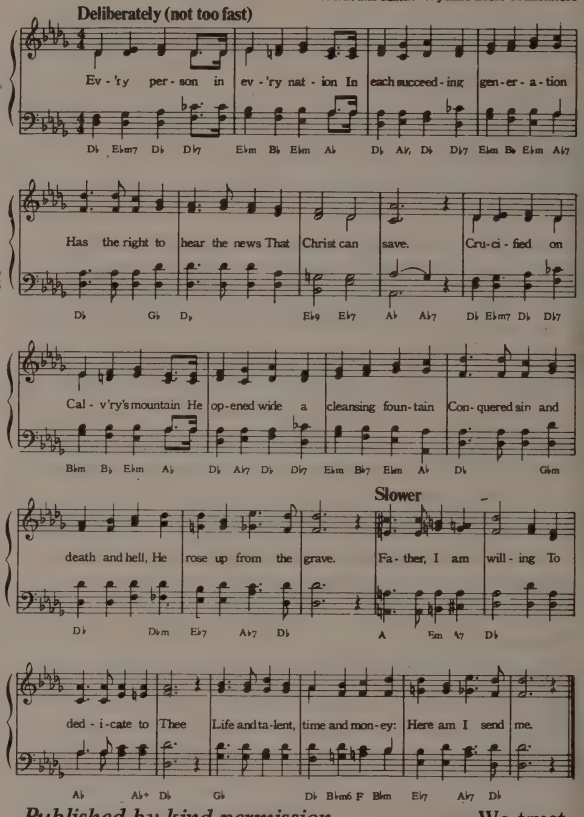
The Minister opened the outdoor witness by announcing the great hymn, "Thine be the glory" which aroused much interest in passers-by. After a brief service J.C. Smyth, Elim's Administrative Secretary, opened the building.

Entering the Church gave a wonderful feeling of warmth and comfort. The beauty of the furnishings enhanced the building. After a short prayer of dedication by Pastor G. Stormont, greetings were received from the District Superintendent, Pastor R.J. Morrison, from Pastor H.W. Greenway, who brought us words of welcome and encouragement from Headquarters, and from a representative of the Builders, Mr. C. Crabtree, who gave an apt word on the subject of "My Church" using 2 Chronicles 3:3-9 for the Architect, 2 Chronicles 7:11-16 for the Minister and for the Builders, Ecclesiastes 2:11. Greetings were received from a founder-member, Pastor Philip Stormont, from the President, T.W. Walker, and from former Ministers.

Pastor J.C. Smyth gave a very encouraging word in his usual profound way. After the service a buffet tea was served in the local Congregational Church.

The evening rally attracted many people from local churches. To accommodate them, the service was held in the Congregational Church and even then many had to stand.

Our speaker was Pastor G. Stormont, who over the years has had a very great interest in the work at Weoley Castle as his father was the founder of the work. His message was forthright and carried the word of caution that a new church does not necessarily bring revival, which was very wise counsel.



Everyone was given a souvenier brochure which told of many obstacles overcome in the erection of this new building. The Church Secretary, Mr. J.F. Chadwick, called it "the miracle Church" and he ought to know, for not only is he the Church Secretary, but he was also the Builder – and what a great sense of satisfaction must have been in his heart at these services! Mr. Chadwick stated in his greetings during the evening service: "When you belong to a Church you put a lot more work into it than on just another project". It was obvious that everything had been thought of that was required in the Church. Mr. Chadwick was also responsible for the furnishings, which were appreciated by all.

On the following day we had the pleausre of Pastor Smyth's ministry. It was the crowning touch at the end of the service on Sunday evening to see that the Church had been crowded and that four souls had been won for the Lord. We trust that this is only the beginning of greater things.

The Message of Easter

Words and drawing by Sheila Price

WHEN Jesus died, His body was taken down from the cross and buried in the garden tomb owned by Joseph of Arimathea. It was a very hurried ceremony. Amid all the sadness of the occasion, the women had forgotten to prepare the spices. They returned home, arranging to meet at the tomb after the Sabbath to anoint the body of Jesus then.

Mary Magdalene got up early when it was still quite dark. She made her way to the tomb. As she got near, she noticed that the stone had been moved away from the entrance. On looking inside, she saw that the tomb was empty! The body of Jesus was gone! She would not need her spices after all.

Mary ran back to town as fast as she could. When she saw John and Peter, she cried, "Come quickly! He is not there! The tomb is empty!"

The two men raced to the garden. John, running much faster than Peter, reached the tomb first, but he was afraid to look inside. As soon as Peter arrived, he went inside without hesitation. Mary was right. The tomb was indeed empty! Only the burial clothes were there.

When Mary returned to the tomb, she was startled to see two angels. "Don't cry," they said, "don't be afraid. We know you that are looking for Jesus, but He is not here. He is risen." Mary, very upset and with tears in her eyes, did not believe them. "Don't you remember, Mary, that day in Galilee, when Jesus told you that He would be betrayed and crucified and that He would rise again the third day?"

Yes, Mary remembered that day. She had not taken much notice at the time, but now, as she looked at the empty place where her Master had lain, she saw for herself that every word that Jesus had spoken to her was true. He had kept His promise and there she could see the wonderful evidence. It was all the proof she needed. "Go quickly," the angels told her, "and tell the disciples that He is risen."

This is the message of Easter to you and to me: to go and tell our friends that Jesus is risen!

The Day of the Cross

by James H. Hunt, Pastor of our Loughborough church

SOME years before Jesus died on a cross outside Jerusalem, Crassus, a one-time friend of Julius Caesar, crushed a three-year-old revolt of slaves under Spartacus the gladiator, by crucifying every slave he captured. The Appian Way was lined with crosses, six thousand of them, all the way to Capua. A common sight then was a man on a cross. It spoke of shame, horror, pain and death; yet since the day when Jesus died, what brought shame, horror and death, has become the symbol of hope and peace. The One who died there on that cross was, as the Nicene Creed says, the "Lord Jesus Christ, the only-begotten Son of God . . . Who for us men, and our salvation came down from heaven . . . and was crucified . . . for us." Through His death we have life. This profoundly spiritual event occurred in time. It had an historical setting. This article is written to point up that setting and to suggest the order of the events of that "day of the cross."

"Crucified under Pontius Pilate" runs the Creed, but how and why was this Roman official involved? Palestine was occupied country. It was under Roman rule. In countries that were not a threat to the peace of the Empire, Rome tried not to break down local self-government. She allowed as many as possible of the national and religious customs to continue. Palestine was not an easy portion of the Empire to rule, but Rome permitted the Jewish authorities large scope in the domestic and religious government of the country. Due to a period of misrule by Herod Archelaus, political government had been transferred into the hands of a Roman official known as a "procurator". This official spent most of his time in Caesarea, but he came up to Jerusalem at feast time. Pilate was the procurator. Among the many powers taken from the Jewish leaders and put into the hands of the procurator was the power of executing the death sentence. This created the necessity for the Jews to appeal to and involve Pilate with our Lord's death.

The night before and the early hours of the morning of this day had been taken up by a series of examinations and cruel ill-treatment of the Lord. Indignity upon indignity had been heaped upon Him (Matthew 26:57–68; Luke 23:63–65). Our Lord had been scourged, a punishment so horrible that our minds revolt at it. After Pilate had passed sentence and "delivered Him to be crucified", we take up the sequence of the events of "that day".

It was customary for the prisoner to carry his own cross to the place of execution. Sometimes the two pieces of wood were carried by him, sometimes only the transverse beam. From John 19:17 it seems that our Lord started on the procession to Calvary carrying the cross Himself. It soon became clear that He was unable to continue. A study of the arrest, trials, mockings, scourging will make clear as to why. At this point the Roman soldiers compelled Simon a Cyrenian to carry the cross (Matthew 27:32; Mark 15:21; Luke 23:26). Mark describes him as "the father of Alexander and Rufus". It has been suggested that, as Mark's Gospel was written for Roman readers, and as Paul in Romans 16:13 mentions a Rufus and refers to the kindness of his mother, there may have been special interest in Rufus. Whatever the reason, Simon was pressed into service and the procession moved on.

Only Luke 23:27–31 records the next incident. Among the crowd that followed was a group of women who were weeping and wailing. These were not our Lord's faithful friends from Galilee, of whom we read so much in connection with the resurrection. These were probably a group of wealthy women, who for humane reasons and out of pity for the condemned, provided a drugged drink which was offered to all victims before they were crucified. These were the "daughters of Jerusalem" (see Farrar, Life of Christ). Our Lord made clear that His cross was for a greater purpose than to make women cry. He took the dread occasion to show how forgetful He was of His own suffering and to give a solemn warning (vv.28–31). "Blessed are the barren" was a reversal of the normal form of blessing. The meaning of the comparison of what is done in the green tree and what is done in the dry is not easy to determine. It may mean that, if the Romans did this to Jesus, when He Himself was an innocent man, what was Rome likely to do with the nation of the Jews, when it was ripe for judgment?

At last they arrived at "the place". All the gospels speak of "the place". Though tradition is probably right in thinking of it as a hill, there is no explicit reference to this effect. It was named "Golgotha" in Aramaic, which in Greek is "Kranian" and in Latin "Calvary". The name means "skull" and was most likely given that designation because of its skull-like appearance. It is just outside the city. Mark speaks of His being "led out", John that "they went forth", and Matthew says, "led away". Hebrews 13:12 refers to His suffering "without [outside] the gate". John speaks of it as "nigh to the city" and "near to a garden" (10:20,41). The traditional site is covered by the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, but it is doubtful whether this is truly the place. Greater probability seems to attach to the site called "Gordon's Calvary" because General Gordon made the identification famous. At "the place" the drink (Matthew 27:34; Mark 15:23) supplied by "the daughters of Jerusalem" was offered. Our Lord refused to drink it.

"There they crucified Him". The crosses were of various kinds, but it is most likely that Christ's was the type familiar to Christians, an upright post with a transverse beam slightly lower than the top of the post. There was also a ledge or peg about the position of the seat to take the weight of the victim – mock "throne" indeed!

A hole was prepared, the cross was laid flat on the ground and the condemned man was nailed to it. Luke 24:40 makes clear that Jesus was nailed by His hands and feet. Then cross and victim were hoisted to an upright position and dropped into place.

While they crucified Him our Lord uttered the first of the seven words from the cross. "Father, forgive them; they know not what they do" (Luke 23:34). For whom was our Lord praying – the Romans? – all mankind? Whoever it was, our Lord looked for some redeeming feature in their actions They were done in ignorance, which may sometimes mitigate, but can never exonerate. The answer to a prayer like this calls for repentance on the part of the wrongdoer.

A quaternion of soldiers usually formed the military guard at an execution of this kind (John 19:23). It was recognised that these soldiers could help themselves to the victim's clothes. There at the foot of the cross they "cast lots for His garments". John saw in this the fulfilment of Psalm 22:18 (John 19:23,24; Matthew 27:35; Mark 15:24).

Mark says simply that "It was the third hour" when they crucified Him. If this were on the Jewish reckoning of the hours of the day – and there is no reason to think otherwise – then it was 9 a.m. when our Lord was crucified. Certain difficulties have been occasioned by John's statement that Jesus was still at His trial at the sixth hour (John 19:14). The normal explanation is that John was employing the Roman way of reckoning the hours from midnight to midnight, so John's "sixth hour" would be 6 a.m. By 9 a.m. they had hurried Jesus to the cross. The Jews had good reason to do so, "for they feared the people" (Luke 22:2. cf. Matthew 26:5). The death of our Lord would thus strangely coincide with the hour at which the priests were busy slaying Passover lambs.

Our Lord was not the only one crucified that day. There were two others. The Gospels call them malefactors – thieves. Matthew 27:44 and Mark 15:32 indicate that both thieves at first abused our Lord. Subsequently, however, one of them became subdued and silent. When the other burst out, "If thou be Christ, save Thyself and us", the penitent thief rebuked him. He acknowledged his own guilt, declared the innocence of Jesus and cried, "Lord, remember me when Thou comest into Thy kingdom" (Luke 23:39–42). This prayer evoked from Jesus the second word from the cross: "Today thou shalt be with Me in paradise" (v.34). It is poor reasoning that tries to deny to the penitent thief the immediate glory that awaited him on the other side of death by requiring us to believe that our Lord made so trite a remark as to tell the thief that he was speaking to him "today". "Today" refers not to the saying, but to the presence in Paradise, while "with Me" means not merely "in my company", but "sharing with Me" in paradise, implying activity and consciousness. As one great preacher has expressed it: "Today" – what promptitude; "with Me" – what company; "in paradise" – what repose!"

Four women stood by the cross. They received special mention. Only John mentions Mary the mother of Jesus. The other three were Mary's sister, identified in the synoptics as Salome the wife of Zebedee; Mary Cleopas "the mother of James and Joses"; and Mary Magdalene (John 19:25; Matthew 27:56; Mark 15:40,47;16:1; Luke 24:10). To His mother and John His disciple our Lord addressed His third word from the cross: "Woman behold thy Son . . . Behold thy mother" (John 19:25–27). These words were more than a commendation; they were a command from Him who was Mary's Lord and John's. "Straightway", it would appear, John took Mary away to his home.

Seven sayings from the cross are recorded: if there were more we do not know of them. They were spread over the six hours (9 a.m. to 3 p.m.) that the Lord was on the cross. The first three sayings were spoken in daylight. The remainder were uttered during the three terrible hours of darkness (Matthew 27:45–50; Mark 15:33–38; Luke 23:44–46). Only Matthew and Mark record the fourth word from the cross. Known as "the cry of desolation", the words "My God . . . why?" bring us to the very heart of our redemption. If ever there was an unfathomable abyss of thought it is here. "We may not know, we cannot tell what pains He had to bear", yet we must remind ourselves that our Lord was really forsaken. "In that moment He expressed in human speech the fact that the pains and penalties of human sin were His" (Campbell Morgan). Later, from the darkness came the fifth cry. Again it is John who records "I thirst" (John 19:28). Matthew and Mark do not mention the cry, but refer to the moistening of the lips.

The sixth word consisted in Greek one word – "tetelestai", which means, "done". How frequently this word "finish" was in the mind and on the lips of our Lord (see John 4:34;5:36;17:14;19:28). All through His life He had been moving toward this moment and now in triumph He lifted up His voice. Like a trumpet it rang out: "Finished"! "Love's redeeming work is done Hallelujah! Fought the fight, the battle won: Hallelujah!" Spurgeon comments: "What a sea of meaning in a drop of language. We speak so much and say so little: He spoke so little and said so much."

The Undergirding

—His Resurrection and Ours!

OUR preaching is in truth that of the apostles when it declares, "Now is Christ risen from the dead" (1 Corinthians 15:20). It comes with refreshing realisation that not one sentence of the Gospels, the Acts, the Epistles or the Revelation was written apart from the conviction that Jesus Christ, of whom they testified, had both conquered death and was alive for evermore. Indeed without the resurrection of Christ, the Passion would be robbed of meaning. It is interesting, too, to note that Paul, who was determined to know nothing save Jesus Christ and Him crucified, made the resurrection the theme of his preaching. Only in the Lamb raised to glory does the grace of God stand available to all.

The Heart of the Gospel

IN addition to the apostles' witnessing the resurrection of Christ, which was the theme of most of their preaching, it was the master-motive behind every act of evangelism. Not one sentence of the New Testament was written apart from the knowledge that Jesus was alive, He having not merely survived death, but having conquered it. So the one and only gospel that saves is the powerful news that Christ lives, no more to die.

In A Faith to Proclaim, Dr. James Stewart writes, "Never did the apostles make the mistake all too common today, of regarding the Resurrection as a mere epilogue to the Gospel . . . a providential afterthought of God, a codicil to the divine last will and testament." Christianity is essentially a religion of resurrection, and every company of believers is a community of the resurrection. Our symbol is not the figure of a prostrate Christ transfixed to a cross, but a Christ risen triumphantly above death and the grave. Knowing "Christ and Him crucified" (1 Corinthians 2:2) means that we view His death as being in the past and that we know the living One who, through death, destroyed him who had the power of death.

If today anything is going to counteract the voices which question the survival of the soul and the resurrection of our Lord, we must offer the world the evidence of lives changed utterly and completely by contact with the risen Christ. Through the lives of thousands of believers in the Lord Jesus Christ the message of the Christ of resurrection power shouts, "See, I am indeed alive!". No more need man grope in vain to find the way or fumble in the dark for truth. This is our gospel: Christ is "declared to be the Son of God with power . . . by the resurrection from the dead" (Romans 1:4).

The Power of the Church

Not only did the apostles preach the risen Christ, but they also said, "You can share Christ's risen life and power." The same power which raised up Christ from the dead will raise up the believer at the still future coming of Christ, but right now it quickens with life – His life – every person who believes on Him. The same power which shattered death that resurrection morning, now vitalises "the most depressed and disillusioned and defeated sons of men." This was the apostles' message, backed by the outpouring of the Holy Spirit, so that ordinary blundering men turned the world upside down in the power of the risen Christ. This unearthly power laid hold of men like ourselves, refashioned them through the new birth, and filled them with Himself.

The bodily resurrection of Jesus Christ denoted the return of the Redeemer to full human nature. He is therefore the creative Author and the organic Head of redeemed spiritual mankind.

What strain this puts upon our thinking powers! How can Christ after death and His exaltation to glory still be man? Nevertheless the Scriptures teach the eternal glorified humanity of the Son of God and hold the promise of a resurrection unto life eternal to all whose faith rests in Christ (see Romans 1:4). So Paul could say, "Life means Christ to me!" (cf. Philippians 1:21).

True believers, belonging now and for ever to Christ, belong also to one another. Fired with divine passion to reach other men for Christ, we become that one channel in God's hands in a world where each successive generation needs to hear that they, too, can have fellowship "with the Father and with His Son Jesus Christ" (1 John 1:3).

Let us make no mistake: we have no certainty of His almightiness or of His absolute wisdom apart from the resurrection of Jesus the Christ. This is the kingpin of Christian faith. Herods still seek to destroy the young Child as to His virgin birth and divine origin. Priests and politicians still crucify the Lord and set guards over His grave declaring Him to be dead. By the sign of His resurrection, however, we know that it is the Herods who will be destroyed and the men who crucify Him will either find salvation by the cross, or, by their rejection of Christ, be cast into outer darkness.

the Christian Faith

Nuneaton church

The Defeat of Death

Through the risen Christ we can know the death of death. John Locke in A System of Theology writes, "Death is another enemy which Christ is exalted at the right hand of the Father to destroy . . . the dead will be raised, and the living changed." Out of the resurrection of Christ rises the Church, and all the reviving springs of her new life are in Him. With their own eyes the apostles saw death's bondage broken and the effect of the fall reversed in Christ. The sting of death was drawn; One had come back out of the shadows to assure us that, for the trusting soul, all is well.

Death is vanquished! Tell it with joy ye faithful!
Where is now thy victory, boasting grave?
Jesus lives, no longer thy portals are cheerless,
Jesus lives, the mighty and strong to save!

Hear Stephen declare, as the stones began to fly (Acts 7:56), "Behold, I see the heavens opened, and the Son of Man standing on the right hand of God." In this event Christ was not seated, but rising to give succour to Stephen, as to all the saints in Christ Jesus. Aristotle said, "Death is a dreadful thing, for it is the end", but the believer in Christ rejoices because Christ has "become the firstfruits of them that slept" (1 Corinthians 15:20).

This then is our supercharged kerygma. However cynical is the age in which we live, the truth stands unshaken: "He is risen" (Luke 24:6). From the place of His exaltation He now dispenses the Holy Spirit, by whom He becomes the Guide, the Comforter, and the Enabler of His Church as she propagates the truth that "neither is there salvation in any other" (Acts 4:12). "The resurrection is designed to advance the condition of the saints . . . their happiness will be consummated, the intent of their existence will be answered." (Locke).

The question "If a man die, shall he live again?" (Job 14:14) is of continual interest and the answer has been an affirmative one even in the lowest forms of religion. God's Word reveals that Jesus Christ through the resurrection "brought life and immortality to light" (2 Timothy 1:10). We believe in the survival of the soul, the resurrection of the body, and the blessed life of believers in communion with God.

Do you know Christ in saving grace, or does your life lack purpose and power? Tell God your need. Confess your lack of power and ask God to fill you with His Spirit. Then begin rightaway to tell others that He is alive!

The first saying from the cross began with "Father" and the last word also began in the same way (Luke 23:46): "Father, into Thy hands I commend My spirit". The expression indicates the full serenity of the soul of the Saviour at this hour. This, says Campbell Morgan, was the last "act" not merely the last "fact". It was the voluntary action of our Lord Himself. Matthew's version says literally, "He let His spirit go", John's, "He gave up His spirit". Compare this thought with our Lord's words in John 10:18.

With the work "finished" the "veil of the Temple was rent in twain" (Matthew 27:51; Mark 15:38). This veil must have been the inner veil. The writer to the Hebrews saw in this the symbol of the great truth that through Jesus' sacrifice sinners now have direct access to God (Hebrews 6:19;10:19).

Matthew alone records the earthquake that accompanied the rending of the veil, but Matthew, Mark and Luke, reveal the effect that the events of that day had on the centurion (Matthew 27:54; Mark 15:39; Luke 23:47).

The day of the cross ended with the Jews making sure that He was dead (John 19:32–37), and with Joseph and Nicodemus taking down the body and laying it in the sepulchre (Matthew 27:57; Mark 15:42; Luke 23:50; John 19:38). On that day, the day of the cross, once for all, our redemption as a historical fact took place, but our interest in these events is never a detached one; it is always with a view to appreciating more and more the wonder of our salvation. Let us then "survey the cross on which the Prince of Glory died", and realise afresh that "love so amazing, so divine, demands my soul, my life, my all." May the recognition of that demand lead to the glad response, "Love so amazing, so divine, shall have my soul, my life, my all."

Assemblies of God and Elim Ministers' Conference

Report by J.C.R. Hall.

IT is impossible to convey the atmosphere of fellowship, the anointing and the blessing upon the united ministerial conference held at "The Hayes", Swanwick, on March 26th-29th. The theme was, "The Gifts and Ministries in the Church", the spiritual Gifts of 1 Corinthians chapters 12-14 being the central matters for instruction and discussion.

The untrained voices of the ministers rose in a choristry that would have made most choir masters happy to claim the credit for training them to sing. One never hears such singing anywhere else. It is an example of charismatic grace, an earnest of what the Gifts of the Spirit are all about, as men speak and sing above their natural abilities. We marvelled at the excellence of expression and understanding of all the ministering brethren, who, after all, were all once dead in trespasses and sins, who at one time could not even see the kingdom of heaven, and who were also at that time enemies of God. We marvel, too, at the grace that saved them.

Brother H.W. Greenway spoke at the opening meeting. He mentioned the new power structure — God empowering the Apostles to go everywhere preaching Jesus. He said that the command is still the same, as is the power to enable us to go and to reach the sinful souls produced by these present evil times.

The Tuesday early morning devotions were led by Douglas S. Quy. Our souls magnified the Lord in worship. Brother Quy thrilled us with illustrations of Moses' past experiences, which proved to him that God was with him; even though hard times, impossible situations, opposition from the multitude and pessimistic declarations that God had left them, were continually his experience. One gem was: "Moses had no water main and tap, but he had his rod and God".

The first discussion, opened by A.A. Linford, was on: "The Natural and the Supernatural". "Supernature and nature are both natural to God" he declared. He showed the miraculous in so-called natural things, for natural laws are duplicates of the laws of grace. A corn of wheat falling into the ground and dying brings forth fruit. Jesus dying, became the first fruits. As we die to self we bring forth fruit unto God. One profound statement will long be meditated upon: "The greatest miracle is things as they are".

T.W. Walker continued on the theme: "The charismatic Nature of the Christian Ministry". An outstanding illustration of a minister's status was that we were men under authority, having authority. Jesus was under the authority of the Father, having authority over all things in this world. Ministers of Jesus are comparable to the housekeeper-agent in a Greek household, under the master's authority, but having authority over all the house, especially with the regard to the provision and standard of the food. One truth he quoted was from Acts 2:37, "The congregation made the appeal - not the evangelist."

Brother D.W. Cartwright led the conference into a discussion of: "The Ministries of the ascended Christ". He gave a scholarly word, encouraging us to believe that the apostolic office is still functioning occasionally as needed in the Church and that therefore all the ministry gifts of Christ are also to be found.

It was in the providence of God that Brother J. Shelbourne had the last ministry of the day. His life, humour and practical wisdom kept us alert, happy and teachable to the close of the day. He told how the Spirit of the Lord had enabled them to build a vital growing church in Lincoln under the headings: The Atmosphere; The Attitude; The Activity of a Pentecostal Church. The manifestations and ministries must be controlled by "dealing with our embarrassments". We must not accept a low standard of Pentecostal manifestation, but train and exhort the flock to a high standard. If we want to be unique, we must be ourselves.

The Wednesday morning devotions were led by Pastor Jim Dick. We heard instruction from the life of John the Baptist and had a time of worship and praise.

Brother Gerald W. Chamberlain then explored the Gifts of Tongues, Interpretation and Prophecy. He warned that the Gifts must be ruled by love. One's body loves itself — after one has hit one's finger with a hammer, every other member of the body rushes to help. If we minister spiritual Gifts according to this principle, we shall not go wrong. Here are some pearls of his ministry: "The human tongue is the vehicle of expression of the mind of God"; "What a pity if the Almighty cannot speak to us if certain members of the Church are on holiday"; "Extravagance reveals the novice"; "If a man moved the Pennines we would say, 'great!' — God says that he is nothing without love".

Brother W.R. Jones now spoke on the Gifts of Healings, Miracles and Faith. Here are some of his thoughts: "Miracles are not a proof of a coming revival"; " 'What I have give I you' — you can only give what you have got"; "Jesus is the greatest Exponent of the supernatural"; "Jesus said, 'Heal the sick, cast out devils, raise the dead' ; He did it. His words were confirmed by His works"; "The Church today must have miracle ministry to confirm its miracle message"; "It is easy to preach when you have a miracle for a text".

Brother J.T. Bradley handled the Gifts of the Word of Wisdom, the Word of Knowledge, and Discerning of Spirits. He spoke of a whole nation living in the supernatural realm of the miraculous. He warned that many would believe that their health was natural, for there was not one sickly person among them. Manna was a normal food to them, even though the daily provision and the weekly double portion are miraculous to us. Clothes and shoes that never wore out would not be

From T. H. Stevenson

FOR the Easter number of THE ELIM EVANGEL I am writing from the lovely Elim Bible College, an important part of Elim and as lively as it is lovely, and where Easter seems perpetuated by the daily evidence of abundant life. On Sunday morning at the Communion service, in addition to the privilege of ministry, I had the joy of dedicating our baby grand-daughter – emulating the Principal, G.W. Gilpin, who dedicated his grandson a few weeks before at the morning service. Perhaps even in the College, by the dedication of such infant lives, students and staff were reminded that we zealously desire the Elim Pentecostal Church to remain the Elim Family.

The particular morning I mention saw a good congregation representing twelve nationalities, despite the fact that more than forty home and overseas students were elsewhere ministering in several Elim churches, another important evidence of life in the midst.

It was, however, during the week that my greatest thrill was to come, when, walking along a country road close by the College, my wife and I saw a sheep in evident travail. After watching for a few moments we went to the farmhouse to inform the farmer of the situation, but no-one was to be found. We returned to the road by the side of the lambing field and there was the quite moving scene of the sheep, no more travailing, but gently cleaning her lamb and tenderly nudging and supporting her new-born, as the lamb struggled to stand and to take the first walking steps. Within minutes the lamb had found the need to feed, the place, and the way to suckle. We had witnessed life struggling in travail to triumph in giving life and marvelled to look upon the satisfied, restful sheep contentedly tending the lamb without a trace of her recent suffering.

Returning to Elim Bible College, I read Isaiah 53 with the message of the travail and triumph of the suffering Servant, the prophecy of Christ crucified and risen again. "He is brought as a lamb to the slaughter, and as a sheep before her shearers. . . He made His grave with the wicked and with the rich in His death . . He shall see His seed, He shall prolong His days. . . He shall see of the travail of His soul, and shall be satisfied".

PRAYER and PRAISE

by F.H. Coleman

I WRITE this column in the mountains of Switzerland, in "The Homestead" at Emmetten, which houses the Swiss Pentecostal Bible School and which is also open for visitors to stay for holidays. This beautiful home, so ideally situated with its views of snow-covered mountains and Lake Lucerne, was opened in June 1972. It has eighty bedrooms, a conference room, a hall seating 200 persons, a lounge and a dining hall. Its staff of waiters are all Italian Pentecostals. The Principal is a former student of Elim Bible College. There is a warm welcome to all British Pentecostals.

At the committee meetings which I attended, for these were my purpose in visiting "The Homestead", we used the lovely conference room. Committee members came from many European countries, among them was a Pastor from Yugoslavia. I asked his permission to interview him for the readers of THE ELIM EVANGEL and he gladly consented. Here is what I gathered from the questions I asked him.

Yugoslavia is in Eastern Europe and is a communist country. Religious services are allowed and there are some 100 Pentecostal churches. The total membership is about 3,000. Numbers attending the churches vary. The two largest cities have Pentecostal churches of eighty members each. Another church near the Hungarian border has 100 members. Last year the authorities gave permission for an evangelistic campaign to be held in a large town. The meetings attracted large crowds and many accepted Christ as their Saviour.

How great a part does prayer play in this work? I was told, "It is everything!". They must constantly pray for their work, their services and to survive in a land like Yugoslavia, which has a slightly different branch of communism from that of Russia. They live in constant dependence upon God in prayer. The last few months have been given to more and more prayer.

How grateful we should be for our freedom of worship in our beloved land! Are you as faithful to your church prayer meeting as you should be? If not, why not attend your meeting and pray for our Pentecostal brothers and sisters in Eastern Europe?

Go and Tell

WE still hear much about Women's Lib. I suppose that some of its opinions are praiseworthy just as others are suspect. Whatever we may feel about the trend towards greater freedom of expression for women and their more vital involvement in commerce and world affairs, it is startling to find that women were chosen to announce the most stupendous news ever told to mankind. The Angel said to the women who went at dawn to the rock-hewn sepulchre where the Lord was laid: "He is risen; He is not here, behold the place where they laid Him. But go your way, tell His disciples and Peter that He goeth before you into Galilee: there shall ye see Him, as He said" (Mark 16: 7).

We may have mental reservations about women's ministry in the Church, but here was a glorious message for three faithful women to proclaim and proclaim it they did, fear and joy giving wings to their feet. Their message was to the sorrowful and to the sinful. The disciples felt utterly desolate and defeated, so they mourned and wept. Then in burst the breathless women with radiant faces to deliver the wonderful news of the risen Saviour. What a message for those sorrowing men and today, as we celebrate Easter, the same message brings joy and hope to all who are sad and discouraged. The Easter story and the vital part played by the women is as real and vivid as ever.

Are you sorrowing because of bereavement? "He is risen", cried the women and we can answer in the words of Paul, "Now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first-fruits of them that slept." Are you sad and discouraged in your service for the Master? Are you tempted to give up the struggle? Hear again the message of hope; the risen Lord in all His power draws near and seeks a personal meeting with you. Your Saviour longs to revitalise your hopes and aspirations concerning your faith and service as a disciple and witness.

The message brought by the women was to the sinful as well, viz. to Peter. William Barclay comments: "The most precious thing in this passage is in two words which are in no other gospel. "Go" said the messenger. "Tell His disciples and Peter!". How that message must have cheered Peter's heart! He must have been tortured with the memory of his disloyalty, when suddenly there came a special message for him. He of all the disciples was specially picked out. It is characteristic of Jesus that He thought not of the wrong that Peter had done Him, but of the remorse that Peter was undergoing. Jesus was far more eager to comfort the penitent sinner than to punish the sin. Someone has said: "The most precious thing about Jesus is the way in which He trusts us on the field of our defeat".

How human and touching then is Mark's narrative, for, as the chronicler of Peter's personal story of his Saviour's life and ministry, that tender word of forgiveness could never be forgotten. There are many today, alas, who blatantly deny the Saviour, even with curses and oathes, and some use His name in blasphemous swearing, but even for such there is the promise of pardon and reconciliation if only they will repent and meet with Jesus. How privileged those first messengers of the resurrection were and what a tremendous impact their words caused! I doubt if they fully realised it at the time. The main thing was that they were obedient witnesses. They were commissioned and used for a special task. We have just such a ministry, not just at Easter time, but all through the year. Go and tell the sad and the sinful that Jesus is alive and is longing to meet them!

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK: "By far the best proof of the Resurrection is the existence of the Christian Church. Nothing else could have changed sad and despairing men and women into people radiant with joy and flaming with courage. The Resurrection is the central fact of the whole Christian faith." W. Barclay.

seen as marvellous by some. They had never seen anything different. Miracles are not miracles if they happen every day. His headings on the Word of Wisdom were: The Cross is the Wisdom of God; Christ is also the Wisdom of God; The Bible is the Wisdom of God. Bible wisdom is often contrary to human wisdom. Charismatic wisdom is more than natural wisdom enhanced by the Spirit of God; it is wholly divine, an intervention of the Spirit of God, and insight into what God is doing.

Another full day of study and discussion was brought to a close with a devotional hour. The preacher was Brother A.S.F. Horne.

On Thursday morning we met for devotions led by F.J.B. Sumner. This message seemed to take the teaching of the week and crystalise it into one jewel from God. As he spoke on the call of Bezaleel (Exodus 31), we saw extraordinary gifts of wisdom, knowledge and cunning work granted of God to a man called by name and anointed of God. The speaker dealt with Gifts discovered, directed, intensified, and sanctified by grace.

On Thursday morning, a Breaking of Bread service ended our conference. It was a time of rich ministry in the Spirit. The manifestation of Tongues and Interpretation moved into a realm that did not come short of the excellent ministry that the Holy Ghost had given us through His anointed servants, for it enhanced all that had been said.

Our elder Brother C. Beardsmoor gave the final word on: "A Man in Christ". This message overflowed with love and wisdom. It was true manifestation of the Spirit of God upon a minister.

One minister rose to say that he had come to the conference with a great need. He was now strengthened, blessed and ready to go along with the Lord. I believe that every member of the conference had been inspired and refreshed. The Spirit of God had moved in every way to edify, comfort and exhort. The Charisma had been manifest and natural and supernatural gifts displayed. We thank God for every gifted minister, and we praise and thank Father, Son and Holy Spirit for the gifts of grace.

Sunday School Teaching in Modern Times

5. ARE WE CONCERNED TO BE TRAINED SPIRITUAL LEADERS?

asks Eldin R. Corsie,
National Youth Director

THE need for trained teaching staff is linked with another great heartache of Christian work – the problem of trained leadership. "Again and again," write Burnie and Hindle in Teacher Training in Sunday School, "it has been proved that the success or failure of a department depends far more upon the leadership than upon the premises, type and number of scholars, or even teachers. With the right leader much can be achieved in the face of many difficulties". Only the church which is training its workers is preparing its leaders.

This calls for a comprehensive plan for training all those who work among the young. In order to start such a plan it is important that every department should be following the same syllabus – and there are very good reasons for such an arrangement in any case:

Every child studies the Bible at least twice as he passes through school.

The lessons of the classes in each department can easily be integrated into one service of worship, so that instruction and worship contribute to each other.

The lesson syllabus provides a common Scripture focus for the weekly fellowship of the teachers' training class.

The following objections to such training classes may be raised:

Senior teachers may object to being told how to do their work. Their experience will undoubtedly help younger teachers, however. Call the meeting: "Teachers' Weekly Fellowship" – the title is innocuous enough.

Teachers are too busy to prepare. Then they are too busy! This is a common form of false economics. It would never be allowed by a choirmaster for example.

It is difficult to find a night. One must choose the night most suitable for the majority. Departments can have different nights. They can meet in homes.

What should be done in the training classes? Let us take, for instance, the Scripture Press Junior department.

1. The head of the department calls together the teachers and helpers and arranges the meeting for the most suitable night.
2. Begin with Bible reading and prayer. Sometimes this is followed by consideration of some matters of departmental interest – news of a child or parent who has been prayed for – or the sharing of some problem which will lead to prayer.
3. Then follows corporate prayer. This part of the training class routine promotes the sense of divine purpose and unity in the work and strikes the newcomer.
4. Each training hour contains its topic, when the leader will speak on some particular aspect of teaching, like methods of teaching, the art of story telling, useful children's activities and their value, or perhaps a general series of Bible background studies.
5. Then comes the section devoted to corporate Bible study and lesson preparation. Difficulties in the passages are discussed, reference books are resorted to. Each teacher can be given a project, such as investigating the geography, examining other translations, studying other commentaries, checking references, looking up visual aid material. As each makes his contribution, both the outline and detail of the lesson begin to emerge. The aim of the lesson is discussed, ideas for methods of presentation are pooled, and ways of making the message perfectly plain are considered.
6. The order of service for Sunday school can be discussed so that the teacher is aware of all that is happening and has opportunity to suggest ideas.

The evening concludes with prayer.

Out of this atmosphere, teachers will emerge. Sometimes the church can arrange an evening or a weekend conference for its immediate locality, where teachers from an area are able to discuss the whole matter of Sunday school work. These conferences will have lectures, demonstration lessons, workshop sessions, model training classes, films and filmstrips.

Some churches arrange for one or two teachers each year to attend the national conference for Sunday school teachers at the expense of Sunday school funds. The teachers report at later teachers' meetings.

I cannot emphasise sufficiently the importance of becoming a specialist. The Sunday school is undoubtedly the most powerful evangelisic agency which any live church possesses. Not only are a majority of Christians converted during childhood, but through the children the church has an open door into forty per cent of the homes of our land. If we have been called to this mission field let us (to quote

The Family Altar

Scripture Union Portions — Notes by L.E. Lambert

Monday, April 23rd — John 20:19–31

"Thomas, called Didymus [The Twin]" (v.24).

THOMAS had a twin, for this is what "Didymus" means. Who and where was he? He must have been just like doubting Thomas. Maybe it is you or I?

Thomas would believe only what he could see. He was a born rationalist. The words of the disciples would not satisfy him. ("Except I shall see . . . I will not" v.19). How logical it seems, yet how illogical it is. We have never seen the air, yet we accept it. We have never seen love, yet we have experienced it. Perhaps you have never seen miracles of healing, but God's Word tells us that they happen. Thomas said, "If I see, I will believe"; faith says, "Believe then I will see." "Blessed are they which have not seen, and yet have believed."

Tuesday, April 24th — John 21:1–14

"When the morning was now come, Jesus stood on the shore" (v.4).

THE Lord remained on earth for forty days after His resurrection. He slowly acclimatised the disciples to the new dimension. Sight had to be replaced by faith. It was morning, a new day. Gone was the night of their failures – and how they had failed, with their denial, betrayals, forsaking – yet Jesus did not cast them off. It was morning and new truths dawned on their darkened hearts. As they obeyed His directions, they saw the value of Christ-directed service. "It is the Lord" (vv.7,12). He is Lord of time, and space and eternity.

Wednesday, April 25th — John 21:15–25

"More than these?" (v.15).

THERE was a discussion between Peter and Jesus after the resurrection, of which no details have been revealed (Luke 24:34), so nothing is disclosed of the intimate restoration of Peter after his frightening failure. Here, however, we know the substance. Christ asked Peter if he loved Him more than these. What were "these"? Did He refer to the other disciples? Did He mean the fishing-business that Peter had? This we do know: Christ must be first for Him to use us. Love for Christ is the main qualification for the service indicated: "Feed My sheep". In some lives Christ is present, in some He is prominent. In others He is pre-eminent.

Thursday, April 26th — 1 Peter 1–12

"More precious than of gold" (v.7).

HOW rich we are, for our faith is more precious than gold! The chief aim in life of many is the possession of wealth and the acquisition of gold, but faith is more precious.

Gold has to be refined and so has faith. God allows trials and afflictions to test the reality of our faith. God is proving, perfecting, purifying us. Do not think it strange when you pass through fiery trials. It does not mean that the Lord has forgotten you; on the contrary, He is proving you as He proved Abraham and also the three Hebrews in the fire. You will come out a better person, not a bitter one.

Friday, April 27th — 1 Peter 1:13–25

"Holy in all manner of conversation" (v.15).

WHAT a contrast these words are with "vain conversation" (v.18). Jesus said that it is what comes out of a man that defiles. Like Peter, our speech betrays us. Scripture warns us to control the tongue and guard the lips. In many spheres of society today, conversation is corrupt. Oaths, blasphemy, smutty jokes and swearing are the order of the day. Let our conversation glorify the Lord. Many Christians talk about cars, houses, sport and holidays, yet they hardly ever mention the Lord and His ways. "They that feared the Lord spake often one to another, and the Lord hearkened". He always does!

Saturday, April 28th — 1 Peter 2:1–10

"Precious" (v.4).

PETER must have fallen in love with the word "precious": "precious faith" (1:7); "precious blood" (1:19); "precious stone" (2:6); "He is precious" (2:7); "precious promises" (2 Peter 1:4). Precious means "costly, valuable, rare, of great price". Christ is precious; compared with Him, all that the world offers is but dross. If ever you get tempted to go back, like Demas, who "loved this present world", remember that He is precious, infinitely more so than anything that Satan can ever give. We take care of what is precious.

Sunday, April 29th — 1 Peter 2:11–25

"When He was reviled, reviled not again" (v.23).

THE believers were suffering for their faith. They were spoken against as evil-doers (v.12), endured grief and wrongful suffering (v.19), and were "buffeted" (v.29). Christ is our supreme Example as to how to react to these things. Peter's poignant memories of the scenes in the judgment hall flooded vividly to his mind. Jesus was reviled, but He never retaliated. When we are hurt, either physically or verbally, our natural reaction is to hit back, but this is not God's way, the way of the cross. "Vengance is mine, I will repay, saith the Lord". Leave everything to God!

SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHING – from page 18

J.B. Phillips's translation of Romans 12:7,11) "Give all we have to our teaching . . . let us not allow slackness to spoil our work and let us keep the fires of the spirit burning, as we do our work for God."

Let us be sure to build a better Sunday school before we build a bigger one.

"MARY"

John 2:11–18

by Mrs. Ruth B. Currie, wife of the Pastor of our Long Eaton church

MARY was heartbroken. She wept grief-stricken tears, for she had lost the One to whom she was most devoted, her Master.

Jesus had done so much for Mary Magdalene; He had delivered her of seven devils. She loved Him much because He had forgiven her much. She wanted to take this last opportunity of honouring Him, so she had brought spices with her to the garden to anoint His body. Her sorrow was intensified on discovering that Jesus' body had been removed from its resting place. In her troubled state of mind she failed to recognize Jesus as He stood there with her. She supposed Him to be the gardener. She was too taken up with her grief to realise that it was the One for whom she longed.

Do we see the Saviour amid the heartaches? If we only knew it, He is waiting at the point of our need to reveal Himself to us.

Then Jesus spoke to her. There was no longer any need for fear or grief. Just as He brought peace to His disciples in the storm with "It is I", so His voice brought comfort to Mary. He transformed her grief into gladness, her heartache into happiness, her remorse into rejoicing, her sorrow into sweetness, her weeping into worship. One word from Jesus and she ceased to take heed of the two angels who were at the empty tomb. Her attention was claimed by her Master.

Things around us "grow strangely dim in the light of His glory and grace". He speaks to us, too, amid the storms of life. Do we hear His voice?

What is more He called her by her name: "Mary". Joy must have leapt up within her as she heard that one, sweet word. He knew her! We read: "He calleth His own sheep by name" (John 10:3).

He knows each one of us by name. Nothing could be more personal than that. In our lives there are those people who have only heard of us, there are those who know us by sight, and others who address us as Mr. or Mrs., but with those who know us well we are on Christian name terms.

"Jesus saith unto her, Mary." Mary recognized those loving tones. It was her beloved Lord. She addressed Him as such in joyful acclamation, "Master". She worshipped Him.

When Jesus calls us in that personal way, there is no thrill to be compared with the transformation that takes place in our lives as we acknowledge Him as our Lord and Master. We, too, are precious to Him.

Jesus then gave Mary the privilege of telling others that she had seen and spoken with the Lord. She could not have remained silent. Her precious Saviour was no longer dead, but He was very much alive, a risen, glorified Jesus. She had seen Him and spoken with Him and He with her.

Has the risen, glorified Saviour revealed Himself to us? Have we seen Him? Has He spoken to us? Have we talked with Him? Then do we tell others about Him?

Thoughts from the Book of Genesis

22. Isaac—Promise fulfilled (Genesis 21:3)

by F. Lavender, Pastor of our Croydon church

WHAT joy and gladness are wrapped up in the name "Isaac"! All the rapturous music of Sarah's soul was contained in this word. "God has made me to laugh!" she sang, so she called her son "Laughter". For more than twenty-five years Abraham and Sarah had waited for this happy day and at times faith had burned dim and hope had almost gone from their hearts. Once Abraham said to the Lord, "My servant is my heir" (Genesis 15:2,3). Sarah tried to force the promise through Hagar (Genesis 16:3). Abraham prayed: "Let Ishmael live before Thee" (Genesis 17:18). At the time appointed by the Lord, however, Sarah bore the promised son and they forgot the sorrow of waiting in the joy of fulfilment. They learned that God's delays are not denials.

Sometimes the promises of God are fulfilled immediately and prayer is granted at once, as when Elijah prayed and the fire fell from heaven, and when Bartimaeus cried, "Jesus . . . have mercy on me!" and he received his sight. Sometimes, however, in the mystery of the divine will the answer lingers, as with Joseph when he passed through the pit and the prison, and with Mary and Martha as they waited for Jesus to come, and with Lazarus who died while He "tarried". It is necessary for faith to be tried before the Lord can fulfil His word to us (1 Peter 1:6,7), but Habakkuk declares: "Though it tarry, wait for it, because it shall surely come" (2:3). In His own good time, the Word of the Lord to us will be fulfilled and our mouths, too, will be filled with laughter and singing.

Editorial

READERS will, I am sure, forgive a personal Editorial. With the Conference, I shall, of course, lay down the office of President of our beloved movement, and I wanted to take this opportunity to express my grateful thanks to so very many who have kindly afforded me gracious fellowship and hospitality during this busy but very rewarding year. I have visited every Presbytery but one, the exception being because reaction to smallpox injections necessitated by my visit to Ghana prevented my going there.

When I took office I felt that occupying the dual role of Editor and President led to some difficulties, as it is extremely difficult to write about oneself! For this reason, I discontinued the series "From the President's Pen", though I also had in mind that I have the privilege of writing the Editorial every week in any case. I am pleased to tell you that my colleague John Lancaster will resume this series and we shall look forward very much to the contributions from his ready pen.

I have sought to give attendance at as many committees as possible and it has been rewarding, challenging and illuminating to see the whole cross section of our work. You will know that our Missionary Council honoured me with the wonderful privilege and opportunity of visiting Ghana. The impact upon my life and ministry was more than I can convey. I humbly thank God for the honour of very briefly sharing in the labours of my noble colleagues. My other visits have included a happy week in Northern Ireland. I place on record my admiration for the whole of our Elim work in Ireland. Their enthusiastic steadfastness inspired me.

Thanks must go to my colleagues on the Executive Council for their ready help and co-operation. The brotherly fellowship which we share and which obtains at our Headquarters, now, I am thrilled to mention, including our printing department, is a great asset to all our ministry and movement.

On behalf of his wife and family, his mother and all the members of the family I would also thank from the depth of my heart the very, very many who prayed and laboured on behalf of my brother-in-law, David G. Hathaway. He was released from prison and arrived home on April 17th. At every church to which I have gone so many have asked me about him and have assured me of their prayer support. Thank you very much in the name of the Lord for your fellowship in the gospel. We thank God for undertaking for our brother and share with you our joy and gratitude at his release.

DAGENHAM Pastor: J. McBurney

MARCH was a very eventful one for us. On Sunday the 4th we celebrated the first anniversary of Pastor and Mrs. McBurney. The preacher was Pastor F.F. Frost. The soloist was Miss Muriel Tyne. There was also a duet from our Pastor and his wife, followed by a presentation to them of a Bible and a bouquet of flowers.

On the 18th we held our Sunday school anniversary. Unfortunately because of an outbreak of 'flu in the area, many children and their parents were unable to attend, but God honoured His Word given by our Pastor. Among the four who responded to the appeal for salvation was the mother of four of our very devout Sunday school and Crusader members, who have been praying openly for their parents for many months.

On Sunday the 25th, four girls very active members of the Sunday school and Crusader groups went through the waters of Baptism. They have been the means of many boys and girls coming into the Sunday school and Crusaders. During the morning service one candidate chose the hymn, "I am so glad that Jesus loves me", a testimony to her belief in what she professes. Pastor McBurney gave a very rousing sermon on the need for Baptism and, after the service, five young people and four adults expressed their desire to be baptised. A young man about thirty years old who was visiting the Church for the first time, said that he had never heard anything like this and that now had a lot to think about.

Our Church building is in urgent need of repairs, but God is meeting the need as only He can. As soon as the matter was made known, the young people organized a sponsored walk, which brought in over £300 toward the building fund. The response of the members to the appeal is a great encouragement and we rejoice that what seemed a real tragedy has redounded to the glory of God.

After many months search for a hall in which to hold our meetings during the time when ours will be under reconstruction, we were overjoyed when the friends from the Becontree Avenue Baptist Church kindly offered us the use of their church hall for all our meetings. We express our grateful thanks in the name of the Lord. We know that God will reward them accordingly.

We praise God for the way he has blessed our bookstall under the management of Mrs. McBurney and for those who have entered the Deed of Covenant Scheme introduced in October. These two ventures will, we trust, make a significant contribution to our funds.

Our Pastor introduced the Sunday school at a Sunday morning Communion service, and it is hoped that they will be encouraged to attend this and other services. Ten to twelve scholars have been attending the Sunday services regularly.

We rejoice with the many who have accepted Christ as their Saviour during the year, for those who have rededicated their lives to Him, and for the way that God has met the Financial need of the church.

ELAINE BERRY

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA Pastor: A. Nicolson

THE hope of the Christian Church is centred in Christ, so we rejoice to contemplate afresh His near return. It was a joy to welcome Pastor C.J.E. Kingston for a series of meetings centred on the Second Advent. The climax of world events, the Russian threat, the signs of Christ's return, rapture and resurrection, and events after death, were among subjects expounded, when Pastor Kingston brought information regarding world events which are the fulfilment of prophecy. He reminded us of the little remaining to be fulfilled before Christ descends. As our hearts responded with, "Even so, come, Lord Jesus," we were reminded of the challenge of our unrepenting friends and neighbours. We must work and pray both as a Fellowship and as individuals that all might come to a knowledge of salvation.

M.S. LYNDON

South-East Presbytery Rallies

FOR the first time, our Ryde Church was host to the Churches of the South-East Presbytery on Saturday, March 31st. The two rallies packed the building to the doors, with 120 in the afternoon and 143 in the evening. The retiring District Superintendent, Pastor T.W. Thomson, introduced his successor, Pastor F.A. Hodge, who convened the opening meeting and preached at the evening one. The afternoon speaker was Pastor P.T. Niblett, the Youth Commissioner, who challenged the congregation with "What do you want from God?" (Matthew 20:21,32). Pastor E.R. Gaudion led chorus singing. Pastor A.A. Biddle opened in prayer. Pastor J.J. Way read the Scriptures, and Mr. J. Beardesley and his sister sang a duet.

Pastor Thomson convened the evening meeting and Pastor Hodge exhorted the believers to be "faithful unto death" (Revelation 2:10). Miss T. Thomson sang a solo and a youth group from Brighton also sang. Pastor Biddle read the Scriptures. Pastor J.M. Reeve-Baker accompanied the congregational singing at the piano in both services. Nine churches were presented and the ladies of the Ryde Church provided tea for the congregation. It was a memorable occasion and the Ryde friends greatly appreciated the visit of those members of the mainland churches who crossed the Solent to share this day of fellowship.

I.R. HALL, B.D.

ROTHERHAM Pastor: P. Smith

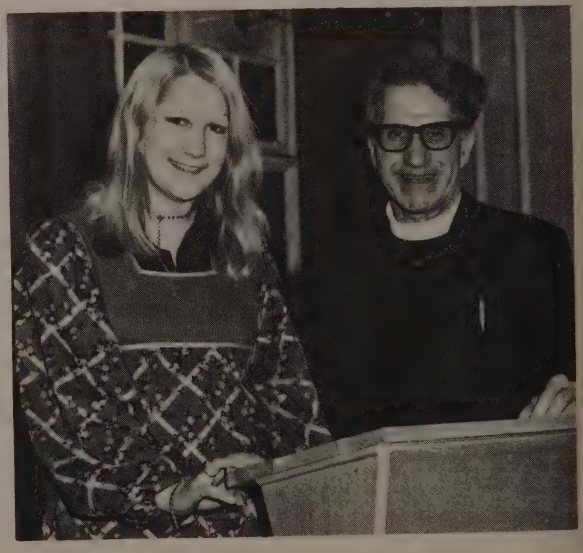
"TO God be the glory" was the theme throughout the crusade conducted by Pastor Richard Lighton. The crusade was planned last year, but prayer started in earnest this year. There was real expectency that the Lord would bless. During the earlier part of the crusade the congregation consisted mainly of church members and friends from other churches, but during the second and third weeks an increasing number of unsaved people came and this has been reflected in the number who decided for Christ. There were over thirty recorded decisions over the three-week period. The average attendance has been 100 – 150 people. The Lord has been pleased to heal the sick. Mrs. Carolyn Horner's testimony has already appeared in the EVANGEL. What a joy it has been to see Carolyn almost run down the aisle when testifying how the Lord has healed her. Mrs. Williams (thrombosis), Mrs. Shearwood (ulcers), and Mr. Bemrose, the Church Secretary (angina), have also testified to healing. A lady who was lame in both legs came to one of the meetings and after prayer she was able to walk around. The campaign has already affected the Church in that Christians have been drawn much more closely to the Lord and to one another.

What has been happening during the last few weeks is normal for the New Testament Church and is the result of earnest prayer. We praise the Lord for all the souls who have been saved and the bodies that have been healed and give Him all the glory.



A. T. CLARKE

YORK Pastor: A. Brooks

MUCH blessing was brought to the York Church when Pastor David Woodfield was the preacher during a campaign. Souls were saved and others were baptised in the Holy Ghost. The Gospel was preached simply, but in power and in a way that challenged not only the unsaved, but also Christians. We were delighted to listen to Mrs. Woodfield's testimony on the first Sunday night. We realize more and more that God so often works in a quiet, unobtrusive way in the hearts of men and women to bring them to Himself.

On the Sunday evening after the campaign a young lady testified to her deliverance from drug addiction. This did not happen in our campaign, nevertheless we give God the praise. How true is the chorus: "Jesus sets me absolutely free".

ALEX LAWRENCE

BURTON UPON TRENT Pastor: R. Morrell

ONCE again our Sisterhood week-end is over, but the blessed memory remains. Our speaker was Mrs. E. Glass, and we were thrilled by her anointed ministry in word and song. We were deeply conscious of the presence of the Lord throughout. Items in song, testimony and recitation were given by the sisters of our assembly, all the items being deeply appreciated and blessed of God.

We praise God that, at the final service, one backslider rededicated his life to God. This truly blessed week-end was convened by Mrs. Morrell. Our Church is still in blessing under the loving and faithful ministry of our Pastor and his dear wife. (Mrs.) V. SHIPLEY

ANTRIM, N.Ireland

OVER forty children were present at the very first Sunday school prize-giving of the new Church in Antrim. After an excellent tea provided by the sisters of the Church, the children presented their programme before a large attendance of parents and friends. The programme was convened by Mr. R.L. Kerr, our Church Leader, and a Gospel Address was given by Pastor A.D. Sandford. The prizes were presented by Mrs. Sandford, after which Mr. T. Laird, the Sunday school Superintendent, thanked everyone who had helped to make the occasion such a success.

At the end special tribute was paid to Pastor and Mrs. Sandford for all that they had done during the early months of our Church, and a gift was made to them as an expression of our sincere appreciation.

The Church is continuing to progress under the ministry of our brother Mr. R.L. Kerr and already there is a steady growth in membership. We give thanks to God for all His blessing and seek His help as we go on with our personal outreach programme in Antrim. M.T. ALEXANDER

Channel Islands' Presbytery

"THE Lord hath done great things for us". Recently the Channel Islands were the venue for special rejoicing. The Presbytery celebrated its 100th meeting. To mark the occasion one of the Islands' first ministers after the war, Pastor R.J. Morrison, was invited to visit each Church in turn. The itinerary commenced in Jersey, the youngest Assembly in the Presbytery, which was pioneered from Guernsey in 1950. After a great weekend of blessing the sister Isle was visited. Delancey was host Church for the united Presbytery rally at which letters of greeting from former Channel Islands Pastors and from Elim H.Q. were read. No theme had been set, but the text quoted above was uppermost in the minds of those who penned congratulations. Meetings continued in Eldad and Vazon. A special offering was received for extending the work of the Presbytery. The Lord has most certainly been good to us and the evident signs of His love encourage us to push forward in order to further the cause of Christ. Our eyes are on our little sister, Alderney. Will you pray with us? B.C. VIDAMOUR (Jersey)

HULL, City Temple Pastor: C.J. Watkins

SUNDAY, March 18th, was a high spot for us. In the afternoon parents and friends gathered for the annual prizegiving. Scholars from our Boothferry Road Branch joined us for the event. About a hundred scholars received their rewards for attendance. Special prizes went to one boy and one girl for having the cleanest star cards.

At the evening service we welcomed a former scholar to our pulpit in the person of our President, Pastor T.W. Walker. It was most fitting that he should be with us during his year of office. He was joined by his brother in rendering an item of song.

European Pentecostal Radio Fellowship Conference – Nice, France. March 27-29

Report by L. Wigglesworth

DELEGATES from six countries – France, Germany, Italy, Spain, Switzerland, and U.K. – met in Nice to pool their experiences and to benefit mutually in the work of broadcasting the gospel. The Host Fellowship was "Christ vous Appelle", the radio arm of the Assemblies of God in France. The assembly at Nice very kindly entertained the delegates (about forty in number), giving them free accommodation. Meals were served in the Church, where the catering was efficiently managed by Church members.

The Conference, held in the main church building, was chaired and addressed by different delegates on a variety of subjects connected with radio. Discussions followed and many ideas were exchanged, revealing the deep interest of the visitors in this vital medium of evangelism. It was reported that television is now being used more and more in transmitting the gospel. Both local and world-wide emissions were discussed, particularly those to Eastern European countries but it was noted that continuity and regularity in broadcasting was vital to draw responses from the listening audiences.

The "Christ vous Appelle" team arranged a special visit to the Transworld Radio Studios in Monte Carlo and followed this with a tour of their own offices and studios in Nice. The delegates deeply appreciated these arrangements and we record our thanks for the organising of a successful conference. The climax came in the evening rallies when many souls found Christ as Saviour and over 500 believers rejoiced together in international fellowship.

A Brother's Tribute

MY brother, Rev. Kenneth E. Ward, entered triumphantly into the presence of his Lord on March 19th in his fifty-eighth year. Many Elim friends will remember with much thankfulness his powerful expository ministry. He began as a boy preacher in evangelistic work at his local church in the Apostolic Fellowship at Stonehall near Dover, where he was saved, baptised in water and filled with the Holy Spirit. In his teens he moved to Sussex and became the organist at the Worthing Tabernacle under the ministry of Rev. A.G. Atwood. He entered the full-time ministry and held pastorates at Hawkhurst where he met and married Hetty M. Francis. After nine years at Spurgeon's Chapel, South Street, Greenwich, London, he moved to East Sheen and then to East Finchley. During his ministry at Finchley he was influential in helping several young men into full-time Christian work.

During the early years of service for the Lord we joined together and conducted evangelistic campaigns as "The Ward Brothers", visiting many parts of the country, including some of our Elim Churches, notably Kensington Temple, Brighton, Glasgow and Blackpool.

Kenneth was a preacher of rare talents. His whole life was to preach the unsearchable riches of Christ and the lordship of our Saviour. He was often the guest speaker at Advent Testimony meetings and Male Voice Praise Festivals in Dublin, Belfast and London.

God richly blessed him in wider gifts. He studied music at Trinity College, London, where he gained honours. He was also an artist of exceptional ability in oils and water colours. Almost his last drawing was a lined block of the New Gospel Centre, London, which is used on their invitation cards.

His last words to me on the night of his death were, "Douglas, preach the Word. Be instant in season and out of season". To my boys, Paul and Peter, he said, "Be true to Jesus - one Lord, one faith, and one baptism."

At Muswell Hill Baptist Church, the Rev. Ronald Park conducted the funeral service which he described as a thanksgiving service which was arranged by Kenneth himself before he died. We entered the Church to the music of Handel's "I know that my Redeemer liveth". The opening hymn was "Jesus, the Name high over all," and the others, "I love to tell the story" and "Thine be the glory, risen conquering Son."

Rev. Ronald Park said he had known Kenneth for thirty years and had sat under his ministry on many occasions. He counted him among the best expository preachers of the present age.

We left the church to the strains of the organist playing Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus", knowing that the Lord's servant had entered into his everlasting home. He leaves a wife, son Marcus and daughter Miriam, who covet our prayers.

Kenneth composed many choruses and spiritual songs. One which was used much in our early campaign ministry was:

"Translated by Thy grace,
From darkness through the precious Blood;
Transformed by power Divine
And in the plan of God.
Lord, take this life of mine
That I through grace may be Transferred by resurrection power
To live with thee."

Thank you,dear brother, for the ministry, the music and the memories. To God be all the glory!

BOOK REVIEW

A Church set on a Hill, by Victor G. Walkley. Published by Prophetic Witness Publishing House. Price 20p, postage and packing 4p extra.

THIS book marks the centenary year of a prominent Christian Brethren assembly, Edgmond Hall, Eastbourne. The membership includes well known preachers such as Dr. F.A. Tatford, Dr. Eric Hutchings, and Mr. J. McNichol, which speaks well for Edgmond Hall – or for sunny Eastbourne! A century of history in eighty-nine pages has cramped the writer and crammed the book with personalities, events, and details, down to "new sinks and draining boards". The activities past and present are many. Here is a very open Brethren Assembly with Covenaners, Crusaders, Coffee-Corner, Sunday Night at Eight, to mention but a few. I trust that the various Christian Brethren magazines will also review this book. The membership is given as 221, and in the Appendix of the members' names to count 156 sisters was a surprising number. Though interesting, the book seems limited. It will appeal particularly to Christian Brethren or visitors to Edgmond Hall.

The Letter to the Romans

25 The Two Israels (chapters 9—11)

The Conversion of Israel (11:1-32)

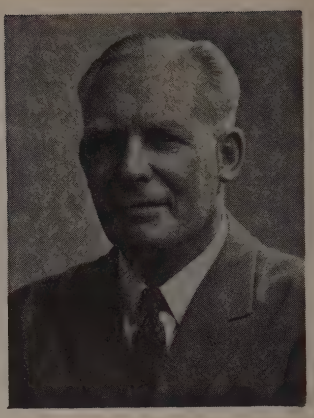
by J. Alexander Wright

PAUL'S dialogue continues. Since he has so laboured to demonstrate to those Roman Gentiles (11:13) his people Israel's great guilt in forsaking the true God, it might seem that Israel indeed merited complete rejection by Him, but he emphatically draws the line. If, by God's mercy and grace, Paul, the adamant opposer of Christ and chief of sinners, had been sought out, forgiven and restored, there is hope and salvation for all (11:1). Israel's rejection was neither utter nor final (v.1). In God's good time Israel would repent and return to Him, bringing untold blessing to the world of men (v.15). Paul does not dogmatise about this and leaves the question open, but his writing carries a note of assurance and confidence that it shall be so.

God has always had His faithful ones, as in Elijah's day (vv.2—4) and all through the Old Testament, and emerging from those 400 "silent" years between the Testaments came those in Jerusalem who "looked for Redemption" there (Luke 2:38). Some of that "remnant" (Romans 11:5) were in the Christian Church at Rome, though the mass of their nation was still spiritually blind (vv. 7—10). That insensibility, though attributed to God, was not an arbitrary infliction, but the inevitable outcome of their refusal to "see". Thus God endorsed the human choice.

"Boast not" says v.18. These Gentile converts from the pagan world of Rome were presumably in the majority and apparently displayed conceit and superiority towards their weaker Jewish brethren. Paul reminds them of their debt to Israel. The divine life which they shared was but derived, while Israel's was original.

Paul's arguments are not always easy to follow. Verse 11 cannot mean, "If Israel had not fallen there would have been no salvation for the Gentiles", but rather, "Despite their fall salvation has come to the Gentiles". How much grander it would have been had they been the direct instruments of Gentile salvation (v.12), for this was God's original intention and for this very purpose they had been elected (Isaiah chapters 49, 60). "The casting away of them" (Romans 11:15), the breaking of the branches (v.19), is a different expression from that in v.1, though the English words are similar. The latter indicates finality, to throw away, but the former means to throw down temporarily. Israel's fall was not final, nor was their rejection complete. It will be a wonderful day when God the Father welcomes His prodigal nation home, saying, "This my son was dead, and is alive again" (v.15; Exodus 4:22). Life will come to a dead nation and spring-time to the world (see Article 24, last para.)!



The olive tree, symbol of Israel, now becomes the framework on the canvas, recalling God's dealings with them. Without a doubt Paul's text is found in Jeremiah 11:16: "The Lord called thy name, A green olive tree, fair, and of goodly fruit: with the noise of a great tumult He hath kindled fire upon it, and the branches of it are broken."

"The olive tree represents the great Church universal in its long life before and after Christ" (H. Moule, Romans), for the origins of the Christian Church are Israelitish and began in father Abraham and God's Covenant with him. Some make the Church a uniquely New Testament institution, stressing futurity in our Lord's words, "I will build My church", but others see it as a continuation of "the church in the wilderness" (Acts 7:38), a building-again of the fallen House of David (Acts 15:16, NEB) under David's greater Son, Lord and Heir, so that all nations through Him and His House (the Church) might seek the Lord. These see Christ as Builder and Head over His own House in which Moses, for all his greatness, was but a servant (Hebrews 3:1—6). Abraham was the "first-fruit" (v.16), the "tap-root" (v.17), from whom and in whom all his seed were consecrated and set apart for God and all blessing flowed.

NOW is the Hour!

by Archie A. Biddle,
Pastor of our Portsmouth Church

JESUS enjoyed being alive in His day. He met all the cruelty, violence and evil that were in His path and it is obvious that He was sickened by them, sorrowed because of them, and wept and prayed and died to deliver men from them, yet He lived life to the full and neither wanted to go back into some good old days of the past nor to live in some more sophisticated age of the future. In His day He took up every opportunity that came His way to help, heal, counsel, assist, rebuke and exhort. He never chafed at the bit because of circumstances, even though He was a working-man. His country was governed by an occupying power, but it never disturbed Him so as to curtail the working out of His Father's will in His life. He took things as they were and fulfilled God's intention by setting up standards of living in a violent and permissive society, rebuking hypocrisy in religious circles, and loving all men, women, and children, even having a place in that love for social and moral misfits. What was the secret of His living as He did in that first century which is so much like this twentieth century?

The answer is in the words of John 11:25 where He said: "I am the Resurrection and the Life". Jesus is Resurrection! Now note that He did not acquire this glorious title by rising from the dead after the ordeal of Calvary; He was the Resurrection irrespective of what happened. Christ is not the Resurrection because He rose from the dead, He rose from the dead because He is the Resurrection.

Peter on the Day of Pentecost develops the same idea. In the message he gave to the men of Israel in Acts chapter 2, he tells of "Jesus of Nazareth, a man approved of God among you by miracles and wonders and signs . . . ye have taken, and by wicked hands have crucified and slain: whom God hath raised up, having loosed the pains of death: because it was not possible that He should be holden of it." Living Gospels translates the latter part: "Death could not keep this man within its grip". The Twentieth Century New Testament is also emphatic: "It being impossible for death to retain its hold upon Him." That grand old hymn has captured the same thought:

Death cannot keep its prey,
Jesus, my Saviour.
He tore the bars away –
Jesus, my Lord!
Up from the grave He arose,
With a mighty triumph o'er His foes.

Jesus conquered the grave, which someone described as "the death principle", because "He was a positive life principle". Therein lay the secret of His way of life. He had a positive attitude to life, because He is a positive life principle.

This is a blessing believers can also enjoy. Colossians chapter 3 is full of this teaching. Those who are risen with Christ "seek those things which are above". Their affections are set on things above. Their lives are hid with Christ in God. Their future in glory is based on the fact that Christ is their life here and now. Once they lived in the ways of the flesh, which were so negative that they could produce a life of only very poor quality, but now, having risen with Him, they have His positive life principle working out in their everyday lives producing the plus life of love which is accompanied by a singing heart of praise to God, because life is lived to His glory. Resurrection life is not just future at the rapture; it is in us here and now. Living people do not live on a slab in a mortuary; they seek better blaces, called in Colossians the "above", the place where "Christ sitteth on the right hand of God."

Herein lies the secret of living in this age and generation. Christ is our positive life principle and all that is necessary is to allow that principle to develop in our encounter with life wherever we have to live it. Herein also lies victory, for resurrection life cannot be held in the grip of any power, be it Devil or demon, permissiveness or pornography, pride or profanity. These things and all of the same kind must give way and lose their hold when one is living in the realm of the positive principle of resurrection life. Death to the earthly is the inevitable where resurrection life operates.

We can live right here and now in a new dimension because of the potential within us. Jesus did it in the first century and we can in the twentieth – in Him!

A new Life

by Sheila Price

"DID you have a nice birthday yesterday?" Miss Jones, the Sunday school teacher, asked.

"Yes, thank you", said Simon. "I received ten cards and I had a wonderful party but, best of all, mummy and daddy gave me a cricket bat, which I'd always wanted. Daddy said that the bat is made of willow, just like the ones used by real cricketers!"

"Can any of you tell me what willow is?" asked Miss Jones.

"I can", replied Gareth, "It is a tree".

"That is correct", said Miss Jones. "I want you to picture the willow, a tall, slender tree, growing quite happily in the forest. One day, into the forest, comes a lumberjack. He examines the willow, decides that it is the one he wants, and, in a few seconds, he slices through the base of the tree with his electric saw. The tree, because it has been separated from its life-giving roots, dies and crashes to the ground. Soon it is on its way to the saw-mills. Here, a new life awaits it, for it is to be cut up and use; in the making of baskets and cricket bats, which will give much pleasure and enjoyment to many people, but first, the tree has to die.

"Now, children", said Miss Jones, "this story of the willow tree reminds me of Eastertime, because it was then that our Lord Jesus was nailed to the cross at Calvary. He gave up His life in order that we might receive His great, wonderful salvation. Christians everywhere rejoice in the knowledge that Jesus loved them and died for them. The Lord Jesus willingly gave up His life, for only by His death could He promise us eternal life. Just like the willow, our Lord first had to die."

Thoughts from the Book of Genesis

23. The Submission of Faith (Genesis 22:3)

by F. Lavender, Pastor of our Croydon church

WHEN Isaac was born, Abraham knew joy and laughter. At that time it was easy for him to trust the Lord. Life was pleasant and happy. When the Lord said to him, "Offer Isaac for a burnt offering", however, all comfort vanished immediately as Abraham faced his supreme trial of faith. Who can tell what agony Abraham endured that night? We can only imagine his distress as he reasoned with the Lord: "This is the child You promised for twenty-five years, Lord; surely You do not want me to destroy what You have given?". Yet Abraham was convinced that the Lord could not make a mistake and that He would bring nothing but good from any trial which He imposed – why, He could even raise Isaac from the dead (Hebrews 11:17–19)! So faith submitted to and obeyed the Lord, and returned blessed and triumphant!

There are times when things are going well and we find it easy to believe and to trust the Lord. Then we are unexpectedly called upon to make a decision which can lead to a severe trial, as when Philip was called to leave the wonderful revival in Samaria and go into the lonely Gaza desert. In such a situation, the Lord will not force us; we must reveal our trust by willingly obeying Him. We could say, "No, Lord, please leave me as I am; I am happy and content!", but we know that the Lord has called us to obey Him whatever it costs. To disobey His call destroys our peace with Him. If we would honour God and know His blessing, we must be submissive, like Abraham. Then we shall prove in our own experiences that "all things work together for good" (Romans 8:28).

Pilgrim Hall

D.2858

The Elim Pentecostal Church, Chesham, Bucks.

by the Pastor, Stephen Blake

Mr. Sibley and Mr. Freeman

THE Assembly in Chesham has been meeting since the late nineteen-thirties. It came into being after a campaign was held by Fred Squire in the Empire Hall, Station Road, Chesham. This Church was under the auspices of the Full Gospel Church and meetings were then held over Chittenden's shop in the High Street. The Church was then independent for a time under Pastor G. Davies and came into Elim in about 1940.

After this a hall was rented in Blucher Street and Pastor F.G. Wagner was the minister for many years. Unfortunately, the hall had to be demolished to make way for the new Library and the Church then moved into a room which is rented from the Council. This room, the only one obtainable, is reached by steep iron stairs and many of the older folk in our congregation have much trouble with this staircase. Our work in Chesham has been much hampered by this inconvenient accommodation to the extent that we are unable to have any youth work or a Sunday school.

The congregation have always been active in trying to find more suitable premises. In the last ten years we have tried to purchase the Temperance Hall, but the Council came in with a compulsory purchase order and the hall is now used as a centre for the town's old people, the Church Lads' Brigade hall, but the authorities made a great fuss about parking space for cars so that was ruled out, and numerous other buildings.

In July, 1972, we started a really vigorous campaign to get our own building. Many places in which we were interested had just been sold (Chesham is being re-developed at a frightening rate) or they turned out to be unsuitable. Much land in the town is being purchased by the local authority for a four-lane road planned to run through Chesham. Some of the land required for this road would be ideal for a church – particularly a disused burial ground! A report is to hand that the Minister for the Environment is about to disapprove the plan for this road. Let us all pray that he does and if he does that we may be able to purchase the land that we require.

To finish on a personal note – it is pleasing to think that Mr. J. Freeman and Mr. F. Sibley have been Deacons of the Church in Chesham since it started, though Mr. Freeman retired as a Deacon and as Treasurer in January. Mr Sibley is still serving as a Deacon and as Church Secretary. These two brethren have been a great example to us all.

We would value your prayers as we seek the new accommodation which is so urgently needed.

Mr. Sibley, Mr. Freeman and the Pastor

"In the Beginning was the Word"

by Robert Clarke, N.D.D., A.T.D., Pastor of our Marton, Blackpool, Church

IN the opening statement of John's Gospel we are presented with a truth that is older than Creation. The Book of Genesis opens with the story of Creation; John's introduction is on the theme of man's redemption. The blood of Jesus Christ is written throughout eternity. In the Revelation He is not only the "Lamb as it had been slain", but "the Lamb slain from before the foundation of the world".

The Greek for "word" is logos. This expression is frequently used throughout the New Testament and has become a synonym for the Christian message. In Mark we read that Jesus preached the Word. In the Parable of the Sower, the seed is the Word. In Acts 12:25, Paul and Barnabas preached the Word. The Apostle John, however, gives this a somewhat different application in that the "Word" is He personified. Christ is revealed as the Word. "In the beginning was the Word" (John 1:1); "the Word of life" (1 John 1:1); "And He was clothed with a vesture dipped in blood: and His name is called The Word of God." (Revelation 19:13).

To comprehend fully the meaning of Christ as the Word we must see it in the light of Paul's statement to the Corinthians that "He is the wisdom of God and the power of God". It is usual to explain John's use of logos in terms of the then current usage among Greek and Alexandrian philosophers. We will refrain from this, as our concern is with its use in Scripture.

The incarnate Christ as the Word is the incarnate Mind of God. Genesis 1:1 tells us of the God of creation. John 1:1 tells us of the Word who existed before the creation. Read Proverbs 8:27–30; it shows that wisdom was present at the creation. If Christ, as Paul states, is the wisdom of God, we can rightly conclude that He was present at the creation and thus that he is the personification of wisdom. Therefore in Jesus we have revealed and expressed to man the incarnate mind of God.

He is also the creating power of God come to men. Not only is He the wisdom of God but, as the Apostle states, He is also the power of God. "He upholds all things by the word of His power" (Hebrews 1:3). We use the expression, "Actions speak louder than words", but with God this saying has no counterpart. When God speaks He acts. His word is active, never passive. It always accomplishes the end to which it is directed. "He sent His word and healed them" (Psalm 107:20). "By the word of the Lord were the heavens made ...for He spake and it was done" (Psalm 33:6,9). Therefore, the pre-incarnate Christ, as the wisdom of God, was not only present at the Creation but, as the power of God, He was also the means of creation. God has spoken "by His Son, whom He hath appointed heir of all things, by whom also He made the worlds" (Hebrews 1:2); "All things were made by Him; and without Him was not anything made that was made." (John 1:3); "Who is the image of the invisible God . . . for by Him were all things created" (Colossians 1:15,16).

In the eternal past, God decided upon our redemption and the Word was the vehicle by which it was brought to pass. "But we speak the wisdom of God in a mystery, even the hidden wisdom, which God ordained before the world unto our glory" (1 Corinthians 2:7). Christ the Word is not only wisdom but power, as can be seen in the seven-eyed and horned Lamb of the Revelation – the eyes represent insight and foreknowledge, the horns represent power – He is also the Lamb slain from the beginning of time.

We conclude where we began: "In the beginning was the Word". He existed before time and space. Not only was He with God, but He is God, God the Son. As the wisdom and power of God He is not only the One who planned our redemption – He wrought it!

MORE SCRIPTURES FOR ENGLAND AND WALES

AN increase of fifty per cent in Scripture distribution in England and Wales during 1972 has been achieved by The British and Foreign Bible Society. There are two major reasons for this significant upswing in the Society's work. One is the growing tendency on the part of many people inside and outside the Church to turn, in these times of confusion and anxiety, to the Scriptures in the belief and expectation that guidance can be found in them. The other is that the Society's realignment of staff and procedures during 1972 resulted in more co-ordinated activity in the fields of promotion and distribution.

Actual distribution figures were: 262,655 Bibles, 147,298 Testaments, 1,109,777 Portions and 581,316 Selections, a total of 2,101,046

Spring Holiday

SPRING came early this year in North-west Devon. I was able to view its loveliness while holidaying at Great Torrington, which occupies almost completely its own high plateau and gives magnificent views of the deep rich valley of the Torridge. I was entranced by the beauty of forest, field, garden and heathland. The hedgerows were gay with primroses, purple aubretia garlanded walls and rockeries, wild and cultivated daffodils nodded everywhere and fat sheep and their lambs, looking so adorably toy-like and innocent, grazed in fresh green pastures. Gorse was in bloom, bright yellow on the hillside. Across the valley the forest area showed a delicate haze of green, the promise of future foliage. I was shown where herons build their nests in the tall trees by the river. When walking on the headland I watched a handsome goldfinch sunning himself on the rocks. Surrounded by such beautiful countryside and tranquility, I remarked to my husband that life seemed so peaceful in this little town where there was little evidence of poverty or violence.

I learned during my stay, however, that vandalism was not unknown and that sin in all its ugliness was very real. I am always interested in local history and in the fine-looking Church of St. Michael and All Angels I found evidence of the evil of men's hearts and of the lengths to which men of violence will go to destroy their enemies. During the Civil War of 1645–6, the earlier Gothic church on the same site was used as a temporary lock-up for Royalist prisoners taken during savage fighting in the town. The Roundhead guards and their prisoners were cooped up in the church tower, where there was a store of gun-powder. Someone ignited the explosive and much of the church was blown up. The prisoners and their guards were all killed.

Thank God, alongside evil and killing we can find evidence of compassion and caring. Down in the valley of the Torridge there is a riverside hamlet called Taddiport with a tiny fourteenth century chapel once attached to a leper hospital. Nearby, seen clearly from Castle Hill, Torrington, are two unusual fields. They are long, narrow and bounded by hedges. They have been kept uncultivated and as originally planned. These strips were for the exclusive use of the lepers and to this day are a silent witness to the loving concern of the Christian Church for the unfortunate lepers.

Another happy fact I discovered was that Rev. Keble Martin, whose attractive wild flower paintings adorn a 1967 set of British stamps, served as Vicar of Great Torrington in the parish church already mentioned. He must have revelled in the rich profusion of flowers in beautiful Devon. I wonder if his studies of primroses and dog-violets were created there? Prince Philip recognised the merit and loveliness of Keble Martin's drawings and paintings, a whole life-time's work of observing the handiwork of God and illustrating it reverently and almost to perfection. His book, with its hundreds of colourful illustrations, was published as a result of royal patronage and reveals on every page the exquisite beauty of the flowers of the field and woodland, which we so often take for granted. Jesus was right when He pointed to the lilies of the field and said that even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these.

My God, I thank Thee, who hast made
The earth so bright,
So full of splendour and of joy,
Beauty and light;
So many glorious things are here,
Noble and right.
I thank Thee, too, that Thou has made
Joy to abound,
So many gentle thoughts and deeds
Circling us round,
That in the darkest spot of earth
Some love is found.

A Camp Holiday in England for Children from Northern Ireland

A Practical Proposition

OUR brethren in the North-East District Presbytery have decided to invite our Northern Ireland colleagues to send to the Bridlington Youth Camp young people who would benefit from a holiday away from the tensions of Northern Ireland. Already contact with Northern Ireland has been effected and the programme is under way.

An advertisement was to appear in the Evangel announcing this project, but the Executive Council felt that a more personal approach would not only be more effective, but would also show that the Council was behind this.

The Camp Commandant, D.G. Woodfield, informs me that some £300 will be needed to carry out their intention.

If we all subscribe a tenth of what we intend to spend on our own holiday this will not only meet the financial needs of the North-East project, but of other similar schemes also.

We know that this and similar projects will receive the whole-hearted support of our members in Great Britain, so we appeal to you to send gifts for this purpose and to send them to me please.

Camp - or 1919 and all that!

HOW keen we are to arrange our holidays in good time! We visit travel agents to collect brightly-coloured brochures, which we then examine in great detail, comparing costs with our budgets. How do you decide where to go? I suspect that it is largely a matter of personal preference or group pressure. I wonder, do you ever pray about it?

Your rejoinder may be, "Surely I'm not expected to pray about where I go for my holidays? That's my own time – I'll go where I choose!". The best holiday you can ever hope to have is one which takes into consideration this fact – that you belong to God completely and that when you are on holiday, you are His as much as ever.

Consider the challenge of our own youth camps as holiday centres. As far back as 1919, the first Elim youth camp was held in Bangor, N. Ireland. It was a blessed occasion. Many who read this have cause to be thankful for our modern camp arrangements. The problem with camp as a holiday is its challenge. A holiday is meant to be a relaxing time. Look at what camp is really all about. Fun and fellowship are readily to be had, but consider what is offered to believers.

A Place of Decision (Numbers 21:4–9)

Many who attend camp find that they do not really know Christ. They have been living on a second-hand experience. Suddenly, they come face to face with the Master and with the challenge of Christian standards. There is impressed upon them the necessity of decision. Their souls are laid bare before God and it becomes a matter of urgency that they make the greatest decision of their lives. Camp provides an atmosphere in which this decision can be taken. The sense of the Lord's presence is so real. Once the decision has been taken (early in the holiday for best results), the heart is suffused with the glow of knowing that Jesus Christ is our Saviour and that in God's presence there is fulness of joy and at His right hand are pleasures for evermore.

A Place of Determination (1 Corinthians 2:2)

Paul was single-minded in his determination. "Not to know anything . . . save . . . Christ", he said. Camp is a unique place in which to practise such determination. Right from the start, you are forced to determine that you will get along with others. This isn't always easy, but it can be done by God's grace.

Determine that you are going to get alone with God. We spend the larger part of our year in the hustle and bustle of school or business lives. Time is at a premium. Camp provides an ideal opportunity to get alone with the Lord, where He can speak to you. The problem in this suggestion is that He might say something that we don't really want to hear! Even as young people, we can be set in our ways, enjoying the good life. Maybe we have never thought about service for God. Perhaps a call from God would upset our career plans? That's the challenge of camp. If you can't stand the risk, don't go. It's just possible that God wants to direct your life. Maybe He wants you to commit yourself to His service. Camp is a good place to get your priorities right.

A Place of Development (2 Timothy 2:15)

Stunted growth in any realm of nature is a sign that something is wrong. It indicates a problem. The normal thing is to see development, growth, fruit. Will your holiday this year set you up for a winter's work for God? Will it set you back spiritually? Will it whet your appetite for the things of the spirit? Many testify that camp was the first place where they prayed aloud or gave a testimony. After the ordeal was over, someone said, "Well, it wasn't so bad, was it?", and they were right. Somehow, camp atmosphere made it much easier. The camp Bible study sets them up for Bible reading, the early-morning prayer-time gets them into the habit of starting the day with God and the whole general activity of camp outreach makes them want to spend more time in winning souls for the Master. That's development!

A Place of Dedication (Romans 12:1)

Look around you. The very fact that there is a camp at all is an indication of the dedication of some people to the cause of Christ. They want you to have a good, enjoyable holiday, but, more than anything else, they want to see you dedicated to God, for thus you'll be dedicated to the work of your local church and the winning of souls.

Can you take the challenge, or will you spend your life trying to hide from God? They don't call Elim youth, "Crusaders" for nothing – do they?

Your Pastor can give you details of this year's camps or you can write to: The National Youth Director, Kensington Temple, Kensington Park Road, London W11.

The Family Altar

Scripture Union Portions — Notes by L.E. Lambert

Monday, April 30th — 1 Peter 3:1–12

"That your prayers be not hindered" (v.7).

"HOW to have a harmonious home" is the theme of this eminently practical portion. We are used to clichés like "The family that prays together, stays together" and "The family altar alters the family". If all homes honoured this chapter they would indeed inherit a blessing (v.9). If there is strife between man and wife or between parents and children, it is impossible really to pray together. Our prayers will be hindered. Wives obey (v.6), husbands honour (v.7); these verses give explicit instructions.

Let Christ be truly the Head of your house.

Tuesday, May 1st — 1 Peter 3:13–22

"Spirits in prison" (v.19).

WE are living in days of enormous stress and strain. Mental homes are full, nervous breakdowns are all too frequent, and tensions and anxieties tear people apart. Some are bound by the fear of loneliness, old age, or poverty. Others are bound by frustration; life seems meaningless and they are easily bored. Some are haunted by failure, personal, business, or domestic. So many are bound up inside; they are like "spirits in prison". Jesus preached to these spirits in prison. He can come to you this morning and give you life, love and liberty. He sets the captive free!

Wednesday, May 2nd — 1 Peter 4:1–11

"They think it strange" (v.4).

THE unsaved never really understand Christians. They think us strange, sometimes even doubting our sanity. They even thought that Jesus was mad. They feel that we are missing life – when really we have found it in Christ!

Peter mentions how we used to live (v.3), viz. in evil excesses; now we live knowing that we have to give account to God of what we do (v.5). Our former friends are perplexed by our no longer going with them on worldly or wicked jaunts. Peter says that they will even criticise us and mock us for being different. To walk with God and His people, to frequent the House of God, to live well-pleasing in His sight, do not rob us of joy; on the contrary, in His presence we find its fulness.

Thursday, May 3rd — 1 Peter 4:12–19

"When His glory shall be revealed" (v.13).

AS Jesus walked among men two thousand years ago, His eternal glory was veiled in His essential humanity. Only now and then did a glimpse break through, as on the Mount of Transfiguration. Only rarely were they able to behold His glory, the glory of the only begotten of the Father. Now His glory is concealed in the infinity of eternity, but one day His glory will be revealed. Jesus will come in the fulness of glory and all flesh shall see it together. Jesus is coming. We know that the world will see Him. Let us live today knowing that He is near. If we suffer with Him, we shall also reign with Him.

Friday, May 4th — 1 Peter 5:1–14

"Ensamples to the flock" (v.3).

"ENSAMPLE" has the same meaning as "example". We often say: "Example is better than precept". People are always more influenced by what we are than by what we say, especially in the matters of the soul. We all overestimate our own importance and underestimate our influence. You can be a great example of Christian virtue, victory and valour. What we need are pacemakers, who will lead the flock of God into new fields of service and deeper depths of love and grace.

May the things that we do today not contradict the things that we say.

Saturday, May 5th — 1 Kings 1:1–21

"Adonijah . . . exalted himself" (v.5).

KING David lay dying, but, ere the breath left the body of Israel's greatest king, Adonijah proclaimed himself as ruler. He persuaded the army general, Joab, and the high priest, Abiathar, to join his conspiracy. The premature plot failed, however, as David, influenced by the subtle intervention of Bathsheba, named Solomon as his successor.

Jesus taught us not to seek the position of prominence. If we exalt ourselves, we will be abased, but if we humble ourselves, God will lift us up. It does not matter who is second as long as Jesus is first.

Sunday, May 6th — 1 Kings 1:22–40

"God save king Solomon" (v.39).

SO shouted all the people, as they had shouted at the coronation of king Saul, Israel's first king, "God save the King". These words possibly inspired our own national anthem, "God save our gracious Queen". We need to pray for those in high position and great influence in our national life that they might acknowledge their need of God's help and guidance. We should pray "God save" in a real, evangelical sense, for royalty and for parliamentary dignitaries, that they might bow to Him who is the King of kings.

Foot and Mouth Disease

by C. E. Allen Turner, M.Sc., Ph.D.

THE recent outbreak of swine vesicular disease, with symptoms like that of the dreaded foot and mouth virus infection in cattle, has brought alarm to the country. In spite of much research by the best brains in many lands, it remains incurable. To prevent its spread there must be utter destruction and the consequent loss.

There is now affecting the whole world another foot and mouth disease, which causes far greater suffering and loss. All mankind is infected by it and its symptoms are found to a greater or lesser degree everywhere. It is a major spoiler of human relationships. It leads to pollution and the destruction of much property and to ultimate doom.

Its manifestation in men is described thus in Holy Scripture: "Their throat is an open sepulchre; with their tongues they have used deceit; the poison of asps is under their lips: Whose mouth is full of cursing and bitterness: their feet are swift to shed blood: destruction and misery are in their ways: and the way of peace have they not known: there is no fear of God before their eyes." (Romans 3:13-18).

For this disease of the spirit with its physical effects thus stated, we are happy to report that God has a remedy. It is by the cleansing of the thoughts of the heart by the inspiration of the Holy Spirit. He effects a new life, a new birth, within (John 3:8) any man who repents and trusts the great Physician (Acts 2:38), who shed his blood to cleanse from sin (1 John 1:7), and who lives to save [make whole or heal] the sinner (Hebrews 7:25).

SINGAPORE GROUP PLANS WORLD-WIDE PEACE PRAYER NETWORK

WITH PEACE IN VIETNAM still a fragile reality and peace elsewhere in the world an elusive possibility, a group of Christian leaders in Singapore have announced an aggressive programme to achieve world peace through the most powerful force they know anything about, the power of united prayer.

James Wong, a Chinese now resident in Singapore, told of the formation of a world-wide network of prayer, with stations on every continent and in every time zone, manned by hundreds of helpers whom he calls "prayermates". The prayermates pray daily for one hour from 6 a.m. to 7 a.m., so that there is an unbroken network of prayer around the clock and around the world. — E.I.

A God-honouring day

"Greatest Congregations in the Royal Albert Hall on Easter Monday since the war".

THE CHALLENGE OF THE HOUR.

THE almost miraculous change in the weather in London on Easter Monday morning was a foretaste of what was to come. Others will tell of the service there and of those in the Royal Albert Hall.

I am writing to thank everybody who came and helped to make Easter Monday one of Elim's greatest ever.

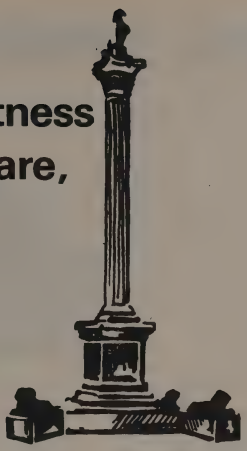
But the challenge of the hour is twofold. Already the Royal Albert Hall is booked for next Easter Monday. Those of us who were present recall the challenge to us to lead at least one soul to Christ before next Easter. Many thousands of us responded to that challenge. Please, don't let us forget. Were the Royal Albert Hall large enough, how marvellous it would be if each of us could bring next Easter Monday the person or persons whom we had led to Christ during the year.

We want you to tell us about your fulfilment of undertaking to win someone for Christ, and we wish to have a representative company of these new converts to testify next year by their presence at the Royal Albert Hall.

Begin now to work.

That is the first challenge.

The next challenge results from one of our smallest churches in South Wales—but it's got a big witness—bringing a fifty-two seater coach of mostly unconverted people to the Royal Albert Hall this year. We know that many others brought the unconverted.



So the challenge is, (and now is the time to begin), to make Easter Monday a greater soul-saving opportunity still, by bringing as many unconverted people as possible, and a tremendous Spirit-baptising and Divine healing opportunity. Others will tell of those who were saved at Trafalgar Square and in the Royal Albert Hall and of others who were baptised in the Spirit.

To conclude, clearly a great "Hallelujah!" ascends as we all look back on a triumphant, God-honouring day in Britain's premier auditorium.

Please write to me personally about those whom you have led to the Lord as a result of Easter Monday's challenge. Address: The Secretary-General, P.O. Box 38, Cheltenham, Glos.

God bless you.

The Open-air witness in Trafalgar Square, Easter Monday, 1973

Our Reporter: James McBurney, Pastor of our Dagenham Church

EASTER Monday – Trafalgar Square, Elim Pentecostal Church – they go together like roast beef and Yorkshire pud! Can anything keep Elim people away from Trafalgar Square on Easter Monday? Certainly not suspect weather conditions.

By 10.45 a.m. the Square is well filled, with many others arriving all the time. One cannot help thinking that there must be many among them who are not of us. Please God they will be before we leave.

What a thrill it is to see so many of the older ministers and members of the Elim family present. Over there is Willie Bell – looking not a day over fifty! J.T. Bradley rushes past and H.W. Greenway is gathering the flock together on the plinth, as ever completely in control, imparting confidence to those less experienced in this great witness. As one looks around the thrill increases, for it seems that the vast majority in the crowd are young people, many of whom we knew when they were Sunday school scholars. We had the joy of leading some of them to the Lord. Among old and young is an increasing expectancy. This is going to be a great Open-Air.

At 11 a.m., exactly on time, Pastor Greenway steps to the microphone. Everyone is welcomed and singing commences – "Christ is the answer", and, not to be left out, also, "Heavenly Sunshine" ring round the Square.

A lovely hush comes over all as John Fry from Huddersfield leads us in prayer. Our hearts cry, "Amen!" as he acknowledges that "we are present through the shed blood of Jesus Christ".

Words and space prevent one from adequately describing the contributions made by the various people taking part, e.g. the Springbourne Choir, especially their singing of, "It's a wonderful, wonderful Life", Marie Hamilton's marvellous voice singing, "I knelt one day at Calvary" (that certainly came from the heart and reached the heart) and the Woodvale Quintet from Belfast, whose rich blending of male voices compelled us to listen as they sang, "Do you know my Jesus?". All present share in the wish that every member of our great Elim movement could have been with us to have heard those items and the others that our friends presented to us by their anointed singing.

Among the many gathered on the plinth is one whose presence was welcomed with a sense of deep thankfulness to God. David Hathaway, only a short week ago in a prison cell in Czechoslovakia, suffering for the Gospel's sake, joins in this great witness to the power of God. Politicians no doubt played their part in his release and we are grateful, but "God is still on the Throne" and He still rules in the affairs of men, and to Him we give all the glory.

The speakers for this year are G.N. Backhouse, Minister of our Winton Church, Bournemouth, and G.L.W. Ladlow, Minister of our Salisbury Church. One has always felt that to speak in Trafalgar Square presents a real challenge. First there is rushing London – buses, cars and people, plus the ever-present pigeons! Then there is the sight of friend meeting friend, some who had not been seen for years, for instance Pastor F. Packer on a fleeting visit from the U.S.A. It is over twenty years since he played the piano at many of our Conference Meetings and wrote the Conference Journal. It is good to see him and his daughter, Beryl, who is looking so well after those many months of serious illness. Perhaps the most difficult of all is the shortage of time. How well our two brethren rise to the challenge and handle that crowd and the conditions. George Backhouse takes his most telling points from the four lions which surround Nelson's column, reminding us of the devil "who goeth about as a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour". He spoke of the lions of disobedience, of neglect, of fear and of death. Then ring out the words, "Thanks be to God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ!"

Gerald Ladlow declares boldly that the works which Jesus did before His death He is still doing today, because His is alive. He still heals, and to prove his words he tells of the young woman with us in the Square who was crippled with disseminated sclerosis and without hope, but she has been completely healed by the Lord Jesus. He still saves from corruption to the uttermost. It is not faith in a dead Man, but in a living Christ.

I am not able to tell you of the singing of the crowd in the "Easter Hymn", the chorus "Jesus is Alive", "The Lion of Judah", but I must tell you of the many who were not of us when we began but who joined us in answer to the appeal. This is why we were there. This is what God did. In my submission perhaps the best of all our Easter Mondays in Trafalgar Square has ended.

The Royal Albert Hall, London, Easter Monday

The Afternoon Meeting

An eye-witness account by John Hyde, Pastor of our Oxford Church.

AFTER an absence of several years, it was a joy to participate in the Elim Rallies on Easter Monday in the Royal Albert Hall, London. I took my place on the platform as the massed choir were rendering Easter songs, ably led by the conductor, Pastor D.B. Gray. It seemed only but a few moments before our esteemed brother Pastor H.W. Greenway commenced the afternoon service with the hymn, "Christ the Lord is risen today, Hallelujah!", which echoed throughout the magnificent hall. This was followed by requests for prayer and the large congregation then sang the devotional chorus, "Leave it there", after which Pastor R.B. Chapman, our Field Superintendent, prayed. The presence of God was made manifest. After the season of prayer, there was an anointing on the vast company of people and we were ready to express our joy in singing the Victory chorus.

For the first time I saw and heard the "Woodvale Quintet" from Belfast. One sensed that each member of the group had a vital experience with God. This was revealed in their singing. The first song, "If that isn't Love", brought much blessing. The Word of God was read by our dear brother Pastor Charles J.E. Kingston after the congregation had sung the well-known Easter hymn, "Look, ye Saints, the sight is glorious". Those bursts of acclamation and triumphant chords were heard as we crowned Him King of kings and Lord of lords.

Pastor Gray then led the Choir in singing, "'Tis marvellous and wonderful". Our meeting would not have been complete had we not sang with great fervour the chorus, "Rolled away". The convener reminded us of the importance of making a joyful noise unto the Lord.

Our soloist for the day, Clifford Hughes, born in Wales and now living in Scotland, rendered two inspiring pieces. The first was entitled, "In the Image of God". The second referred to the look, touch and voice of Jesus Christ. There was an air of expectancy. After we had sang, "Turn your eyes upon Jesus" with much feeling, our Secretary–General, Pastor J.T. Bradley, welcomed Pastor and Mrs. David G. Hathaway, Everyone was thrilled to see again our dear brother David who had been held prisoner in Czechoslovakia for ten months. We sang the Doxology, followed by "How great is our God". We were informed by Pastor Bradley that he had met David last week soon after his release. It was announced that our brother would be relating some of his experiences during the evening service.

Pastor Greenway led us in the Pentecostal hymn, "Thou Christ of burning, cleansing flame". We were reminded of the composer, General William Booth. We listened to the London Crusader Choir singing the piece, "To Christ our King glad praises bring".

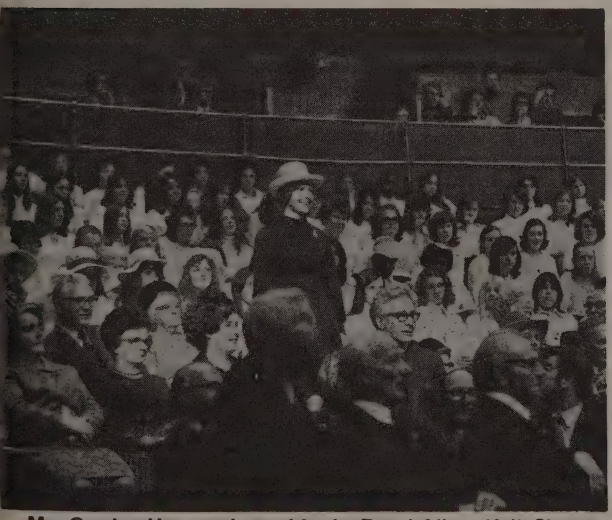
Our National Youth Director, Pastor E.R. Corsie, brought a challenging message from the Word of God based on the three prayers of Christ in Matthew 27:46, Luke 23:46 and John 19:30, relating our Lord's suffering on the cross of Calvary for the salvation of all mankind. Contrasting human suffering with that of the divine Son of God, the speaker told of the sovereignty of God, the love of God and the victory of God. Before the appeal, reference was made to the Scripture where Jesus cried with a loud voice, saying, "Father into Thy Hands I commend My Spirit", after which the final challenge was given in the words, "Father, I commend unto you this day, my Life, my All." Several decisions were made, for which we praise God.

The afternoon rally concluded by the singing of the hymn, "Crown Him with many Crowns" and with the closing prayer by our worthy President, Pastor T.W. Walker. It was a great joy to witness that God is moving by His Spirit and that signs and wonders are following the preaching of His Word.

"This has got to stop, we don't like it!"

Report of the evening meeting by Frank Lavender, Pastor of our Croydon Church.

THE title is not the congregation's verdict on the Easter meetings in the Royal Albert Hall, but the comment made by the Czechoslovakian authorities to David Hathaway because of the enormous amount of mail which was sent to him from all over the world when he was imprisoned in Prague.



The appearance of David Hathaway at the Royal Albert Hall, so soon after his unexpected release, brought a delighted response from the great congregation. "I can hardly believe it is really true", he said as he stood with arms upraised. He told us that he had shared in the delivery of over 100,000 copies of the Word of God behind the Iron curtain, and was engaged in the biggest "drop" of all when he was arrested. "The Communist authorities are afraid of the power and effectiveness of the Bible", he told us, and he said that this was proved when they accused him of sedition. They feared that the free distribution of the Bible would undermine their socialist state. Despite official opposition, however, people are flocking into the churches. David Hathaway said his release was undoubtedly a direct result of the many prayers that had been offered up, together with the great volume of letters which so upset the Czech authorities. He reminded us that, while he is now free, many other Christians are still imprisoned in Communist countries and he asked us to hold them up constantly in prayer.

If this was inevitably the climax of a wonderful day, we had many other good things bestowed by our Father's lavish hand, like the wonderful fellowship and the exhilirating atmosphere of this great Elim Easter meeting, the radiant enthusiasm of thousands of Christians as they rejoiced together over the wonder of their living Saviour and His great salvation. What a blessing we received from the singing of the Woodvale Quintet from Belfast, especially a deeply moving rendering of, "He touched me and made me whole", A member of the Quintet told me: "We have been in heaven", and surely the whole congregation must have felt they were being lifted to heaven as Clifford Hughes sang, "My Jesus I love Thee" to the lovely Welsh tune "David of the White Rock". It was a pity that applause intruded upon the atmosphere of reverent worship which this song produced.

The President, Tom W. Walker, took as the theme of his message the joyful truth of the Resurrection of the Lord Jesus. "The Acts of the Holy Spirit are still continuing", he declared, "Jesus is alive, Jesus is here!" How our hearts rejoiced as he exalted the Lord Jesus Christ and proclaimed the unchanging Gospel. His call for us to look to God for a sign-attested ministry brought an "Amen" from many hearts. The President's Spirit-inspired, powerful, sincere ministry brought an immediate response as many folk made decisions – sinners turning to Christ for salvation, backsliders coming home. There was rejoicing in heaven – and rejoicing on earth among the believers in the Royal Albert Hall.

So many other memories come crowding in, Dr. Bryan and Mrs. Lynda Wigglesworth, for whom we have prayed so often, were present with us, as were Mrs. D.E. Bull, who returned to Africa only four days later, Miss Joan Caudell, recently home from Rhodesia and rejoicing over her healing, and a young lady healed at the Rotherham Crusade. As to the singing of the congregation, surely we shall never hear more wonderful singing until we sing the praises of Jesus in heaven! A senior minister said to me, "What a great meeting, just like the old days again!"

Two things I must mention, first, the pleasure of being in a meeting led by Ron Jones, whose happy, skilful and Spirit-led convening always brings liberty and blessing, and second, the singing of the London Crusader Choir and the United Choirs led by Douglas B. Gray. They truly proclaimed the joy of our hearts as they sang, "I'm so glad that I am His and Christ is truly mine".

"Thank you for praying for me!"

writes David G. Hathaway

I WAS arrested on June 21st, 1972 at the Czech-West German border for attempting to smuggle a large consignment of Bibles into Czechoslovakia. We had found a means of taking great quantities of Bibles into the Iron Curtain countries, using a special compartment built into one of our coaches. In the six years prior to this we had succeeded in getting in over 100,000 copies of the Scriptures. On this occasion we had about 4,000 copies. These were mainly Bibles, but there were also about 900 gospel tracts. Unfortunately the Czechs classed all this, the Bibles and the tracts, as offensive literature, as being anti-state. This was the reason for my arrest and subsequent trial.

I was held in the first prison in Bory at Pilsen for six months, during which time I had the first trial in October, 1972, at which I was sentenced to two years on a charge of sedition, which was based on the fact that the Bibles were anti-state, against the communists. I made an appeal, which was heard on December 13th, but the court confirmed the sentence of two years. It is very difficult for me to explain what my feelings were after my trial at Tachov on October 27th, when I received the sentence of two years. My wife was present at the trial. It was the first time that she had been able to see me for four months. The sentence meant that we were to be parted for anything up to another twenty months. It was very painful indeed. It is a terrible feeling to be so far from home, locked up in a communist prison, not knowing all that they were going to do to you, with a sentence like that to have to live through.

There had been a considerable amount of publicity in the British Press over the arrest and some of the subsequent details of my detention and I had had help from the British Consul, who had visited me a number of times, but it was after the sentence had been passed by the court that the news really broke. My wife returned to England with my brother, Ken, and brought the news which hit headlines in the papers and on television and was to spread round the world, that the Czechs had imprisoned a Westerner from outside the Country for two years, simply because he was found at the border with Bibles and religious literature.

From here begins the really wonderful story, that has thrilled both my wife and myself and so many others, of the way in which praying Christians round the world were told of my plight and began to take up the burden of prayer for my release. My wife was very much strengthened by the letters of support that poured into her not only from this Country, but from all over the world. I understand that she had letters, telegrams and flowers from many people. Particularly at this time, I was also assured of this great support that was spreading. Letters reached me at this time and it was a tremendous comfort to me to know this. As my brother, Aubrey wrote, "This is one of the times when we feel such a sense of gratitude that we belong to the great Christian family." My feeling is very strong, because I know how much the Elim family and friends took my wife, my family and myself to their hearts, and this meant a great deal. As you know, I have been born and bred in Elim and have been an Elim minister for over twenty-two years. To feel that, at a time like this, our moment of great need, you all took us to your hearts, meant a great deal. We know that there has been hundreds and thousands of Elim friends praying for us.

I soon found out in Czechoslovakia the effect on the Czechs of the letters and the prayer support. Every time the British Consul came to see me after my trial, he assured me that the Czechs were becoming very embarrassed by my case and by the world-wide support that it had received. We know that my expulsion came as a result of an application made through the courts and the assistance of the British Government and in some small way of other personalities, including Mr. Wilson, on whose 'plane I flew home. I feel that, despite all the claims for credit, there is no question about the fact that, in a case like this, we know, as praying and believing Christians, that prayer is the most effective means, for God is far more powerful than any man and any organisation.

The Czechs were so proud and so boastful in believing that they were far greater than God and far greater than Christians. The Christians in Czechoslovakia are terribly persecuted. I know of cases of ministers and of many other Christians who are in prison for their faith, yet on this occasion, when they imprisoned me for two years for trying to aid these Christians, this is the very time when God used the prayers of the Christian Church outside the Country to secure my release. This is a wonderful thing and a triumph of God over the forces of Satan, of hell and of evil.

During the first nine months of my imprisonment they refused to allow me to have a Bible in my cell. Only in the last three weeks was I able to get it. It brought home to me so vividly what it is like to be without the Word of God. Now more than ever I feel a great urge to see Bibles being taken behind the Iron Curtain, because I know how these other suffering Christians are feeling. Many of them have perhaps never seen a whole Bible in their lives.

I realise the need. While I appreciate the great support of the Elim family and other praying Christians through the world for my release, yet I feel so saddened because there are so many thousands of Christians behind the Iron Curtain who are suffering far more than I did. I ask you to go on praying, for them, for their need is greater than mine. I feel that this is the great challenge today. I have been released from prison and I thank God that I came out after only ten months, but many of these other Christians are serving long sentences. Nationals from behind the Iron Curtain can get sentences as long as twelve, thirteen and fourteen years. Some of them die for their faith. I pray God that my release will be a means of focusing attention on the other Christians behind the Iron Curtain. Other Westerners, who were in prison with me, all said the same thing; at last somebody could go out of the prison and tell our story to the West. All the Christians behind the Iron Curtain say and feel the same thing— that they are forgotten. I used to write home to my wife if I didn't get regular letters or food parcels, "Have you forgotten me?". My wife assured me that she hadn't, but this is the feeling of every Christian behind the Iron Curtain. "We're forgotten by our brothers and sisters who are in the free world," they say. I plead with you for them now. They need your prayers for help desperately today.

If my imprisonment has done nothing else than draw attention to their plight, I thank God that I was put in prison.

Many people have asked both my wife and me whether these last ten months of suffering have been worthwhile. My wife, Zena, joins me in saying that, while we had never anticipated this suffering and didn't realise what it would mean, yet we feel that it has been worthwhile for the sake of helping those who suffer so much more in these Communist countries.

(Our readers will be pleased to know that Carol and Sharon, the twin daughters of Pastor and Mrs. D.G. Hathaway, were baptised in the Holy Spirit very shortly before their father's release. EDITOR.)

Points for Preachers

by J. Alexander Wright

An Outline

PREACH as the Apostles did!

1. They preached a Person: "Jesus". (Acts 8:35; 17:18; 19:13); "The Lord Jesus" (9.29); "Christ" (8:5; 9:20; 17:3; Colossians 1:8); "Jesus Christ" (Acts 5:41; 8:12; 2 Corinthians 1:19); "Christ crucified" (1 Corinthians 1:23; 2:2); "Christ Jesus the Lord" (2 Corinthians 4:5).

2. They preached the Word: (Acts 8:4; 14:25; 11:19; 13:5; 14:25).

3. They preached the Gospel: (Mark 16:15; Galatians 1:11; 2:2; and many other refs.)

4. They preached the Kingdom: (Matthew 4:23; 9:35; 24:14).

5. They preached "Not themselves" (2 Corinthians 4:5); and "Not with enticing words lest ..." (1 Corinthians 1:24).

An Illustration

D.L. Moody and five thousand Atheists

DURING a visit to London a hall was booked for the express purpose of reaching the many atheists in the great city. Charles Bradlaugh, champion of such, ordered all the clubs he had organised to take possession of the hall early, so that Christians would be excluded. They marched from all directions, 5,000 strong. Moody asked them to choose a favourite hymn. They laughed at him. He then plunged into his message, using Deuteronomy 32:31, "Their rock is not as our Rock" for his text. He poured a broadside of telling incidents from his own experience of the death-beds of Christians and atheists and asked his audience to be the judges as to who had the best foundation upon which to rest their souls. At the close he suggested that those who did not wish to remain for the inquiry meeting which followed should leave. Not a man stirred. After a few further words the evangelist asked all who would receive Christ to say "I will". Bradlaugh shouted "I won't!" Moody paused for a moment and then said, "Men, you have heard your leader here who has rejected the Gospel. I ask everyone of you who believes he is right to stand with him". No one moved. "Thank God!" said Moody. "Now who will say, 'I will!'?" About 500 men under deep conviction arose crying, "I will! I WILL!" The whole atmosphere was changed and the battle was won.

A Quotation

The World's greatest Peril

A GROUP of newspaper reporters once approached General William Booth, Founder of The Salvation Army, and enquired of him as to what he thought was the world's greatest peril of the immediate future. Like a flash the old warrior answered, as though inspired by God: "The world's immediate and greatest peril is that the Church will offer it a philosophy of Christianity that provides forgiveness without regeneration, Christianity without Christ, religion without the Holy Ghost, politics without God, and heaven without hell".

It is clear to all that during this century his prophetic words have been abundantly fulfilled.

Thoughts from the Book of Genesis

24. Parting Sorrow (Genesis 23:2)

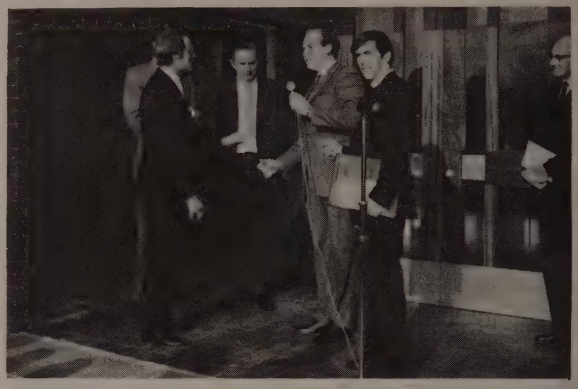
by F. Lavender, Pastor of our Croydon Church

ABRAHAM and Sarah had been together for over a hundred years and, without doubt, there was a deep affection and harmony of spirit between them. Like most couples, they had shared many experiences, both good and bad. For many years, since they left Ur of the Chaldees, they had borne testimony to the true God and had been content to follow wherever He had led them, but now they had reached the parting of the ways. Sarah died and for Abraham it was a time of sincere, heartfelt grief. Added to natural sorrow was the uncertainty regarding life after death, for there seems to have been no clear revelation at that time regarding the after-life, only a wistful longing for reunion and that all would be well with the one who had departed.

When physical death comes, there is still for Christians the natural pain of parting, yet, as Paul says, we do not sorrow like those without hope. The death of the Lord Jesus seemed a total and unrelieved disaster, but His triumphant resurrection transformed the situation. Paul declared that life and immortality had been brought to light by the Gospel (2 Timothy 1:10). They had been there all along, but they had been hidden, and Jesus shed glorious light on them by rising from the dead. His resurrection is the assurance of our eternal life, so that now Christians do not say, "Goodbye", but "Goodnight"! The bitterness of death has been eased by Him and we have the assurance of the final reunion of all believers in the Lord Jesus at His Coming (1 Corinthians 15:50–58; 1 Thessalonians 4:13–18). "Wherefore comfort one another with these words".

The Elim Pentecostal Churc Weoley Castle, Birminghan

THE Church commenced in November 1940, in the Community Hall, with a week's meetings by Pastors S. Gorman and H. Palliser, at that time Pastor and Assistant Pastor at the Graham Street Church. The need for an evangelical witness in Weoley Castle was first felt by the late Mr. C. Stormont, who determined by God's help to do something about it, thus these meetings were commenced. Regular meetings continued on Sundays and one evening each week in the Community Hall. A Sunday school was begun and Mrs. W. Rollins, who already had a class of girls in her home on Sunday afternoons, joined the new school. The need for a more permanent place of worship became evident and much prayer was made.



On the corner of Weoley Castle Road was a piece of ground, which contained the old Home Guard hut, afterwards the temporary building for the Municipal Bank. An enquiry was made concerning the purchase of this hut, but it was required for use on other sites in the City. Mr. Stormont claimed the piece of ground for the Lord, pacing the perimeter and taking the promise of Joshua 1:3. After much correspondence with the Corporation, a five-year lease on the ground was obtained. A licence was granted on 4th February, 1946 to erect a temporary building and the church was opened for worship by Pastor Joseph Smith on April 27th, 1946.

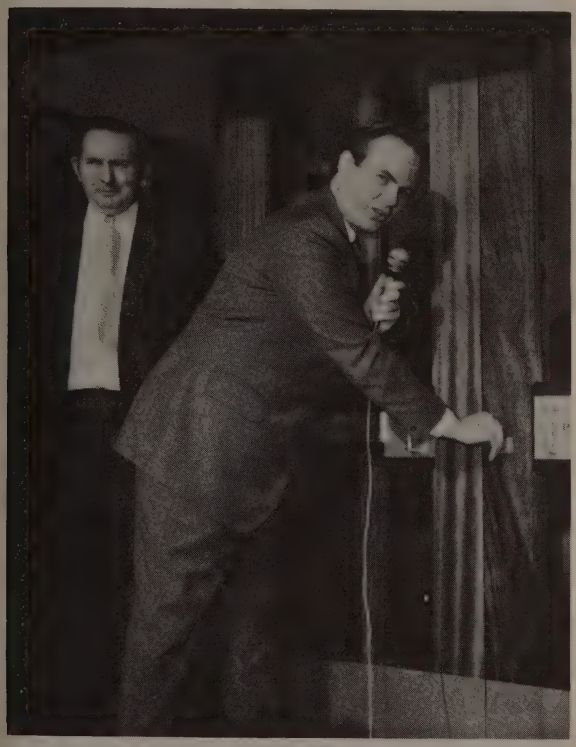
At the Annual Conference in 1955, Weoley Castle was accepted as an official Elim Church. From this time the work continued to progress. Several ministers have occupied the pulpit. In 1956 a branch Sunday school was commenced in Woodcock Hill Junior School and this work continues to flourish.

The Pastor, D.D. Phillips, leads the service at the opening of the new Weoley Castle building.

In March 1965 the Estates Department were approached concerning the purchase of the land, but the site was reserved for future public use. The request could not be entertained, but it could be reviewed in 1968 on the expiry of the present lease. In September 1966 the Corporation was again approached, as the temporary building was badly in need of attention, mainly due to the fire damage at the rear. Owing to the uncertainty in two years time we felt unable to spend money on repairs. After much correspondence, in August 1968 we received a letter stating that it would be possible to offer only a tenancy for a further period of three years pending the outcome of the final development.

Architect D. C. Catt hands the key to Pastor J. C. Smyth.

Then in September 1968 another letter stated that the occupation might be terminated by the Corporation on six months' notice of their intention to develop the land. A reply was sent stating that this was a complete reversal of their decision in the letter of August 6th and again requesting an interview. A reply was received; still no final decision was made.



In April 1970 Headquarters were brought into the five-year-old discussions. We were requested to draw up plans for a Church building on the site, and submit them to the Corporation. This was previous to any promise concerning the land. Several modifications were requested and eventually the plan was practically turned down. A day of prayer and fasting was called and, by a miracle, these same plans were accepted owing to changes in the department. Then the land was offered at a price far below its commercial value and it was duly purchased.

The last services in the old building were held on Sunday, March 12th, 1972, then demolition and rebuilding commenced.

When the builder approached the Parks Department (whose land surrounds the Church) for permission to erect scaffolding outside the boundary, the reply was that the Department had no knowledge of the land being sold! If they had known there would have been no sale. To this we can only add: "Praise the Lord"

Exactly twelve months afterwards, we entered the new Church giving God all the glory, for indeed He has done great things for us. Our prayer is that the Church shall be to His glory, to the saving of souls, to the edifying of the Body of Christ, until Jesus comes again.

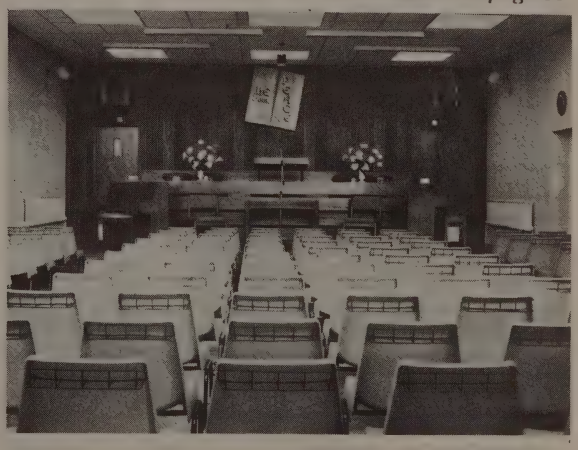
Administrative Secretary John C. Smyth performs the opening ceremony at Weoley Castle.

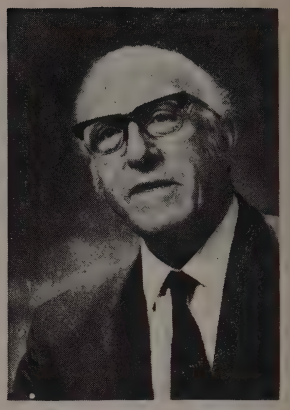
The Minister: D.D. Phillips

THE minister, D.D. Phillips was born in Llanelli, South Wales. After leaving school be became a qualified baker and confectioner. He began to attend the Elim Church at Llanelli and, under the ministry of Pastor T. Lloyd, he entered the Elim Bible College in September 1963. On leaving the College he became the Minister of the Stowmarket Church, Suffolk, where he served for nearly five years. Pastor Phillips' wedding was in 1966. He was ordained in 1968. He came to Weoley Castle in May 1970, where he faced the challenge to lead the congregation into a new building on the same site. In December 1970 Sharon Clare was added to the family. On 24th December, 1972 an Assistant Minister, M. Reynolds, was appointed.



Secretary J. F. Chadwick, Pastor D. D. Phillips, and Deacons H. F. Mackenzie and A. Howard.

Deacon: John F. Chadwick



MR. JOHN F. CHADWICK started attending the Church shortly after the Sunday school witness commenced in 1940. He continued attending the Sunday school and later the Bible class. While attending the Bible class he realised his need of a Saviour and on March 30th, 1947 accepted Jesus Christ. Later the same year, at a youth summer camp, he was baptised and during November of that year he received his personal experience of Acts 2:4. The following year he became a Sunday school teacher and continued until 1951, when he joined the R.A.F.

The Letter to the Romans

26 The Two Israels (chapters 9—11)

by J. Alexander Wright

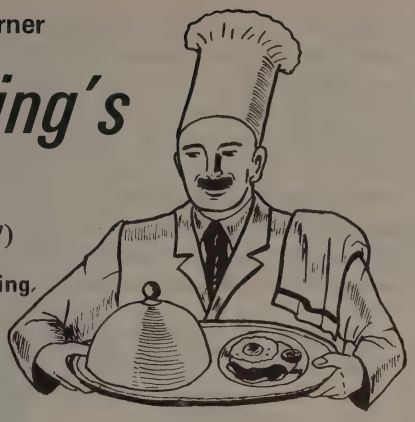
GOD'S covenant with Abraham was of a two-fold nature. The first part, the natural or material, related to the promised land and seed. It was clearly fulfilled, as the following Scriptures show: the land: Genesis 15:18; Exodus 23:29–31; Deuteronomy 26:3; Joshua 1:4; 21:43–45; 1 Kings 4:20–25; Nehemiah 9:7–9,23,25; the seed: Genesis 15:5; Exodus 1:7; Deuteronomy 26:5, 1:10; 10:22; Numbers 23:10; 1 Kings 3:8; Hebrews 11:12. The second part, the spiritual, is what Paul is dealing with here.

The "fatness" or sap (Romans 11:17) is the divine life which flows through trunk and branches, God's progressive and narrowing selection (election) through Isaac, Jacob, Judah and David, culminating in David's Son – "Son of David, Son of Abraham" (Matthew 1:1).

There are three strands in God's selection through the Old Testament: Israel the Nation, Israel the Remnant, and Israel the Messiah (Isaiah 42:1; 49:3). In Him the Abrahamic Covenant is FULL-filled. This was the revelation from the prophetic Scriptures given to Zechariah (Luke 1:68–78), which Paul expands in Galatians 3:16, where "Seed" is singular. He does not make a mere point of grammar for argument's sake; this would be weak, since he also uses it collectively (Galatians 3:28,29). His point confirms that Christ and His seed are one and that they, not Israel "after the flesh", are the true seed of Abraham and heirs of the promise.

Faith is the principle of union, which joins the branches to the trunk, whether they be the natural branches (Israelites) or those wild branches (Gentiles) supernaturally engrafted by the almighty Arborist. God's promises are tied to the faith of Abraham and not to his flesh. The engrafting of the Gentiles was not an afterthought of God to make up for Israel's failure, but His age-long intention. This is "the mystery of Christ" which Paul writes so much about, which was revealed, not to him alone, as some mistakenly avow, but also "to His holy apostles and PROPHETS" (Ephesians 3:1–6) and by these the writer understands Old Testament prophets.

Nevertheless (Romans 11:23), Israel's fall was not irrevocable, not is her return to God inevitable. The door of repentance is wide open and "God is able" to save them, if they turn from their unbelief, but that blessed day awaits another: "Until the fulness of the Gentiles [nations] be come in" (v.25). God's original promise to Abraham was that he should be the father of many nations [peoples] (Genesis 17:4). This was echoed in the renewal of the promise through Joseph's younger son, Ephraim (Genesis 48:19), where the words in the Septuagint Old Testament are identical with our text. Besides having an ethnic fulfilment, as we have shown (paragraph one), the promise is interpreted and expanded by Paul after a spiritual manner: "Abraham should be the heir of the world" (Romans 4:13,17; compare Matthew 5:5). Implicit in the original promise was assuredly the completion of the great Church universal as seen in the last Book of the Bible (Revelation 7:9).



"And so all Israel shall be saved" (Romans 11:26). "So" is an adverb of manner, indicating "in this way", for this is God's revealed way, and the only way, for Israel, as for all men. In Christ alone, the true Olive, is salvation (compare John chapter 15). "All Israel" here is not a rigid literality, any more than where it is used elsewhere in the Bible. It cannot mean all without exception. Israelite sinners past and present will stand with Gentiles in the Judgment (Romans 2:9). Nor can it mean all Israelites who are alive at the Second Advent of our Lord (which is not mentioned here), since that would put a premium on their time of birth; it would be "salvation by sight". It means, the writer thinks, that when the flood-tide of Gentile "fulness" begins to flow Godward at the end of this age, as the Church nears completion, the trickle of Jewish conversion to Christ that we have known down the centuries (the faithful remnant) will also be caught up in the great flood-tide. There are signs of this in these days already. They will be borne on its bosom homeward to God. Then will dawn the world's new day (vv.12,15).

Children's Corner

The King's Table

(Luke 14:15–17)

Words and drawing by Sheila Price

MR. COOK was a chef at a large hotel and he had a busy day ahead of him. Many guests were expected to arrive later in the day and Mr. Cook knew that they would be tired and hungry after their long journey. He put on his white hat and coat and went into the kitchen to plan a suitable menu. When he had decided on the various dishes, he set about preparing the meal. For the next hour or so he worked hard roasting the meat, boiling the potatoes, grilling the tomatoes and frying the eggs. "Right", he told his assistants, "The meal is almost ready, so you can start setting the tables in the dining-room".

In a few minutes the visitors started to arrive and the waiters began serving the meal. Mr. Cook was able to take his tea-break, for his work was over. Now it was up to the guests to partake of the delicious meal that he had prepared for them.

When the Prodigal Son, tired and hungry, returned home to ask his father's forgiveness, he was welcomed with open arms. "Hurry!" said the father to his servants, "prepare a feast! My son has come home! I thought he was lost, but now he is found! Bring the best meat, bake some fresh bread. I am giving a party to celebrate his return!".

When we come to Jesus we are assured of a wonderful welcome and we are invited to sit at His Table and share in the Gospel feast. God has prepared a wonderful Banquet with all the provisions from His bounteous storehouse.

Mr. Cook had prepared a wonderful and delicious meal, but it would have done the guests no good at all if they had merely sat and looked at it! They had to eat it and make it their very own before they were nourished and satisfied. We need to make Jesus our very own if we are to receive His blessings.

After three years he was again engaged in Sunday school and youth work and progressed to the office of Sunday school superintendent. Mr. Chadwick has been elected to serve the Church as a Deacon and Church Secretary. He now lives fourteen miles away in Solihull. He is a company director in a building firm and has had the pleasure of building the new Church.

Deacon: H.F. Mackenzie

MR. H.F. MACKENZIE was born in Birmingham of Christian parents. As a young man, he became a Church member and Sunday school teacher, but as yet had not had a personal experience of Christ as his Saviour. He was saved in 1930 during George Jeffreys' Campaign in Birmingham in Ebenezer Congregational Church, Steelhouse Lane, and was baptised in water at Woodcock Street Swimming Baths and later was filled with the Holy Spirit. He became a founder-member of the Graham Street Church and served this fellowship for a number of years as Deacon and Church Secretary. Since the inception of the Weoley Castle Assembly he has been a Deacon, serving as Secretary, and now as Treasurer. The Branch Sunday school at Woodcock Hill is under his supervision. A retired civil servant, he is a volunteer in the probation and after-care service.

Deacon: A. Howard

MR. A. HOWARD was born in Birmingham. He attended the local church school until leaving at the age of fourteen to start work in a factory. He lived for years without the fear of God in His life, seldom attending a place of worship. In May 1953, at a convention service addressed by Pastor P.S. Brewster, in the Graham Street Church, he realised His sinful state and accepted Christ as His Saviour. He was received into fellowship. He was baptized in the Holy Spirit in February 1954 and went through the waters of Baptism. He served on the Diaconate from 1956 until his membership was transferred to Weoley Castle in March 1961. Shortly afterwards he was elected to the Diaconate.

From T. H. Stevenson

TIME magazine, the U.S.A. and international weekly, has had a special series entitled, "Second Thoughts about Man". In an introduction, they were summarised as "The Behaviour Section" (an apt definition of psychology, the science of human behaviour). "The Religion Section" came next, followed by "The Education Section" and finally "The Science Section".

In all the mainstreams of life there is much rethinking, but from the above comprehensive subjects I can but refer to one quote about religion contained in the introductory general feature. TIME wrote: "One stream of yearning apparent among the questioning thinking of the seventies is spiritual .... Some of the spiritually hungry are feeding on a resurgence of the externally supplied certainties of fundamentalism. Others are seeking internal spiritual experience in Western pentecostalism, or in the unfamiliar world of Eastern mysticism."

Many are seeking a Pentecostal experience, but this is perhaps the only correct statement about Pentecost made by TIME. Pentecostalism is certainly not Western, as witnessed by the fact that the forthcoming Pentecostal World Conference will take place in S. Korea in the far Far East. Geographically, Pentecost began in what is commonly called the Middle East, though more exactly it is just about the middle of the world – Jerusalem. From that centre, the blessing would reach "all flesh", and the message would go to "all the world". Fundamentalism and Eastern mysticism are mentioned, of which we can say that many fundamentalist denominations are not Pentecostal, but Pentecostal denominations are fundamentalist. A Pentecostal experience cannot be linked with Eastern mysticism, but there is a deep mysticism in any Christian experience and very much so in the fulness of the Holy Spirit Baptism. To the Christian, mysticism does not mean the unknown. It is initiation into the unknown, exemplified in John who "was in the Spirit" and received "the revelation of Jesus Christ which God gave unto him". TIME mentions "the external certainties of fundamentalism", which causes me to declare that, perhaps in another aspect, the Pentecostal experience is also an external one. Paul declares: "Your bodies are the temples of God, and the Spirit of God dwelleth in you." To be filled with the Spirit is to have an internal spiritual experience, an external experience, and a mystical experience: a complete experience for the complete man, to make the man complete.

PRAYER AND PRAISE

by F. H. Coleman

PEOPLE are living longer. The number of retired persons is growing year by year. These are things that we hear every day and they are true. There must be a growing number of retired persons in the Elim movement and this means that such people have more time on their hands than before. There is no rushing to office, factory or workship. Why not use some of this leisure time for prayer? When and how you use it is between you and the Lord. A great man used of God in the past used to pray each morning pacing the floor of his study. He both prayed and engaged in valuable exercise, a marvellous way to keep fit.

Some time ago I visited a very big Pentecostal Church in another country. The membership ran into some thousands. I was introduced to the Pastor who took me over the building. In the main church I saw the choir-seats filled with women praying. It was, I was told, the Tuesday morning widows' prayer meeting. Dear sisters who are widowed, will you spend more time in prayer? Jesus loves the widows. You will remember that His eye saw the widow woman put her mite into the treasury. Why not give your mite of prayer to the Lord?

I have been thrilled recently to hear of prayer meetings being started in the mornings in some of our Churches. One Church holds a prayer meeting every Wednesday morning with sixteen to twenty persons attending. I went recently to a lunch-time prayer meeting in Sheffield, where people give half-an-hour of their lunch-time to prayer. Little wonder that this Church is in such blessing!

So retired senior citizens, widows or whoever you may be give more time to prayer. If you do, God will richly bless you.

Theobroma Cacao

CADBURY'S prices are down! The removal of purchase tax and the introduction of V.A.T. has meant that Cadbury, Fry, Pascall have cut prices on over 100 of their most popular lines. We are certainly a nation of chocolate eaters and with the reduction in the cost of a bewildering variety of confectionary and also of Easter eggs, I suppose many of us have been tempted to indulge ourselves, particularly over the holiday period. How many, I wonder, ever give a thought to the source of the cocoa needed to produce our delectable chocolates?

Ghana is the world's largest producer of cocoa, which is its most important crop, and the story of how cocoa first came to Ghana is like a fairy story. It is said that the first cocoa pods were smuggled into the country in 1879 from the Spanish island of Fernando Po by a Gold Coast blacksmith named Tetteh Quarshie. He planted the blue-green beans at Mampong Akwapim and, four years later, when the trees bore fruit, he distributed pods to his friends and to people in the area. Ghana proved to have ideal conditions for cocoa cultivation. The country has derived great wealth from this simple act of Tetteh Quarshie.

When I lived in Ghana at the Elim Mission in Koforidua, Mampong and the nearby hospital named after Tetteh Quarshie were on our route to the capital, Accra, and my husband and I passed through frequently. Then, too, we had ample evidence of the result of the humble blacksmith's actions by the sight of acres of cocoa plantations and of a cocoa-growing research centre about twenty miles from our home.

The trees themselves are not particularly tall or spectacular, and are usually dependent on the shade of banana and other forest trees. The strange way that the pods grow and protrude from the trunk is fascinating. The large trays of red-brown beans drying in the sun look far removed from the smooth chocolate that we know. It is a long, involved process before our chocolate emerges. The trees mature in five to eight years. There are two crops a year. Much labour is involved in harvesting the heavy, bulky pods of seven to ten and a half inches in length. Next comes the task of splitting the pods and removing the beans, which are then covered with leaves and allowed to ferment for several days. Finally the beans are dried for about a week and during this time they must be raked and turned several times a day. When one considers the packing, shipping and processing entailed before the finished product reaches our shops, the whole enterprise is quite remarkable and should make us more appreciative of a commodity which is both tasty and nourishing. It all began with a few pods and the faith of Tetteh Quarshie, who planted in hope!

The Christian who realises the immense potential of the Holy Scriptures faithfully sows its seeds in many hearts and distributes the Word of God wherever he can. Jesus said that the seed is the Word of the kingdom and the field is the world. I never cease to thank God for every organisation which sends forth the Bible, for it is the Word of Life and fully capable of justifying its existence by producing a harvest. There may be much hard work entailed and many processes to pass through before we see the end product – mature, sanctified believers, living to the glory of God – but, if we sow in faith, the result is certain, for this is life-giving seed. "For the Word that God speaks is alive and full of power – making it active, operative, energizing and effective" (Hebrews 4:12, Amplified Bible). Just as the production of cocoa brought prosperity to Ghana, so for us the sowing of the Word of God is bound to produce "life and health and peace" in every believing heart and spiritual prosperity in the whole Church.

Fed up or filled up?

asks Ian R. Hall, Pastor of our Ryde Church.

"I'M fed up, bored and tired of living," complained a young student to a friend, "I'd commit suicide but I haven't the energy or the interest."

Today it is the "in" thing to be fed up. Boredom accounts for much of the soaring figures for crime, violence, drunkenness, drug-taking and suicide among young people. The most thrilling things of life are treated with a casualness and cynicism that would be humorous if it were not so pathetic.

So many are like the tough little boy who arrived for Christmas at a temporary foster-home and introduced himself with a defiant: "I've been everywhere, I've seen everything, and I've done everything." We can let life make us like this – fed up or we can be FILLED UP!

Arnold Toynbee, the historian, wrote: "Apathy can only be overcome by enthusiasm and enthusiasm can only be aroused by an ideal which takes the imagination by storm." The Christian faith provides such an ideal. Paul testified: "Christ Jesus grasped me" (Philippians 3:12). This most dramatic moment in life produces an intense zest for living.

"Enthusiasm" is derived from two Greek words meaning "in" and "God", which indicates that the enthusiastic person is one having God in him and being himself in God. Thus Jesus said: "When I come back to life again, you will know that I am in my Father, and YOU IN ME, AND I IN YOU" (John 14:20).

The God-filled Life

To the Laodiceans the ascended Christ declared: "Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: if any man hear My voice, and open the door, I will come in to him" (Revelation 3:20). The power of His incoming invigorates our spirits and penetrates every part of our lives. This partially fulfils the expressed desire that we should be "filled with all the fulness of God" (Ephesians 3:19).

Further fulfilment is expressed in the exhortation, "Be filled with the Spirit" (Ephesians 5:18). On the Day of Pentecost the early followers of Jesus were so filled with the Spirit of God that they were God-intoxicated. Boredom, cynicism and listlessness were lost in that mighty inrush of divine life. Small wonder that the Nicene Creed describes the Spirit as "Lord and Giver of Life"!

The God-controlled Life

The complementary truth to "Christ in you" is "You are complete in Him" (Colossians 1:27; 2:10). As the sponge is only full of water so long as it is in the water, so the Christian can only maintain his God-filled experience by living in God.

"You are in the Spirit, if the Spirit of God dwells in you", wrote Paul. "If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit" (Romans 8:9, Galatians 5:25). The astronaut is dependent on his portable atmosphere while he is on the moon and we are dependent on God's presence while we are on earth. Our atmosphere controls our actions. We can go only where God can go with us. We cannot leave Him behind for a minute. As the "rapture of the deep" would lure the diver into abandoning his life-sustaining face-mask, so Satan tempts us to "go it alone" with disastrous results.

Only in our natural element can we know the vigour and zest of a truly enthusiastic life. Do not be fed up; be filled up instead!

The Family Altar

Scripture Union Portions

Notes by L.E. Lambert

Monday May 7th 1 Kings 1:41–53

"Adonijah ... caught hold of the horns of the altar" (v.50).

ADONIJAH was guilty of treason. His just punishment was death. He knew that soon Solomon's soldiers would arrest the usurper, therefore he took advantage of the appointed place of refuge for the guilty person. He fled to the altar and clung to the horns of the place of sacrifice.

We are guilty before heaven. We have usurped God's rightful rule over us and gone our own way. We must flee to the cross and depend entirely upon it. "Nothing in my hands I bring, simply to Thy cross I cling".

Tuesday, May 8th 1 Kings 2:1–12

"Keep the charge of the Lord thy God" (v.3).

MANY parents are concerned over the physical and financial well-being of their children. These are important, but they are not the most important. David was interested in Solomon walking in the Word and ways of God. Moses laid down that children should be continuously taught the commands of God. Job prayed daily for his family.

We can make the mistake of seeking opportunities for service when there is a duty at our door or in our home. Let nothing detract from our bringing our children up in the fear of the Lord.

Wednesday, May 9th 1 Kings 2:13–27

"Now I ask one petition of thee" (v.16).

BATHSHEBA acted as a mediator between the potentate and the pleader. Adonijah wanted to marry Abishag and he persuaded Bathsheba to petition the king for him. In vv. 16 and 20, we have the expression, "one petition". Often our prayers are rambling. We need specific supplication, definite devotions. In public prayer meetings especially it would be good for believers to concentrate on one thing. The Psalmist said, "One thing have I desired of the Lord". We are coming to a King – a large petition we will bring.

Thursday, May 10th 1 Kings 2:28–46

"Their blood shall return therefore on the head of Joab" (v.33).

THESE verses of vengance, this catalogue of killings, show how Solomon punished those who had opposed his father. Shimei was slaughtered. Joab was killed. Abiathar was thrust out of the priesthood. Their crimes of former years thus viciously caught up with them.

Sin has a habit of doing this. Some long-forgotten deed raises its ugly head and demands payment. How precious it is to realise that God forgives and forgets! There is grace to cover all our sin. We must forgive others, for this will be the measure of our forgiveness.

Friday, May 11th 1 Kings 3:1–15

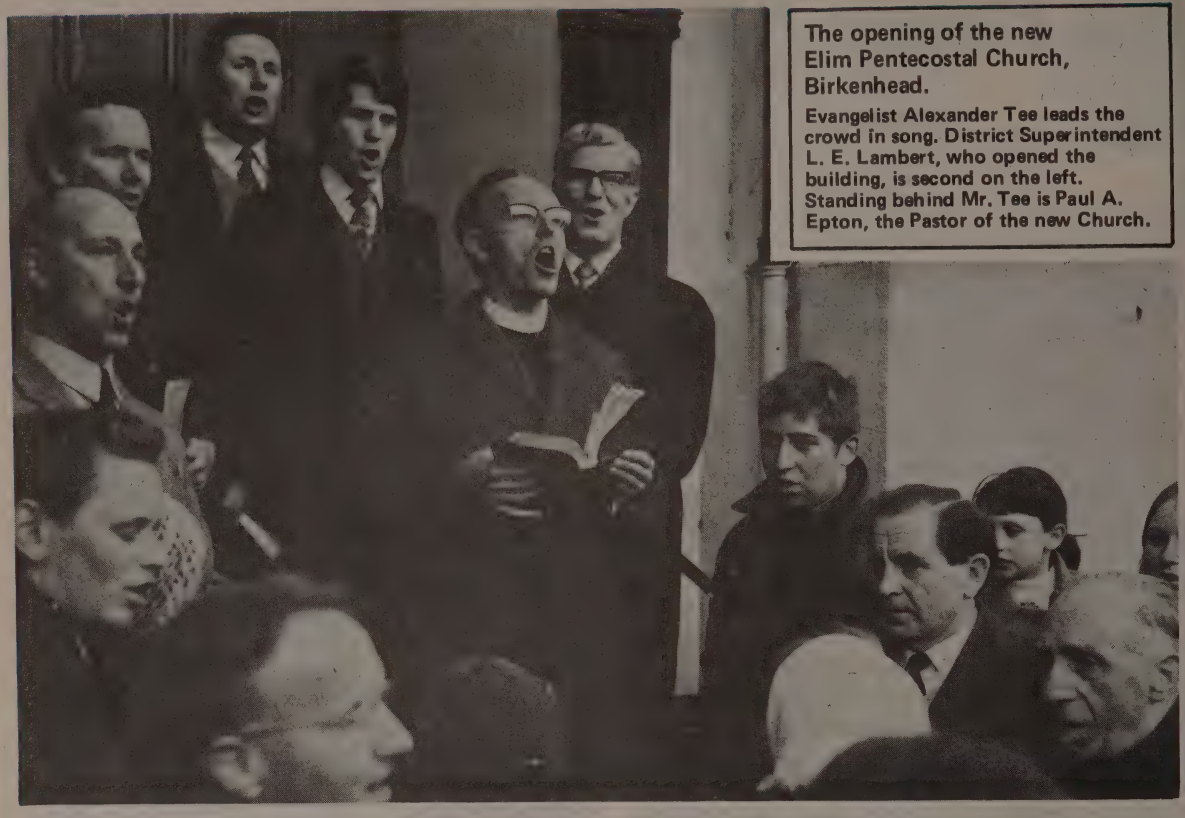
"Ask what I shall give thee" (v.5).

WHAT a fantastic offer God made to Solomon! Imagine yourself being confronted by a multi-millionaire who says that he will give you anything you request. What would our reaction be – a big house, a fabulous car? – or would we ask for an unlimited supply of tracts, or a new dispensary for a mission station?

Solomon asked for an understanding heart (v.9). God was so pleased with his reply, that He gave him riches and honour as well (v.13). Remember Matthew 6:33.

Saturday, May 12th 1 Kings 3:16–28

"In no wise slay it" (v.26).



THIS dramatic, unforgettable narrative of the two women and the babies has many lessons for us. One is that love does not always demand its rights. The selfish mother seems to typify lust – grasping, getting, greedy, unmindful of the suffering that it causes to others. The real mother exemplifies true love, which is "willing to suffer, others to save". "Love seeketh not her own".

There will be opportunities for us today to sacrifice what is legitimately ours so that someone else will be spared suffering. In an argument, even if you are right, do not be too proud to give way. If you have been hurt, make steps towards reconciliation.

Sunday, May 13th 1 Kings 4:20–34

"Israel dwelt safely" (v.25).

SOLOMON'S reign was a time of unparalleled prosperity. Farming flourished, the army became strong, other nations were quick to seek friendship, and the king's wisdom became proverbial. There have been very few occasions since when Israel has been so secure. Even today she is threatened on every hand, but there is coming a day very soon when a greater than Solomon will reign, and there will be peace, not only in Israel, but throughout the whole world. The lion will lie down with the lamb. Pray for the peace of Jerusalem!

The opening of the new Elim Pentecostal Church, Birkenhead.

Evangelist Alexander Tee leads the crowd in song. District Superintendent L. E. Lambert, who opened the building, is second on the left. Standing behind Mr. Tee is Paul A. Epton, the Pastor of the new Church.

Editorial

WE welcome our new President, John Lancaster, to his year of office with the prayer that God will grant him a wonderful year. He is the well known Pastor of our Eastbourne Church, where he has served since 1957. He is a member of our Elim Publications Board and it is particularly fitting that his Presidential year has commenced with the publication of his book, The Spirit-filled Church. We trust that every member of our churches will buy a copy. Pastor Lancaster hails from Petersfield in Hampshire, where his brother, Lewis, is Honorary Pastor. Mrs. Lancaster is the daughter of the late Granville Davies, whose ministry in our churches was so much appreciated. Happily, Mrs. Davies is still able to minister, as the ladies who were present at the Conference Sisterhood Rally last Wednesday will well know. The Lancasters have two sons and a daughter.

Your Editor was wonderfully encouraged by the tremendous goodwill and prayer support which it was his happy experience to receive during his year of office as President. We would all assure Pastor and Mrs. Lancaster of our prayer backing. May our Movement see a real forward move under our dear brother's leadership.

REPORTS continue to come in of the blessing experienced on Easter Monday. We are pleased to publish further pictures in this issue. It must be said again that the loyalty and support of our Elim Family are just tremendous. We are humbly grateful for the backing which is so selflessly given to our efforts to extend the Kingdom of God. The many who served behind the scenes in so many capacities, including members of Headquarters' and Grenehurst Press staff, and the noble band of ushers, play vital parts in helping forward the work and in making for the smooth running of the programme. Thank you very much in the Lord's name.

WILLIAM Hardcastle has become well-known on radio for his introductions to news programmes. He often sounds as if he is going to read the wrong announcement at any moment. He came up with a gem the other day. It concerned the four boys happily rescued from Snowdon: "An almost audible sigh of relief could be heard from Snowdon." It reminds you of the boy whose father asked him if he could see the ship out of sight. We preachers cannot shout too much, however, as we have to ad lib so much. We will quietly take note!

Church Reports

LETCHWORTH Pastor: G.S. Hillman

HOW we revelled in our wonderful sisterhood anniversary. The lovely programme was appreciated by all. As we entered the vestibule an exquisite floral display met our gaze. We knew at once that Miss Maud Sable's busy fingers had been at work once again. She has a rare gift. We were privileged to have as our guest speaker the wife of our Elim President, Mrs. E. Ruth Walker. After the opening hymn, the President, Pastor T.W. Walker, led in prayer. We sang, "Amazing Grace", then our secretary, Mrs. M. Goodwin, called the roll. Nineteen sisterhoods were represented. The Church was packed to capacity with 264 adults. We sang, "Blest be the tie that binds". Pastor Len Magee rendered two guitar solos with fervour. Mrs. Dawkins read the Scriptures and there followed a chorus session. Our Sisterhood President, Mrs. Hillman, chaired the meeting. Mrs. Walker delivered a very heart-searching message from Romans 8. Mr. C.J. Martin closed in prayer. It truly was a beautiful service. A splendid tea followed. The inscription on the decorated cake, made by Mrs. Goodwin for this special occasion, read as follows: "ELIM CHURCH 1973 – THE 50th ANNIVERSARY OF ELIM CHURCH, LETCHWORTH. GOD BLESS YOU".

CONSTANCE V. BRADBURY

GLOUCESTER Pastor: T.J. Broomhall

WE are thrilled to have witnessed the baptism of eight candidates at two recent services. The second service was brought forward to accommodate a nurse who had to leave the country due to the expiry of her visa. She was so convicted about her disobedience to the Lord that, even though she had driven away from the Church with friends, she was compelled to return and speak to the Pastor about her need to be baptised. Another candidate, although he has been converted for thirty-five years, had never taken this step because of a fear of water. The Lord removed his fear and his face reflected the joy of the victory.

Our Mother's Day service brought us much blessing. The whole evening service, including convening and ushering, was taken by the ladies of the fellowship. Their ministry in song, recitation, testimony and word was much appreciated.

We have experienced the Lord's presence greatly in our recent meetings and are grateful for His never failing answers to our prayers.

H. BIRCHER

WRENTHORPE Pastor: W. Dearnley

TWO recent events of great interest were a blessing to the Church. A special children's campaign by Uncle Ron (Mackenzie) and his robot was enjoyed by all. Children thronged into the meetings every night and were captivated by an action-packed programme of competitions, quizzes, choruses and stories. The central attraction throughout the week was of course the robot, and many parents came with the children and heard the gospel. Weekly meetings for the children are continuing.

Immediately following the children's campaign a series of special meetings was conducted by C.G. Smith. His ministry on the Second Coming, supported by tapes, films and slides, brought much blessing to all who gathered. We believe the real outworking of the Holy Spirit on these meetings will continue in the days that lie ahead.

K. R. UMPLEBY

BROADSTAIRS Pastor: B. Grist

A WEEK'S series of meetings were conducted here recently by Pastor L.W. Green, entitled "The God of the Miraculous". Attendances were very encouraging. Almost everyone stayed behind each evening to seek God for the Baptism in the Holy Spirit. Those who had already been filled stayed to seek God for Gifts. Three of our young people were baptized, speaking in other tongues as the Spirit gave them utterance. Many others were greatly blessed, challenged, deepened, strengthened and encouraged in the way.

We thank God for the blessing on the ministry of Pastor and Mrs. Green and on the Assembly here since we opened in October 1972. Several new contacts were made through these meetings and the blessing of God continues.

B. GRIST

MARTON, Blackpool Pastor: R. Clarke

ON the afternoon of March 24th, our new extension, which is to be used as a Sunday school and for youth activities, was opened by Pastor J.C. Smyth, the key being presented to him by Pastor W. Evans, the first Minister of the Church. We were well supported by members and friends.

Throughout the weekend we witnessed the fine challenging ministry of Pastor Smyth and of former Pastors: W. Evans (who also ministered in song), D.W. Cartwright and A.J. Downes. On the Saturday evening, a wrist-watch, inscribed with thanks and good wishes from members and friends, was presented to Mr. L. Hanlon for his strenuous efforts in supervising the building programme. Altogether the weekend was very successful indeed and we were adequately prepared for our week's campaign which immediately followed the opening.

Throughout the following week we witnessed the dynamic preaching of Pastor E.J. Thomas. He and his wife blessed us with their duets. We were also supported in song by our own choir, and The Gospel Five and Ita Me Deo. Pastor Thomas worked hard as he played the guitar and taught us new choruses. Each night we had joyful, lively singing. The preaching of the Word was with fervour, bringing decisions from local people, eleven in all. Those seeking healing said that they had felt the presence of the Lord giving renewed strength and healing. Each meeting was well supported.

We covet your prayers for the future that God's hand will move in the district of Marton. The physical work of rebuilding is finished and now we trust that the spiritual work will be carried out with the same unceasing, untiring effort.

PLAN TO COME!
BE SURE TO PRAY!

D.2866

I'm glad we were there!

by Kathleen Lawrence Smith

WE might not have gone, had not Mary Whitehouse telephoned us, with a note of urgency in her voice, "Do come to Downing Street. It may be our last chance to stem the tide, to impress our government with the urgent necessity of standing against depravity". Ours were among the 1,350,000 signatures on the National Petition for Public Decency. We were now being challenged to see it through.

In earlier years in my Christian experience I had been taught to be "in the world and not of it" and to "let the dead bury their dead", which had been interpreted as a direction to opt out of secular affairs. All those years the enemies of Christ had been hard at work, dragging down the old standards of behaviour and morality in our country, instilling their false propaganda about freedom and enlightenment, and we had seen the society we knew disintegrating before our eyes.

So we went to Downing Street, half a dozen of us, to swell the 600 at which the Prime Minister smiled very graciously as he was driven from the House of Commons to No. 10 to receive our deputation. We stood for an hour amid an army of banners proclaiming, "85% SIGN FOR DECENCY", though there were one or two home-made ones which touched off a more spiritual note. I felt a little uncertain about the large, flowery, tinsel edged one which said, "FESTIVAL OF JESUS. GOD GAVE US LIGHT TO SEE". After all we were there to protest at some of the things we did see. A smaller adjoining one, held aloft by a pert youngster, was much more direct in its simple injunction to "PUT SIN IN THE BIN!"

A dozen or more young people, arrayed in the gear of their age, processed up Downing Street, bearing tall stacks of signed petition forms before them. Bringing up the rear was Mary Whitehouse, dignified, smiling, attractive in navy blue and white, attended by the Bishop of Leicester and Maxwell Cressey of the Nationwide Festival of Light. Into No. 10 they filed, with the largest petition of any kind ever to have been presented. Then they reappeared, smiling, fifteen minutes later to despatch us to the lobbies of the House of Commons.

This was a worthwhile experience. Ushered past the queueing public at St. Stephen's gate, we reached the Central Lobby, were announced and awaited our M.P's with whom to discuss the three points raised by the petition. Pausing, we looked up at the lofty walls, lined with the images of our royal dead, at famous parliamentarians and social reformers. Years before, we had revered them. We had at some time sat, silent and awed, in the nearby Strangers' Gallery peeking at the business of our own day and age, but there we were today, having the temerity to try to shape the laws of our own society.

We were received graciously and listened to with respect, for we had had the benefit of Steve Stevens (of NFOL) popping around with unflagging zeal from group to group, priming us with facts and figures with which to fan the flame of our resolve. It was a counselling class of sorts, and none the worse for that.

"The evening rally will not be like our accustomed meetings", I warned a Christian friend, "It is bound to be more formal – speeches instead of hymns". I was wrong. In Westminster Central Hall we started with "He who would valiant be" and progressed to Psalm 46, "God is our Strength and Refuge" to the tune of "The Dam Busters". The Salvation Army was there with traditional accompaniment and for good measure Ismael and Andy regaled us with amplified guitars and Gospel folk music.

At one point, I might have supposed that I had "nodded off" for a moment (Ismael and Andy notwithstanding), and had awakened in a Pentecostal revival, but it was for real! Led by the guitarists and a host of youngsters, the audience began a rhythmic clap, rose to their feet, lifted their hands high (still clapping), and some began to swing jubilantly into a dancing movement.

There were speakers, of course. Dan Jones, Labour M.P. for Burnley, was outstanding for his fervour, "Marriage, as we know it, is the cornerstone of a Christian civilised character", he declared and proceeded to denounce with evangelistic zeal "the wretched and dangerous climate of our country" and its effect upon the youth of today. (Remember this man by name when you ask God to bless those who govern our country).

The programme continued through a considerable list of speakers, which included Ross McWhirter, far from downhearted, and to whom sympathisers had subscribed £6,500 to meet his costs in the famous Andy Warhol case. This is a surplus of perhaps £2,000 – even more – which he is allocating to N.V.A.L.A. and N.F.O.L. who had so successfully pleaded his cause. Mary Whitehouse was her charming, competent, resolute self as she addressed the 1,000 strong audience. Rev. Stanley Voke spoke from the Scriptures in no uncertain tone on the Biblical authority for Decency. The few hecklers present got absolutely nowhere with their opposition.

All in all, this was a very worthwhile day – and for most of us a very special lift came to our hearts as the news of David Hathaway's arrival in Britain came through. God be praised!

Black Daughter

ESTHER, Pastor Paulo's wife, was the first African woman to exercise a mothering instinct towards me. During my stays at Kikilo she often sends one of her eight children over to my room with a pancake for my breakfast. She keeps me supplied with water from the well two miles' walk away. Occasionally wood is scarce, so she supplies me with hot water for a bath. Thus, she became Binti "(daughter)" to me and I Baba "(father)" to her.

"Esther," I asked one day, "Tell me about your real father". "My father was a witchdoctor of the proud, fierce Wambulu tribe," she answered. "Many years ago there was a great famine which impoverished the tribe. He left his home and the graves of his former wives and moved with his remaining cattle into our tribal territory. He sought for a cheap wife and thus bought my mother, who was ageing. His brethren despised him as having demeaned himself by marrying a Wasi (my tribe). The Wambulu often raided us for slaves. "When I was born it was a breach birth. The midwives recoiled in horror. Fear took over when they realised that we were twins. They went to my father to confirm that we should both be strangled according to Wasi custom, but my father rejoiced and named me Haluta '(Firstborn)' and my brother Samuni '(Half-size)' because he was so small.

Pastor Paulo and family

"The E.M.S. came into our country and one of the missionaries led me to Yesu. Paulo, then an evangelist, was my teacher at school. Paulo ignored the customs of the past when he wanted to marry me." Here she grimaced as she said, "He did not present my father with the head of an enemy, or myself with a man's fingers!

"Advance payments were made in the following order: to my father, a large he-goat; to my mother, a she-goat; to my uncle a smaller male goat. The final mahari (dowry) was agreed at one hoe, a sum of money and several cows of specified size. "Mungo [God] has given me many children and great blessing," she testified, "On hearing of my father's death, his Wambulu sons gathered a raiding party and came to claim his property and also carry off the dowry cattle paid to him for me." She smiled, "My husband is a leader among the Mangati, a tribe equal to the Wambulu. The threatening confrontation became a peaceful settlement. The cattle I was bought with now belong to me. Mungu has done great things for me" she concluded. Truly! –her mother was a secondhand wife of a despised slave tribe, her father a polygamous witchdoctor, Esther should have been strangled according to tribal custom, but God's Son has made her a blessing to many, a perfect partner to her gifted husband, the hostess to hundreds from all the tribes at Kikilo, a mother in Israel, and a daughter to me.

OPPOSITION

by A. S. F. Horne, Pastor of our Ipswich Church

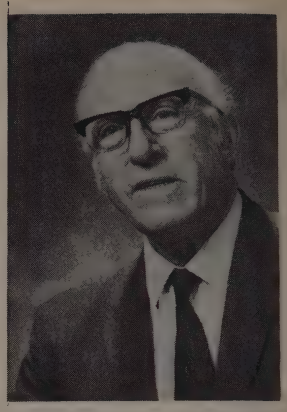
CHRISTIANITY originated in the divine mind and was truly characterised in the announcement of the heavenly messenger to the shepherds of Bethlehem as "good tidings of great joy which shall be to all people". Its delightful tendency was appropriately celebrated by the multitude of the heavenly hosts immediately after that gracious proclamation: "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, goodwill toward men". This sets forth the holiness and righteousness of Jehovah, His boundless love and His infinite mercy to mankind. It proclaims the fact that the righteous Governor of the universe would not extend forgiveness to sinful man without a suitable atonement being made to justify that clemency, and that His love to mankind was such that He gave His only begotten Son to become incarnate in human nature to make that atonement, that repentance and remission of sins be preached in His name among all nations.

Because "all have sinned and come short of the glory of God" and "the carnal mind is enmity against God", it assures us that Christ "gave Himself for us, that He might redeem us from all iniquity and purify unto Himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works" and that "if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature".

The Acts of the Apostles and the Apostolic Epistles record the self-denying labours of the first propagators of Christianity and the mighty influence which accompanied their labours. Multitudes, both Jews and Gentiles, happily experienced that the "gospel of Christ" was "the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth". Far and wide its influence was felt, until at length it overthrew the idol-altars of grace and love and invaded the palace of the Caesars, for the Emperor Constantine embraced Christianity.

Christianity was from the outset strongly opposed; to the Jews it was a stumbling block and to the Greeks foolishness. The more fiercely it was opposed, however, the further it spread, converting its greatest foes into its warmest friends, like Saul of Tarsus, who became the Apostle Paul. No open hostility could retard its progress or stay its mighty influence.

What could Satan do? The saying goes, "If you can't beat them, join them", but how was this to be done? Constantine was used to pour wealth and human honours upon the ministers of the meek and lowly Jesus. Many gave way to pride, ambition and the love of filthy lucre, until one corruption after another was introduced into the Christian Church. The result was that there was no power, no blessings and no vision.



Praise God, down through the ages, He always had His faithful ones. These preserved the ancient faith and simplicity, but gross error and degrading superstition prevailed and those who resisted ecclesiastical pride and vainglory, exposed error and pleaded for truth, were cruelly martyred by the avowed followers of the divine Saviour, who boastingly declared themselves to be "successors of the Apostles".

In the sixteenth century, the Reformation from papacy by Luther, Melancthon, Calvin and others in Germany and France and by a number of divines in this country during the reigns of Henry VIII, Edward VI and Queen Elizabeth I brought about great changes. The Scriptures were translated into English, many felt the power of divine truth and popery was discarded. Such events always happen when divine truth is accepted. When the Holy Spirit is come, He will lead into all truth. I do not believe it is possible to have the Holy Spirit of truth and continue in the errors of Rome or of Modernism. There comes a time when the born-again believer must stand for truth as declared in the Word of God.

The Act of Uniformity of 1662, in the reign of Charles II, required of truly evangelical men, either publicly to declare their unfeigned assent and consent to all and everything contained and prescribed in the Book of Common Prayer, or to resign their livings. About 2,000 nobly resigned their livings, left their comfortable residences and, with their families, suffered great privations rather than solemnly declare their unfeigned assent and consent to doctrines they

The Letter to the Romans

27 The Two Israels (chapters 9—11)

by J. Alexander Wright

"SO all Israel shall be saved" (Romans 11:26,27). The salvation spoken of is evangelical, not national. "Of future national greatness for Israel: this chapter is silent on that great matter". (H. Moule, Romans). The Deliverer came to Zion and for Zion in fulfilment of Isaiah's great prophecy (Isaiah 59:20,21) and the sin-removing Covenant was made at Calvary (Mark 14: 24, Jeremiah 31:31; Hewbrews 12:24). There will be no other. There He made an end of sins, made reconciliation for their iniquity, and brought in everlasting righteousness (Daniel 9:24).

He "shall turn away ungodliness" (Romans 26), in Isaiah's prophecy is, "They shall turn from transgression". Divine action is in one and human choice is in the other – the obverse and reverse sides of complementary gospel truths.

"As concerning the gospel, they are enemies" (v.28), not enemies of the Gentiles, but enemies of God, which does not mean that God is at enmity with them, since this same verse tells us that He loves them with age-long affection, but rather that they were at enmity with God. As Paul wrote of the Colossians (1:21) they were "Alienated and enemies in [their] mind by wicked works", as Paul himself had confessedly been. "When we were enemies, we were reconciled to God", (Romans 5:8–10).

Because of His steadfast love for them, God does not regret His calling of them or all His lavish bestowments (11:29,9:4,5). Verses 30,31 echo Hosea's prophecy. (9:25) and show these Roman Gentiles how they have been included in God's great plan for the restoration of His people Israel. God has conditioned the salvation of each on the other (vvs. 21,15). Fellow-prisoners, with their Jewish brethren in their mutual rebellion against God ("Penned together in the prison of disobedience", v.32, Phillips), they now share His merciful deliverance. Verse 32 by no means indicates the universal redemption of all without exception, as it has been mistakenly so understood by some, a hope for which the Holy Scriptures give no support, but rather do they warn us against such a presumption. Finally comes the apostle's great Doxology in vv.33–36. His fervent heart bursts into praise as he ponders God's dealings and with adoring wonder traces His footsteps, the sovereign, self-sufficient Lord of the universe and Ground of all being. We cannot know the unrevealed and even that which is revealed is inapprehensible, so often appearing to us as arbitrary and meaningless. In all of the foregoing "Plan of Salvation" with "doctrines from one link to another forming a golden chain of redemption" (H. Moule, Romans) is seen the riches of His unfathomable wisdom and knowledge, that knowledge applied in His wisdom to the fulfilling of His holy designs and purposes. His "judgements" are His judicial decisions and acts. Verse 34 quotes from Isaiah 40:34 and how significant is its place in that first of the great evangel chapters there, which tells of John the Baptist, the "voice in the wilderness" announcing the imminent coming of the Saviour-Redeemer. "Of Him", the first great Cause and Originator of all , "and through Him" the further great Cause and Sustainer of all, and "to Him", the final great Cause and Goal, "are all things" (v.36). He is Alpha and Omega, the Beginning and Ending, the First and The Last (Revelation 4:11). He has revealed Himself to us in Christ and His nature and His name are Love, "to whom be glory for ever. "Let all believing hearts ascribe all praise to Him for all His words most wonderful and all His ways most sure, and to Him all glory will redound. Amen – it shall be so" (A.T. Pierson).

The Detective

Words and drawing by Sheila Price

WHENEVER John visited his uncle, he played detectives. Uncle Tom had a very powerful magnifying glass and John would ask to borrow it as soon as he arrived. He spent many a happy hour hunting for fingerprints and looking for clues. He discovered that if he placed a length of cotton beneath the glass it looked like a piece of thick, rough rope.

Uncle Tom handed John a knife. "Try this, John", he said, "but be careful. The blade is very sharp." John placed the knife on the table and held the glass to his eye. What a surprise he had! He had thought the blade might look like a sword, but he found that it looked just like a saw. The blade, when magnified, appeared very uneven and ragged.

Uncle Tom went over to the vase of flowers on the window-sill and pulled one of the petals from a rose. "Now try this, John", he said, John held the petal beneath the glass. "Why, it is perfectly smooth, Uncle Tom! There are no rough edges at all! It is wonderful!" he exclaimed. "Yes, it is," agreed uncle Tom. "God's work is perfect in every detail." "But people make many fine things, too, Uncle," John exclaimed. "That is true, John, but even our finest works cannot be compared with God's handiwork," his uncle explained, "God created each of us perfectly, John, but sin enters our lives and leaves its ragged edges, so all our good works and our fine inventions amount to nothing in the eyes of God. The Bible says that all have sinned. We need to seek His perfect cleansing so that, through our faith in the handiwork of God, we may stand before Him perfectly whole and free from sin."

Thoughts from the Book of Genesis

25 The Angel of the Lord (Genesis 24:7)

by F. Lavender, Pastor of our Croydon Church

FOLLOWING Sarah's death, Abraham gave thought to Isaac's future. He commissioned his most trusted servant to find a wife for his heir. In response to the servant's query, Abraham recounted the past – the calling, promises and protection which he had received from the Lord and how on occasions the Lord had sent His angel to Abraham (though he did not always recognise him immediately as an angel), showing His concern and over-ruling care for His servant. Abraham was convinced that the Lord would still guide and would send His angel to prepare the way to Isaac's wife. Although, as far as we know, the servant never saw an angel in his journeying, future events showed that Abraham's faith was justified.

The New Testament reveals the ministry of angels in the Early Church. Peter was released from prison by an angel. Paul was visited by one as he faced shipwreck. The Angel of the Lord gave the apostle John the Revelation of Jesus Christ. The first Christians certainly believed in the ministry of angels. We live in a materialistic age, when folk say that they believe only what they can see, so they do not believe in angels. Even Christians are not too sure about them. Angels are real, personal beings, powerful servants of God sent forth to do service for them who shall be heirs of salvation (Hewbrews 1:14). We may yet find that some remarkable deliverance which we experienced was due to their intervention. The Lord still gives His angels charge over us to keep us in all our ways, even now the Angel of the Lord encamps around us to deliver us. Let us thank God for their unseen, protective care.

God's blueprint for Pentecostal Progress

by Alexander Tee

The Paper given at the Birmingham Evangelistic Conference

GOD'S inspired methods cannot be superseded. Neither gimmick nor "new cart" can carry the Christian Church forward into victory. We wrestle against forces which chuckle at the very idea of weak humans trying to substitute anything for the mighty power of the Holy Spirit in order to bring souls through to an experience in God. God's methods are miracles and men, mantled men who know their God, who are strong in the Spirit and who do exploits. When men touch God, they touch the dimension of the supernatural and it is here that the devil trembles.

There will always be plenty of hard work to be done on the human level. God does not send manifestations of power to encourage us to be lazy. We are exhorted to work "while it is day: the night cometh, when no man can work." (John 9:4). When we begin to substitute clever programmes for powerful, convicting ministry, we tred the path which leads to the cul-de-sac called "Ichabod".

The Acts of the Apostles shows New Testament doctrine and practice in action. This glorious book is profitable for doctrine, for correction and for instruction (2 Timothy 3:16). It will correct our policies for progress, if we will allow it to, and it will instruct us in the path in which we ought to go if we want to see true Pentecostal progress. Basically it is a book of ACTION. Therefore Pentecostal people should be people of action. This Book puts fire to God's gunpowder. It presses the trigger shooting truth deep into men's hearts compelling them to drop to their knees crying, "Men and brethren, what shall we do?". It took more than a high-pressure programme to make a man like Felix tremble. Three thousand souls were saved through one sermon on the Day of Pentecost — and the preacher had no expensive amplifying equipment blaring with a volume which would almost deafen anyone standing nearby. This great Book explains the mighty explosion: The Baptism which they received propelled them into the orbit of dynamic witnessing. They never argued about "the initial evidence"; they were too busy producing the goods by using the most important evidence. So often we have been told that the Baptism in the Spirit gives us power to witness. What good is the best petrol in the tank of even a Rolls-Royce if the engine is not switched on and in gear and the brakes off? Only as we get going do we begin to realize the power which is available beneath the bonnet. Heaven has a dynamic supply, but it can only manifest its strength as we get switched on, get into gear and get going. The fifth Book in the New Testament is a book of progress because it is a Book of Acts. Action is what we need, not argument. Are YOU a man of action? Are you a woman of Holy Ghost action? An inactive Crusader is a contradiction in terms. The soldiers in the Acts were very active in a holy war. Was Peter a man of action? Think of the miracle at the Beautiful Gate. Was Paul a man of action? This term is written all over his biography. The Early Church got on with the job. They were determined to let the whole of their generation know that Jesus was a living Person, a force to be reckoned with. New Testament Christians were all at it and always at it. The last seven words — "all at it and always at it" — were first spoken by the early leaders of the Salvation Army when it was spreading the message of blood and fire all over our country. We have no right to call ourselves Pentecostals if we do not do what true Pentecostals did in New Testament days. We cannot force miracles, but we can force our lips to get on with the job of telling others. There is a wealth of wisdom in witnessing.

Their message is our message and it is as relevant for this needy, educated age as it was for the Jews and the ignorant heathen of two thousand years ago. Peter used no soft language when he told the Jews that Jesus was the Son of God and that they slew Him and hanged Him on a tree. He told them that they were guilty people. Then, with a boldness and an authority

"A truly Pentecostal baptism is a revolutionary experience. It gives a man holy boldness. That power is available today!"

"Pentecostalism" has long ceased to be confined to the traditionally Pentecostal churches. Yet, in the current widespread enthusiasm for the charismatic movement, is it possible that Christians of all denominations are in danger of handling too carelessly the doctrines of the Holy Spirit?
The author, minister of one of our largest Pentecostal congregations, examines what should be the characteristics of the truly Pentecostal church, founded on New Testament principles.

The growth of the Charismatic Movement in the historic churches gives cause for rejoicing and also for concern. This vital new book will bring fresh understanding to the Pentecostal movement.

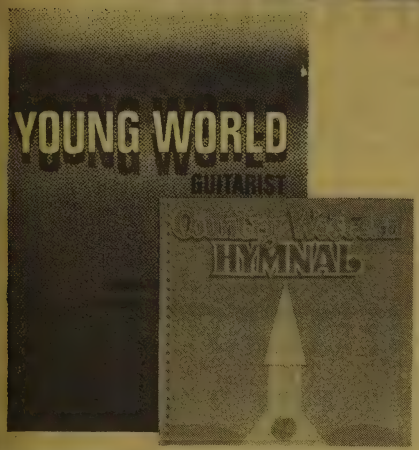
NEW TESTAMENT HISTORY

F. F. Bruce



Rylands Professor of Biblical Criticism and Exegesis, University of Manchester

Surveys the historical foundation of the New Testament story. Covers the history of the preceding centuries, the Roman imperial organisation of the Near East, the constitution of the Jewish nation and the advance of Christianity throughout the Roman world.

A chapter on the significance of John the Baptist is followed by three chapters on the ministry, trial and execution of Jesus. Examines Christ's relationships to the burning issues of the day. Great authentic background material for preachers and students.

Following the publication of Beyond the Shadows, the poignant story of her daughter's death from leukaemia, Mrs Mitson received a great many letters from readers who were seeking the courage to bear personal burdens of sorrow and suffering.

The Inside Room grew out of attempts to answer these requests for help. Each chapter reflects on some aspect of the inner life – the secret hopes, fears and desires which each of us experience at some point in our lives.

This book will be a source of strength to many; there will not be anyone who will not recognise something of himself in its pages.

A revolutionary new way of sharing the Christian message.

they could not withstand, he added, "This Jesus hath God raised up, whereof we all are witnesses." (Acts 2: 32). Now if Jesus is the divine Son of God and He has been slain for us and, in order to prove it, God has raised Him from the dead, our generation needs to get the facts straight. God takes a serious view of sin and of the great evil in turning away and having the audacity to neglect so great salvation bought at such high cost. The reality of the resurrection is always relevant. We can only expect to expand by doing and saying the right things. This involves courtesy and clarity. British Pentecostals in the majority of cases need to take an honest look at themselves and ask, "What witnessing do I, a Pentecostal, ever do?".

The second secret that we need to rediscover is that these New Testament people carried a remarkable sense of the presence of God. This presence is much more than a psychological public image. They were not interested in projecting anything of self; they were too engrossed in exalting the One with whom they were so deeply in love. They did not try to create a sense of this presence; it oozed from their souls like the aroma which filled the house after Mary had poured the spikenard of gratitude upon her Master. The old gardener who kept the scented plants in the hot-house of a world-famous garden spent so many hours in the atmosphere that his work-a-day clothes became impregnated with their perfume. He could not help but carry it home, causing everyone who came into contact with him to become aware of the exquisite fragrance. Dwelling in the secret place of the Most High has an unconscious effect on those who contact us in our everyday life. This is a forgotten secret which is all too often dismissed as Victorian and not relevant to our modern society. If you ask me how should we set about building up Elim as a movement, my answer would involve this great factor: Our meetings, our ministry and our leaders must carry a sense of the presence of God. Many of our founder-members in Elim will know that there was a time when George Jeffreys did just this. To be with him made one feel that one was in the presence of a man who carried an atmosphere of the presence of God. The same can be said of Smith Wigglesworth and others. These were men who knew the method above all methods which makes for Pentecostal progress. We are not ignorant of this truth, but are we willing to let go the other calls on our time in this busy society and take time to soak our inner souls in the private place with God?

Another vital truth we would do well to discuss surrounds the Gift of the Word of Knowledge. One aspect of this gift gives us supernatural guidance. Philip was led to witness to the eunuch by a private, personal leading. The same could be said of Peter before he went to witness to the household of Cornelius. Paul knew something of it when he heard the Macedonian call. These precious Gifts are delicate and the flesh can creep in so easily, yet they are dynamic when balanced men of God with real experience of the supernatural, are truly led by the Holy Spirit. We long for more of this. It will cleanse away all duplicity and sin, for it will find out every Ananias and Sapphira.

The early leaders in the New Testament were men who yearned for holiness in depth. Only when king David cried, "Create in me a clean heart, O God", could he add, "Then will I teach transgressors thy ways; and sinners shall be converted unto Thee." (Psalm 51:10-13). Here is the starting-point of all true spiritual advance. God is waiting, but are we willing? We all want Elim to prosper, but God's price must be paid.

did not believe. Their places were taken by those who can only be described as "having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof" and the Church sank into spiritual lethargy and death.

God raised up John and Charles Wesley, George Whitefield and others as the honoured instruments of revival. The great Author of Christianity never lets His work fail for want of suitable instruments and warriors whose weapons were "not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strongholds".

With the revival blessings came opposition. Tongues and pens were used on abusing. In several places mobs were encouraged by the gentry, even by magistrates, to disturb peaceable worshippers and to maltreat the preachers.

These are not the methods Satan is using today. One of his methods now is to discourage leaders and people. He is doing this by the apathy and the low moral standards of so many who are claiming to be Christians and by others who are claiming to be filled with the Spirit. One service per week is quite enough for them and it must not be too long. They attend church on Sunday morning and then spend the rest of the Lord's Day visiting friends or watching T.V. Others start at 6.30 p.m.

I pray, "Do it again, Lord! Raise up Spirit-filled men and women who will so love You that they will give their all in service to You." Ministers and leaders are breaking their hearts over low spiritual standards. Because of the strain some are having to give up. We need to remember that they are flesh and blood before it is too late and another good servant is lost to the work. Opposition there will be, but we must stand together for God and with God and declare the whole counsel of God.

A new Machine for Emmanuel Press

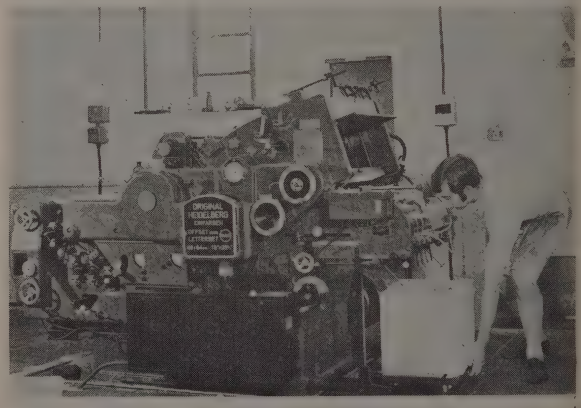
A report by David G. Butcher

AT Emmanuel Press in the Transvaal, S. Africa, the machines were mostly old and the standard of work was being affected. It was easy to improve the standard for we have a fine group of African men who just needed a little help, but the machines were another matter. Often spares were unobtainable or had to be brought from America. One way or another we managed, but wastage of any kind costs money, and the wastage on these machines was very high. There was only one thing for it – a new machine.

It seemed impossible, but we left it with the Lord, knowing that He is able. The sum to be raised was about £6,500. Canadian Bob Skinner returned home for furlough and that new machine was the goal he aimed for. We thank him and all those who gave for their generosity. Thanks must also go to some of our own Elim folk who contributed towards this lovely new machine.

Everyone holds his breath as the crane takes the strain of the three-and-a-half ton machine

Missionary Ron A. Gull gives a tug in the right direction!



A typical huge crowd at a service during the recent Billy Graham Crusade in S.Africa. This completely multi-racial gathering was in Johannesburg Emmanuel Press is already feeling the benefit and life is much easier on the production side. Already many thousands of tracts have been produced and we believe that many will find Christ as their Saviour.

* * *

MY wife and I had the priviledge of attending the Billy Graham service in Johannesburg recently. The Spirit of God rested upon the service in a mighty way. There was not the slightest feeling of tension amongst the completely multi-racial crowd. After the gospel had been proclaimed in the normal, clear, powerful style, hundreds from many racial groups went forward. There was not the slightest concern who counselled whom; everyone shared Christ and prayed with anyone. The love of God broke down every barrier.

Our reporter David G. Butcher watches as the first of many tracts comes off the new machine

On Giving and Receiving

IT was Sunshine Corner night and the children were already seated in a circle. I crossed to a vacant chair next to an excitable little girl, who immediately embarked on a rather complicated conversation to the effect that she would be absent on two weeks' holiday and in case I was sad about this, she'd made me a daisy-chain bracelet. Whereupon she produced the said adornment and insisted that I wore it throughout the evening.

This child's simple, loving gift is one of many that I've received down the years as a nursery school teacher, Sunday school teacher, mother and now a grandmother. These have included little calendars, home-made Christmas and birthday cards, a bar of chocolate, a rather grubby bag of aniseed balls, a special picture drawn to illustrate a Sunday school lesson, many a bunch of wild flowers and even a pretty shell and a shiny black feather.

Looking back over the years I realise with thankfulness that I have been the recipient of so many gifts from loving friends and church members. In many instances it has been widows and dear people in humble circumstances who gave to the point of sacrifice. I remember gifts of cheese (when it was rationed) and coal during war years and of a cot made from salvaged wood for our first child. I can never forget being overwhelmed to the point of tears by so many presents of flowers and fruit and of baby garments when our children were born.

In Ireland we were given a turkey every Christmas, in Guernsey an abundant supply of tomatoes and other vegetables and an unlimited quantity of flowers. The people of Ghana are extremely generous and we were constantly being delighted by gifts of bananas, paw-paws, mangoes, pineapples, oranges, avocado pears, yams, chicken and eggs, all of which greatly helped our house-keeping budget during our stay in their hospitable country. What a miserable old world it would be if the joy of giving and of receiving were withdrawn! How appalling it would be if the God-given instinct to give in love to others were stifled or crushed. It would be even more sad if people became completely self-sufficient, aloof and ungrateful.

There is great joy in giving as well as in receiving and in the latter case there is pleasure in glimpsing the kindly thought which prompts the gift, be it ever so humble. I believe that in Ghana it is imperative to accept a gift readily showing no hesitation, otherwise the giver will assume that his proffered gift is not good enough and will feel ashamed. The art of giving and receiving is part of the fabric of life and how poor is that life from which it is cut out.

God our Heavenly Father is the greatest Giver of all, but we must never grieve His great heart of love by ignoring or spurning His gifts. His Son, Our Saviour, commended all who gave in His name and in His cause. We must not neglect this vital part of Christian service, for it is within the reach of all. Regardless of earthly values, all giving is commended by God. The Scriptures I leave with you speak for themselves.

"For whosoever shall give you a cup of water to drink in My name, because ye belong to Christ, verily I say unto you, he shall not lose his reward." (Mark 9:41).

"Remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how He said, It is more blessed to give then to receive". (Acts 20:35).

10th Pentecostal World Conference

September 18–23, 1973

Chairman: Thos. F. Zimmerman
Secretary: Percy S. Brewster

SEOUL, KOREA – The local arrangements committee for the Tenth Pentecostal World Conference, has announced a tentative schedule of events. Activities will begin with a meeting of the advisory committee on September 15th. On Sunday, September 16th, members of the committee will attend services in various Pentecostal churches in Seoul. The committee will meet again on Monday, September 17th. Their schedule calls for visits with various Korean government officials. The keynote rally opening the conference will be held in Hyochang Stadium, where all evening rallies will be held. Morning and afternoon services will be held in the new auditorium of Full Gospel Central Church, Seoul. The closing rally will be held at Namsan Open Theatre on Sunday afternoon, September 23rd.

The speakers will represent Pentecostal fellowships in many countries. There will be a feature called "Windows on the World" in most of the sessions. It will consist of reports on the Pentecostal movement in the various geographical areas of the world.

A breakfast meeting for Pentecostal editors and publishers from many countries is scheduled for September 20th. Guest speaker will be John C. Broger, Director of the U.S. Armed Forces Office of Information and Co-founder of the Far East Broadcasting Corporation. The group will hold a business meeting on September 21st to adopt a constitution and bylaws for the proposed new International Pentecostal Press Association.

The Society for Pentecostal Studies will have a dinner meeting on September 21st at the Chosun Hotel, Seoul. Dr. Russell Spittler (Huntington Beach, Calif.), President of the group, will be the speaker.

A missions seminar in the Chosun Hotel on Monday, September 17th is also planned.

YOUTH PAGE

Before, during and after

by Trevor Partington

WHEN asked why their parents went to church, one little girl replied, "My Dad goes 'cause he's running for election!". Well, just what are our motives for going to church? How can we get the very best from our church worship?

What should we do before the service? There must be preparation of heart before you can worship God aright, not just a hurried prayer as you sit in the pew - and how much of a formality that can be - but a prayer in your quiet time that God will bless the service that day. Too often our thoughts are engaged on other things. Carelessly, irreverently we enter God's presence. Before a gospel service, we should do our best to invite someone along, for week after week your pastor can minister either to a wilderness of wood or evangelise the evangelised. The best tact in soul winning is CONtact. Think, too, of your attitude toward some other member of the congregation. "If you are standing before the altar in the Temple (as we would say, sitting in church) and suddenly remember that a friend has something against you, leave your sacrifice there beside the altar and go and apologise and be reconciled to him, and then come and offer your sacrifice to God" (Matthew 5:23, 24, L.B.). Before the service never have words with someone; the whole spirit of the meeting can be affected. It is better to bite your tongue than to let it bite someone else.

What should we do during the service? Don't chew sweets. If you must because you have a bad throat, be careful how you open the wrapper. From the pulpit it can sound like an army opening their Christmas boxes. If a baby cries and the mother is doing her best to keep the little one quiet, don't make it worse by turning round, or by giving advice on how little Horace can be calmed. Don't chatter to the person sitting next to you, and, if you must yawn, make it quiet and inconspicuous, please! If it is a worship service, consider prayerfully how you – even though you have never prayed in public before – can take part in the time of praise. Your one-sentence prayer from the heart can bring real blessing. Try it next Sunday. If God has baptised you in the Holy Ghost, wait on your ministry. Be alert to His leading. God may wish to speak through you. Most important of all, "receive with meekness the engrafted Word" (James 1:21). Truth must soak into the heart if it is to bless the heart. Be willing to hear about your faults and be determined by God's grace to put them right.

After the service, "be ye doers of the Word, and not hearers only" (James 1:22). Doing far surpasses hearing. The bulk of men do not read the Bible; they read you and me. There is nothing done by our church services, our preaching, or our attendance, unless we live out our faith. Donald came out of the kirk sooner than usual and Sandy said to Him, "What, Donald, is the sermon all done?". "No", replied Donald, "it is all said, but it is not begun to be done yet."

What! Camp for me?

by Albert Baylis

"I WANT a real holiday. Besides, I'm not sure if I would like camp anyway. What about the food for instance and this business of sleeping in tents?" Most people who think of camp as a possible holiday probably felt like this at first. As Adjutant of Elim's biggest youth camp, I know that they don't feel that way for long. They soon realise that the food is not cooked over twigs, but in a properly equipped kitchen and is served dead on time, and there are seconds, too, at most meals. Worries about sleeping in tents soon disappear as you slip into a cozy sleeping-bag at the end of a busy, happy day. Activities, like swimming, beach games, rounders, table-tennis, car treasure-hunts and outings, are always popular. You should see the Staff versus Campers soccer match! There are quieter activities too, and some of the friendships formed at camp last a lifetime.

Many have found the greatest Friend of all at camp and countless others have been filled with the Holy Spirit. We have seen some wonderful healings and God has often used camp to direct someone's feet into a specific sphere of service. The atmosphere is just great, whether in the challenging evening meetings, the study groups or as we simply enjoy being together. Sounds of music and laughter are never far away. Camp can be summarised as good good, fun, friendship and fellowship. If you want a real holiday, send for details while there are still some vacancies. Full details are obtainable from: E.Y.M., Kensington Temple, Kensington Park Road, London W11.

God may show you camp, not as a possible holiday, but as an opportunity for service. In paying tribute to the wonderful band of workers who make camp possible, I invite you to join them. You would probably have several surprises in store – the degree of organisation, for instance, and how quickly everyone knits into a team even if it is their first time at camp. Think about it – then come and enjoy the blessing with us.

The Family Altar

Scripture Union Portions — Notes by L.E. Lambert

Monday, May 14th 1 Kings 5:1-18

"Build an house unto My name" (v.5).

PEOPLE are more important than places of course: beautiful buildings do not guarantee that folk will flock inside. Nevertheless it is very important that God's house is as attractive and inviting as we can possibly make it. It is a sad commentary on any Christian that he is content to let God's house be less than his own. God is worthy of the best. Pentecostal folk are learning the value and virtue of nice buildings. They can be pleasant without being pompous. We can help keep them clean and in good repair. Do we "love the place, O God, wherein Thine honour dwells"?

Tuesday, May 15th 1 Kings 6:1-22,37,38.

"So Solomon built the house, and finished it" (v.14).

I AM so glad that he finished it. He did not make a glorious start then lose interest half-way through. So much voluntary work is plagued by this. We start with great enthusiasm, then the effort wanes and the zeal flags, and a faithful few struggle on to complete the job. The Scriptures warn us against this danger. "Let us not be weary in well doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not". When we put our hands to the plough, when God gives us a job, let us finish it.

Jesus cried with a loud voice, "It is finished!"

Wednesday, May 16th 1 Kings 8:1-21

"The cloud filled the house of the Lord" (v.10).

THE beautiful building, the magnificent music, the resplendent ritual, yet the most important thing on this day of dedication was the presence of God. On Monday we thought of the value of fine facilities, but our greatest need is for the blessing of God on our meetings, the touch of God on the preaching and praying, our services being vibrant and alive with the presence of God. Pray for your Pastor, for your assembly, for yourself for a new touch of fire in your soul. The blessing followed the sacrifice (v.5).

Thursday, May 17th 1 Kings 8:22-40

"When Thou hearest, forgive" (v.30).

IT is always a thrill to hear a man of God really pray, to hear someone pouring out his soul to God, not just saying a prayer, but really praying. Such is our privilege today, as we read one of the greatest prayers ever offered. Time and time again (vv.31,33,36), Solomon asks that, if things go wrong for his people, nationally, personally, God would hear and forgive. There is a definite link between the two. If we regard iniquity in our heart God will not hear us. Before you pray this morning, if you are consciously grieving the Lord, the matter must be put right first.

Friday, May 18th 1 Kings 8:41-53

"Thy great name. . . Thy strong hand" (v.42).

HOW great is our God, in power, mercy and judgment. Because of His greatness we can go to Him in the vicissitudes of life: when lonely (v.43), when attacked by the enemy (v.44), in weakness (v.46).

We can turn to the Lord at all times. So often we resort to other means. In days of distress, seek the Lord. He can meet our every need whatever we face, however we feel: there is nothing that He cannot do. Use His great name and trust His strong hand. His name is like a strong tower – safety; He holds us in His hand – security. Face today more bravely and more brightly as you remember this.

Saturday, May 19th 1 Kings 8:54-66

"He. . . blessed all the congregation" (v.55).

PRAYER turns into blessing. The king rises from his knees and blesses the people (v.55). He reminds them that God always fulfills His promises (v.56) and implores them to walk in God's way (vv.58–61). Prayer precedes blessing; blessing follows prayer: Little prayer, little blessing; much prayer, much blessing; no prayer, no blessing. Herein lies the greatest blessing, we must first seek His face in prayer. Why is it that, though we realise this, we are so slow to obey? The answer must be that the devil will do anything to stop Christians praying.

"Satan trembles when he sees the weakest saint upon his knees".

Sunday, May 20th 1 Kings 9:1-9

"If" (v.4); "Then" (v.5); "But" (v.6); "Then" (v.7).

HOW often we forget that God's promises are conditional. We must not be merely promise-box Christians, just lifting a text out of its context and making it a pretext. These verses show us a divine principle. If we will do our part, God will do His. "If you will walk before Me" (v.4) is followed by "Then I will" (v.5). Then you have the other side of the coin: if we do not obey we suffer God's wrath. Let us have a clear picture of God's holiness. He has promised open windows, but we must tithe – do you? He had promised to pour, but we must be thirsty – are you? He is faithful: so must we be.

Comment, Opinion and Review

The new Anointing

An Elim Minister declares his view.

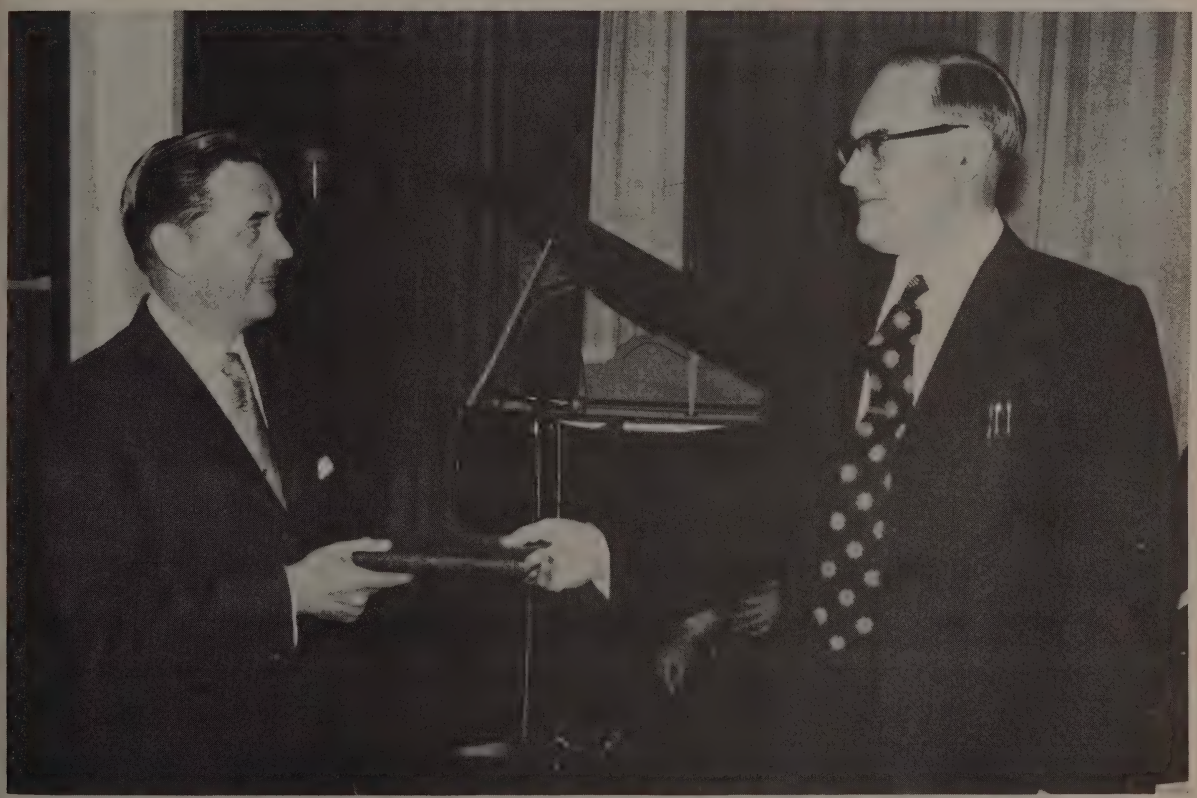
THIS is the latest in a number of (to quote a current phrase) "ministry gimmicks" to appear from over the herring pond. Down the years we have had elaborate doctrines of fastings, "oil on the hands", "blood on the brow", "halo above the head", "holy sand", and the extra-sensitised right hand (and we are writing not of Romish superstitions, but of alleged Pentecostalist practices), discernment of ailments, and what not. Now comes "The new Anointing".

Let me say at once that the phrase is unBiblical. Without being slaves to the letter, or making a man an offender because of a word (Isaiah 29:21), it is a good thing that Pentecostals should be correct and Biblical in their use of the names and terms related there. One used to hear, and still does, "He did not quite receive the Baptism in the Spirit, but he received a mighty anointing", as though the anointing was a variable and lesser blessing, not to be quite equated with the Baptism in the Spirit. Perhaps some leaders and teachers have been at fault here, but the Scriptures make it clear that "The Anointing" is The Baptism. The indefinite "an" ("an anointing") is never used in Scripture, but always the definite article, "the anointing".

There are operations of the Holy Spirit which are permanent and there are those that are variable and repeated, but there is only one Anointing of the Holy Spirit. Three things are said of it. It is permanent: "The anointing which ye have received of Him abideth". It makes the recipient independent of human teaching or philosophy: "Ye need not that any man teach you" (though, of course, this does not exclude the need for God-appointed teachers – see Ephesians 4:11). It is Christ-centred: "It hath taught you, ye shall abide in Him" (1 John 2:27).

When He was baptised in the Spirit's baptism at Jordan, our Lord was anointed with the Holy Ghost and with power (Acts 10:38). Likewise we, His followers, after the pattern and symbol of the Old Testament, where prophets, priests, and kings were anointed for their divinely-given tasks, are anointed for prophetic, priestly and kingly living and service.

Was our original Pentecostal baptism or the anointing of the Spirit which we then received defective, or but temporary, that we should need another, a new anointing? The writer never sings, "O, for a new anointing". He's still living in the thrill of the old!



What do you think?

Pastors H. L. Dawson and A. J. Downes witnessing in Trafalgar Square on Easter Monday. This man had come to London to find someone to operate on his vocal organs because he had damaged so many people's lives with his tongue. After talking to this person and having a word of prayer with him, he raised his hand for Christ as the appeal was given in the Square.

STABILITY is a quality which is sadly lacking in the life of today.

I recently made a stop at a motorway cafe in the early hours of the morning. The place was crowded and I was astonished to see what a high proportion of young people were there. Some of them looked not long out of school. The air of restlessness, perhaps even of rootlessness, is blowing a gale nowadays.

It is of vital importance that children have security, which is really only jargon for a loving, caring home background. The so-called insecure person can often trace at any rate the beginnings of their problems to fears of being unwanted or of uncertainty as to the permanence of his or her home background.

Christians cannot but be refreshed by the reading of the Scripture, for our heavenly Father has gone to such pains to let us know how much He cares for His own and how He has expressed this in and through His Son. The beautiful words of Hebrews 1 are a great source of solace and solidity. Relish the magnificent tones of vv. 11, 12: "They shall perish; but Thou remainest; and they shall wax old as doth a garment; And as a vesture shalt Thou fold them up, and they shall be changed; but Thou art the same, and Thy years shall not fail." "Thou remainest. . .Thou art the same" — what an encouragement these declarations of truth must be to the child of God!

Many young people are deeply anxious about the future of the very planet on which we live. A recent B.B.C. programme for schools, which I heard while I was travelling, expressed in very poignant terms what many are feeling. Built-in obsolence was strongly condemned. The ad.—man's creating of desires and appetites was trenchantly repudiated. Pollution and over-population came in for drastic comment. The only trouble with the programme was that it was so dispiriting, so hope-less really. A snatch from a pop song came to my mind, "Alone again. . naturally". The dirge of despair seems to dominate so many such offerings.

"Thou remainest. . .Thou art the same" reassures the Scriptures. God is love and He is working to a plan. There is hope. There is a future. There is certainty. To the eye of faith the shining way is there. Jesus is coming!

"The prospects opening to the Christian's view grow brighter as the days go by."

CHELTENHAM Pastor: A. J. Downes

ON Sunday, April 15th, we held our third baptismal service since Pastor Downes joined us in July of last year, the six candidates bringing the total to nineteen. We praise God that so many have decided to witness publicly to their faith and to their acceptance of our Lord's command.

It was a particular and unexpected thrill for Pastor and Mrs. Downes, when their daughter Ruth responded to the Pastor's offer from the baptistry to wait and baptise any believer who wished to be baptised right away. Among the others was a brother who was until recently a member of the local Hell's Angels. Please pray with us that God will bless all six of these young people, that they may be able to hold fast the profession of faith that they have made.

AN advertisement on the side of a Corporation 'bus, for the Sunday evening service must surely be a rare thing, but the photograph shows a local service 'bus bearing such an advert. The advert certainly makes people look and indeed talk about our new Church building.

Our new Church has not yet been open for one year, but it is not only the advert on the side of a 'bus which has aroused folk's interest. The congregation has rapidly increased from a mere dozen people, who worshipped in our old building, to an almost full new church for our morning family service.

We have just completed a hectic outreach week with meetings for different ages each night. Those not concerned with a particular meeting met in different houses to pray for the meetings' success. All our prayer and hard work were rewarded by an excellent response from the people on the surrounding estate.

As the Church attracts more people, it becomes more attractive. This is due to a great deal of help which we are receiving from Teesside Council. As it is "Plant-A-Tree-Year", they gave us a great number of small trees to plant in the grounds around the Church. The Pastor and Church workers soon planted the trees, along with a selection of bulbs, also supplied free of charge by the local authority. The bulbs are now in full bloom and along with the trees and newly-cut grass the Church looks outstanding to the glory of God.

We are now looking forward to our third baptismal service at the beginning of May and we are trusting God for even greater things in the future.

CALDICOT Pastor: P.N. MacInnes

UNDER the title "Effective Teaching in the modern Sunday school", some forty Sunday school teachers and pastors gathered for a day's seminar. One morning and two afternoon sessions involved lectures by Pastor Derek J. Green on: "Building a better Sunday school", "Teaching with a handbook", and "Keeping the young teenager". The questions and discussions which followed revealed the desire, indeed, the passion, to reach and to teach the young folk today and "by all means to save some". Contributions covered maintaining discipline, the place of films and pop music, prizegivings, new types of outings to replace the traditional annual trek to the seaside, and the use of Christian homes for regular as well as occasional involvement in the Church's work. It was a blessing and an encouragement to share experiences and difficulties. All found Pastor Green's ministry rich with new concepts yet so helpful in many practical aspects that it is likely to mark a turning point in some of the Assemblies represented. Particularly stimulating was the concept of the "total church programme". This is not new to those acquainted with American ideas, but it is specially challenging now that it has been tried in the British context.

The Caldicot Assembly had the further advantage of Pastor Green's presence at our Sunday school the next day and of his comments in the afternoon on our endeavours. The school represents the more difficult of environments for teaching, being one small hall and a full age-range of pupils. Mr. Green's helpful and welcome criticisms highlighted some weaknesses which could immediately be corrected. He also made suggestions for improvements for the longer term.

The weekend was the climax of eighteen months' planning and preparation. It acted as a spur to "press towards the mark" and clarified our perception of the correct place of youth work in the Church's commission.

CANNOCK Pastor: M. Reynolds

THE following is a photograph of the congregation at the induction service for Pastor and Mrs. M. Reynolds, who recently assumed the Pastorate at Cannock. A number of friends were present from their home church in Chelmsford, Essex. Pastor Reynolds was until recently the Head Student at Elim Bible College, where his wife was also a student.

A welcoming bouquet was presented by Mrs. Ridgway to the new Pastor's wife. Also in the photograph are Pastors W.J. Patterson and M. Reynolds.

The District Superintendent, Pastor R.J. Morrison, is seen addressing the congregation in our next picture. Pastors K. Smith and S.D. Huntly, B.D., are also present.

SUNDERLAND Pastor: D.G. Holmes

I WELL remember our first outing to Bradford, and hearing for the first time a musical rendering of, "Heaven came down and Glory filled my soul". April 11th was the day of our Women's Rally and we can say, "Oh, what a wonderful, wonderful day". We were richly blessed by the anointed ministry of Mrs. C.J. Watkins and of Mrs. R.M. Kingsbury, who ministered in song. Our own Ladies' Choir rendered items and we really felt the presence of the Lord. Nineteen representatives from different Churches in our area answered with responses of either a text or a verse of a hymn. All were greatly blessed in a united fellowship. Tea was ably provided for by our own sisters for well over 150. We praise and thank our heavenly Father for all His goodness over the past year.

Our evening rally saw the church filled with almost 190 people. The joy of the Lord was in the hearts of all as they sang the hymns. Mrs. Kingsbury sang once again. Our own Ladies' Choir sang, "Let me touch Him".

We are deeply grateful to all who contributed in any way to make this day a memorable one. We praise God for what He began in Sunderland. We go forward prayerfully, trusting the Lord for greater things under the guidance of our much-loved Pastor and his wife.

HOLYHEAD Pastor: F.G. Evans

OUR Church was saddened recently by the loss of Owen Jones, a beloved brother and founder-member. He shouldered the work of God faithfully and had served the fellowship in the capacity of deacon and treasurer. Although hampered considerably by ill-health for a number of years, his faith never wavered, nor did his love for the work of the Lord and the house of God. He was a humble character, who, through his kindly nature nourished the flock. His concern for those absent from meetings for various reasons helped to bind the Assembly together. His encouragement and support for others in their efforts strengthened their usefulness in the work.

Our brother was called home at the comparatively early age of 58, but we "sorrow not, as others who have no hope." We know that we will see our dear brother once more in that place where there is no more sorrow and where Owen is now rejoicing in the presence of his Lord and Saviour.

The Letter to the Romans

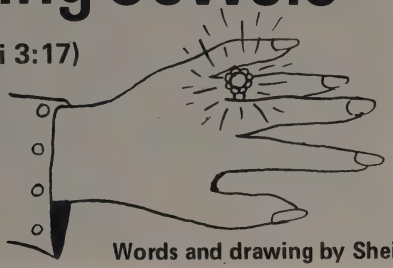
28. Practical (12:1–15:33)

by J. Alexander Wright

FOLLOWING Part I: Doctrinal (1:18–8:39) and Part II: Historical (9:1–11:36), we now consider Part III: Practical (12:1–15:33). Here is the righteousness of God, the Epistle's theme, in Christian living. From Christian theology come Christian ethics, i.e. right conduct, applied Christianity. Those who refuse the doctrine cannot embrace the ethic. First then come our spiritual, social and civil duties (12:1–13:7).

"I beseech you therefore" (v.1). This is the last of Paul's four great "therefores" which divide the Letter. When we encounter a "therefore" we should ask what it is there for! The one who "compelled Christians to blaspheme" now, on bended knee, beseeches them, on the grounds of the great mercy which God has shown them all, as set forth in his preceding chapters, to present their bodies to Him as living sacrifices. The gospel does not begin with the body of the believer, but it wholly embraces it. Living sacrifices are not like the struggling animal, which, sensing death, was dragged with firm, strong hands to the place of sacrifice, but, paradoxically, they are "alive unto God" (6:13). The worshipping Christian is to become his own priest, victim, and altar, as did his Lord when that holy Body became the instrument of the divine will, which He came to earth to do: "A body hast Thou prepared Me . . . Lo, I come to do Thy will, O God." (Hebrews 10:5–7).

The yielding of our bodies is the necessary step to our knowing and proving the will of God for our lives (Romans 12:2), not our bodies alone to the exclusion of our personalities, however, but as the vehicles of our personalities, "Your very selves" (NEB). Greek philosophers of that time deprecated the body as being a hindrance to higher aspiration. Paul urges its vitalness. "Holy" means healthy, as the temple sacrifices had to be "without spot or blemish"; so must we be, cleansed and sanctified unto God, for only so can we be "acceptable" to Him; "which is your reasonable service", "intelligent", (Phillips), "rational" (A.M.P.). The reasoning and logic of men can be deadly, but here is the highest reasoning and most sublime logic. How clearly C.T. Studd saw it: "If Jesus Christ be God, and died for me, then no sacrifice that I can make can be too great for Him".



"Service" is a temple word, as in 1:9 and 15:16 ("ministering"), and in keeping with the metaphor of the dedicated Christian as a sacrificing priest offering himself. "The worship offered by mind and heart" is how the NEB renders "reasonable service". "And be not conformed" (v.2), rather be transformed nonconformists! "Conformed" refers to the outward shape of things, the "schema" or fashion. None betters Phillip's rendering here: "Don't let the world around you squeeze you into its mould". Recall the converse and our comment at 6:17. Let Christian doctrine mould you.

Do not stop at mere "nonconformity", for this is only negative Christianity. "Transformed" refers to the inner shape, the "morphe", what a man really is, whether dressed for a bath or a ball. When the writer recently moved to another home he inadvertently left behind his electric door-bell transformer; what good was the bell-push or even the power without it? Christ is the great Transformer. This same word is used in the account of our Lord's transformation (Matthew 17:2), when the radiance of His inward beauty shone out like the sun, and of us, when "with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, we are changed into the same image" (2 Corinthians 3:18). "Transformed by the renewing of your mind" is not of the mere intellectual apparatus, but the whole personality. Reason and God's will are to harmonise. Once that mind was at enmity with God (8:7), "alienated" (Colossians 1:21), but through repentance a new attitude and perspective have come to the life. "Repentance" means, "change of mind or thinking", and carries the implication of the resulting change of conduct. "That ye may prove", "discern", "make out" (Moffatt), the purpose and plan of God for your life. Surely we all want to do this. It is God's way!

Living Jewels

(Malachi 3:17)

Words and drawing by Sheila Price

BARBARA went to the jeweller's to choose her engagement ring. Her young sister, Sally, eagerly awaited her return. When she heard the door open, Sally ran into the hall and asked, "Did you buy your ring, Barbara?"

"Yes, Sally, but it was so difficult to choose from all the rings on display. I liked this one best", she said, holding out her hand. "Do you like it, Sally?" "Oh yes! It is very beautiful", Sally exclaimed. "Do you see how brightly the stone shines?" Barbara wondered. "Yes", replied Sally. "It is surely the most precious jewel in the whole world".

"It is very precious to me, Sally, but it is not the most precious in the world. The jeweller told me that there are jewels worth thousands of pounds. There is a diamond called the Koh-i-noor, which is valued at a great price, but the most rare diamond of all is valued at nearly sixteen million pounds. It is the Cullinan diamond, the most expensive in the world."

"It would take a lot of pocket-money to buy that!" Sally exclaimed.

Barbara agreed with her sister. "But the Bible tells us of jewels even more precious than that, Sally", she added.

"What are they?" the younger girl inquired. "All the boys, girls, men and women in the world!" Barbara explained. "We are worth more to Jesus than all the diamonds in the land. He loves us so much that He gave His life for us. That was the price He had to pay in order to make us His very own treasure. We are His living jewels and we must shine and sparkle for our Saviour, so that our brightness might attract others to Him. The more we shine for Jesus day by day, the brighter we shall shine in Heaven".

Like the stars of the morning,
His bright crown adorning,
We shall shine in His beauty,
Bright gems for His crown.

Book Reviews

The Best in Life, selections from the ministry of A. Lindsay Glegg, chosen and edited by John L. Fear. Published by Word Books, price 45p, postage and packing 4p extra.

LINDSAY GLEGG, now in his nineties, is a living legend. He is the youngest old man many of us have ever met. See him at functions attracted to and attracting young people. Hear him, especially in Second Advent meetings, his rather light-toned voice taking on new power. Watch his infectious smile as he tells a good story to illustrate his point. Observe him over the years as chairman of nearly everything evangelical. He has made his mark in countless ways, none more so than that he is perhaps the most frequently quoted evangelical writer without the quoters realising or remembering the source! As this excellent paperback shows, what he wrote in earlier days has become evangelical folklore. A few unfortunate errors irritate, like "chat" for "that" on page 15 and the omission of "who" (making it "no one believes in Christ") on page 24, but this is otherwise a well-chosen compendium of the writings of the irrepressible Glegg.

Spiritual Problems, by J. Oswald Sanders. Published by Victory Press, price 50p, postage and packing 7p extra.

ANYONE who sets out to write a book on this subject must themselves have known the battlefield of such spiritual experiences. They must also avoid the pitfall of creating such problems in the minds of their readers. J. Oswald Sanders is just the man on both counts and we are in his debt for this great book. He writes with a deep awareness of the conflicts of the Christian's inner life and with a profound understanding of Scripture, yet the book is penned in a way that even the newest convert could understand.

Subjects like guidance, indwelling sin, victory and providence are considered along with many others. This is a book that every Christian should read, though somehow I expect that many will pass it over for something more "exciting". At 50p, such a gem is cheap. Get it soon!

The Stronger Man

Luke 11:21

by Bennie Finch

Bennie Finch was converted at the age of fifteen years at the A.O.G., Gateshead-on-Tyne. He spent the early part of his Christian life at Darlington Assembly and was greatly influenced by Pastors D. Powell and H. Young. He entered the A.O.G. ministry in 1942 and has held pastorates in the north of England, Grimsby, Australia and New Zealand.He has toured Canada and U.S.A. and is currently pastoring at Hemel Hempstead. He is married, with one married daughter and a teenage son. He has been faithfully supported throughout ministry by wife, Emma. He undertook a preaching tour of South Africa last month.

THE voice of the preacher telling of the operation of the forces of demon power is so often like a lone voice in the wilderness. We live in a psychological age when men, and even Christians, seek a natural, logical answer to all the eventualities of life. I have always accepted the existence of satanic forces and have seen some very remarkable demonstrations of their skill and power to devastate, but it is only in recent months, after weeks of prayer, that I see afresh that the individual believer as well as the local assembly can progress only by personal conflict with and personal victory over these evil agencies. Psychological Christianity will not last long, nor will it meet the need of any church in the acid test of spiritual conflict.

Jesus consistently recognised and rebuked these powers as part of His normal ministry. He understood and perceived their activities to the point where they were struck with terror. When there is an absence of knowledge concerning demons and their subtlety, men, often good men, conceive ideas and put them into operation in an endeavour to further the work of God. The weapons of our warfare are not human, however, but God-given. There can be no human substitute for the means which God has provided for the victory of His people.

Jesus had loosed a man from a dumb spirit and Satan hit back with the false accusation: "He casteth out devils through Beelzebub the chief of devils" (Luke 11:15). The devil has a cesspool, full of iniquitous lies and insinuations to hurl at the one who dares to disturb him. Wisdom as well as power won the day for Christ: "If Satan also be divided against himself, how shall his kingdom stand?" (v.18). Only the Spirit of God can adequately discover the inconsistencies of demon accusations. Immediately after this came this statement concerning the strong man and the stronger man.

The strong Man

This covers every Satanic agency from Satan himself down to his most insignificant spirit. Every individual believer is the target of the strong man. With what is the strong man armed? As in this case, lies and unbelief are his weapons, referred to in Ephesians 6:16 as "the fiery darts of the wicked [one]". Unless these ignited darts from Satan are quenched, they work havoc in the lives of believers and often in local assemblies. Their fire spreads with diabolical fury, wafted on by the winds of hell.

I have seen hundreds of acres of land devastated by fire in the bush of Queensland, all because of a small initial flame wafted by a consistent breeze. Although after a time grass and other vegetation began to grow, irreparable damage was done to native trees, bushes, plants and small animals. Donald Gee once said that damage can be wrought in churches that a generation will not repair.

The strong man "keeps his palace" (v.21). By his ingenuity and the unawareness of the believer, Satan maintains his grip and authority in so many areas of the work of God. Demons are tenacious beings; they have no intention of foregoing any territory that they have claimed and acquired by their evil endeavours. So far as they are concerned, any situation that makes them the victors is a permanent one.

"His goods are at peace [safe]" (v.21). What are these goods that the strong man so jealously guards? Satan deals only in human souls. He knows the value of an eternal soul probably much more than we do. The goods that he keeps are not temporal baubles, but backsliders, unsaved relatives, prayed for for years, depressed and defeated Christians. All the satanic forces available will be massed against those who dare to venture into the Devil's domain. This is what happens when we pray; real prayer is never easy because it is opposed by demon power. There are so many of God's children in defeat that the situation is very acute. We meet entire groups defeated and depressed, not knowing the way out of their bondage, many of them having accepted the situation as being without remedy. How satisfied the enemy of souls must feel with such a set-up!

The stronger Man

This can only mean one person, Christ Himself, who alone succeeded in defeating Satan. We must never see Christ as detached from us, His Body; physically He is on the throne at God's right hand, but spiritually He dwells in us. We are here on earth, yet in Christ we are seated in the heavenlies. He appears before God for us. We appear before the world and the devil for Him. He can never again be identified without us, so, in effect we, in Christ, become the stronger man.

When we pray in faith, opposing the enemy, it is as if Jesus Himself prayed and opposed Satan. We are His Body; in this truth and experience we cannot fail. It is not we, but Christ in us and we in Him. The stronger man will overcome the strong man.

This suggests aggressiveness, for there can be no overcoming without attack. Too often we have sought to keep out of the devil's way, with catastrophic results. The worldly-wise adage "He that turns and runs away, will live to fight another day" is poor advice for believers, because he that turns and runs away will do the same another day! There is a place of personal triumph for every born-again believer. Our motto should be: "He who stands and fights today will see the Devil run away", and this is in line with God's promise: "Resist the devil and he will flee from you."

The stronger man, having overcome the strong man, takes from him all the armour in which he trusted. The wiles of Satan have been successful down the centuries; he has great confidence in his armoury. When he sowed tares in the field with the good seed, he went on his way with confidence, knowing that the tares would grow. We are to divest the demon agents that oppose us of all their armour and make them ineffective. This is what Jesus did and is still doing through His Body, the Church. We sometimes try to take on the great forces of evil in the world before we have stripped the diabolical agents that personally and individually oppose us. If we have our rightful place in Christ and He has His rightful place in us, then every demon will be subject to us in His name. Being in total subjugation, the enemy not only loses the weapons in which he trusted, but also the spoils which he has accumulated. Satan and his hosts have been robbing believers of peace, joy, health, fellowship and many other blessings for years. Is it not about time that some of us, within the area of our own experiences in Christ, routed the devils that hound us?

After personal victory in this realm comes victory for the local assembly. People in victory are the only ones who can pray others into victory. As we look at Jesus in the wilderness in conflict with Satan, we see that He was the converging point of two great powers, each ineffective without the other: the Word of God and the power of God. In Christ the combination of both became the Sword of the Spirit. Likewise we are expected to be the tabernacles of this dynamic union.

It is so easy to be baptised in the Holy Spirit and, over a period of time, to lose the anointing. Equally so, we can acquire a knowledge of the written Word and remain comparatively dead spiritually. We must be like Jesus, who was full of the Spirit of God and full of the Word of God. This demands time, humility and sacrifice. Some years ago I asked a man, who was renowned for his godliness and anointed ministry, what he would do if he had only two minutes to spare. He said that he would spend one minute in the presence of God and the other minute reading the Scriptures. In his reply I discovered the simple secret of a man who lived near to God and in victory. Power without the Word is like steam without the engine, while the Word without power is like the engine without the steam. Effectiveness is attained only by the combination of both. To have and to maintain victorious Christian living we must be prepared to forego many things that have become part of our daily lives, like the so-called innocent pleasures that we are apt to call legitimate relaxation. Why should we spend time on things that have no spiritual value, if our lives are in defeat?

"My God, why....?"

"My God, why?" (Matthew 27:26)
"Father, into Thy hands I commend My spirit" (Luke 23:46)
"It is finished" (John 19:30)

by Eldin R. Corsie, National Youth Director

THESE words were uttered in the darkest moments of our Lord's suffering: "My God, why?" He was articulating human sorrow and anguish at its deepest level. He entered the region of the damned; He tasted death for every man. Here at the cross human need is epitomised.

We are faced with many queries and questions as day after day human tragedy is heaped upon us, like the sad shopping spree of a few weeks ago. A happy company of women on a short visit to the Continent lost their lives so tragically on the mountains of Switzerland. Husbands were left without wives, children without mothers. Then there was the brutal murder of three dear little children and another three children died in a fire. Thousands are dying in Bangladesh as a result of extreme weather conditions. The war in Cambodia and Vietnam continues, indeed, the shadow of war hangs ominously over the whole world. The world cries, "My God, why?"

For many it is more personal. A domestic upheaval, a psychological disorder, a personality deficiency, a temperamental problem, a human relationship, a physical malady, a besetting sin, and you cry in anguish, "My God, why?". If God is a God of love why does He allow suffering? Why does He not intervene and stop all the trouble? There is the problem of the innocent who suffer with the guilty; the hash of political affairs; the injustices which embitter so many; the collapse of any recognised standards of right and wrong. We live in a confused world and these problems cause a great number of people to doubt the goodness of God and even to question His existence. It is clear that when you ask why God does not stop the suffering, you do not doubt His ability to do so; your difficulty is that He does not act.

The Sovereignty of God

The answer to the question lies in the great plan of salvation: "God was in Christ reconciling the world unto Himself". God's sovereign hand lay behind the cry of Jesus. It was necessary for Him to suffer thus for our redemption.

Have you stopped to think into the nature of the Sovereignty of God? In the world there are two main categories of Sovereignty. First, the sovereignty of the ruthless dictator suppresses all other power. Its tyranny knows no bounds and it will devise all manner of evil schemes to annihilate opposition. It must have complete control whatever the cost. Secondly, there is the sovereignty of the democracy. This allows complete freedom of choice and then claims to overrule whatever course of action is taken in a way which will ultimately acclaim the sovereignty of the one who allows it.

Human illustrations and analogies of God are always inadequate, but we are sure that the sovereignty of the dictator is not a picture of God. God in His sovereign wisdom has given to man complete freedom, but He overrules his choices.

Why did not God make us so that we could not sin? To be sure, He could have done so, but we would no longer be human beings. We would be machines. Who wants to be a machine? Ladies, how would you like to be married to a robot? Well, perhaps you would get the gardening done and those household jobs completed! Gentlemen, how would you like to be married to a computer? You feed the mouth of the computer with the programmed card and out come steak and chips! No, God has made people who possess the characteristics of their Maker. Each has a mind, a will, emotions, a soul. They are intelligent, creative, purposeful, meaningful beings.

Nevertheless, God often interposes and demonstrates His sovereign will in a clear way. Remember the Flood, the destruction of the cities of Sodom and Gommorah. His supreme intervention was the cross of Calvary, when He invaded human history for the purpose of its salvation.

Nebuchadnezzar experienced something of this divine intervention. Because of his rebellion and disobedience, God made him to grovel in the fields like an animal. When he was restored to sanity, he made a classic statement regarding the Sovereignty of God: "He doeth according to His will in the army of heaven, and among the inhabitants of the earth: and none can stay His hand or say unto Him, What doest Thou?". God is a sovereign King, the moral Governor of the universe and He deals with men as free-will agents, moral beings. God has set in motion the law of cause and effect. If a man chooses to sin, God does not violate the freedom of choice that He has granted that man, but He allows sin to have its natural and inevitable fruitage. "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap". Man is responsible for sin, not God (Romans 5:12). If God were to set a date and a time to stamp out evil – let us suggest today at 9 p.m. – not one of us would arrive home tonight. When Joshua experienced the humiliating defeat at Ai he blamed God. God had to remind him that defeat was the consequence of sin. "Get thee up. . . Israel hath sinned" God told him. Men ignore and blaspheme God, flout His laws, desecrate His Day, despise His Church, persecute His people, reject His Son, and then have the temerity to blame Him for the outworking of their sin.

The Paternity of God

After crying, "My God, why?", Jesus prayed, "Father, into Thy hands I commend My spirit" (Luke 23:46). God is paternal as well as sovereign. To Isaiah He posed the question, "Cannot I do with you as the potter?". He claimed absolute power over Israel as the potter over the clay, yet the One who is the potter is also our Father. "Thou art our Father; we are the clay, and Thou our potter" (Isaiah 64:8). His sovereignty never clashes with His paternity. The hand that controls and moulds our life is the nail-pierced hand.

In Jeremiah we have the vivid picture of the vessel that was marred (Jeremiah 18). The potter was not satisfied until he had made a vessel that was perfect. So often Christian people must experience the breaking to know the blessing. Fatherly care and concern motivates the actions of God in our daily lives.

When I was a boy I never appreciated my mother or father saying, before they gave me the beating I deserved, "Now this hurts me more than it hurts you!". Indeed, I resolved that, if ever I became a parent, I would never chastise my children. Well, they can speak for themselves. They will confirm that my philosophy has changed! Chastisement is necessary for the development of Christian character (Hebrews 12:5-11). If only we could see all God's dealings with us as those of a Father.

When the late Dr. W.E. Sangster was a boy, he went to camp. He suddenly ran out of money, so he sent a telegram to his father: "£.s.d. R.S.V.P.". No reply came. Some of his friends taunted him: "Perhaps your father has forgotten you. Maybe your father has no money to send." He remarked, "I knew these reasons were untrue." When they returned to taunt him, he replied, "I will wait until I get home and father will explain for himself."

There are many things in life which seem contradictory to our belief in a loving God, but we must wait until we get home and God will explain it all. Yes, it is understanding our heavenly Father. Sometimes God's hand bestows and at other times His hand withdraws.

To faith, God's hand must be seen in both. Job lived in a period of great prosperity, then suddenly he was visited by a storm of trouble. He lost flocks, herds, home, servants, sons and daughters. We look in vain for his denial of God's existence of his abandonment of belief and faith. He does not even question God. He avows, "The Lord gave; the Lord has taken away, blessed be the name of the Lord." These are not the words of fatalism, but of implicit faith.

Peter had 3,000 souls; James had 3,000 stones. Peter was delivered from prison; James was beheaded. The ways of the Lord are past finding out. Are we willing to say, "Father, into Thy hands I commend my life?". Are we ready to trust our lives to the hands of the Creator and Saviour? Christ was deeply conscious of His Father's love. In Gethsemane he cried, "Father, if it be Thy will". His first cry on the cross was, "Father, forgive them". His final cry was, "Father, into Thy hands I commend My spirit.".

The Victory of God

Between the extreme suffering expressed in the cry, "My God, my God, why hast Thou forsaken me?", and the final cry that reveals His eternal Sonship, "Father, into Thy hands I commend My spirit", there is the Saviour's cry of accomplishment, "It is finished." God literally dropped the curtain on the final act in the drama of Redemption. "The veil of the temple was rent in the midst". In this cry, "Finished" (for it is only one word in the Greek), we have Christ's complete victory over SIN. Separation from God is the result of sin. Jesus tasted death for every man. He knew from His experience what it meant for a soul to be lost. This is the destiny of everyone who has not received the Lord Jesus as their Saviour, for Hell is a place of unending loneliness and separation from God. "Finished" means that Christ has bridged the gap between God and man. There is no longer any need for man to be separated from God.

"Finished" speaks of Christ's victory over SUFFERING. The Apostle Paul enumerates all the things

Something to Shout About

First impressions of Ghana
by David and Margaret Kilpatrick

THE first thing we wanted to do when we arrived in Ghana was to attend one of the Ghanaian meetings. What a wonderful experience that was. The presence of the Lord was very real as we met to worship Him.

On route to Ghana we touched down at Amsterdam, Madrid and Lagos. Perhaps this affected our ears, for when the people began to sing and clap, we were deafened! Looking over the gathering and seeing the faces of the people radiant with the joy of the Lord made our hearts leap within us. We watched with wonder the graceful movements of several of the ladies as they danced to the front, as later did the men, in praise to the Lord.

At this meeting, over thirty girls from a nearby school came forward for salvation. We were prevented by the language barrier from speaking to them, but we were assured that each one would be contacted by the Church members.

The Church of Pentecost is an active, evangelical movement. Every member is soon conscious of his or her responsibility to witness for Christ. If we were to visit one assembly every day, at the end of three years we would have over 100 still to visit and perhaps more as the Church is growing daily.

Those who know David and Margaret Mills will have no difficulty remembering our names, for we are David and Margaret, too! We thought that the Ghanaians would be confused by two Davids and two Margarets, but they soon got over the difficulty by giving us new names, "Yaw Maanu" and "Yaa Maanu", which mean Thursday born and the second. We arrived on a Thursday and are the second David and Margaret!

We are very grateful for the time we have spent with David and Margaret Mills before their furlough. They have introduced us to Ghana with its different customs and way of life.

Already our eyes and ears are getting accustomed to the sights and sounds of our new country. The brightly-dressed women, their goods held high on their heads, the wide-eyed children who gaze so intently at us, the groups of men and women gathered by the road side cooking their evening meal, are all second nature to us now.

The heat is very tiring. It takes twice as long to do anything in this climate. Even the Ghanaians find work difficult in the hot weather. We have been assured that it will not get any hotter during the year as we arrived at the end of the hot, dry season.

We would value your prayers as we begin our first tour of service. The next six months will be spent on language study and then we move to the Volta Region. Please pray that God will enable us to make the right decisions and to trust Him fully to undertake in whatever He calls us to do for Him.

An Outline

The Master praises – what are Men?

2 Corinthians 10:18

IT is interesting and instructive to consider those whom the Lord Jesus Christ commended:

1. The dishonest Bailiff (Luke 16:8, NEB) by implication, for providing for his future.
2. The poor Widow (Luke 21:3), for her utter generosity.
3. The wronged Widow (Luke 18:3), for her persistency in "prayer".
4. The Canaanite Woman (Matthew 15:22), for her faith.
5. The Leper (Luke 17:18), for his "Thank you".
6. Peter (Matthew 16:17), for his confession of faith.
7. Mary of Bethany (Luke 10:42), for choosing the "best dish" (Moffatt).
8. His faithful Slaves (Matthew 25:14), for good and faithful stewardship.
9. The final great Commendation (Matthew 25:35). May we all be there!

Is your name "Apelles?" (Romans 16:10).

For Orangemen – And Englishmen!

A YOUNG Frenchman was languishing in a hospital when a gospel leaflet caught his eye. He read it and was led to Christ. He became the leader of the Reformation in France – Admiral Coligny. This same tract was read by one of his nurses and then given to the Lady Abbess, who in turn was converted by it. The Protestants being then persecuted in France, she fled to the Palatinate, where she met and married a young Hollander. Soon her Christian life influenced the entire continent of Europe, for her husband was none other than William of Orange, famous King of the Netherlands, and of England.

A Quotation

C.H. Spurgeon on personal Prayer

I TOLD him of one of whom I had recently heard spending three hours on his knees. "I could not do it", he replied "if my eternity depended upon it! Besides, if I go to the bank with a cheque, what do I want loafing about the premises for, when I have got my money? I go to God with a promise, which is in reality a cheque issued by God Himself on the Bank of Heaven; He cashes it for me and then I go and use it for His glory. This I take to be the true way of praying. The fact is, long prayers are often the result of unbelief. Yet it is possible, without the formal act of kneeling, for the heart to be praying always. I think I can say that seldom many minutes elapse without my heart speaking to God, either in prayer or in praise."

Thoughts from the Book of Genesis

26. The Response of Rebekah's Faith (Genesis 24:58)

by F. Lavender, Pastor of our Croydon Church

THE Lord certainly directed Abraham's servant and led him to the home of Bethuel, Abraham's brother, and so to Rebekah, beautiful physically and helpful and kind by nature. The servant was sure that Rebekah was the bride chosen by God for Isaac. Bethuel and his family were in favour of the union, but they were startled when the faithful servant wanted to take her to Isaac the next day. When Rebekah was asked, "Will you go with this man?", she agreed at once to leave with an unknown man for an unknown country to marry an unknown bridegroom. Four things must have made Rebekah willing to go: the dignity and nobility of the servant; his faithful description of Isaac and Abraham; the goods which Abraham had sent, the foretaste of Canaan's fruits; her own sense of destiny, her divine calling.

Our task is similar to that undertaken by Abraham's servant. We have to turn men's allegiance to an unknown Man, creating in them a willingness to choose an unknown destination and a readiness to accompany us and others on the road. The accomplishing of this depends on the same qualities which persuaded Rebekah: people must be impressed by our Christian bearing and character; we must make the Lord Jesus supremely attractive and wonderful to them; they must see that Christians can enjoy now some of the blessings of heaven; their ears and hearts must be opened to receive the call of God to their own souls. We thank God for the Holy Spirit who enables these things to be accomplished through our lives (2 Corinthians 4:6,7).

From T. H. Stevenson

WHILE sharing the hospitality of an Elim family, I was reading their morning newspaper when the young mother asked me whether I had heard of the word "charisma". I replied in the affirmative and, however unusual it may seem, I added that at that very moment the word was before me in the Daily Mail. Mark Spitz, the winner of seven gold medals at the 1972 Olympic Games, was reported as saying concerning his accumulation of money that "People aren't paying me for nothing. They're paying me for my name and my charisma".

My friend had heard the word frequently used in a tape-recorded address by a "new" Pentecostal. It is not a new word; any more than you can really have a "new" Pentecostal. It is the Greek word translated "gift" and "free gift" in the New Testament and used most frequently in 1 Corinthians 12–13:1 concerning spiritual gifts. The word means "grace, favour, kindness".

The Pentecostal minister will be familiar with the Greek word in the Bible, but I would say that the common use of it today in preaching is an innovation by the "new" or "neo"-Pentecostals. "Neo" is yet another Greek word simply meaning "new, fresh, modern, etc". Only in a new, very complete dictionary would the word "charisma" be found. It is not even in my copy of Roget's Thesaurus, but it is now so fashionable that it is used to describe entertainers, ballet dancers, politicians, speakers and others. Like Mark Spitz, Cassius Clay and George Best are examples of whom I have read as having a charisma.

Being so commonly used theologically – and illogically – it might seem advantageous to use it at least in publicity material or as a titular word on the subject of the Holy Spirit baptism and gifts. It is certainly popular parlance, but why use the Greek word when we have clearly understood translations in our mother language? Like a debased coin, the words "charisma" and "charismatic" are being made use of irrelevantly, and almost irreverently, by so many adaptations, that we may do well to adhere to the terms that mark our particular identity as Pentecostal believers in Pentecostal churches. Are not the very words "charismatic" and "new Pentecostal" used to emphasise non-identity with Pentecostal churches? If the charm of a Greek word attracts you, remember that "Pentekoste" is a Greek word left untranslated in the Bible. It means the fiftieth day after the Hebrew Passover feast. Pentecost was also a feast day. Let us enjoy the feast, remembering that it is far more important to have it than be "with it".

Prayer and Praise

by F. H. Coleman

A KING of Israel received a letter sealed with a royal seal. He opened it only to read of threats against his country. A powerful army would soon besiege the city of Jerusalem. What should he do? He went into God's house and spread the letter out before the Lord. He told Him all about the letter. How artless and simple it was, but he soon received God's reply. Isaiah came to him with God's message that Jerusalem would be delivered – and it was!

Letters are usually welcome. A friend of mine has trained his poodle to get the letters from the mat each morning and take them upstairs to the bedroom. I hasten to say that the postman delivers rather early.

Occasionally a letter comes to us which causes pain or sorrow. What can we do about it? When we are powerless to help or change the situation, there is One who is all-powerful and always ready to help. Take the letter to God and spread it out before Him.

We are always so glad to get letters from readers of THE ELIM EVANGEL and we were pleased to hear recently from a reader who gave us a review of a book which she had given to the Church of which she is a Member. It would seem by the letter that an Elim Pentecostal Church reviews a book on prayer in connection with Elim's week of prayer. We seem to have so little time for prayer in our busy daily schedule, or for helping people pray more effectively. Here is the review:

The Power of Prayer, by R.A. Torrey

-Do you want power for the Lord? Do you want to know some of the reasons why your prayers are not answered? Then read this book. It is an inspirational classic. I am sure that if every Christian read it, we would soon have revival. There is so much to be learned from this type of book. Do not be put off because you think that it may be hard to understand. I can assure you that it is not, but it will make you search your heart and it will give you food for thought.

Thank you, Sister! We would like more letters of this kind.

A Present from Ulster

I INVITED friends to tea on Good Friday and, needing a large table-cloth, I unfolded and spread out one which, on reflection, I realised had been in my possession and in pretty constant use for almost thirty-four years! Certainly this Irish damask cloth is an excellent example of the good quality and durability of Ulster's linen, I felt a little sad as I noticed that at last it is showing signs of wear, but I can hardly complain after such a long period of excellent service. I have always been very fond of this cloth. It is oyster-coloured and has an all-over pattern of shamrock leaves and there is a story attached to the way I acquired it.

When my husband was pastoring a church in North London in 1939, he received a letter from a fellow-minister in Belfast requesting him to search for a young man who, having been accused of stealing at his place of employment, had run away from work and home and had tried to lose himself in the great metropolis. Eventually after some investigation my husband located the young fellow in a Church Army Hostel in the City of Westminster and was able to give him some cheering news from his home. Word had come through by letter from a loving mother in Belfast that her lost son must return home. The accusation had been found to be false, his name was cleared and his job was waiting for him; in a nutshell all was to be forgiven and forgotten. It was a story with a happy ending. The young man was restored to his home and the tablecloth was a gift from his grateful mother who, I believe, knew that my husband and I were planning to marry later that year.

I believe that we all enjoy a happy ending to a story, particularly in real life. Just such a story has been re-enacted countless times in the experiences of succeeding generations. I refer to the crisis which has taken place and still does occur in the lives of all who realise that the human heart is sinful and guilty in the sight of a holy God. This sense of guilt and personal sin can be devastating and, like King David, there is often a reaction as strong as his, of which we can read in Psalm 51. Furthermore, he acknowledged the futility of trying to hide from God and cried out in Psalm 139, "Whither shall I go from thy spirit? or whither shall I flee from Thy presence?".

How wonderful, then, that, although we are deserving of condemnation and punishment from almighty God, before whom we stand guilty, and are utterly unlike the young Irishman who was falsely accused, we are sought, restored and pardoned. This miracle of unmerited favour has taken place in the hearts of all who acknowledge the need of God's love and mercy. It is the happiest ending to the story of the human heart and life.

As I looked at my table-cloth that afternoon, these thoughts came to me and it seemed that this was the real meaning of the Good Friday story. Through the death of Jesus Christ, God is calling to the wayward sinner, "Come home, and all will be forgiven and forgotten". Have you responded to His loving appeal? With an eager heart and joyful step my husband hurried to carry the good news to a lost son those many years ago. Christian, there is no more satisfying task than telling the good news of pardon and forgiveness to lost sinners. How are you fulfilling it?.

Father, I dare believe
Thee merciful and true,
Thou wilt my guilty soul forgive,
My fallen soul renew;
Come then for Jesu's sake
And bid my heart be clean,
An end of all my troubles make
An end of all my sin.

"MY GOD, WHY...?"—from page 11

that might be considered barriers between us and Christ: "Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword? As it is written, For thy sake we are killed all the day long; we are accounted as sheep for the slaughter. Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors through Him that loved us. For I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord". In Romans 8:18 he records the final triumph of Christ over suffering: "For I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us." The cross has conquered every human foe.

"Finished" tells of the victory of Christ which brings man into the relationship of SONSHIP. "My God, my God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" is changed to: "Father, into Thy hands I commend My spirit." "Finished" spans the gulf between these two expressions which fell from the lips of the Lord Jesus, the first a cry of desperate anguish, the last a cry of loving commital. How representative these prayers are of the Christian experience. We can pass from eternal separation to the warm relationship of sonship only through the finished work of Christ. There may be many a "My God, why?" in our lives, but may we be able to look up into the face of God and say, "Father, into Thy hands I commend my life". May our suffering never remove the joy and blessing of sonship. The Bible reassures us that "if we suffer, we shall also reign with Him". One day the trumpet will herald the finish of our earthly suffering and service, and we shall behold Him who has made our sonship possible.

"It will be worth it all when we see Jesus!"

The inevitable Confrontation

by Maldwyn Jones, Pastor of our Eastleigh Church

SINCE the passing of the Industrial Relations Act, our country has lurched from one economic crisis to another. Union leaders feel it their duty to resist this Act, while the government regard this as a battle that they cannot afford to lose. Every time a demand for increased wages is put to the government, union leaders talk about a showdown or the inevitable confrontation.

The Bible talks about an inevitable confrontation: "It is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment." (Hebrews 9:27).

There is abroad a spirit of anarchy. People seem to think that they can go through life doing just as they please, irrespective of whom they offend in the process. Young people especially rebel against discipline. The common philosophy seems to be to "do your own thing", or as Chuck Berry would have it, "live as you want to live". This is a false ideology. We cannot do as we please without one day having to face the consequence of our actions. Paul gives us a solemn warning: "Be not be deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting" (Galatians 6:7,8).

It is a sobering fact that every one of us will have to give an account of himself before God. We must not over-emphasize the love of God at the expense of His justice and righteousness. The Bible is clear in its proclamation of divine judgment upon sin, e.g. "The wages of sin is death" (Romans 6:23); "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." (Ezekiel 18:4).

By dying on Calvary, Jesus has given man the opportunity to pass from death to life. If he refuses the free gift of salvation, then he must face the judgment of God upon sin. God would not be righteous or just if He allowed people to get away with sin. Paul said, "We must be manifested before the judgment seat of Christ; that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad" (2 Corinthians 5:10). This cannot refer to a judgment of condemnation, for Jesus specifically stated that the one who believes God "shall not come into judgment" (John 5:24) and Paul further declared that "there is therefore now no condemnation to those who are in Christ Jesus" (Romans 8:1). A Christian cannot be judged for his natural or inherited sin, because that has already been dealt with at the cross.

The final Assize at the Great White Throne will see those who are spiritually dead judged and condemned (Revelation 20:11–15), but the Judgment Seat of Christ is concerned with Christians. Our lives impinge upon those of other people. What we do and say affects those with whom we come into contact. We will be remembered with affection for the good we have done, whereas, if we have wounded anyone with an unkind word or deed, we will leave a sense of bitterness and hurt in the memories of others. How much more of an impression will our actions leave on the mind of God!

At the Judgment Seat of Christ, the assessment of life's values will take into consideration all the relevant factors of thought and motive, as well as positive actions. In the Sermon on the Mount our Lord made it clear that He was more interested in motives than in actions. All we have said, done and thought, as well as what we have left undone will be taken into account.

In the light of this, we ought to live our lives in obedience to the will of God. This can best be done by having the mind of Christ. "Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus" (Philippians 2:5).

Scripture Union Portions — Notes by L.E. Lambert

Monday, May 21st — 1 Kings 10:1–29

"The half was not told me" (v.7).

THE queen of the south" was how the Lord described this great woman. She heard (v.1); she came (v.2); she communed (v.2); she saw (v.4). When she met Solomon, heard his wisdom, and saw his prosperity, they far exceeded the fame of which she had heard. What a day it will be when we see Jesus (Revelation 22:4)! We know something of His splendour and of His glory now, but "the half has never been told". What God has laid up for those who love Him is beyond our present comprehension, but sweet is the hope that is thrilling our souls – we know we'll see Jesus some day. When we see Him, we shall be like Him!

Tuesday, May 22nd — 1 Kings 11:1–25

"When Solomon was old . . . his wives turned away his heart after other gods" (v.4).

WHAT an abysmal ending this was after such an auspicious beginning. The reign which commenced with such promise concluded with such paganism: He "went after Ashtoreth" (v.5); he "did evil" (v.6); he built a "high place for Chemosh" (v.7).

Wrong associations can lead a child of God from a sense of devotion to the sin of denial. David was defiled by debauchery. Samson was ruined by a romance. In our friendships, courtships, partnerships, we should join ourselves to those who love Jesus with all their hearts. "Make friends of God's children"!

Wednesday, May 23rd — 1 Kings 11:26–43

"Seeing . . . he was industrious, he made him ruler" (v.28).

JEROBOAM was above all else a worker. Because of this, he was promoted. He came from a humble background, his mother being a widow and a servant woman (v.26), but he worked hard and eventually became king.

God wants us to work hard. "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might" (Ecclesiastes 9:10). In secular things, in spiritual activity, in work for our heavenly or our earthly master, let us work hard. If we are faithful in small things, God will give us greater responsibility. Get on with the task at hand. If you are waiting for something to turn up, start with your sleeves.

Thursday, May 24th — Romans 1:1–7

"Separated unto" (v.1).

THE vexed question of separation is continually before us. What is right? What is wrong? We often hear of being separate from worldliness, sin and evil companions, but there is much in our thinking that is contradictory. It is difficult, for instance, to see the difference between watching a film on television and going to the cinema. It would help us all if we concentrated on the positive. Paul was "separated unto the Gospel of God", wholly committed to its communication. If in thought, word and deed, we were full of God, there would be no room for the doubtful. We would be "Set apart for service, by God's Hand ordained".

Friday, May 25th — Romans 1:8–15

"I am ready" (v.15).

THERE are three "I ams" in this lovely reading: "I am debtor" (v.14); "I am ready" (v.15); "I am not ashamed" (v.16). We owe it to the unsaved to tell them of Jesus. We must never be ashamed of the glorious gospel. "I am ready to preach the gospel". Paul always was – in prison, on board ship, in synagogues, in the open air. Are we? When opportunities to witness arise, does some kind of paralysis seize our tongues? We do not need to pray for occasions to come; we need God's power and grace to use them when they do. Power comes as you witness.

Saturday, May 26th — Romans 1:18–32

"God gave them up" (vv. 24,26).

THE unveilings of human depravity are never a pretty sight. We call this age "permissive", but the times were equally so when Paul spoke the words of life.

The depths to which unregenerate man can sink are almost unbelievable and it is an awful thing when God gives a man up, when the Spirit of God ceases to strive. If we can do something unblushingly now, which a year ago would have pierced our consciences, this is not a sign of peace, but of backsliding. If this is the case, we need ruthlessly to examine our hearts and to repent. Jesus refused to speak to Herod. May we always be able to hear His voice. "The pure in heart shall see God".

Sunday, May 27th — Romans 2:1–16

"The goodness of God" (v.4).

GOD is holy and righteous, a God of wrath and judgment, but He is also a good God. God has been so good to us, supplying our material needs, homes in which to live, friends to love, faculties to use. As you go to God's house today reflect on His goodness. "The goodness of God leadeth" – may it lead us to be grateful, to refrain from grumbling, to share what He has given us. His greatest act of goodness was in sending His only Son to bleed and to die upon a Roman gibbet for our vileness and sin. "Praise the Lord, for He is good".

New Church Building at Bridgwater

IT was with much rejoicing and deep gratitude to God for all His goodness that a recent Saturday saw the opening of the Elim church. Indeed the Israelites over Jordan were not more blessed, but much land lies ahead to be possessed.

Outside the closed door, Field Superintendent R. B. Chapman read of Solomon's Temple and prayed for like blessing. A goodly crowd from a wide area joined to sing "Amazing Grace", then at 3.15 the door was unlocked by W. R. Jones, Pastor of our Bristol Church. The Reading Evangel Choir then rendered two beautiful pieces. Pastor Livings spoke from Psalm 127, "Except the Lord", bringing out the hopelessness of the house with any other foundation and of the church which becomes mere bricks and mortar without the blessing.

After more singing, in which we were delighted by Jimmy from Trinidad, the District Superintendent, W. R. Jones, gave a solemn warning from Ezekiel of the watchman's responsibilities. Men and women go over the precipice for the lack of one to warn them. The anointed singing of The Harvesters thrilled us all. The service was concluded by prayer from Rev. John Woodburn of Holy Trinity Church, who expressed his joy at the establishment of the Church and his fellowship with us.

The friends who had filled the building stayed for refreshments which, like the miracle of old, seemed to leave twelve baskets full when all were satisfied.

At 7 pm we reassembled for more blessing. This time Mr. Chapman was the speaker. We were reminded of the glory of the latter house and of our duty to the world outside, that the church is built up from the inside by those who bring others in. Mrs. Chapman sang a solo and we enjoyed further items from the choir.

On the Sunday began our Crusade with Pastor J. Osman as the speaker at each meeting. Mrs. Osman gave testimony of God's leading and healing during the evening services. The Evangel Choir were with us all Sunday and The Harvesters visited again during the week. Both Mr. and Mrs. Osman sang the Gospel and at the Sunday Melody Hour their daughter Pam accompanied herself on the guitar. Other singers who assisted included Mrs. Ledger of Taunton and Mr. and Mrs. E. Jones of Bridgwater. The meetings were blessed and several Sunday School scholars, among others, went forward for salvation. The showing of some Fact and Faith Films proved of real interest to both old and young.

We pray that our new building will be the birthplace and the home of many in the days to come.

F. LIVINGS, Pastor.

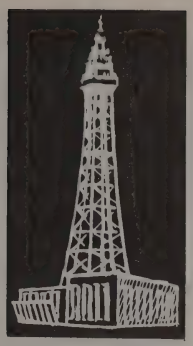
CONFERENCE, 1973, features largely in this issue. Thoughts flood into the mind as one contemplates the very word. What a sight it is at the start when friends greet one another; "Family" is exactly the right word for Elim on these marvellous occasions. Our numbers were again an increase on the previous year and this was evident even during the first weekend, before some of the delegates, who remained to minister in their churches on the Sunday, had even arrived.

The Ghana afternoon on the Thursday will live in the minds of those who were privileged to be present. The ministry of Chairman James McKeown of Church of Pentecost was statesmanlike, mature; he is cast in the mould of the Pentecostal pioneers. The summary given by Joseph Egyir-Paintsil, Secretary of our sister Movement, was illuminating and challenging. The Mills' family (we can't forget sweet little Erica sitting there so beautifully and joining in the clapping!) did splendidly. Mrs. McKeown graciously and warmly made her contribution, too. To those of us who have been privileged to visit Ghana, it was a moving afternoon of memory. Thank you, beloved friends!

The evening meetings were grand and the last one was truly the highlight. Ministry by Eric C. Dando and J. Philip Hogan during the week was of the highest. Our own men fell behind not one whit. From 7.45 a.m. throughout the crowded schedule of meetings each day, God's servants gave of their best, and that's saying something! Thank you, brethren, and thank You, Lord.

The music was marvellous. Geoff Cooper and W. Ll. Bell accompanied with accomplishment and great sympathy. Leslie Wigglesworth did a magnificent job as choir leader and as soloist. The items throughout were of a high standard of musicianship and of dedication.

We place on record our great gratitude for the very many who helped behind the scenes. Our Conference takes some organising and the ready and untiring co-operation of so many is tremendously encouraging and recalled with hearty thanks.



Our President, John Lancaster, began the Conference with a masterly address. You will be able to read the outline in next week's EVANGEL. Chairing the Conference sessions is not easy and we appreciated our brother's ready sympathy and his delightful flashes of humour.

I HAVE long felt that the Ascension is a neglected feature in Pentecostal circles. For this reason alone I like to include articles on the subject near to Ascension Day. You will find two contributions in this issue from P.K.G. Rose and K.J. Marriott respectively. May God use them mightily!

Blackpool '73

Grand opening week-end

by Ron Jones

WARM handshakes and "hellos" are the order on the opening day of this year's conference. It is good to see so many Pentecostal folk. This is Elim's largest conference ever.

Pontin's have actually laid down the carpet for us. True it is not a red one, but it certainly makes a difference to the chalets. As far as I'm concerned, however, the most exciting new addition is central heating in every room.

I make my way to the induction service of our new President, Pastor John Lancaster. There is great expectancy in our hearts as Pastor T.W. Walker declares, "Isn't Christian fellowship lovely!". He seems to sense our longings as he invites ut to sing the opening hymn, "Send the Fire". In the prayer-time that follows the words of Pastor J.T. Bradley echo around this large Princes Theatre, "Work among us according to Your great power, that this Conference will be one to be remembered".

Pastor Walker, the retiring President, expresses his thanks to God for a presidential year that has thrilled and encouraged him, because God is moving. He also expresses his thanks for the kindly hospitality received in Elim homes and it seems that he has acquired an extra twelve pounds in weight to prove it!

We say to Pastor Walker a very sincere, "Thank you for your untiring service in and your excellent contribution to our Elim work and witness, not only during your year as our President, but in so many ways over so many years".

Now the retiring President passes on the charge to the new President and in what better way can this be done than by handing him a copy of the inspired Word of God?

Pastor Lancaster tells us that it was in Blackpool in 1944 that God called him to the ministry and now in Blackpool twenty-nine years later he is being inducted to the high office of Elim's President. Mrs. Dorothy Lancaster reads from John chapter 4. Some of the words leap out to meet me: "The fields are white unto harvest." Can it be that here is tonight's text?

The President welcomes our distinguished guests, Rev. James McKeown and Rev. J. Egyir-Paintsil, of the Church of Pentecost in Ghana, and Dr. J. Philip Hogan of the Assemblies of God in America.

The time has come for the Presidential address, The text is announced: "The fields are white unto harvest". Read this most challenging message in a later EVANGEL. Thank you, Mr. President, and may God give you a tremendous year of office. After such a message nothing could be more appropriate than our closing hymn: "O Church of God, Thy Lord hath chosen thee".

I take a quick glance at my watch. It will soon be time for late night special. Some of our very fine missionaries are there, Joan Caudell, David and Margaret Mills, Ian and Valerie MacInnes and our special guests. They all have thrilling stories to tell. Carol Horner sets the place alight as she tells of her recent miraculous healing from multiple sclerosis. There are singing, more testimonies, more musical features and Willie Bell. Just for the record this late night special is being conducted by one named Ron Jones.

Now it's Sunday – the Lord's Day. At 8 a.m. Pastor H.W. Greenway leads the singing of a hymn that causes my Welsh blood to tingle:– "O the deep, deep love of Jesus". It cannot be coincidence that Willie Bell chooses for his solo, – "Dwell deep in the love of the Saviour". Pastor A.F. Seeman, Minister of our Ballysillan Church, expresses the thanks of our friends in Northern Ireland for upholding prayer and then brings a thrilling message on, "Seeing we have received this ministry, we faint not".

It is now 11 a.m. and Pastor A.S.F. Horne commences the Communion Service with the words, "I'm going to enjoy this service". There is nothing quite like Pentecostal believers meeting around the Lord's Table. The worshipful singing of "How marvellous, how wonderful" is inspiring. The preacher is Dr. Philip Hogan, who reminds us that the way to know Jesus is by revelation. I like this man's forthrightness as he almost commands, "Let your faith surmount your common sense and step out to obey God". There is worship in word and song, but I wish that we could get more of the full value of the operation of the Gifts of the Spirit on these great occasions.

The afternoon weather is not ideal for the open-air witness, but Pastors A.D. Sandford, R. Clarke, and P. Watson certainly take full advantage of the opportunity with clear-cut Gospel messages.

At the Sunday evening evangelistic outreach in the Princes Theatre, the President convenes, Pastor Egyir-Paintsil brings radiant testimony, the Conference choir sings. Greetings to the Conference from Pastor and Mrs. Robert Bradley, now in Tasmania, and from Pastor and Mrs. Charles Yates (Canada) are read. All is now ready for Pastor Tony Chamberlain to bring us the message. . . and a great message it is. The theme is, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." A number of people commit their lives to the Master.

My space has gone, but this is wonderful, and THIS IS ONLY THE BEGINNING. . . HALLELUJAH!

Monday

by A. J. Downes

MONDAY morning blues are impossible when you are caught up in the spiritual atmosphere which prevails at the Elim Conference. What a joy it is to join the many from all walks of life making their way to the early morning worship in the Princes Theatre. At the commencement of the service Pastor G.W. Gilpin reminds us of the importance of starting the day with God. The note of praise rings out in our first hymn, "Cleansing-for me". Pastor J. Egyir-Paintsil leads us in prayer. The preacher, Pastor S.J. Brown, speaks from Exodus 3:1-10 and reminds us how Moses had renounced the throne of Egypt, choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God. As he stood at the burning bush the old Moses died and a new Moses came into being. God is calling us to turn aside, "Come and I will send thee". The hymn, "My faith looks up to Thee" brings this morning meeting to a close.

It is now 10 a.m. and we are in the Embassy Ballroom listening to Pastor Gilpin as he explains the important work the Elim Bible College is doing in seeking to train men and women for the Lord's service. This session is the Elim Bible College Workshop. On display we have Pastor D.W. Cartwright, who lectures on the history of the Bible, Pastor W.J. Maybin, who lectures on the Major Prophets, Pastor I.R. Hall, B.D., who lectures on modern trends in theology, Mr. V. Fisher, who looks after the studio, Pastor H. Palliser, who lectures on New Testament subjects, and Mrs. Gilpin, who deals with the sermon criticism class. Listening to these various subjects being explained one realises a little of the wonderful work being done in the E.B.C.

At 11.15 a.m. we wait with expectancy for the Bible Study which is to be given by Dr. Philip Hogan, Executive Director of the Foreign Missions Department of the A.O.G. in U.S.A. Pastor J.C. Kennedy convenes this meeting. The opening hymn is, "Oh for a thousand tongues to sing." Dr. Hogan reads Hebrews 4: 1-8. He then reminds us of Luke 18:8 where the question is asked, "Shall He find faith on earth?". Turning to Hebrews 4:2, he brings to our attention the fact that "the word preached did not profit them, not being mixed with faith in them that heard it". There are two vital elements in Christian living - to hear the truth, and to do something about it. Faith is always an act, the taking a step of one kind or another. Faith sometimes has to be tested by the test of time.

It is now 2.30 p.m., time for the representatives of the Ministerial session to gather for business. You will be pleased to know that twelve young men will be ordained in September of this year.

It is now 7.15 p.m. and the Princes Theatre is crowded for the commencement of the evening convention rally. Pastor J.T. Bradley convenes this great gathering. We commence with the hymn, "Hark 'tis the final trumpet pealing thro' the skies". Pastor A.B. Tee leads us in prayer. Pastor A.A. Biddle reads Revelation 22:1-6. In the absence of Pastor Gray the Conference Choir is conducted by Pastor L. Wigglesworth. Our hearts are blessed as they sing, "God's Love". Testimony time brings two young ladies from the Far East, whom Pastor E.R. Corsie says he is charmed to introduce, Kath Chew from Singapore, and Delphina Samuel from West Pakistan. The Southport Choir sings to us, conducted by Pastor Tee. A trio from Southport brings a lovely message in song. The speaker is Pastor L.E. Lambert. His text is Revelation 22:4: "and they shall see His face." Here are his six points: We shall see Him as He is and not as He was; When we see Him we will be satisfied; When we see Him we will be transformed; When we see Him we will understand; When we see Him it will be a reflection of what we are; When we see Him we will fall down and worship Him. All of us will remember this tremendous message all our days. This great service is brought to a close with, "We shall see His lovely face".

We are now in the Embassy Ballroom again. The time is 9.45 p.m. Our friends from Ulster are to conduct this Late Night Special. Pastor D.J. Ayling convenes. How our hearts are touched as we listen to the happenings in that land. In spite of all the difficulties, God is moving by His Spirit. In the last three years a new church has been opened in Ulster each year, praise the Lord. Testimony time comes from the youngest and then from the oldest Elim Churches. We are thanked for our prayers and told that God gives strength just for the hour. Testimony is given by a Roman Catholic nurse who had been saved by God's wonderful grace. Miss Neville tells us of the wonderful work she and Miss Kelly are doing in preaching the Gospel around Ireland. How thrilling it is to hear how God saved and called our sisters into His service. Starting out with just a suitcase and a bicycle Miss Neville has held missions down through the years and discovered how God has wonderfully met every need. Her love for souls is wonderful. Pastor A. Wilson tells us how God is answering prayer. Not one member of the Elim Family has suffered during this time. He reminds us of the faithful band of Elim Ministers who have stood by their churches when they could have asked for a move back to the mainland. "Pray, pray, pray" were his closing words. The hymn "Great is Thy Faithfulness" brought this meeting to a close. As we wend our ways to our chalets we cannot help but thank God for this great Elim Family and for the privilege of serving in its ranks.

Tuesday

Our Reporter: F. E. Croker

TUESDAY traditionally sees the opening of the meetings of the Representative Session of the Conference when Ministers and Lay Representatives consider the Movement's business and reports on the different departments. God is richly blessing every aspect of the work of Elim, at home and overseas, in all age groups and in varying forms of ministry. Pioneer crusades have seen the salvation of many souls and the opening of new Elim Churches at Aylesbury, Birkenhead, Broadstairs, Epping, South Shields and Weston-Super-Mare. Church crusades have also been held. Buildings have been purchased, aided by the "Helps" scheme, to house congregations.

"The growth of the Church overseas with the involvement of national ministers is most encouraging," reports the Missionary Secretary, a thrilling concept of contemporary overseas' evangelism. Messages of Christian love were sent to all missionaries. Two vehicles have been obtained through Green Shield Stamp books schemes for use on mission stations. Mention must be made of the magnificent missionary support given by E.W.M.A. branches and the "Project the Gospel" scheme organised by the Youth Department.

Inspiring reports on the Youth work and the Elim Bible College referred to the tremendous work being done. The fine work of the Elim Eventide Home, under its Matron, Miss M. Hopper, the Publications Board and Grenehurst Press (manager: Pastor G.A. Wright) were reported on while a highly satisfactory and sound financial standing for the Movement was evinced from the accounts and financial report.

A number of our ministers reported that they have fruitfully availed themselves of opportunities of presenting the gospel through national and local radio and television, at home and overseas. Delegates sent a congratulatory message to D.B. Gray and the London Crusader Choir on the completion of forty years unbroken musical ministry and evangelism in British prisons – a magnificent achievement.

A happy event was the accepting of new Churches at Antrim, Broadstairs, Epping, Exmouth, South Shields and Weston-Super-Mare.

The scrutineers announced the outcome of voting for the Executive Council, with W.R. Jones, J. Lancaster and J.C. Smyth re-elected for another term of office and A.B. Tee elected for the first time. Conference delegates gave a standing ovation to H.W. Greenway on his retirement from the Council in acknowledgement and appreciation of over thirty years of loyal and excellent service. He continues as an emeritus member of the Council. G. Canty was elected President-Elect, this honour being conferred on him for his many years of faithful and fruitful, pastoral and evangelical ministry in Elim.

Pre-occupation with the business side is not the sole purpose of the Conference. The spiritual aspect plays an important and increasing part.

One of our esteemed visiting ministers, Dr. J. P. Hogan, from U.S.A. was guest speaker at both the early morning devotional service and the evening rally. His ministry on the sovereignty of God in the morning and on the Kingdom of Jesus Christ in the evening brought blessing and uplift to crowded congregations. Dr. Hogan also, during the day, continued his instructive and informative exposition on the subject of faith.

Special meetings and activities for children were conducted by Pastors Peter Sanderson and Adrian Hawkes, while helpful guidance and instruction for Sunday school workers was imparted in a Sunday school workshop by Pastor Derek Green.

In the euphemistically named "Smugglers' Bar", ministers' wives met, under the leadership of Mrs. D. Lancaster, wife of the President, in the afternoon, to discuss problems posed from among their own number. At night, this centre was used by Pastor David Woodfield and the young people for coffee-bar evangelism among the camp staff, three of whom were counselled. Others were very impressed and interested.

The participation of students from the Elim Bible College is a feature of Conference week. Their musical ministry, under the leadership of Douglas Fincher, and testimonies during the evening rally, was anointed. Congratulations to Maldwyn Jones and Lionel Currie on being presented by the President with thesis prizes for post-graduate studies (Maldwyn Jones for the second year in succession). Later the students ministered in the "Late Night Special". The future of Elim is assured with such dedicated and devoted, talented, tireless young men and women. Much credit is due to Pastor and Mrs. G.W. Gilpin for the magnificent manner in which they care and cater for their charges.

Late at night, at a prayer and tarrying meeting conducted by Pastor A.V. Gorton, fifteen were baptised in the Holy Spirit. A number had also been baptised earlier in the day during the Bible study hour.

This was a full day, a great day, a blessed day. To God be all the glory!

Wednesday

Reported by Gerald L. W. Ladlow

THE refreshing ministry of Pastor Brian Hayes of Edinburgh, with its apt illustrations drawn from the Scottish countryside as he compared and contrasted the prophets Elijah and Elisha, gave an excellent spiritual start to a day of biting winds, dark skies and torrential rain. How thankful Conference visitors must have been for the rich spiritual provision and variety of services arranged for them throughout the day, for these more than compensated for the trials of our English weather!

Dr. Philip Hogan continued his Bible studies and gave an exposition of Hebrews 11:5-10, which I am told was a rich spiritual feast. This made me almost wish that I could have shirked my responsibility to attend the Conference business session, but I came as a delegate and so I took my place in the Conference hall and settled down to listen to the speakers and register my votes. At the commencement, the President gave a welcome to our visitors, Rev. and Mrs. David Newington from Nelspruit, South Africa. Brother David in his usual breezy, enthusiastic manner gave a thrilling report of the work of Emmanuel Press, in which our Elim Missionary Society has a leading part. It certainly was good to hear of the millions of pieces of Christian literature coming from the press in so many African languages.

The business began with the announcement of the result of the voting for committees, which showed that all retiring members had been re-elected and that Pastor E.R. Corsie had been elected to the Bible College Council to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement through ill-health of Pastor H. Burton-Haynes. The Principal spoke appreciatively of the splendid work of Mr. Haynes in past years and expressed his hope and prayer for his complete recovery. Pastor J.C. Smyth presented the Financial Report and dealt with matters connected with the accounts of central funds. It was good to see how wonderfully God has met our needs and we give Him all the praise. We were reminded, however, that the cost of the Royal Albert Hall and the expenses incurred have risen at a phenomenal rate and almost £2,000 would be necessary to meet the expenses this year. The increasing deficit has to be met from central funds and the hope was expressed that, despite this, we may still be able to continue this great annual witness.

The major debate of the day concerned an Executive proposal for the creation of a new office of General Superintendent to replace those of Secretary-General and President. Pastor T.W. Walker very ably presented the motion and outlined the principle and the various changes in the Constitution that would be necessary. The Conference obviously felt that there was much that was good in the proposals, but some matters were unacceptable. In its wisdom, therefore, it did not vote on the motion, but passed to the next business.

In the afternoon the Women's Rally was ably convened by Mrs. J. Lancaster. A large congregation, which included coach parties who had come for the day, heard Mrs. I. Davies, widow of the late Pastor Granville Davies, give an inspiring address. The basis of her message was her personal experience of the power and presence of God when suffering from cancer and of her ultimate deliverance. During the service Mrs. Carol Horner of Sheffield gave a moving account of her recent healing from multiple sclerosis. Mrs. Gorton gave the annual report of the E.W.M.A. and there was great rejoicing when she said that the total for the year was a record, exceeding £7,000. Items by a group of Irish sisters and the Women's Choir, so ably led by Pastor Wigglesworth, and solos by Mrs. R.B. Chapman were much appreciated.

In the afternoon session of the Conference, the recommendations of the Salary Committee were accepted and also a recommendation to increase the annual holidays of ministers and probationers by one week, thus bringing them into line with industry and the professions. Pastor Archie Nicolson spoke on the need to make our position clear in respect to our non-affiliation with the ecumenical movement as embodied in the World Council of Churches and a proposal to this effect was adopted. There was general agreement that true ecumenicity is found only in the Spirit among truly born-again believers. The position of young ladies after receiving training at the Elim Bible College was the concern of many ministers and it was agreed to set up a study group to investigate the possibility of more involvement by ladies in the service and work of our churches.

The annual Home Missions Rally was held in the evening. It was convened by Pastor Ron Jones. Pastor P.S. Brewster gave an address on "The Doors of Opportunity" found in the New Testament. All must surely agree with him that the need of our day is for the Church to boldly enter the many doors of opportunity that are now open to us. The special offering for home evangelism amounted to £387. The day closed with the late night special conducted by the Evangelistic Committee, and a practical outreach in evangelism in "The Smugglers' Bar" where over coffee testimony in word and song was specially presented to the staff of Pontin's Camp.

F. E. Croker G. Canty

Thursday

by David Ayling

"PRAISE is a vocation, not a reaction" – the very first words of the Morning Ministry set the tone for the day. This was one of the stimulating thoughts given by Pastor C.J. Watkins as he spoke on the theme of Psalm 150, "Praise ye the Lord". The congregation swelled the chorus in their time of prayer. So we went to breakfast.

The E.C.I. Conference at 10 o'clock was sweetened by letters from ministers unable to attend. These took the formality out of this small section of the general Conference and gave it a flavour of its own. Then we joined the crowds in the great Communion service. Pastor Ian R. Moore led our thoughts to Mary, in his message on the cross and the compensations of being a chosen vessel. A number of retiring Elim ministers took the platform to receive their cheques at the end of their sphere of active duty. Between them they spanned many lifetimes and took our thoughts back to the days of those great revival meetings under Principal George Jeffreys. Their very names are a catalogue of Elim history: Pastors A.V. Gorton, J.C. Kennedy, Len Knipe, Harry Palliser and R.R. Taylor, each with his own distinctive ministry and savour of the Gospel. Pastors H. Burton-Haynes and W.J. Hilliard, though unable to be present, were also remembered. The sweetness of worship culminated with the breaking of bread at which ministers served the emblems to the great congregation that filled the Princes Theatre.

Missionaries and workers from Ghana brought a splash of tropical sunshine to those who gathered for the special Ghana service at 3 o'clock. Their real joy was expressed in both their singing and speaking and the congregation responded with further praise. How we thank God for the growing strength of our sister-fellowship in Ghana where our missionaries David and Margaret Mills and David and Margaret Kilpatrick are bringing a real contribution. The ministry of James McKeown and J. Egyir-Paintsil and the report of 1,400 churches and 200,000 Christians in fellowship with us there were breathtaking.

The day of praise continued and swelled and the crowds gathered for the closing missionary rally at night. The hall was filled to capacity. Joan Caudell of Rhodesia, Valerie and Ian MacInnes of Guyana, David Mills and James McKeown of Ghana, and Henry Jeffery, fresh from Brazil, each brought us more cause for rejoicing. Later that night your reporter covered the four events that are held concurrently at the end of every day. First there was the showing of a film, "Zaire River", in the Princes Theatre. The Embassy Ballroom held a Late Night Special conducted by the Elim Youth Department. In the Embassy Bar there were many people on their knees seeking the Spirit of a different kind and in the Smugglers' Bar coffee-bar evangelism conducted by Pastor David Woodfield and his team continued until late at night.

If praise is a vocation, a calling, then today we have been taught something more of it. God grant that we shall have learned the lessons well!

The last Day of the Conference

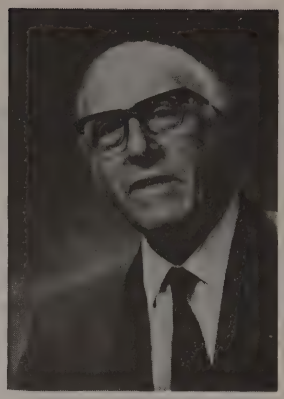
Our Reporter: F. H. Coleman

THE last great day of the feast was a day full of good things, which had been so well planned for us.

We welcome another guest speaker, Pastor Eric Dando, of our sister fellowship, the Assemblies of God. He spoke twice, once at the early morning devotions to the crowd who came to hear about and to see Jesus. We were not disappointed. William Ll. Bell sang to us beautifully and we settled down to hear the word on the text, "The Tabernacle shall be sanctified by my glory". "God", said Mr. Dando, "is a great coverer. Our sins are covered with the blood". He went on to say that a Pentecostal meeting is not taken up with Pentecost, but exalts Christ. The Holy Spirit has come to magnify Christ.

During the day I visited the sun lounge to see the various stalls. There was the bookstall, stacked with books of hundreds of titles, a choice and range of price to suit all pockets. Another stall, which never failed to attract the crowds, was that of the Elim Women's Missionary Auxiliary. Here I was told that the ladies of Elim had handed to the Elim Missionary Society over £31,000. This year alone £7,598 had been handed to Pastor L. Wigglesworth for the mission field. Well done, ladies! This stall had attracted many of Pontin's staff which afforded a wonderful opportunity of witness. Space forbids me to tell of the youth, missionary and other stalls. I salute those workers who gave of their time and strength to make these stalls so attractive to all.

How time flies! Two meetings were soon to commence – the Bible study and the children's feature. The study of God's Word is given by Dr. Philip Hogan. He spoke on the growth of the Church. Some preachers give the impression that, since they were appointed to a church, it was they, not the Word, which caused the church to grow. While pastors are God's gift to the Church, the Church really grows as the Word of God grows. Read the Acts of the Apostles.



Each morning and evening there is a children's feature. The younger pastors are responsible for these features, which often last for an hour and a half. Going to the evening feature, what a surprise it was to see a boy of eleven years playing the grand piano like a campaign pianist. Evangelists please note for the future.

The evening meal is over. People are hurrying for the Rally in the 1,500 seater Princes Theatre. It is filled to capacity, extra seating is brought in and then some remain standing. The meeting is in full swing, led by Pastor J.C. Smyth in his own inimitable way. The choir sings. There is a hush as the great congregation listens to the miraculous healing of a sister from Sheffield who, just a few weeks before, was healed of multiple sclerosis. More singing follows, then the preacher is on his feet. The Word goes forth and at the close many respond to an appeal to go forward for salvation, dedication, healing and blessing.

A hurried cup of tea and the late night special begins. The stalls are being dismantled in the sun lounge. People are being filled with the Spirit in the tarrying service. The last day of the Conference has ended. Saturday morning has arrived. The speaker at Morning Ministry is Pastor D.W. Cartwright and the convener is Pastor L. Wigglesworth.

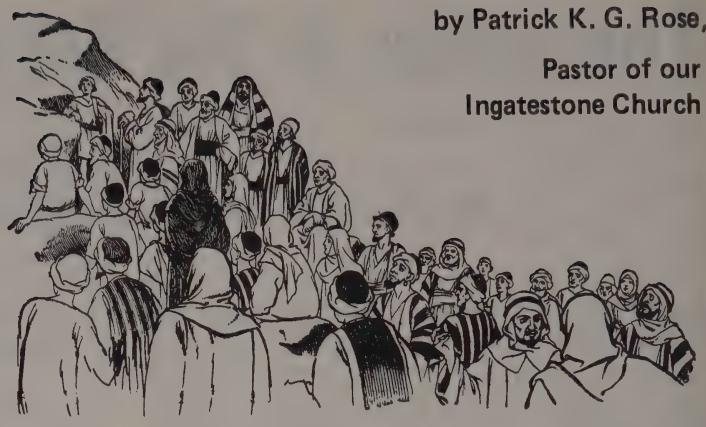
Hurried goodbyes are said; "See you next year!", and we are gone. It has been a wonderful conference, packed with good things. Perhaps you were there with us. Why not plan to come next year, D.V.?

The Letter to the Romans

29. Part III. Practical (12:1—15:33)

by J. Alexander Wright

FROM the inner dedication (12:1,2) comes the outward manifestation, the expressing of that will of God in the service of the Saviour, the saints, sinners and the state. "The grace given to me" (v.3) was the apostolic grace (1:5). For every vocation and task "a special grace is bestowed on each of us" (A.S.Way). After calling us to a sober self-evaluation of ourselves in the fellowship of the Church – "Don't cherish exaggerated ideas of yourself or your importance" (vv.3,4 Phillips), ever the obstacle, distorting and disabling us – he lists six or more gifts (charismata) of the Holy Spirit, some of which are additional to the nine gifts of the Spirit in 1 Corinthians 12:7—11. This ministry of the body of Christ (vv.5,6) is clearly seen to be functional and not in mere status. Status is nothing; function is everything. He is no shepherd who does not shepherd. "Prophecy" (v.6) is preferred above all others (1 Corinthians 14:1). This is that ability to speak under divine inspiration for the uplift of all: "according to the proportion of faith", i.e. never beyond what you sincerely believe, "to the limit of your vision" (Phillips). "Ministry" (v.7) is not necessarily speaking, but includes "all forms of service" (Moffatt). "Wait on it", whatever your gift, "concentrate" (Phillips), "mind what you are doing" (Moffatt). The Methodists used to have a rank of preachers called "Exhorters". Do not presume to open your mouth wide that the Lord may fill it (Psalm 81:10); this was written for hungry fledglings, not lazy preachers! "Give yourselves to the Word" (Acts 6:4). "Giving" (v.8) – what a grace, especially for the wealthy (A.S. Way) – "with simplicity" means with singleness of motive, but it also carries the idea of liberality (most versions), "with all your heart" (N.E.B.). Your heart should go with your disbursements. "He that ruleth" (v.8) indicates leadership with diligence, "stimulated by your own enthusiasm" (A.S.Way).



Following these, in the remainder of the chapter, the apostle enumerates a dozen different situations and relationships of life, in all of which we may exemplify the spirit and attitudes of our Lord and Master. They echo the Sermon on the Mount and show how deeply Paul had imbibed His spirit.

Civic duties are set out in 13:1—7. In general, the precepts apply to all times and places, though they would be inapplicable in some specific cases. The apostle asks for our homage and respect to the ideal of Law as a symbol, rather than to any mere ruler of the time. "The magistrate may be a greater criminal than the prisoner in the dock" (J. Parker). Local background will help us here. As this Letter was being written, a decree was extant banishing all Jews from Rome as trouble-makers and rebels against Caesar's government (Acts 18:2). Many of these were Christians, like Aquila and Priscilla, for it was also believed that the new and growing Christian faith was political in its aims. Conscious that his readers were under the eagle eye of the imperial power (there were spies in the Early Church meetings!), this Letter might fall into the hands of the Roman authorities. They would see from it that Christians were not "mixed up with politics" – and how clever of Paul to drop a few hints to Roman magistrates as to their duties and responsibilities! These words of the apostle have often been quoted in defence of tyrants and crooked systems of government, but he never made any government the keeper of a believer's conscience. Acts 5:29 must ever apply. In their present situation he was not merely counselling prudence, for good citizenship is a matter of Christian conscience and duty. Our Lord did not resist authority. He paid His taxes, Jewish and Roman, "rendering to Caesar", and refused to be an arbiter of the law of the land.

"Why stand ye gazing?"

by Patrick K. G. Rose,
Pastor of our
Ingatestone Church

SECONDS were slipping into history following the Ascension of our Lord, that moment when gravity bowed to the greater force. Question-begging seconds, charged with the emotions of separation were seconds wasting away, time so vital to God that He despatched two heavenly messengers to get the disciples moving and obeying.

God did not allow those disciples the mistake of wasted time, nor does He us. The Ascension revalued time, multiplying it by every disciple who would appropriate the power and labour in the promise: "The works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father." No circumstance or attraction must be allowed to filch God's time. Therefore, in the magnitude of Ascension truth, we ask simply: "Why stand ye gazing?"

When Heaven is Open

Why, may we enquire, are prayer and worship the neglected exercises and their athletes so few? Why are they hustled and bustled into any old corner of life while this needy world cries out for a Saviour and parched lives thirst for the truth? Schemes, programmes and people can achieve nothing eternally durable unless we see and believe again in all the resources of an open heaven.

Watch that man Stephen in the act of martyrdom pray: "Lord, lay not this sin to their charge", and be sure to observe that he is the same one who declared, "Behold, I see the heavens opened, and the Son of man standing on the right hand of God". If we are to pray with compassion and force we must, as did Stephen, behold the holiness and glory of God and His Son in an open heaven.

When Christ is Blessing.

As He did at His Ascension, so he does today. His ministry of blessing has never ceased, for "this Man, because He continueth ever, hath an unchangeable priesthood. Wherefore He is able to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by Him, seeing He ever liveth to make intercession for them." Then let Holy Oracles enquire, "Why art thou cast down, O my soul? and why are thou disquieted in me?" On what circumstance or mood have we gazed while Satan has robbed and plundered us of blessing and the "uttermost" experience? Where was it that we forgot to hope in God?

Let us never be so destitute of spiritual values as to seek the transient materialistic blessing of those who believed because of the loaves and fishes, but let us rather turn our eyes upon Him who makes "all things work together for good to them that love God" and who causes the fruit of our lives to remain.

When the Comforter has come

Third-generation Pentecostal believer, where are you gazing? Is it backward, a nostalgic reminiscence of bygone days? Is it inward, the dreamy, slumbering gaze of those who have "fared sumptuously", but who have forgotten that food is intended to produce energy for work? Is it downward, the somewhat sceptical, minute analysis of everything charismatic that is taking place before our eyes? Is it upward and outward towards the tree tops where we hear "the sound of marching" (R.V.) and hearing cry, "We need revival! We must have revival!".

Let us move quickly from Olivet, the place of parting and gazing, to Jerusalem, the place of filling and service, there to present ourselves through Christ's blood as living sacrifices unto God, that the fire of the Holy Spirit may cause our lives to radiate with fruit and gifts for his glory in this dark world.

When all Power has been given to Christ

"All power is given unto Me in heaven and in earth. Go ye therefore . . . I am with you alway". This truth is the driving force behind world evangelism. At its utterance devils trembled. At its practice darkness fled from light, millions of lives were changed and made eternally secure in Christ. We know and love this truth. What are we doing with it?

Imagine a brave warrior receiving the gift of a new sword, then watch as delightedly he admires its point, edge, beauty and balance. It is given pride of place in his house. He lavishes care on it, dreams of doing exploits with it. Suddenly the enemy is upon him in reality. He takes his sword, but, alas, in battle they are not as one, for he has never trained with it. Soon he lies mortally wounded and his house is plundered. Let us rather be like Eleazar, the son of Dodo, one of David's mighty men who "arose and smote the Philistines until his hand was weary, and his hand clave unto the sword and the Lord wrought a great victory that day; and the people returned after him only to spoil."

When the Lord is working

Speaking of rank and position, we say that our Queen is on the throne. Likewise, Mark says of Jesus that he "sat down on the right hand of God". Both Stephen and John saw him standing, however. Jesus has paid the price of redemption, "it is finished", but regarding the winning of the lost he is actively, energetically involved.

Stephen had witnessed conversions, changed lives, healings, miracles, prisoners set free from the dark dungeons of evil and Satan's power broken. He knew that these blessings followed the preaching of the Word. As he concluded his last great sermon, see that expectant heavenward gaze! The answer came, consciences were harpooned and reacted with all the fury of the wounded beast. Soon Stephen was with the Lord. Before long another onlooker lay slain by the power of God in Damascus Road to serve Him as the apostle to the Gentiles.

When Jesus walks in the Churches

John saw the ascended Lord among the seven golden candlesticks representing the churches of Asia. We have Christ's promise to be with the smallest plurality of those who meet in His name. To Him the few are as important as the many. To loyal Philadelphian Churches, where His real presence is truly acknowledged and where men's gaze is expectantly towards Him, the doors of blessing and opportunity are thrown wide open. Such has been the case with St. Cuthbert's Church, York. When David Watson took over, he found a congregation of six people. They began praying and in consequence the enlarged congregation outgrew their building in only a few years to move into the larger St. Michael-le-Belfrey and they have now been offered York Minster for their lunch-time evangelistic services. Just before Christmas 2,600 people attended one of their special guest services in the Minster. "I have set before thee an open door, and no man can shut it" (Revelation 3:8).

When He holds His Ministers in His Hands

In his vision of the ascended Lord, John noticed that Jesus held seven stars in His hand, the seven angels or messengers of the Churches of Asia. What strength of encouragement lies here for those specially commissioned by God and sent forth as messengers of divine truth! Such a one is a star because he illuminates with the brightness of the Holy Spirit, his shining thus guiding many to heaven, because he is held in his place by the almighty hand of Jesus by whose power and authority the worlds hang in space, because by the light of the gospel he reveals the track and course of men's lives.

John knew the strength of that hand when he wrote; "I was in the Spirit – rapt in His power" (Amp. V.). As we turn from the preoccupations of ministerial responsibility to gaze again at the nailprint, we are moved to repeat the great words of C.T. Studd, missionary pioneer to the Congo: "If Jesus Christ be God and died for me, then no sacrifice can be too great for me to make for Him."

When Christ longs to sup with His People

The Laodicean situation was that of compromise and mixture, to God, as is revealed under old and new covenants, a sickening situation. It seems that people were materially prosperous, yet spiritually poor, just like these days, when more and more of the material and physical side of life is being dished up on the self-service counters of the world, tempting to covetousness and greed, beguiling, intoxicating and ensnaring as surely as any drug. How easy it is for the Christian to find himself gazing at the display, toying with the goods, finally buying that "which is not bread" and "that which satisfieth not", while Christ stands outside yearning for a chance to satisfy man's deepest needs. Turn your eyes upon the One who yearns to fellowship with you. "Eat that which is good, and let your soul delight itself in fatness.

On the island of Patmos, prison conditions produced in John the experiences of "tribulation" and "patience", yet it was there that he responded to the voice of Jesus. Has he said to you: "Why stand ye gazing at such a time as this?" Is it not time to turn our gaze from the fleeing landscape of life to the constant, unchangeable face of Jesus? Hear John again: "I turned to see the voice that spoke with me, and being turned, I saw" What revelations! What mighty expressions of the purposes of God! What service rendered!

Lord, we would gaze on You, and seeing You, we would serve You. Amen.

Not like Rufinus

by K. J. Marriott, Pastor of our Knottingley Church

WHEN the Tabernacle was reared up in the wilderness, a cloud covered the Tent of the Congregation and the glory of the Lord filled the Tabernacle (Exodus 40:34). It was a cloud of divine presence.

As Jesus stood on the Mount of Transfiguration with Peter, James and John, a bright cloud overshadowed them and a voice out of the cloud spoke to them (Matthew 17:5). Again, it was a cloud of divine presence (2 Peter 1:17).

On the Day of Ascension, Jesus stood on Mount Olivet, His hands raised in blessing, when literally He began to rise and, as He did so, a cloud received Him out of their sight, a cloud, not of our atmosphere, but the cloud of divine presence. Jesus was being transported to heaven in the glory cloud. Divine presence had enveloped Him, and His followers, gazing steadfastly, could see Him no more. As He disappeared from view, two men in white apparel suddenly appeared and spoke only one sentence to them, but it was sufficient to challenge, bless and reassure them: "Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen Him go into heaven" (Acts 1:11). How wonderful is the Lord, that He should send those two messengers just to speak for about fifteen seconds, yet their powerful words sent the disciples back to Jerusalem with great joy and in the attitude of worship.

We consider those words of Acts 1:11 first as a call to active participation. "Why stand ye gazing up into heaven?" the angels asked. The apostles were allowed to witness the Ascension, to share the climax of the Master's earthly ministry; now there was work to be done. The time for gazing was over; there was a world to be evangelized.

Rufinus was a monk of the fourth century, and no doubt a very sincere and brilliant scholar, but he spent a long time as a recluse on the Mount of Olives. Shutting himself away, he spent a long period gazing into heaven. The Lord does not desire His followers to be like Rufinus, but to follow the pattern of that group three hundred years before him, who left their unprofitable gazing to engage in fruitful evangelism. Their evangelistic ministry started with preparation, fellowship, prayer and worship. They were endued with the power of the Holy Spirit and began to fulfil the Commission for world evangelism. Those early witnesses were never too busy to pray, to break bread together, to join in fellowship with each other, and to visit the house of God regularly. Worship and witness go hand in hand. "Gazing" is time wasting. The message of Ascension Day is a call to mobilisation, to active service, to a practical, positive and valuable Christian life.

We may criticize the monk on the Mount of Olives for his inactivity and yet remain as inactive, living like spiritual hermits in our own unwalled monasteries, shut off from the unevangelised people who dwell around us. So often we are ready to state what we do not like, what we do not practise, to what we object. We live negative lives, so backward in proclaiming the positive message of the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ. The world needs Jesus and Jesus depends on dedicated, willing workers to preach the gospel of peace. How challenging are the apostle's words, "How shall they believe in Him of whom they have not heard? And how shall they hear without a preacher?" (Romans 10:14).

Active participation leads to thoughtful consideration: "This same Jesus, which is taken up into heaven". Christ Jesus, by ascending into heaven, did not go to a place where God the Word had not previously been, but to a place where the Word made flesh had not before been seated. The Ascension was a climax to a victorious earthly ministry. The Word entered into a known sphere; "flesh" was entering into an area never before ventured into. One of the Early Church writers described the entry of our Lord Jesus into heaven as follows: "His entry through the gates of Heaven struck its door-keepers and princes as something novel and, as they saw fleshy nature penetrating the secret recesses of heaven, they uttered to one another the words which David, under the Holy Spirit's influence foretold, 'Lift up your heads, O ye Gates, and be ye lift up, ye everlasting doors, and the King of Glory shall come in. Who is this King of Glory? The Lord strong and mighty, the Lord mighty in battle" (Psalm 24:7,8).

Ascension Day calls for our thoughtful consideration of His past earthly mission. Augustine wrote, "This is the festival which confirms the grace of all festivals together, without which the profitableness of every festival would have perished. For, unless the Saviour had ascended into heaven, His nativity would have come to nothing . . . His passion would have borne no fruit for us and His resurrection would have been useless".

It was a conquering Saviour who was "carried up into heaven". He had come to destroy the works of the devil, and destroy them He did!

Consider His incarnation. The Word became flesh; God became Man. J.G. Davies, in his Bampton Lectures, writes: "God put Himself in man's place at the Incarnation and Man was put in God's place at the Ascension". Our wonderful Saviour condescended to our wretched, low estate. It is sufficient to quote the definition of condescension: "stooping to equality with an inferior".

Reflect on His crucifixion. The beautiful words of Paul in Philippians 2:6–11 give us the circle of His journey from heaven to earth and back to heaven. At the cross He reached the extremity of His mission, when He suffered and died for our sins.

Contemplate His resurrection. Though the resurrection and the ascension are closely linked, we often fail to distinguish between them. They are, however, two distinct elements in the redemptive work of Christ. The resurrection was the vanquishing of death. Christ was alive and no longer subject to the conditions of mortality. The ascension was the crown and climax of His earthly mission. He was exalted to the right hand of God.

Ascension Day calls for our thoughtful consideration of His present heavenly ministry. When He ascended, He sent forth the Holy Spirit (Acts 2:33) and He gave gifts unto men (Ephesians 4:8–11). Believers can obtain mercy and find grace to help in time of need (Hebrews 4:14–16). He intercedes on our behalf (Romans 8:34). He has gone to prepare a place for us (John 14:1–3). The unconverted can be saved from sin (Hebrews 7:25).

He is an active High Priest, ministering on our behalf, and He is the King of Glory, displaying His kingship in various ways. He rules over the subjects of His kingdom and works with His people, confirming the Word with signs following. His kingdom is continually being extended. He is perfecting, directing, guiding and blessing His work on earth.

High in His holy seat He bears the righteous sway,
His foes beneath His feet shall sink and die away.
Join all on earth, rejoice and sing,
Glory ascribe to glory's King.

His past work and His present ministry demand our thoughtful consideration. This will help us to appreciate what He has accomplished for us and to rejoice in His triumph.

We may also share in joyful anticipation: "This same Jesus . . . shall so come in like manner as ye have seen Him go into heaven". The heavenly messengers reassured the startled apostles. There is something to look forward to: "this same Jesus" is coming again! Thank God for the abundance of Scriptures relating to the promises of His return. We may belong to different schools of thought, theories as to the chronological order of events concerning the end-time may differ, but the great message of the return of our Saviour is shared by us all: "Watch and be ready".

The Lord Jesus impressed it upon His followers that they ought to be alert, watchful, occupied in service, faithful in all things, throwing themselves completely into the work of the Kingdom. He is coming again and, as He departed in the cloud of divine presence, so we are told, He will come "in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory" (Matthew 24:30). "The dead in Christ shall rise first: Then we which are alive and remain, shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord" (1 Thessalonians 4:16,17).

As we await His glorious return, let us not be like Rufinus the recluse, but let us be believers working, witnessing, worshipping and watching, until the day we are caught up in the clouds of divine presence to meet our beloved Saviour.

The most important Thing

1 Samuel 16:1–13, Luke 6:45

Words and drawing by Sheila Price

THE prophet Samuel decided that he had worried over king Saul and his wicked deeds long enough. He prepared to go to Bethlehem to seek another king to take Saul's place. Knowing that Saul would kill him if he found out the purpose of the journey, Samuel pretended that he was going to Bethlehem to have a feast with the people there.

When Samuel arrived in Bethlehem, the elders of the town asked, "What do you want this time, Samuel? Do you come in peace or anger?".

"I come in peace", replied Samuel. "I am going to prepare a feast and I want you all to be there. I especially want Jesse and his sons to come, so go and tell them to get ready".

Everyone was gathered, eagerly waiting to begin. "There is something that I want to do before we start eating", Samuel said. "I want to see Jesse's sons".

One by one Jesse's sons went forward, each one tall, good-looking and smartly dressed. Samuel could see that they would all make fine kings, but something told him not to choose any of them. "Are you sure that all your sons are here?" he asked Jesse. "Yes, Samuel. Well, all but my youngest son, David, and he is out in the hills rounding up the sheep at the moment," was Jesse's reply.

"Then fetch him!" ordered Samuel, "The feast will not start until I have seen him!"

A messenger was sent to get David, who soon came running down from the hills. What a sight he looked in his dirty, ragged shepherd's clothes and dusty sandals, but God spoke to Samuel, telling him that he was to choose this young shepherd boy to be the future king. Samuel anointed David, making him a prince of all Israel.

Some people think that to be tall and handsome and to have a large house and fine clothes is the most wonderful thing in the whole world. God tells us that more important than all these is a good and clean heart, for He does not judge us by our smart clothes and good looks. God never looks at our outside appearance. He sees our hearts!

Thoughts from the Book of Genesis

27. Jacob and Esau (Genesis 25:29–34)

by F. Lavender, Pastor of our Croydon Church

THOUGH Esau and Jacob were twins, they were different from each other in character, for, while Esau was a "sporty" man who loved to hunt, Jacob was a quiet ("harmless" v.27, R.V. margin), home-loving man. What is more, Esau had no regard for the Lord and His promises, whereas Jacob had a deep desire for the blessing of God. As the firstborn, however, Esau would naturally inherit the blessing and, as he was, in addition, Isaac's favourite son, it seemed that Jacob would be excluded; yet Esau held the promises of God and His blessing in such contempt that he sold his birthright for a dish of stew and Jacob became the rightful heir of the covenant made by God with Abraham.

The two brothers represent two opposing ways of life. Esau was the materialist, so wrapped up in the things that he could see and touch that he missed the best and highest and only came to appreciate what he had lost when it was too late. Jacob saw that all he possessed could not be compared to the superior value of the promises of God. We must choose our life's direction, the way in which we would walk. We find it very easy to let the things of this life become supremely attractive – after all, these are things that we can touch and handle – yet the Lord Jesus calls us to seek first His Kingdom and His righteousness, and these we cannot see or touch. This age offers us such attractions that we can quickly lose our vision of the will of God and of His promises, but it is those who follow the call of God who inherit His blessing and who will finally hear His "Well done". Which way are we taking?

David Livingstone Centenary

I FIRST visited the Scottish National Memorial to David Livingstone in 1945. We were living in Glasgow at the time and travelled to Blantyre, some nine miles south, to his actual birthplace in Shuttle Row, a quaint, picturesque tenement built in 1780 on the banks of the Clyde. The building is part of the extensive Memorial Park. Opened in 1929, it was specially designed to attract and give pleasure to the Sunday school scholars of Scotland.

I must admit that I was deeply moved when, having climbed the stone spiral stairway, passing the old "jaw-boxes" in the walls, I entered the cosy room which was home to the Livingstone family. Just a single room, with two box beds in the wall recesses, no water supply, yet here David Livingstone was born and reared. There were seven in the household. These poor, working-class folk, were rich in love and had high standards of Christian conduct. It is worth recalling, too, that David Livingstone was greatly influenced by the godly men in the community, one of whom was David Hogg, who challenged him on his deathbed: "Now lad, make religion the everyday business of your life and not a thing of fits and starts; for if you do not, temptation and other things will get the better of you". It has been said that these words remained with him to the end of his days and, though he was employed by other agencies, including Her Majesty's Government, at various periods of his life, he always maintained that first and foremost he was the servant of Jesus Christ. One writing of him says: "Livingstone was an explorer all his life and a British Consul for half the period he spent in Africa, yet, for a true appreciation of his career it must be remembered that, through all his life one master passion possessed him – the bringing of Christ's kingdom to Africa, hence he was always a missionary."

There is much else to be seen in the memorial rooms and museum. The darkened gallery, with its vivid tableaux of the great missionary's life and work, summed up for me his complete devotion to the cause of Christ. The tableaux are entitled "Vision", "Truth", "Faith", "Courage", "Mercy", "Renunciation", "Endurance" and "Sacrifice". In recalling them, I salute one of the greatest missionary pioneers of all time, the centenary of whose death we celebrate this year. I heard a speaker on the radio say that the Christian Church is growing at a greater rate in Africa at the present time than anywhere else in the world and that by the end of the century Africa could be a Christian continent and leader of the world-wide Church. I felt that this was the greatest tribute to the man who pioneered the Christian message in what was then known as "The Dark Continent".

It is fitting to quote the poem composed in his honour by John Oxenham and simply called "Livingstone":

To lift the sombre fringes of the Night,
To open lands long darkened to the Light,
To heal grim wounds, to give the blind new sight,
Right mightily wrought he.

Like Him he served, he walked life's troublous ways,
With heart undaunted, and with calm, high face,
And gemmed each day with deeds of sweetest grace;
Full lovingly wrought he.

Like Him he served, he would not turn aside;
Nor home nor friends could his true heart divide;
He served His Master, and nought else beside,
Right faithfully wrought he.

He passed like light across the darkened land,
And dying, left behind him this command,
"The door is open! So let it ever stand!" Full mightily wrought he.

Forth to the fight he fared,
High things and great he dared,
In his Master's might, to spread the Light.
Right mightily wrought he.

He greatly loved –
He greatly lived –
And died right mightily.

To all our Churches—
Please pray for the Pioneer Crusade in Middleton

MIDDLETON . . . where on earth is Middleton? You've never heard of it? Well, let me explain.

It's a town of 60,000, five miles from Oldham and about six miles north of Manchester. There is no Pentecostal work there at all at the moment. We are going in for God with a pioneer venture during the first three weeks in June.

As yet we do not know one person in the place, so, if you live nearby, perhaps you will support us on some nights. Wherever you live will you support us by prayer every day. The tent site is right in the town centre. Some buildings have been demolished and, just before they commence rebuilding, we have time for a crusade. We start on Sunday, June 3rd, at 8 p.m. and continue every night, including Fridays, for three weeks.

There are some fine helpers coming, but you can help us most of all by PRAYER. "Helping together by prayer for us" (2 Corinthians 1:11). Crusade work is hard these days, but there is no place too hard for the Lord.

What's in your dustbin?

by A. Cecil Jarvis, Pastor of our Vazon Church, Guernsey

AS I went to put some rubbish in the dustbin the other morning, I discovered that it had been turned over and most of the contents strewn around. Doubtless it was the work of a dog rummaging around to find something to his liking. It set me thinking. I remember a dustman being interviewed on the radio a little while ago. He declared that he could tell how folk lived by what was in their dustbins. It seems odd that people can be assessed by what they throw away, but on consideration, how right this is.

No-one would dream of putting the dustbin in the lounge; it is certainly no ornament nor is it of artistic value. Yet there are very few houses, if any, in the whole country without one. It is vital to the health of the home and the community to have a receptacle for rubbish. Indeed it was realised only too well when the "dirty jobs" strike was on that the health of the whole nation could be jeopardised by the rotting refuse left around.

My meditation on a dustbin leads me to ask what happens when evil thoughts intrude into the mind? The harbouring of them soon produces a crop of evil germs which pollute the soul. The Bible abounds in illustrations of this. Had Achan consigned the covetous idea of taking the dollars and the latest fashion "with-it" styled Babylonish outfit to the dustbin, he would have spared himself, his family and those who died in the abortive attack on the city of Ai. Likewise a different story would have been told concerning Ananias and Sapphira had they resisted the temptation to lie to the Holy Spirit. They ought to have put the whole plot into its rightful place – the dustbin.

Many a good Christian life has been ruined through nursing a grudge. Joab was such a man. A general in King David's army, he was in an excellent position of honour, but the death of his younger brother Asahel rankled in his mind. The silly youngster had brought death on himself by not taking the advice of his older opponent, but Joab would not see that it was his brother's own fault. He refused to put the grudge in the dustbin. It rankled and produced an epidemic of hatred, until Joab stained his hands with avenging blood. Murder resulted, whereas a dustbin could have been the remedy.

There are some – I guess that you've met them too – who always have the latest juicy bit of gossip. The modern term for them is "character-slayers", and how terribly true, for they are often just this. What do you do when they come with their malicious tongues? Sometimes it is difficult not to hear what they say. This is when you need the dustbin. Throw out every bit of the evil. Don't allow it to pollute your mind and soul.

Paul's challenge to Timothy just before he laid down his life for the Gospel was: "Keep thyself pure". In these days when standards are low, don't be a "dustbin Christian". Rather be one who, by pure thoughts and holy desires, together with a heart kept cleansed by the blood of Christ, lives a life that will stand out and be attractive by its very purity. Thus, when an opportunity to witness comes, not only will the words be weighty, but the living of the message will be weightier still.

Scripture Union Portions — Notes by L.E. Lambert

Monday, May 28th — Romans 2:17–29

"Teachest thou not thyself?" (v.21).

PRACTISE what you preach. This well-known phrase seems to paraphrase and summarise Paul's reasoning here. In teaching others, teach yourself (v.21). Telling others not to steal, not to be immoral, is useless if we are doing the things we condemn. We must not have double standards, condoning in ourselves what we condemn in others. The unconverted are watching (v.24) and they are quick to sense hypocrisy. If we do not practise what we profess, God's name is dishonoured. May the Lord help us to live more nearly as we pray.

Tuesday, May 29th — Romans 3:1–8

"The oracles of God" (v.2).

WHAT a priceless possession is God's word! To us have been committed the oracles of God. We need to study God's Word carefully, not rushing through the reading (the psalmist said that he "meditated" on God's Word), prayerfully, asking God before you read to open the eyes of your understanding, to lead you into all truth, that you might understand the Scriptures and "darefully" (if I may coin a word), do what the Word tells us in obeying its commands. Hearing and understanding the Word is not enough; we must obey it implicitly, immediately, individually. Be doers of the Word, not hearers only.

Wednesday, May 30th — Romans 3:9–20

"No flesh be justified in His sight" (v.20).

HOW apt we are to think that car accidents happen to other people. How easy it is, too, to apply truth to other folk. When we read of the evil habits that emanate from the heart of man, however, it is our portrait that we are seeing. "Guilty, vile and helpless we" – some hymnbooks have changed some of the words of the old hymns; they no longer sing "vile and full of sin I am". Yet without God and without Christ we are lost in the world. How glad we are, therefore, that God loves the sinner. He hates sin, but loves us, and He sent Jesus to bear the awesome penalty for our sin. We are dependent upon His free grace. Nothing that we can do will merit heaven. By the deeds of the flesh no-one is saved. Thank God for sending Jesus. Thank You, Jesus, that You came!

Thursday, May 31st — Acts 1:1–14

"This same Jesus" (v.11).

THIS is Ascension Day. Forty days after the resurrection, the Lord Jesus ascended back into glory. A cloud received Him out of their sight, but not out of their presence. Heaven must be very near. It is just another dimension, much nearer than perhaps we ever realise. The angels promised the disciples that "this same Jesus" will return. He never changes; He is always the same. Whether we see Him at His return, or on our own ascension into heaven, we will meet the very same Jesus who walked and talked with men. So there is no fear in death. As loving hands awaited our entrance into this world, so the loving arms of Jesus will welcome us into the next.

Friday, June 1st — Romans 3:21–31

"Just, and the Justifier of him that believeth in Jesus" (v.26).

THIS immense problem – how He at one and the same time can be just and yet justify the sinner – took the infinite wisdom of God to solve. Paul declares in 1 Corinthians 1:24 that the cross illustrates the wisdom of God; not the expanding universe, the majestic mountains, the delicacy of a flower, but the cross shows us the wisdom of God. It was there that love and justice met; there God demonstrated His love for men and yet His hatred of sin. I look at Calvary and see what a terrible thing sin is, that it should demand such a penalty. I look at the cross and see what a tremendous thing is God's love; it gave Jesus to die. Men with their puny minds think that they can provide other ways to God, but there is no other way save the cross.

Saturday, June 2nd — Romans 4:1–12

"Blessed are they whose iniquities are forgiven, and whose sins are covered" (v.7).

PAUL, with relentless logic, pursues his argument that man is accepted with God by faith in Christ alone. He calls David as a witness (v.6) and Abraham. (v.3). The Jews were depending upon the rite of circumcision for merit. Paul shows that this rite commenced after Abraham had been counted righteous with God and that it was the seal of that acceptance. The various sacraments we observe – communion, baptism – are not the means whereby we are saved, but the evidence that we have been converted. "Blessed" means "happy"; we should he happy today, for our sins are gone. They call v.7 "the tenth Beatitude"; where are the nine?

Sunday, June 3rd — Romans 4:13–35

"Who against hope believed in hope" (v.18).

AGAIN an historical illustration is used as a spiritual vindication. Faith, mighty faith caused Abraham not to stagger at the promise of God and this faith was accounted to him for righteousness. Humanly speaking Sarah could have no child, but Abraham staggered not at the promise of God, and was strong in faith (v.20).

You may be confronted by circumstances which render your greatest desire impossible humanly speaking, but do not lose heart or hope. God is able; He is the God of miracles. "Faith in God can move a mighty mountain". He can do something for you. Only believe. All discouragement is of the devil.

WHEN I first commenced my journey
People said I'd run away,
But they all have been deceived
In the faith I'm still today.

It was my great privilege recently to preach at our Northampton Church on the occasion of their sixth anniversary. If you are anything like me, your immediate reaction will be to exclaim, "Sixth?!". Yes, you are right; the years do fly!

I want to share with you the blessing of the weekend. Many prayed and sacrificed in order that the original crusade conducted by evangelist Alexander Tee and party might take place. It is good to know that God has richly blessed the Church since those campaign days. The Pastor, John M. Cuthbert, and his wife have ministered there since the foundation of the Church. Our brother has maintained a virile evangelistic programme throughout and has held efforts in several districts around the town. He celebrated his tenth anniversary in our Elim ministry at the same time as the Church celebrated its sixth. A congregation of over 100 on the Saturday evening of the anniversary weekend was followed by not many fewer on the Sunday morning and by almost 200 on the Sunday evening. In addition to the splendid numerical support it was encouraging to observe the high spiritual standards of the Church, not least in the time of worship on the Sunday morning.

We want to do all that we can to encourage our evangelists and their efforts. They are assured of the backing in prayer of the whole movement, indeed of the involvement of the whole movement. There are still numerous towns in the United Kingdom where there is no Pentecostal witness and where there is but little evangelical witness. In these days when many of us feel that the tide is turning, we need to pray as never before that the Lord of the harvest will thrust out labourers into the harvest. At every level — church, presbytery, the whole Fellowship — evangelism must be the order of the day. It will be recognised that not every attempt will produce a Northampton. There may be apparent failures, reckoned at any rate at the human level. Can any soul-saving endeavour really be a failure if the pure gospel is proclaimed? We have a duty to declare the truth irrespective of outward results and God must be glorified whenever the grand old gospel is preached in Pentecostal power.

Pentecost must make a greater impact on Britain than it has up to now.

May God guide us to the means of producing many more Northamptons!

BIRKENHEAD Pastor: P.A. Epton

OUR photograph shows the scene at the opening service in the new Elim Pentecostal Church, Birkenhead. The evangelist, Alexander Tee, can be seen in the pulpit. To his left respectively are L.E. Lambert, the District Superintendent, who opened the building, and P.A. Epton, the first Pastor of the new Church. We would like to thank the many who prayed and supported the crusade.

CHORLTON–CUM–HARDY Pastor: J.T. Glass

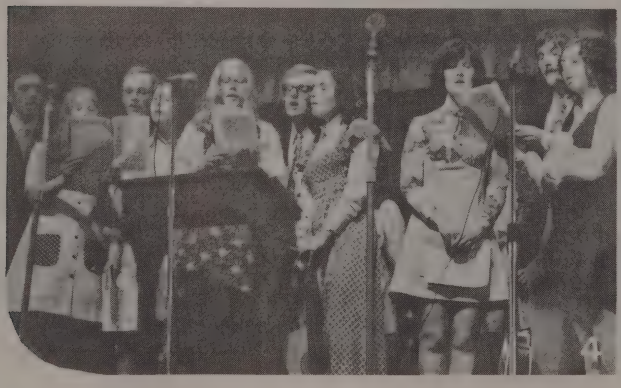
WE recently celebrated our Pastor's nineteenth anniversary. What wonderful years these have been! Pastor and Mrs. Glass have worked hard and faithfully over these years, seeking in every way possible to present the gospel and to reach the lost for Christ. The Pastor has moved from hired halls and purchased the present Church and Manse. Through the years the building (which was just a hall) has been transformed into the beautiful Church which stands on the site today. Three young men and one young lady have entered the Elim Bible College. Of these, Pastor and Mrs. John J. Glass and Pastor and Mrs. Keith Lannon are now serving in the Elim Ministry.

During this year the Church and Manse have been freed of all debts and the properties handed over to the Elim Trust Corporation.

For the special weekend we enjoyed the forthright, anointed ministry of Pastor James Craig Kennedy. On the Saturday night we were joined by the Tamworth Elim Choir and their Minister. At this service the Stockport Church gave good support and Pastor E.H. Snelling was with us. Extra seating had to be brought in for the record congregation. The Choir brought great blessing. Our Pastor was presented with a three-way light by Mr. R. King and Mrs. Glass received a floral present from the missionary secretary, Miss Mary Nealy. The Pastor's youngest daughter, Susan, was presented with a spray of flowers. Mr. R. King expressed the Church's deep appreciation of the faithful ministry of our Pastor and his family.

On Sunday night the ministry in song was provided by our own Crusaders. During the final rally on the Monday night we were richly blessed by the singing of Newton Heath Evangelical Ladies' Choir. Pastor Kennedy brought a wonderful weekend to a close with a final message from the Word of the Lord.



We thank God for a wonderful, enjoyable and blessed weekend. We thank Pastor and Mrs. Kennedy, Pastor R.T. McDonald and the Tamworth Church Choir, the Newton Heath Choir, and the Stockport Church and their Pastor for their support. As we look back we thank our Pastor, his wife and family, for all their faithful, untiring service, but above all we give God all the glory and praise for souls saved, bodies healed and for Christians who have been lead on to know more and more of the Lord and His Word.

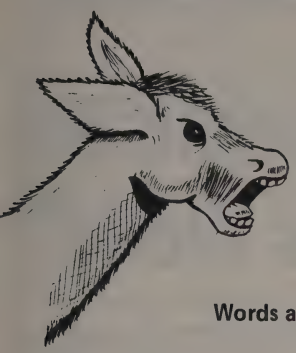
The Letter to the Romans

30. Part III. Practical (12:1—15:33) Continued

by J. Alexander Wright

WE are considering civic duties (13:1–7) and the Christian's relationship to magistrates. "There is no power but of God" (v.1): all human authority is derived from God ideally speaking, and tyrannous rulers break God's laws. "Damnation" (v.2) equals judgment, condemnation. "The sword" (v.4) is the symbol of authority. "Wrath" (v.5) is God's righteous verdict as expressed through human judges, His servants. Alas for the purity of Roman government, that those ministers literally used that sword on the innocent man who wrote this letter, if the story of his decapitation by Nero is true.

So pay your taxes and revenues to your government (v.6) as you pay your tithes to your church – both are God's "ministers". "Attend continually" (v.6), for they have a job to do in keeping good order, and give them your respect (v.7).



Back of civic duty is the secret and motive (vv.8–14). All our conduct lies in the discharging of the universal debt of love. That obligation is ever with us: "a debt of love I know I owe". "He that loveth hath fulfilled the law" (v.8). "Paul, as a Jew, thought that man should keep the law in order that they might be saved. As a Christian he saw that they must be saved in order to keep the law" (Anderson Scott). All duty is comprehended here. It is the perfect tense of completed action, every time you love. If love is the fulfilment of law, then no law is fulfilled apart from love.

To the obligation of love, Paul adds the powerful motive of Christ's return and the approaching consummation (v.11). To go to sleep here is fatal (vv.11–12). To "put on the armour of light", is to "put on the Lord Jesus Christ" (v.14). When the guilt-ridden young Augustine (Saint Augustine), walking in his garden at Milan, heard the words, "Take, read" being chanted from a school next door, he took them as the very voice of God to him, and, opening his New Testament at these verses (vv.13,14), he found in them the message of God to the salvation of his soul.

The exercise of Christian love and liberty (chapter14) is seen in the matter of meats and drinks and holy days, etc. The influence of certain Jewish purists among the very devout Jewish converts was strong. The "meats" spoken of were not only such, but included that mentioned in 1 Corinthians 10:19–28. Read also 1 Corinthians 8. "The shambles" is old English for butchers' stalls and is still current. Obviously, for quality, the best joints were those offered in the pagan temples and afterwards sold to the public. A strong broad-minded Christian, Jew or Gentile, would be without qualms in the matter, but there were those "weak" ones whose consciences would be offended at the idea of eating meat once offered to idols. We think that the words "weak" and "strong" in our context ought to be used in quotes like this, denoting stances and attitudes rather than actual relative qualities. It appears that something in the nature of a controversy had arisen in the Early Church in general about these things (Galatians 4:10; Colossians 2:16, etc.). Paul's sympathies seem to be with the "strong", but the "weak" ones who join the Church are to be heartily received into the fellowship, and there must be no criticism of their private opinions about these things (v.1). The apostle recognises, as our Lord taught, that food of itself cannot be morally or spiritually defiling (v.14; Mark 7:18–23), yet he takes sides with the weak. Man must be true to conscience even in the smallest things, and all must respect the consciences of others. This applies also to the matter of holy days. Must Gentile Christians keep the Jewish Sabbath, or Jewish Christians observe the Gentile (pagan) holy days (vv.5,6)? Verse 7 does not merely mean that our lives have an effect upon other people's, but rather that we are to regard our relationship to Him as supreme. We all have one Lord to whom we are each responsible (vv.7–10), and Christ is that Lord Jehovah (vv.11,12).

These questions about meats and drinks may seem trivial and irrelevant to us in our day, but what arises from them is of real and permanent significance. Paul will not have all men pressed into the same mould. The temptation of the Church in every age has been to do just this, to prescribe what its members must believe and do, but individual Christian freedom is greater.

Children's Corner

The speaking Donkey

Words and drawing by Sheila Price

THIS donkey led an unhappy, miserable life, for it had a cruel master, Balaam, who beat it frequently. One day, a messenger called at Balaam's house. "I have come from the king of Moab", he said, "the Israelites are on their way to Canaan and the king is afraid of them. He wants you to go and set a curse upon them."

As Balaam prepared to go, God spoke to him: "Do not go, Balaam. You shall not curse the children of Israel. They are My people."

Balaam took no notice of God. He got on his donkey and set off. God was angry at His having been disobeyed and He sent an angel to rebuke Balaam.

Balaam did not see the angel standing in the roadway. The donkey did, however, and it turned and ran into a nearby field. Balaam was most annoyed and beat his donkey, forcing it to return to the road. The angel was still there and, as soon as the donkey saw him, it threw itself against a wall, crushing Balaam's foot against the rough stones. Balaam, his anger roused once more, struck the donkey again, but it refused to go any further. It fell to its knees, throwing Balaam to the ground. Balaam was furious. He got up, brushed the dust from his clothes and, picking up his stick, began to beat the donkey yet again. At that moment God gave the donkey the power of speech and it said to Balaam, "Master, what have I done? Why do you treat me so cruelly? Why do you beat me? I have always served you well."

Balaam gazed at his donkey in astonishment. He could hardly believe his ears. Suddenly, he saw the angel. "Balaam", said the angel, "you have beaten your donkey three times, yet it has saved your life. If it had not stopped when it saw me, I would surely have killed you. You disobeyed God, Balaam, but your donkey, which you have treated so badly, preferred to be beaten and punished rather than disobey God. Let this be a lesson to you, Balaam. Obey God always and you will never go in the wrong direction."

This is a lesson which each of us can learn.

Thoughts from the Book of Genesis

28. A Test of Faith (Genesis 26:2)

by F. Lavender, Pastor of our Croydon church

A TIME of famine came to the land of Canaan where Isaac was living, but it appears to have been a local problem, because it did not affect Egypt. Isaac was strongly inclined to leave Canaan and go with his family to Egypt, but the Lord told Isaac to stay in the land in spite of the present difficulties. He said that He would pour His blessing upon him if he were obedient. This brought Isaac face to face with a critical trial of faith. Should he follow human wisdom and go to a land of plenty or should he obey the apparently unreasonable word which God had spoken? Isaac emerged triumphantly from this test, for he stayed in the land of Canaan and he became by faith the true inheritor of the promises to Abraham.

We all face stern trials of our faith from time to time and it is very necessary that this should be so, because faith is proved and strengthened by testing. As I look back across my Christian life, I realise that the most important and decisive times have been the occasions when my faith has been so severely tried that I have had either to lean completely on the Lord against all appearances, or else break under the strain. I would never ask the Lord to send trials to my life. I can never sing, "Break me, melt me," etc., because the Lord tells us to pray: "Lead us not into temptation [trial]"; but, when the Lord has seen it necessary to put my life to severe trial, He has, through the testing, ultimately caused me to trust His love and His providential care more fully.

Hallelujah!

From the President's pen — John Lancaster

"The Great Commision in Today's World"

The Presidential Address given at the 1973 Conference

THE theme of this fortieth Conference of the Elim Pentecostal Churches —"Into All the World" — demands an immediate and total response. Spoken in the clear sunlight of post-resurrection Galilee, the words of the great Commission gave the first disciples a thrilling sense of opportunity. Spoken, however, in the nuclear twilight of a dying civilisation they sound an alarm which calls us from our preoccupation with lesser things to face the deep needs of our day and age.

For one thing, the technological advances of the twentieth century make Christ's words capable of almost complete fulfilment, so that we are without excuse. Modern means of travel and communication make it possible for us to "let the whole world know" and provided we have the vision, the determination, the willingness to learn new skills, the sacrificial readiness to make money available, plus the vital direction and enabling of the Holy Spirit, we can preach the Gospel to every creature. Moreover, the historical situation demands that we do so as effectively and swiftly as possible. We are living in the last days.

It is against this background of an urgent call to world evangelism that I wish to point to three statements of Christ which I believe to be of vital importance for the Church as a whole and for Elim as a movement. In each of them (Matthew 9:35-38; Luke 10: 1–3; John 4:35-37) He speaks of the world as a harvest field and He lays down certain principles which are essential to the fulfilment of His Great Commission.

We must face the realities of the contemporary situation.

"Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields" (John 4:35).

These words remind us that there can be no true evangelism without an informed and sympathetic understanding of the situation in which we are called to minister. Christ Himself saw clearly the needs of those to whom He ministered, and it was this deep insight into human need that made Him speak of a plentiful harvest: "When he saw the crowds, he had compassion for them, because they were harassed and helpless, like sheep without a shepherd. Then said he. . .the harvest is plentiful" (Matthew 9:36,37). He saw them — "like sheep without a shepherd". How do we "see" our contemporaries? Merely as an audience for our words? Simply as "cases" to be dealt with? As statistics in our annual reports? Unless we see them as He saw them we shall fail.

To begin to understand our day and age we must take into account several things. Firstly, the disillusion of a materialistic society. Despite the imposing facade built by modern technology, men are still " harassed and helpless". Modern man can no more live by the contents of his freezer alone than his predecessors could by bread. TIME magazine has recently said that there is a "feeling of meaninglessness" prevalent today and has pointed out the growing scepticism which "questions whether any system can ever fully surmount the recalcitrance and perversity of man". Surrounded by all his gleaming scientific toys, modern man still feels like a motherless child. He is without hope and without God in the world and it is this that accounts for most of his social and psychological problems.

Secondly, there is the intrusion of demonic power. The New Testament foretold the increase of demonic activity in the last days (1 Timothy 4:1f) and alongside it the breakdown of society (2 Timothy 3:1f). While we must not over-estimate the extent of this, we would be foolish to ignore it. "There are forces at work that civilised men can no longer comprehend," wrote a leading newspaper columnist about the situation in Ulster. We ought not to press his words too far, but they are a reminder that behind the violence and perversions of our blatantly immoral society lie supernatural forces. It is salutary to remember that not only in temptation but also in evangelism we wrestle against principalities and powers as we seek to turn men "from the power of Satan unto God" (Acts 26:18).

Thirdly, there is the confusion of the religious world.

The ecumenical movement with its cry for unity; the charismatic movement, with its quest for vitality; and the "freedom movement" with its call for liberty are three of the major factors in the life of the modern church. In many cases the lines are hopelessly crossed. Doctrines are debated, traditional structures are challenged, old convictions are lightly tossed aside while new "insights", new methods of evangelism, new definitions of holiness and new experiments in church order clamour to take their places. To quote Matthew Arnold:

And here we are as on a darkling plain
Swept with confused alarms of struggle and flight,
Where ignorant armies clash by night.

This is the environment of modern man. This is his dilemma. This is our opportunity.

We must learn the principles of effective evangelism.

To see the need is not enough. We must know how to meet it. To do this we must listen carefully to the Lord Jesus Christ as He talks about the harvest field.

Firstly, we must learn to see the possibilities already open to us. Evangelism is not something to be postponed to a more conveneint season – the fields are "white already". Christ saw tremendous possibilities for evangelism in Samaria where lesser men would have merely seen a "race problem" (cf. John 4:9). We need to take another prayerful and careful look at our own situation in order to see it as He sees it.

Secondly, we must re-affirm the supreme importance of evangelism. To proclaim the Gospel to dying men is to "gather fruit unto life eternal" (John 4:36) and to convert a sinner from the error of his way is to save a soul from death and cover a multitude of sins (James 5:20). It is eminently worthwhile.

Thirdly, we must recognise the principle of mutually dependent ministries (John 4:36,37 and 1 Corinthians 3:5–8). The man who sows, the man who waters, and the man who reaps are all of equal importance to the whole process of harvest. No single encounter with an unsaved man is likely to bring about his conversion. It results from a series of such encounters and a variety of influences. Nor does one form of evangelism have any claim to exclusive rights over others. We must explore every legitimate form of evangelism, we must be willing to adapt our methods to our opportunities, but we must also see our particular method as only part of the whole operation. We must be "workers together", not only with Him but also with each other.

Fourthly, we must depend upon the creative power of God. He is "Lord of the harvest", not only because He directs the ingathering but also because without Him there would be no harvest to gather. It is God who gives the increase (1 Corinthians 3:6,7); it is only the Holy Spirit who can convict men of sin (John 16:8) and make preaching effective (Romans 15:18,19; 1 Corinthians 2:4,13).

Finally, we must submit to the lordship of Christ. It is His field and His harvest. His is the absolute right to direct the activities that go on in His name. Thus "pray ye" precedes the "go your way" of Luke 10:1–3. True evangelism is not measured by the amount of human sweat it produces but by its closeness to the will of Christ. In this, His own ministry is the prototype of ours: "I must work the works of Him that sent me, while it is day: the night cometh, when no man can work" (John 9:4).

We must accept the responsibilities that devolve upon us.

The words of Christ contain a strong emphasis on personal responsibility: "Lift up your eyes"; "pray ye"; "Go your way; behold I send you. . ." As a movement, as local churches, as individual believers, we must see clearly our responsibilities and accept them. As we look out on our troubled world, frustrated and afraid, oppressed by the devil and bewildered by so many conflicting voices, we must also look upward and ask the Lord of harvest, "What wilt Thou have me to do?". The answer may differ from church to church and from man to man, but certain responsibilities are common to us all.

We must recover a genuine concern for human need. We love Elim, but denominational growth must never become our first concern. We value our local churches, but we must never be so concerned with the statistics of numbers and finance, the improvement of the building or the organisation of activities that we lose our sensitivity to the real needs of man and women. We can spend hours discussing methods of evangelism and a great deal of money and energy in promoting schemes for evangelism, but unless our motives are right, our methods however clever will never know the blessing of God. Unless we are moved by a burning desire to glorify God and a loving concern for men we shall fail. Speaking of his earlier unsuccessful attempts at learning to play the violin, Albert Einstein said, "I really began to learn only after I had fallen in love with Mozart's sonatas." He added: "I believe. . .that love is a better teacher than a sense of duty." Love found a way to redeem our souls and it will still teach us the best way of reaching the lost.

We must rediscover the full potential of Pentecost. "It is no use," wrote Professor James S. Stewart, "having a milk and water passionless theology: no good setting a tepid Christianity against a scorching paganism. The thrust of the demonic has to be met with the fire of the divine." We who boast of Pente-

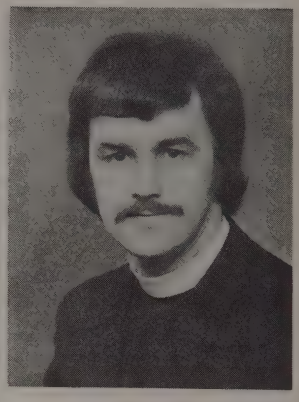
The Elim Pentecostal Church, Bradford

THE Elim work in Bradford was started well over forty years ago when George Jeffreys had a month-long crusade in the City. The converts enthusiastically worshipped in hired halls until God graciously enabled them to purchase Southend Hall, off Leeds Road.

In recent years the church has suffered seriously from the changing area around the building, the City Corporation having decided that it should become and industrial area. Vandalism and burglary were monthly events. An attempt was made in late 1969 to destroy the building, resulting in serious damage caused by a fire. This caused the Church to seek a different site on which to erect a new building.

God reserved an enviable site near the centre of the City and provided the means for a new property to be erected in Wakefield Road. The new Church, a multi-purpose building, was opened in March, 1972, by the Secretary-General, J.T. Bradley, and the Lord Mayor of Bradford and a local Member of Parliament. The Church has an education block to accommodate the thriving youth work and all-age Christian education programme. The Pastor, Derek J. Green, has specialised in this system of teaching, which caters for infants through to adults.

Joyce C. Riddiough wrote in the ELIM EVANGEL eighteen months ago, "I now really look forward to the new style Bible study . . . the studies are informal and relaxed with plenty of opportunity for us to enter into discussion. Almost every Sunday sees new faces. People come to see what it is all about and return the following week with their families . . . I feel sure this is the way to bridge the gap between Sunday school and Church."



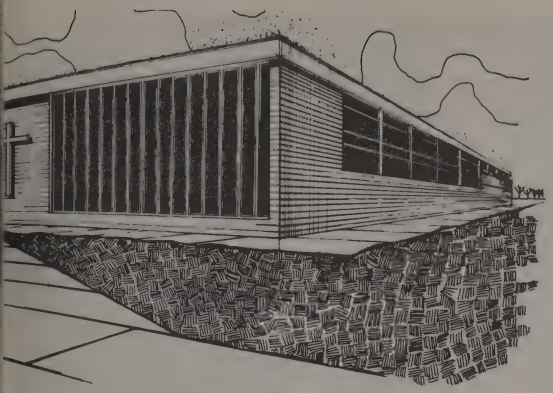
The all-age Christian education programme has been running very successfully for two and a half years and now there are over 200 on the registers. It is no problem to accommodate these numbers. A newspaper records, "The new-look programme has been so successful that the modern building has been designed to give every department maximum comfort and the best facilities".

Throughout the week a full time day nursery is operating, the first of its kind in Elim Churches. It caters for about thirty children every day.

During the first year the new building has attracted a number of conferences and many visitors, some of whom have found Christ as their Saviour and made it their spiritual home. Four baptismal services have been held during the year, in fellowship with neighbouring churches.

The Pastor asks:

What's the Problem?



by Derek J. Green

THE wise Ethiopian traveller who had just been won for Christ asked a good question: "What doth hinder me?" (Acts 8:36). It would be a good question for all of us to ask ourselves.

In the context the question was asked in relation to water baptism. Many Christians of much longer standing than this new convert have been hindered from being baptized. "I have a fear of water!"; "I am too shy to go out in front of a crowd of people!"; "I'm too old!"; "I'm not well enough!"; "I'm not sure if it is God's will!" are some of the many answers we hear to the question. They reveal certain basic attitudes and problems which relate to the question of water baptism and indeed to most aspects of Christian activity and obedience.

"What doth hinder me?". UNBELIEF is often the answer. Many people do not believe that there is any value in water baptism. On the broader scale many just do not believe. Jesus frequently criticized the lack of faith in His hearers and even in His disciples. When a person is baptised in water, he is identifying himself with Christ's death and resurrection. It is a recognition of the value of the cross. Unbelief will not accept Christ's death as the governing factor in their life.

"What doth hinder me?" FEAR is another underlying answer. In relation to water baptism, it could be fear of water, fear of people's opinion or fear of the crowd. Fear is a very real problem; it hinders many from fulfilling their best intentions.

Fear caused Nicodemus to come to Jesus by night. Fear made Zacchaeus hide in a tree. Fear of an insecure future made the rich young ruler turn away from Jesus very sorrowfully. Fear can be a deadly thing. It can be a brake on progress. It can hinder a Christian from service. It can silence our witness.

"What doth hinder me?" – the answer is often TRADITION. Many churches teach that sprinkling of children is the more convenient way of continuing the Bible practice of baptism. Unfortunately this is an over-simplification of a great truth. If a symbol is to mean anything, it must contain all the ingredients to make it meaningful.

Many people with preconceived ideas say that they were baptized when they were children. Baptism is intended to be an outward symbol of an inward experience of salvation. The fact that a child has had no such experience is often overlooked. A study of the Scripture makes it clear that baptism is a total immersion of the candidate. The fact that sprinkling is a longstanding tradition hinders many from being completely obedient to Christ in being "buried with Him" in baptism. In the general sense, traditions can also be a hindrance. "What always has been done always must be done" they say, so we remain in our rut. Is tradition hindering our Christian progress in some way?

"What doth hinder me?" – there must be many other answers, but let us think of just one more common one: APATHY. There are many people who have never been baptised because they just never think too much about it. They made a decision to be a Christian. They know enough Scripture to make them feel saved and they are quite content. To sit back contentedly can be a real hindrance to our Christian progress. We need to be baptised (Mark 16:16; Acts 2:38). We must witness (Acts 1:8). We should try to win others for Jesus Christ (Proverbs 11:30). We need to study the Scripture regularly (2 Timothy 2:15). We should attend prayer meeting and Bible studies regularly (Acts 2:42). We need a missionary vision (Matthew 9:37,38).

Apathy can kill all this!

The newly-converted Ethiopean asked, "What doth hinder me?". By his immediate action he showed that his answer was NOTHING!

What is YOUR answer?

John Woodhead speaking at the opening of the new building in March, 1972.

costal doctrine must see that we never lose Pentecostal power. If the forces of spiritual darkness are massing in the modern world then it behoves us to seek for a fresh experience of the Holy Spirit. There may be problems caused by misuse and lack of discipline in the exercise of Spiritual Gifts, problems which might tempt us to opt for the easy way out, but we must never allow these things to cheat us of our full spiritual heritage. As a movement, as local churches, as individuals, we need to recognise our increasing need of the presence and power of the Holy Spirit in our midst. We need to covet earnestly the "best gifts", we need to "seek to excel" in their use, we need to recognise that the Spirit bestows His gifts "severally, as He wills" and that not to special categories of Christians but to the whole Church. We need a fresh anointing of the Spirit.

We must provide mature fellowship. In these confused days when the Church is suffering from exaggerated emphasis on certain points of doctrine, aspects of experience and matters of church government, there is an increasing need for sound and sensible fellowship. We must provide all-round Christian teaching based on the whole of Scripture, not on isolated texts; we must provide sensitive leadership based on a willingness to discern what the Spirit is saying to the churches without being swayed by every wind of doctrine; we must provide patient and understanding fellowship which will not condemn every new thing simply because it is new but will adapt itself where necessary to new situations while refusing to go back on true biblical principles; we must really recognise the priesthood of all believers and provide great opportunities for the ministry of the whole assembly.

Let me close with some moving words spoken by our dear brother and former Secretary-General, Pastor E.J. Phillips, when I visited him in hospital just recently: "The most important thing is that we have men of God." Perhaps it was an echo of some past crisis in Elim's history. I don't know. But what I do know is that those words, whispered in the quietness of that hospital ward, moved me to tears. For, after all, this is what all of us – pastors, deacons, church members – must be: men and women of God.

FIGHT EVIL

WITH A WILL!

Do not leave the distribution of your estate to chance. Here are some reasons why you should make a will:

1. It prevents misunderstanding over your intentions about your estate.
2. It provides opportunity for you to continue to exercise Christian stewardship.
3. It helps to avoid heavy expenses, which can sometimes drain away valuable assets.
4. It gives you opportunity to designate who shall benefit from your possessions.

You can show your gratitude for blessings received and also continue the fight against evil by making a gift to the Elim work in your will.

The following wording can be incorporated in a will or codicil:

I bequeath to the Elim Pentecostal Church, of 117 St. George's Road, Cheltenham, Glos, the sum of £ ..... free of duty for the general purpose of its work, and I declare that the receipt of the Secretary-General for the time being shall be a good discharge for the said legacy.

Is it not better to know that your possessions will be used for the Lord's work rather than be spent by those who have never honoured or revered His name?

From T. H. Stevenson

Ireland since the Famine is a new, interesting book by Professor F.S.L. Lyons of Kent University. I found his statement about the "Two most important external influences" in Irish affairs of recent years as near the truth as any yet stated. He describes the two main influences as: the rise of the ecumenical movement, and the revival of Republicanism. We know much about the latter, but little has been realised of the former, possibly even within N. Ireland itself.

Inevitably at this point the author names Dr. Ian Paisley (whose earliest protests were against visits made by modernists Dr. L. Weatherhead and Lord Soper), who spearheaded his thrusts against the ecumenical trends. In this, other evangelistic and fundamentalist churches seem to have stood outside the arena. Perhaps Dr. Paisley's strategy and tactics were sometimes disconcerting, as gradually his religious combat led him into the political arena. The truth stands, however, that the major denominations by their ecumenical efforts wrought on ill-effect, with an end result also of their losing their almost stranglehold on religion in N. Ireland. Even now there has just been completed a first statement of agreement towards unification of the Church of Ireland, the Presbyterian Church in Ireland, and the Methodist Church.

Writing from Ireland, I have witnessed a true ecumenical move during ministry began some days ago. In Newtownards, Christians from several denominations shared in the blessing of ministry on the Baptism and ministry of the Holy Spirit. A Brethren lady came to her first Pentecostal meeting, only to find that what to her had been an inexplicable experience in her own room and which in her ignorance she feared (since she had not sought such), was indeed an Acts 2:4 experience. When the dear sister came the next night, she was transformed. An anxious countenance was now radiant with joy and peace in the knowledge and assurance of her experience.

Two nights ago from this moment of writing, in Dundonald Elim Pentecostal Church, as I finished preaching, I came down among the people immediately to continue in seeking God's blessing upon believers. In less that one minute a Presbyterian brother was filled with the Holy Spirit. A few seconds later a Church of Ireland lady was at the very point of such blessing, when we were distrubed by a lady entering the building telling us excitedly that the building was on fire! A separate wooden youth hall was ablaze. Cars had to be moved to allow access for the fire brigade. We reluctantly ended our prayer time. The young peoples' hall used for coffee-bar evangelism was gutted and the fire had reached and destroyed one small window of the main building. It is a young, fast-growing church, and I believe that ALL the fire experienced that night has been for gain. Incidentally, Dundonald, like numerous areas of Belfast, bears little semblance of a politically troubled area. As I have viewed devastated and well known districts of the City, they seem almost a replica of the German blitz on Belfast with destruction in the industrial and populated parts and city commercial areas, except that a week of air raids wrought statistically much more change, and many more deaths. The great tragedy today is that the internal and ever-prolonging character of the strife seems no nearer solution.

Prayer and Praise

by F. H. Coleman

THERE are quite a number of magazines which reach my desk morning by morning, but one came recently which had in it a report which had the wonderful title, "Unfinished Task". The work of this missionary school will go on, they trust, while there is a need for workers with the gospel overseas. Then came a letter from a lady who had a burden laid on her heart for the Jews in the Argentine. For years her interest has been as keen as ever. She prays for the Jews in that land and gives as generously as she can to a society seeking to win Jews for Christ.

Somehow I feel that I must put these two together: the unfinished task of taking the gospel to men and women everywhere, and praying in particular for some section of the work or for some missionary. While the task remains, we need those who will pray. Prayer is more effectual if it is concentrated on one field or group of missionaries. So my plea is that, as you read this, you will seek to uplift some part of the mission field in your prayers and, if you can, give your support as well.

Why not write to those missionaries telling them what you are doing and ask them to put you on their mailing list for their newsletters?

Margaret M. Ladlow's page

Our God is able

MOST of us retain a soft spot for our home town and enjoy receiving news from there. I still have a warm affection for the bustling City of Sheffield with its cheerful, down-to-earth people. I felt that it was "one up" for the City of my birth when over the radio I heard that the Sheffield Telegraph and The Star were printing a good news column as an antidote to all the bad news of the day.

Imagine my delight when I received a front page cutting extending over four columns including this photo and the caption: "The Happiest Pictures are in The Star." The newspaper, dated March 22nd, told the story of the miraculous healing from multiple sclerosis of Mrs. Caroline Horner of Sheffield. Particularly gratifying and glorifying to God is that already news of Caroline had appeared in the paper telling of the collection made by neighbours and Elim friends and the subsequent purchase of a Chairmobile to help in her disability. Many Elim friends will have read the account of our sister's healing as reported by Pastor Peter Smith in the ELIM EVANGEL dated April 14th. Others heard the story from her own lips at the Friday evening service at the Conference. Nevertheless I felt that I must pass on some extra details and background information concerning so wonderful an act of God.

The Sheffield Church, of which Mr. and Mrs. Horner are members, have been in prayer for healing and revival. After special prayer meetings after the evening services and half-nights of prayer, the church has experienced a move of the Holy Spirit and was full of expectation for God to work. Two particular Scriptures were given repeatedly in preaching and by the Gifts of the Spirit: "I will come and heal him" (Matthew 8:7) and "He sent His word and healed them" (Psalm 107: 20). Thus God prepared the way for five wonderful acts of healing. A climate of active faith pervaded the whole assembly. I am sharing this with you, not only to give God the glory, but also to encourage faith in the hearts of all who long to see His healing power displayed. I am taking the liberty of allowing a precious personal letter written to Pastor and Mrs. Gorton four months before Caroline was healed to speak for itself and to indicate the very peak of daring faith and implicit trust:

Dear Pastor, Mrs. Gorton and all our dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ,

Carol and I have been completely overwhelmed by the love and concern which you have shown toward us during the recent months. How great our God is! When it was confirmed that Carol had multiple sclerosis she says that she knew immediately that many were praying for her. What is so wonderful to her is that this is still with her. How can we express our heartfelt thanks to you for your CONTINUED prayers? It would be impossible to tell you in this letter the details of the Lord's hand in leading us at this time, but no doubt Carol will be able to tell the story in full when the Lord stretches out His mighty hand of healing toward her. In the meantime we have much to PRAISE and THANK the Lord for. He gave Carol into the care of a Christian doctor while she was in hospital, and she is now in the daily care of a district nurse who also is a Christian. Praise His wonderful name!

May we also take this opportunity to thank all those who have written letters and sent cards. It would be impossible to answer them all, as letters alone number fifty. Many have been so faithful in giving Carol regular practical help, which we appreciate more than we can say. Thank you each and every one.

Through this time Carol says that she has never doubted the Lord's leading. There were many lives touched while she was in hospital, and now at home contact and friendships with neighbours are becoming deeper, so we are praying that our family life may shine for Christ. One life that has been touched greatly through her illness has been my own. The Lord has spared Carol's life and we together as a family unit are now closer knit than ever before, and the more determined to live our lives under the complete guidance of the Holy Spirit. We do thank the Lord for the way Stewart has reacted to his Mummy being ill. He tells her every day that Jesus will make her better.

I am pleased to be able to tell you that after her collapse last Sunday, Carol is now feeling much better. The doctor insisted that she have complete rest for a week, but now she cannot get back to the meetings quickly enough! Our hearts go out to you in great love and gratitude..

Above all let us all keep looking to the ONE who gave us such a great Salvation, and as Carol says: "OUR GOD IS BIG ENOUGH FOR ANYTHING – ALL WE HAVE TO DO IS TRUST".

With our love,

Roger, Carol and Stewart.

Scripture Languages reach 1,500 Mark.

STATISTICS for 1972 show that, since the invention of printing, at least one complete book of the Bible has been published in 1,500 languages and dialects. There was an increase of forty-three over the 1971 figure. The total is made up as follows: Scripture portions (complete books of the Bible) - 899 languages; New Testaments - 346 languages; complete Bibles - 255 languages.

Complete portions were published for the first time in forty-two languages, ranging from Apalai, spoken in Brazil, to Zongkhar, spoken in Bhutan. Mark's Gospel was the most popular, accounting for thirty-one of the forty-two languages (in four cases it appeared with other books of the Bible).

Complete Bibles appeared for the first time in Paite and Thado (Kuki), both spoken in India.

Youth page

In Fashion or In Favour

by John Harrison,
Youth Commissioner, Eastern Presbytery

ARE you in fashion with the world or in favour with God?

It is not possible to be both. Young Christians of the first Century made the mistake of being in fashion, hence Paul's instruction: "Don't let the world around you squeeze you into its own mould" (Romans 12:2, J.B. Phillips).

Being in fashion assures you of a place in society, but what is fashion? Surely it is simply the whims and fancies of men and women that have caught on. We have fashions in clothes, hairstyles, morals, language, etc. Some young ladies think that they are in fashion if they wear seductive clothing, have sex before marriage, take drugs and are able to swear as well as their boy friends. Young men are in fashion if they wear tight-fitting clothing, have hair and sideburns that reach to the shoulders, have a good command of choice swear words, and are able to knock a few pints back at weekends.

This kind of mould is evil and is no good for Christian young people. The world and its power are very much stronger than we are and have a tremendous effect on young people. The devil uses this power to great effect in seducing the senses and dulling the intellect.

Why was it that the testimony of the very first Christians was that "they have turned the world upside down"? They were different; they were not in fashion. The Living Bible says in Romans 12:2: "Don't copy the fashions and customs of this world, but be a new and different person with a fresh newness in all you do and think. Then you will see from your own experience how His ways will really satisfy you."

Paul proved by his experience that to be in fashion was to be out of favour with God. Being in fashion so often means that we have already been squeezed into the world's own mould, and, as a result, have become mouldy, lukewarm Christians.

How can we be successful without being squeezed into the world's mould? In the words of the Authorised Version: "Be ye TRANSFORMED"! Notice that Paul said "transformed", not merely reformed. This transformation is the work of the Holy Spirit and comes about firstly by conversion. As we accept Jesus Christ as our own personal Saviour, we should also accept Him as Lord of our life. He should be at the centre of everything we say and do.

Transformation comes about by the Baptism in the Holy Spirit. Have you been baptised in the Holy Spirit? If you have never had this experience, then you are missing much of what God has for you. Why not have a talk with your Pastor about it? Having the power of the Holy Spirit will give you a newness and the person whom you will want to please is the Master Himself.

In fashion or in favour – the choice is yours!

Scripture Union Portions — Notes by L.E. Lambert

Monday, June 4th — Romans 5:1–11

"Tribulation worketh patience" (v.3).

BEING a Christian does not prevent our being confronted by calamity, in fact the believer is sometimes more assailed than the unbeliever. We have a virulent enemy, but, like Paul, we can glory in our tribulations. They can work for us, producing in us some Christlike quality. We all need more patience, even after we have done the will of God. We prefer quick results, an easy path, but often in prayer, in Sunday school work, in door-to-door activity, we need patience. So out of the very problems we face God is making good to come and is making us patient. "Patience is a virtue ... possess it if you can."

Tuesday, June 5th — Romans 5:12–21

"They which receive abundance of grace" (v.17). "WHERE sin abounds, grace does much more abound" (v.20). God's grace is always sufficient for our sin, service or suffering. As the oyster turns the irritant into a pearl, so God's grace can transform suffering into something beautiful.

John Bunyan wrote Grace abounding. He was in prison for twelve years for serving Jesus; he did not cry, he composed. Paul was imprisoned for Jesus' sake; he did not sigh, he sang. The cross is not greater than His grace. Whatever He asks you to do or suffer, He will give you abundant grace. "He giveth, and giveth and giveth again".

Wednesday, June 6th — Romans 6:1–11

"We are buried with Him by baptism" (v.4).

NOTICE "we are". We say that baptism is an outward sign of an inward change. It is this, but it is much more than this. It is also the recognition of a fact, the appropriation of a principle. "Reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin" (v.11). "Our old man is crucified with Him" (v.6). A corpse cannot hurt anyone. We must live daily as if the old nature were completely dead; we must in no wise acknowledge its demands or desires. We must live in the new life that Jesus gives (v.8). Victory is allowing the life of Jesus to live through you.

Thursday, June 7th — Romans 6:12–23

"Servants of sin" (v.17); "servants of righteousness" (v.18).

WHAT a contrast – servants of sin become the servants of righteousness! A servant does what he is told. Before conversion, we thought that we were controlling our lives, when actually it was the principle of evil. We thought that we sinned when we wanted to; actually our wills and minds were dominated and enslaved. We were the servants, sin the master.

Now, thank God, we have a new power in control: righteousness. We are to obey this new ruler as implicitly as we did the previous one. He will lead us into holiness (v.19). We are now under this new Master; all that we have to do is to yield. Every command of righteousness will give us the best, the beautiful, the beneficial.

Friday, June 8th — Romans 7:1–6

"Married to another" (v.4).

SO close is our relationship with Christ that we are told here that we are married to Him. Paul uses the analogy of a marriage being dissolved through death to reveal that God does not deal with us now according to the law, but through Christ. The law became dead by the body of Christ (v.4). His body on the cross paid all of the law's demands. The basis of marriage is mutual love, the exclusion of others, the producing of fruit. We love Him because He first loved us. He desires unqualified devotion. He will not share our lives with other things. The fruit is the fruit of the Spirit (v.6). It is not "till death us do part", but "as long as we both shall live".

Saturday, June 9th — Romans 7:7–13

"Sin, that it might appear sin" (v.13).

SO perverse is sinful man that evil can be construed as good. So cunning is Satan that he can warp our sense of judgment, so that evil actions become plausible and pleasing. In order that we might always know the moral standards that God requires, He gave us the law. Sin is the transgression of the law. God did not give us the law to stop our enjoying ourselves, but to stop our destroying ourselves. As a dark object is clearly seen when it is held against a light background, so sin is seen to be what it really is against the standard of God. Jesus did not come to destroy the law.

Sunday, June 10th — Romans 7:14–25

"Who shall deliver me?" (v.24).

WHETHER Romans chapter 7 is a pre- or post-conversion autobiography has occupied theologians for years. This I do know: it is a perpetual biography. "Sin dwelleth in me" (v.17). One moment we are delighting in the Law of God (v.17), another we are struggling against the law of sin (v.23). We need God's saving and keeping power every moment of every day. "Jesus saves me all the time, Jesus saves me now". A drowning man who is rescued by a boat is saved when he is lifted from the waves. He is being saved as the boat bears him towards the shore. He is fully saved when landed upon terra firma.

Question: "Who shall deliver me?" (v.24); Answer: "Jesus Christ our Lord" (v.25).

Friendship

by A. S. F. Horne, Pastor of our Ipswich Church

FRIENDSHIP has engaged the attention of thinkers in all ages. The wise man said, "Thine own friend, and thy father's friend, forsake not" (Proverbs 27:10). The family friend is one who has stood the test of time.

So many people in all walks of life make friends too easily. The Greeks said, "Do not make friends quickly". Many have lost all – money, home and faith in God – through wrong friendships.

Aristotle said, "A friend is one soul in two bodies". How very careful we ought to be, then, in our choice of friends. We cannot choose our relatives, but we can choose our friends. True friendship is the manifestation of the finest quality of love. There are four kinds of love: the love born of admiration – a lover's love; sympathy – a father's love; pity – a mother's love; reverence or regard – a friend's love.

In the proverb of Charon, marriage is a matter of remaining friends rather than of remaining lovers, or, as the French say, "Friendship born of love is better than love itself."

All friendships will be tested, and the great test of friendship is loyalty. C. Elliott wrote:

O Thou, the contrite sinner's Friend
Who loving, lovest them to the end.

Jesus is the tried, tested sinner's Friend, not once has He failed.

A Friend when other friendships cease,
A Friend when others fail;
A Friend who gives me joy and peace,
A Friend who will prevail

Friendship with Jesus,
Fellowship divine;
O what blessed sweet communion,
Jesus is a Friend of mine.

He is a Friend who sticks closer than a brother for, as the Amplified Bible puts it, "There is a friend who sticks closer than a brother" (Proverbs 18:24).

Amanieu des Escas, the troubadour, expresses it: "Better a friend than money in time of need."

Someone with a beautiful voice and under the anointing of the Spirit once sang, "I'd rather have Jesus than silver or gold." The French have a saying, "A treasure is not a friend, but a friend is a treasure." Wesley knew the value of this friendship and in hymn after hymn, he expressed it, e.g:

I know Thee, Saviour, who Thou art,
Jesus, the feeble sinner's Friend;
Nor wilt Thou with the night depart,
But stay and love me to the end;
Thy mercies never shall remove,
Thy nature and Thy name is Love.

The only way by which you can know the friendship of Jesus, God's lovely Son, is to accept Him into your life as Saviour and Lord.

Stephen of Saba wrote:

If I ask Him to receive me,
Will He say me nay?
Not till earth and not till heaven
Pass away.

Before you put down this EVANGEL, say to Him now:

Just as I am, without one plea,
But that Thy blood was shed for me,
And that Thou bidst me come to Thee,
O Lamb of God, I come.

Ann Bronte, with great assurance, wrote:

In my Redeemer's Name,
I give myself to Thee;
And all unworthy as I am,
My God will welcome me.

F. H. COLEMAN –from page 14

I recall a young couple some years ago who received a call to go to a certain land with the gospel. They did not seek a society or church to support them. They went in faith, with the promise of another couple who would uphold them in prayer and give what financial support they could. Twenty years later, thousands had been saved, and hundreds of Pentecostal churches had been established. A faithful couple had kept their promise. They were able to see the results of their faithfulness before both passed on to be with the Lord. Today in that land there are many churches whose membership is recorded in hundreds and, in one case, over a thousand.

Remember that the task is unfinished. Your prayers are needed!

Week of Prayer

July 1st—8th

THIS is the real Whitsuntide, tomorrow being Whit Sunday. One has to mention this these days as the alteration from Whit Monday to Spring Bank Holiday Monday confuses most of us!

I want to think with you of perhaps the most familiar Pentecostal text of them all: "But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me. . . unto the uttermost part of the earth." (Acts 1:8). Let us see that the basic direction of this verse is objective. One's personal experience of the power of the Holy Spirit is highly subjective, of course. It could not be other. Anyone who has been privileged to have an experience which leads him to be able to claim, "I was filled with the Holy Spirit" must have had an encounter of such sublime, moving, penetrating proportions that words — certainly English words — cannot describe it. The vocabulary dries up when you attempt to explain. Words fail, like the few drops of a small shower on desert sand.

Its being such an emotive, personal happening, however, must not blind us to the thrust of the original promise made to the apostles by the Lord almost at the moment of His Ascension (Acts 1:8-11). "Power . . . witnesses. . . uttermost part" are the salient features. The power is certainly subjective, but its bestowal has an objective purpose. Do you think it possible that we have tended to overdo the personal experience aspect to the detriment of the fundamental intention of Scripture? The yardstick must be whether one is an effective witness and whether one has a global vision. One's own spiritual enjoyment and the doings of one's own spiritual backyard are only a small part of the vision held before us. This is not to denigrate the Gifts and manifestations of the Holy Spirit in the slightest; it is simply to go back to the first of the first principles of Pentecost.

Imagine the task: everybody everywhere, anybody anywhere. Think of ourselves and our limitations. Said our Lord, knowing both full well: "Ye shall receive power". Clinical investigations into comparitive niceties of emphasis regarding manifestations are all very well, but the first blunt question we ought to ask and keep on asking is, "Are we effective witnesses?"

You have only to read the first few chapters of the Acts of the Apostles to learn that the first recipients of Pentecostal power were!

Church Reports

HADLEIGH, Essex Pastor: R. Stripp

IN the autumn of 1970 plans were laid to acquire a new Church Minibus by saving Green Shield Stamps. For a small Church this was a formidable task, but with a Church Motto "Have Faith in God" success was assured from the beginning. On March 24th 1973 after well over two years of hard and determined saving, the new Ford Transit twelve-seater minibus was handed over. Our front cover photograph shows Miss Connie Worsley of the Green Shield Stamp Co. Ltd., handing the keys of the vehicle to the minister, Pastor Ron Stripp with Pastor A.S.F. Horne of Ipswich looking on. Pastor Horne offered the prayer of dedication asking God that the vehicle might be blessed of God to the salvation of old and young in the growing town of Hadleigh, Essex, which is in the Maplin Airport catchment area. A Pentecostal Evangelistic Rally for the South-East Essex area followed in the Church when Pastor Horne ably convened. The speaker was Alan Cooper and God's blessing was experienced by the crowded congregation.

Once the Church Minibus Project was made known, stamps began to flow in from all parts of the United Kingdom, with a remarkable response from Northern Ireland, and hundreds of Christians of all denominations had the joy of helping. Local people and members of the Church now feel that the vehicle is really theirs and share credit in all the blessing it will bring to the community. Initially, the requirements were just under 1,100 books, but due to inflation, the vehicle obtained required 1,596 books. Delivery came at the time of the gas strike when the Ford Transit factory was closed down and, with the added problem of panic buying before introduction of VAT, the bus acquired was one of only three available in the south of England.

During the saving period, a concrete garage was erected and the long drive-in concreted, this work being under the direction of the Pastor's son, Bernard, ably assisted by a band of faithful helpers. We praise God for His great goodness and humbly believe that many souls will be reached in Hadleigh before Jesus comes.

BRIGHTON, The Lanes Pastor: F.A. Hodge

THE claim that Dr. David Livingstone was married in Brighton – at the Elim Church in The Lanes – was made today on the centenary of his death.

The pastor, Frederick A. Hodge, came across the Livingstone link in an old record. Under a large notice, which describes the Elim Church (formerly called the Meeting House of the Huguenots) as Britain's oldest Nonconformist Church and the second only to St. Nicholas' Church as the oldest in Brighton, it states: "David Livingstone, famous missionary and explorer, married Mary Moffat here."

Mr. Hodge said today: "Mary Moffat, who was the daughter of fellow-missionary Dr. Moffat, was a worshipper at the Meeting House, as our church was then called, and Dr. Livingstone married her there in 1844 during one of his leaves from Africa. Dr. Livingstone took his bride back with him to Africa and, for the benefit of the Africans, another marriage ceremony was arranged, with Dr. Moffat officiating."

The Elim Church was built in 1688 on what had been the site of an earlier meeting house of the Huguenots going back to 1562.

In the early part of this century it became disused and for a time was used as a temporary post office. It became the Elim Church in 1927.

RYDE Pastor: I.R. Hall, B.D.

A WONDERFUL weekend began with a treasure hunt and car outing organised by the Young Adult Fellowship for the older members. The route through the picturesque centre of the Isle of Wight was devised by Mr. Peter Rowe, the Church Treasurer. Each of the nine cars used was equipped with a Bible and a map which had to be consulted en route to answer a questionnaire. On returning to the church some two hours later a cream tea was provided for about forty-five people by Pastor and Mrs. Hall.

The service which followed was the opening meeting of the Ladies' Weekend. Miss R. Abbott, a founder-member, presided. Various sisters took part. The sisterhood choir ministered in song and Mrs. F. Taylor preached the Word. On Sunday evening the ladies witnessed in song, testimony and recitation. Mrs. A. Hurley gave the Word and Mrs. Hall, the Sisterhood President, convened.

This fine weekend made one wonder what the Church would do without the ladies. On our island we certainly do not need records to keep us occupied when we can enjoy such ministry!

H.G.W. FEASEY

WINTON, Bournemouth Pastor: G.N. Backhouse

SIX of us Elim Bible College students travelled down from Capel to Bournemouth to conduct a youth campaign for one week. It was very evident throughout that the Winton folk had prayed much about this work. God had prepared hearts and opened doors in ways which amazed us.

We went to three schools to take R.K. lessons and Christian unions. The response was thrilling. Many young people were eager to know about Christ and about the relevance of Christianity today. They stayed behind after classes and after school to ask serious and important questions. Many missed their lunch – they were more hungry for God! In one school we were scheduled to take just one period in which we showed a film. The interest by both pupils and teachers was so tremendous that we were asked to stay for the whole day. Maths and English lessons were cancelled and we were free not only to teach, but openly to preach the gospel to different classes.

During the evenings we held coffee bars. There were no gimmicks or trimmings; we just talked about Jesus. The highlight of the week was Thursday evening when we showed the film "Son Worshippers". Seventeen accepted Christ as Saviour in the appeal. In all we witnessed about thirty decisions for Christ.

In our short stay at Winton we proved that God is moving by His Spirit and that young people are hungry for the truth. Gone are the days when we sat in our church pews and prayed, "O God, send them in". The message is, "Go", and the time is "now".

K. LEGG

LEYTON Pastor: G.L. Taylor

WE recently enjoyed the ministry of Pastor L. Wigglesworth. Not only were we challenged by his ministry, but we were reminded of the simple but practical help to our missionary work of collecting trading stamps. During the evening service our missionary secretary handed over a few books of trading stamps to Pastor Wigglesworth.

At Easter, we had the pleasure of hearing Pastor H.W. Greenway, who gave us some inspiring messages. We were also pleased to welcome several visitors, including members of Pastor Taylor's family, who took part in the services.

We are looking to God to bless us during the coming months, especially in the meetings for children and young people which we have started.

S. PRAIL

YORK Pastor: A. Brooks

A GOODLY number of children and some parents gathered for the prize-giving at York Sunday school. I was impressed by the number of children who received awards for almost perfect attendance. I am convinced that the interest in the Bible which attracts these children to Sunday school is coupled with the diligent way in which the teachers present Bible truths to them. As a former Superintendent I appreciate how faithful these teachers are. I often think that my Sunday school teachers should have received a prize for tolerating me every Sunday. How great is the grace of God in bringing us to Himself!

Mrs. Cadamy with Superintendent Miss Olive Hartley and scholar

The speaker was Pastor David G. Woodfield, who was in York for a week's campaign. The prizes were presented by a former scholar, Mrs. Judith Cadamy, who was visiting York, and who is the eldest daughter of the writer. A good number of Bibles were presented, all requested by the recipients. One lad received a Bible for the second year, having worn out the first one! I trust that the Word dwells in his heart richly.

May the Lord encourage the teachers in their good work for the Gospel.

ALEX LAWRENCE

KNOTTINGLEY Pastor: K.J. Marriott

"GREAT, INIT" said an excited youngster as he fought his way through about sixty children waiting outside the Church half an hour before one of the crusade meetings. Pastor Francis Lamming, assisted by Tommy the talking doll and Mr. Blackboard, conducted a hectic five-night crusade with attendances topping the 200 mark one night and over 150 on the other nights. Not content with five nights, he reached an estimated 1,000 children in sessions at the local schools during the daytime. He was given a free hand for over half an hour in the ten sessions in the schools. There was not one refusal for him to visit and conduct thses school crusades. We felt that this was the answer to the weeks of prayer that had preceeded the crusade.

Competitions, quizzes, stories, flannelgraphs, painting competitions, Tommy's colour television, Mr. Blackboard and of course Tommy were the order of each evening. All were aids to presenting the Gospel.

An after-meeting for the tens and over brought a good response and the gospel was again presented. Children who had made their commital to Christ were invited to write a letter saying that they had said the prayer of commital and were counselled the next evening.

We are grateful to God and to Pastor Lamming for his untiring work over the week. The two meetings held during the following week were well attended. We seek God's will that we may use these precious gifts that he has entrusted to our care.

B. W. MILLER

ST. HELENS Pastor: J. Tetchner

HUNDREDS of homes in our town were visited with leaflets announcing our crusade conducted by Pastor John Woodhead. We were all blessed by his visit and were inspired by his enthusiasm in the preaching of the Word. We thank God for those who gave their hearts to the Lord. The sick were prayed for in each meeting.

We praise God for what he has done for our dear brother in the healing of his body, and for the strength he has given him. We truly thank him for the time he spent with us and for the inspiration he has left. A word of thanks must go to the Kingstanding Choir for their special visit. Truly the Lord blessed their music and song.

Points for Preachers

by J. Alexander Wright

An Outline

FOR ALL THAT!

1. EVEN ME (Genesis 27:34). THE anguished and heart-broken cry of Esau, the pathos of which Elizabeth Codner caught over 100 years ago, was the cry of a lost soul.

Pass me not, Thy lost one bringing,
Bind my heart, O Lord, to Thee.
While the streams of life are springing,
Blessing others, O bless me.
EVEN ME, EVEN ME.

"Bless me, even me also, O my father".

2. EVEN THERE (Psalm 139:10). The divine omnipresence reveals that there is no conceivable situation of life where He cannot hold and keep me.

Could I be cast where Thou art not
That were indeed a dreadful lot,
But regions none remote I call,
Secure of finding God in all.

Madame D.L.M. Guyon, herself imprisoned for ten years in the dreadful Bastille for her faith in Christ, penned these words.

3. EVEN NOW (John 11:22). When human hope has gone, do not say, "too late". It is never too late for Jesus, our wonder-working Lord.

4. EVEN SO (Matthew 11:26). Submissively content with the Father's will and wisdom, we can say, "If Satan should buffet, if trials should come, let this blest assurance control". "For so it seemed good in Thy sight" (Romans 8:28). In His dark hour His faith never faltered. Are you losing by trickery and fraud what is rightfully yours? Are chance and circumstance carrying you far away? Are tragedy and bereavement invading your life? May we be enabled to say, with Jesus, "Even so, Father".

An Open Letter

"Dear Pastor . . ."

"WHEN you announce a hymn, you usually say, 'Shall we sing hymn No. X?' Some day some bright wit may reply, 'No, let us sing No. Y instead.' Why put it in question form? Rather, invite all to join you, saying, "Let us sing No. X". The indicative is better than the interrogative here. Another thing, Pastor. My friend, having occasion to go to the church of another communion, remarked to me, 'How sweetly they sing there.' Do we overdo the hearty singing? The silly remarks about the durability of the church-roof to withstand our loudest and exhortations about 'pulling out all the stops', reminiscent of Moody and Sankey and American harmonium days, are not very well received by today's congregations. Besides, no competent organist ever 'pulls out all the stops' (I've watched our own even when the preacher has enjoined it!). Let such expressions die. Some churches actually have electric organs these days! Volume when appropriate, yes, but let us also 'Sweetly sing for Jesus' sake'."

Christ for Me

If Jesus Christ is a man
And ONLY a man I say
That of all mankind I will cleave to Him
And to Him I will cleave alway.

If Jesus Christ is a God,
And the only God, I swear,
I will follow Him through heaven and hell,
The earth, the sea, and the air.

The Holy Spirit mirrored in the Old Testament

by Christopher Gornold Smith

THE work of the Holy Spirit did not begin on the Day of Pentecost. He was there in the beginning.[1] "The Spirit of God was moving over the face of the waters" (Genesis 1:2, R.S.V.). It is no coincidence that the word for the Spirit here and elsewhere in the Old Testament is rûah meaning "breath" or "wind", for in the New Testament we find the same concept regarding the activity of the Holy Spirit. Jesus said, "The wind blows where it wills, and you hear the sound of it, but you do not know whence it comes or whither it goes; so it is with every one who is born of the Spirit" (John 3:8, R.S.V.). On the Day of Pentecost, "a sound came from heaven like the rush of a mighty wind . . . and they were all filled with the Holy Spirit" (Acts 2:2,4, R.S.V.).

When God wished Israel to know His presence dwelling in the centre of their camp and when He gave instructions for the building of the Tabernacle, He said, "See, I have called by name Bezaleel the son of Uri, the son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah: and I have filled him with the Spirit of God, in wisdom, and in understanding, and in knowledge, and in all manner of workmanship" (Exodus 31:2,3, A.V.). Bezaleel's task was to build the Tabernacle. He was cabinet-maker, weaver, embroiderer, silversmith, goldsmith, jeweller, engraver and much more all in one. The gifts that he received through the Holy Spirit were creative. He had to take a great variety of precious materials and work them into a unified structure of breathtaking magnificence and beauty fit for the glory of God to dwell in.

Usually we look on the Tabernacle as a type of Christ, but do we see here a parallel to the Christian Church? We are God's Temple, God's building (1 Corinthians 3:9,16, et al). What a variety of backgrounds we come from! How different we are from many other Christians in nationality, race, culture and temperament! But God brings us together into one Church, the Body of Christ, and in us He dwells and through us He speaks to the world. This miracle is achieved through the work of the Holy Spirit, not least through the Gifts of the Spirit (1 Corinthians 12–14). These Gifts are to edify (build up) the Church and surely the Word of Wisdom and the Word of Knowledge are especially creative in this way (Acts 15:28, et al).

In the Book of Judges we see an even more striking example of the Holy Spirit at work. "But the Spirit of the LORD came upon Gideon" (Judges 6:34, A.V.), rendered literally "The Spirit of the LORD clothed Himself with Gideon". The same expression occurs in 2 Chronicles 24:20: "Then the Spirit of God clothed Himself with Zechariah". In both cases there were dramatic results. Gideon, the man of action, led Israel to sudden victory. Zechariah prophesied in the name of God.

The work of the Holy Spirit is very evident in the lives of the prophets, both in ministering to their own generations and in writing Scripture. With special reference to their Messianic predictions Peter wrote, "The prophets who prophesied of the grace that was to be yours searched and inquired what person or time was indicated by the Spirit of Christ within them when predicting the sufferings of Christ and the subsequent glory" (I Peter 1:10,11, R.S.V.). "First of all you must understand this, that no prophecy of scripture is a matter of one's own interpretation, because no prophecy ever came by the impulse of man, but men moved by the Holy Spirit spoke from God." (2 Peter 1:20,21, R.S.V.).

The word nabhî' (prophet) carries the idea of calling, whether it was God calling the prophet or the prophet calling upon the people to repent. The call from God must come first. W.F. Albright underlines the idea that nabhî' means "one who is called by God", noting that the verb nabû "to call" in Accadian almost always carries this sense, and that the verbal adjective nabi' means "called" in the Code of Hammurabi. "This interpretation of the word suits its meaning exactly; the prophet was a man who felt himself called by God for a special mission, in which his will was subordinated to the will of God, which was communicated to him by direct inspiration. The prophet was thus a charismatic spiritual leader, directly commissioned by Yahweh to warn the people of the perils of sin and to preach reform and revival of true religion and morality."[2] So, the prophets were called by God and then empowered by the Spirit. "And when He spoke to me, the Spirit entered into me" (Ezekiel 2:2, R.S.V.).

Scholars have searched for a counterpart to the Old Testament prophet in the other nations of the ancient Near East, but no true parallels have been found. This line of Hebrew men, called by God and equipped by His Holy Spirit, stands unique in the annals of the world, but the prophets themselves foresaw a day when God would both widen the scope of His calling and pour out His Spirit in a greater way than before. "And it shall come to pass afterward, that I will pour out my Spirit upon all flesh" (Joel 2:28)[3]. Peter saw the fulfilment of this on the Day of Pentecost (Acts 2:14–21), but the Old Testament predictions had looked upon this outpouring largely in relation to Israel, and Peter himself did not seem to realise the implications of his message: "You shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. For the promise is to you and to your children and to all that are far off, every one whom the Lord our God calls to Him" (Acts 2:38,39). When God sovereignly poured out the gift of the Holy Spirit on Gentiles, none was more surprised than Peter (Acts 10:44–48)!

In the Old Testament the prophets, judges and others had been individuals chosen from among God's people Israel to perform special work and the empowering of the Spirit which they experienced was to equip them for those specific tasks. The presence and power of the Holy Spirit were now for all believers. It was the norm of the New Testament Church and should be for us. Previously it had been the exception; now it was to be the rule. Formerly it had been for particular tasks; now it was for every aspect of Christian living. Immediately people had responded to the Gospel and been baptised in water, the next concern of the Apostles was that they should receive the Holy Spirit (Acts 8).

It was apparent that this was more than a mere widening of Old Testament blessing. God had established an entirely new relationship between Himself and all who would turn to Him in repentance and faith. The Messiah had come and had spoken of the New Birth, but this experience of Divine power was more than even that! Before His ascension, the Lord Jesus had gone further and spoken of the Baptism in the Holy Spirit (Acts 1:5). John the Baptist had predicted this: "He will baptise you with the Holy Spirit and with fire" (Matthew 3:11, R.S.V.). Now it had happened!

There were problems, as at Corinth, and again one is reminded of an Old Testament parallel. In spite of all the irregularities which had to be corrected in the Corinthian Church, Paul's last word on the subject of Spiritual Gifts was full of grace and encouragement: "So, my brethren, earnestly desire to prophesy, and do not forbid to speak in tongues; but all things should be done decently and in order" (1 Corinthians 14:39,40, R.S.V.). In ancient Israel two men had prophesied in the camp rather than at the Tent of Meeting. This was out of order and Joshua asked Moses to forbid them, but Moses said, "Would that all the LORD's people were prophets, that the LORD would put His Spirit upon them!" (Numbers 11:29, R.S.V.). The same sense of proportion between encouragement and discipline holds good in the New Testament: "Quench not the Spirit. Despite not prophesyings. Prove all things; hold fast that which is good" (I Thessalonians 5:19–21, A.V.).

All the Way

(Isaiah 41:13)

Words and drawing by Sheila Price

CONSTABLE Bennett patrolled the far end of town. Last night he was on duty as usual, checking the shops and factories and making sure that they were securely locked, when a message came through from the police station on his walkie-talkie. "A young boy has been reported missing in your area," the sergeant's voice said. "His name is Tommy Smith. He is six years old and is wearing a black blazer and green trousers."

"I will search at once", replied Constable Bennett. He made his way along the lane, past the railway station and the school, keeping a sharp look-out as he went. When he turned the corner, he saw a little boy standing near the railings. "Hello, lad", he said, "You are out late tonight, aren't you?"

"I stopped too long in the park", said the boy, "and now I can't find my way home. All the streets look the same in the dark."

"Yes, they do", Constable Bennett agreed. "Supposing you tell me the name of your street and we'll see if we can find it."

"I'm Tommy Smith from High Street."

"Well, Tommy Smith, I know just where that is. Come with me, I'll soon have you safely home."

Constable Bennett looked after Tommy until the boy was safely delivered to his parents. "He was such a friendly policeman", Tommy told his mother and father. "He let me carry his walkie-talkie, and he held my hand all the way home!"

Jesus is the Friend to all children. Not only did He come from heaven to seek and to save us, but He cares for us until we reach our heavenly Home. Our Saviour walks hand in hand with His children, leading them safely all along the way.

Thoughts from the Book of Genesis

29. The Tragedy of Isaac (Genesis 27:1–4)

by F. Lavender, Pastor of our Croydon Church

BEFORE Jacob and Esau were born, the Lord declared that He had chosen Jacob and that he would rule over Esau. Their lives confirmed the correctness of the Lord's choice. As we have pointed out previously, Esau had no regard for the promises made by God to Abraham, whereas Jacob, though not a very attractive man, yearned to inherit those promises. It was on Esau, however, that Isaac had set his affection and the Bible says plainly that it was "because he did eat of his venison". Although Esau had sold his birthright to Jacob for a dish of stew, Isaac allowed his natural affection and love of food to come before the revealed will of God and he said that he would give his blessing to Esau. By this means he provoked a crisis, tragedy and distress within his own family, while His choice of Esau was openly overruled by the Almighty.

The Lord Jesus was rejected by the people of His day; they chose instead the rebel nationalist Barabbas. He is still not popular today. His demands are too severe for our age of easy morality, but the Lord God has clearly chosen Him as the King of mankind and has affirmed His choice by raising Him from the dead and by overturning the evil that men did to Him. Jacob or Esau, Christ or Barabbas, the purpose of God or popularity and personal comfort, such choice comes to us constantly. Not only when we first turn to the Lord to save us from sin, but every day we are called to choose between right and wrong. May we say a glad "Amen!" to everything that honours our Lord.

The Letter to the Romans

31. Part III. Practical (12:1—15:33) Continued

by J. Alexander Wright

CONTINUING The Exercise of Christian Love and Liberty (chapter 14), Paul pleads for mutual respect and love. The "strong" must respect the "weak", but equally the "weak" must respect the "strong". There must be mutual tolerance. There will always be some who are angular, awkward and over-scrupulous, with queer ideas of this, that, and the other, ideas which they do not always keep to themselves! These we must gently bear with. The great central point and inspiration for all is that the real essence of the kingdom of God in our lives is not found in these minor rituals and taboos, but in the realm of supernatural life and experience, in "righteousness, peace and joy in the Holy Ghost" (v.17). These are the vital qualities that please God and commend His gospel to men.

To say, with St. Augustine and others, of v.23 ("Whatsoever is not of faith is sin") that "Every good action done by unbelievers is of the nature of sin" and that "There is no real merit or virtue outside the Church", is surely false and wrong and quite out of this context besides. Paul simply says that a believer sins when he does what his faith and conviction do not approve of.

Continuing the theme, 15:1—13 tells us the secret and motive of that Christian love and liberty and points us to the supreme Example (vv.1—3). The inspiration for all our Church-relationships and for all of living is ever to be found in the One who left us an example that we should follow in His steps (1 Peter 2:21). This is frequently proferred to us in the New Testament. The strength given to the "strong" is to be displayed in helping to build up the "weak" and in receiving them as He received us all (Romans 15:7). There was a remote as well as an immediate purpose in the writing of Holy Scripture (v.4). It was for our profit that their patience (endurance), comfort (strength) and hope were given, that these qualities of the God of patience, comfort and hope, might be begotten in us (vv.5,13). The Bible-inspired hope is not for a political millenium, but of the universal victory of Christ. He reigns, He must reign, and He shall reign and rule! In the triumphs of King David, prophecies of the triumphs of great David's Son are seen (vv.8—12). In this hope we abound by the power of the Holy Ghost (v.13).

Chapter 15 now divides to bring us matters personal and explanatory (vv.14—33). First comes something about the writer and why he wrote (vv.14,15). He is not "telling them" here, but just reminding them of the nature of his calling; wise homiletic! His evangelism of the Gentiles (Romans) is likened to a priestly sacrifice (v.16); "minister" is a priestly word (cf.1:9 and 12:1, notes), but Paul is no sacerdotalist. It is saved souls and not sweet incense that he offers to God (cf. Isaiah 66:20). In this sense, all Christians are sacrificing priests, bringing our persons (12:1), our praise and our purses (Hebrews 13:16), and, as here, our penitents to the Lord. That great ministry of Paul's, all the way from Jerusalem to Jugoslavia, was in deed as well as in words, ever breaking new ground for Jesus (Romans 15:18—21). "Striven" means "made it my ambition" (R.S.V.). They are interesting things, people's ambitions. Is yours like Paul's? "Much hindered" (v.22), he wrote, little realising how much more he was still to be hindered, or how, before he would reach Rome (read Acts chapters 25—28). "Great desire . . . many years" (v.23): sometimes we have to wait years for the fulfilment of our desires and prayers. "Spain" (v.24): from the eastern extremity of Europe, Phillipi, to its westernmost end was, in perspective, his second great mission field. Concerning this, the New Testament is silent. Tradition says that he got there: "Paul, having taught the whole world [Roman] came to the extreme limit of the West" (Clement, A.D.95). First, however, he went in an opposite direction, to Jerusalem (v.25), there to be arrested and "brought" to Rome as a prisoner. So much for "the great desire of many years" (v.23). "It would seem that the dream of a great Western mission was never to be fulfilled" (E.F. Scott, Romans). He got to the capital city, but in chains.

The Baptism in the Holy Spirit

by John M. Cuthbert,
Pastor of our
Northampton Church

THIS article will join a mountain of others that have been written on this important theme. In fact, the volume of literature telling of the Pentecostal truths has greatly increased over the past decade as more and more writers from mainstream Christendom have felt compelled to air their views pro and con the Baptism in the Holy Spirit and Spiritual Gifts. What was once considered a peculiar and questionable feature of the Pentecostal Movement, is now defended and condoned by moderators, bishops and priests. Amazing, isn't it? We welcome this interest and enthusiasm for the supernatural and demonstrative aspects of New Testament Christianity, but there are dangers if the emphasis continues to centre on speaking with tongues and on little else.

My intention is to re-examine the message of Pentecost, the motivation which should provoke us to seek such an enduement of divine power, and the scriptural manifestation of such power in the life of the individual.

The Message

"Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature" was the commission which the first disciples received from the risen Saviour. It seems evident that they knew what the Gospel was and had experienced its power to save those who trusted in the Messiah. For three years He had instructed them and demonstrated His love and authority in ways that confounded His enemies. Then, so it seemed, those who hated Jesus triumphed and secured His condemnation. For those lingering hours they witnessed the searing agony of the cross, a despairing scene they would never forget, but now this same Jesus was alive, and they knew it! All who put their faith and trust in Him would be forgiven, released from the prison house of sin, and experience the living presence of the Son of God. Surely no time should be lost in proclaiming such a message. The frontiers of spiritual darkness must be pushed back and the name of Jesus announced throughout the known world and beyond.

One could understand frenzied activity and immediate "crash programmes" in these exciting circumstances, but they were COMMANDED (Acts 1:4), not just invited or urged, to stay in Jerusalem until the coming of the Holy Spirit. This was not to be an optional extra, but rather a divine, imperative requirement. They knew enough, but the message needed igniting and their ministry demanded an irresistible propulsion. Only the Baptism in the Holy Spirit could so effectively equip them. These followers of Jesus could have planned and programmed their evangelism without the "plus of the Spirit". No doubt some people would have been influenced by their earnestness and sincerity, but not the Devil. To succeed against him and the kingdom he controls, the power of God is essential.

Primarily, then, the message of Pentecost is geared to meet the spiritual requirements of evangelism; it provides the energy for the fight of faith. Whatever thrills and ecstacies people testify to having received when they were baptised in the Holy Ghost, Jesus Christ said, "Ye shall receive power . . . ye shall be witnesses unto Me". This introduces the motivation, the reason why we should seek to be filled with the Holy Spirit.

Motivation

It is God's declared will that we should be filled with the Holy Spirit, and to love him is to obey Him. When we are filled, every aspect of life will feel the impact and know the benefit. Our usefulness to God will multiply, prayer life will be revolutionized, soul-winning will become a compulsion, holiness a desired aim as never before. The local church will notice the difference in zeal, attitudes and availability. Whereas once you may have been indifferent to the appeals for workers in the local evangelistic programme, now your burning desire will be to be used of God. Being baptized in the Holy Spirit has many repercussions and these are the scriptural reasons why Christians should be encouraged to seek the Lord in this way. The Baptism in the Holy Spirit signals our total involvement in the spiritual arena to do battle in the name of the Lord.

We must be clear in our minds as to the purpose of this baptism, otherwise it becomes merely a badge of attainment, an answer to worldliness, a source of vocal joy, a prerequisite for the exercise of Spiritual Gifts. It is SO MUCH MORE. It is the coming of the Armourer and the armoury, the arrival of an irresistible spiritual weapons-system, the beginning of a new overcoming era. For the sake of Jesus, the Church, and the unconverted, you must be filled with the Holy Spirit.

Manifestation

I expect people who are baptised in the Holy Spirit to speak with other tongues. The New Testament is clear on this point (Acts 2:4, 10:46, 19:6; 1 Corinthians 14:5). It is wonderful, glorious! Springs of living water burst forth from the soul (John 7:38), a supernatural experience of indescribable release.

Here is the danger. Is initial, primary evidence all that we should look for? What is the long-term evidence of this mighty Baptism? It is unquestionably power for Christian service. The Spirit of God wants to DO something through us: to act, to move, to accomplish, for the glory of Jesus. His ministries are turned outward toward the world that so much needs God, not inwardly, for the exclusive use of a sterile, holy huddle. For too long we have tolerated the ornamental, on-the-sidelines, attenders who feel that their Pentecostal service comprises the occupation of a pew and the occasional participation in the exercise of Spiritual Gifts – and nothing more. Think of all that wasted potential! A family I once knew kept their polished war souvenirs, hand-grenades, shells and bullets, on the sideboard! A person who is baptised in Holy Ghost power is made for the battlefield (2 Corinthians 10:4), equipped to do exploits for God, ready and willing to do this part.

Why do we want to be filled with the Spirit? Perhaps we should ask the question more regularly at Pentecostal gatherings. I often cringe when I hear or read that this is the answer to LSD, a "Jesus trip" for free, and other such jargon which reveals a very egocentric approach to the subject. Most quarries have an explosives stores building where dynamite etc. is available for blasting purposes. The law demands that a record be kept of all requisitions for dynamite, how much was used and for what purpose. When we ask God for His explosive power, we ought to be able to answer the enquiry, "For what use?". This is the mightiest energy in the universe and is definitely not for decorative or ornamental purposes.

Jesus, confirm my heart's desire
To work, and speak, and think for Thee.
Still let me guard the holy fire,
And still stir up Thy gift in me.

Ready for all Thy perfect will,
My acts of faith and love repeat,
Till death Thy endless mercies seal
And make the sacrifice complete.

A Comment on the Times

SUNDAY
by David G. Woodfield

SOMEWHERE in the distance Pete heard the bells ringing. He wasn't sure whether the noise was in his head or where.

He leaned over and heaved up again. It was getting worse. He pulled the sheets of the newspaper closer to him and shivered in the cold dampness of the room.

It was a room with a view. One wall was completely missing and he could clearly see the other derelict houses in what had once been a street.

He would probably die today. And he didn't care. It was Sunday.

He remembered Sundays of a thousand years ago: the smell of Sunday dinner, the family all home, the young people's fellowship and the gang from St. Something-or-Other.

Forget it.

What a drag – the factory job and the small town and the terraced box called home; down to the Smoke, that was it.

He remembered the good times. The girls and the West End and the late nights and early mornings. The parties with people he'd never really known. He remembered the first sweet smell of a strangely-rolled cigarette. He remembered all right. It was heaven and cloud nine and everything you ever wanted all rolled into one. It stayed that way for a time until heaven got more expensive, more elusive, more expensive. Finally heaven turned into hell.

He would probably die today, but he wouldn't go to hell. He was there already, he felt.

The bells went on ringing, Pete went on dying, God kept on loving and nobody came.

Then it was Monday and the bells didn't ring anymore. Pete didn't care.

He couldn't.

"Make love your aim – earnestly desire spiritual gifts"

(1 Corinthians 14:1, R.S.V.)

by C. J. Watkins, Pastor of Hull City Temple

IN any conversation about speaking with tongues or the Gifts of the Spirit one is sooner or later made aware of a movement of thought in one of two directions. Some become all emphatic about Spiritual Gifts and wax warm on the importance of ecstatic utterances at most gatherings of believers. Others shift their thinking to an insistence upon the importance of the Fruit of the Spirit, especially love. For them love is all, that more excellent way which leaves speaking with tongues as something allowed but hardly necessary if we all pursued the highest and the best, namely love.

We maintain that Spiritual Gifts and the Fruit of the Spirit belong together and putting them together in equal emphasis and value makes for a harmony of function and the well-being of the Church of God. The passage of Scripture which we have as 1 Corinthians chapters 12 to 14 must be taken as a whole. We make a mistake if we try to extract little bits and pieces to suit our ideas, or if we remove chapter 14 altogether as if it had nothing to do with the operation and encouragement of the use of Spiritual Gifts in a company of believers. Here is one whole section dealing with the right way to use Spiritual Gifts, the essential ministry of believers in relation to one another and the overruling principle of proper function, which is the principle of love. All service, sacrifice, effort and endeavour must have as the impulse the dynamic of love. Without love our service degenerates into mere activity, sacrifice gains nothing and ministry is but the noisy gong or clanging cymbal.

Spiritual Gifts and the Fruit of the Spirit are not opposing camps and are not engaged in any conflict. When they are made to appear to do so the indication is of a great lack among and within the people of the Lord. In a truly Scriptural sense they complement each other. They are joined together and must not be put asunder. Everything to do with the Holy Spirit is a glorious unity as is the case in every manifestation and revelation concerning the Triune God.

A Unity of Confession (1 Corinthians 12:1–3): "Jesus is Lord"

This confession unites believers throughout Christendom. We have many different, varied ways of conducting our gatherings and expressing our witness to Christ. We may have differences of thought and outlook on a number of items which are of minor importance. Procedure and policy are infinitely variable. Those who lay great stress on Spiritual Gifts and others who seem to extol the Fruit of the Spirit have a common ground of foundation truth here. We say it together and shout it loudly: "JESUS IS LORD". All that is of the Spirit confesses this at all times.

A Unity of Origin (1 Corinthians 12:4–6)

"There are varieties of gifts, but the same Spirit" and "there are varieties of service, but the same Lord" and "there are varieties of working, but it is the same God who inspires them all in every one". The ministries of service belong in a unique way to the risen, ascended Lord, while the manifestation of the Gifts of the Spirit and the produce of the Spirit's indwelling belong uniquely to the Holy Spirit and the inspiration of all is God, whose eternal pleasure is being worked out. The Godhead is one glorious unity of thought, purpose and action. There is no call therefore for any imbalance in matters of the Spirit, for genuine Spiritual Gifts have their origin in the Holy Spirit and the Spirit's Fruit in the life of the believer is not the produce of self-effort.

A Unity of Purpose in Manifestation (1 Corinthians 12:7)

"To each is given the manifestation of the Spirit for the common good". Every manifestation of the Spirit through Spiritual Gifts should draw attention to Jesus the Lord. They magnify Him always, confer no honour upon an individual and should not be used to attract attention to any one person. It is an honour to be so used in things concerning the glory of our Lord; to acknowledge treasure in earthen vessels is to extol the Lord whose grace is so wonderful. We must notice, however, that the great purpose behind and permeating each manifestation of the Spirit through Spiritual Gifts is the good of all believers. In the context of the local assembly, this means the company of believers who meet regularly to break bread and to share the Word of God and fellowship. In a very real sense the Fruit of the Spirit, which is to be seen in the lives of all believers, results in the common good of the people of God. The things of the Spirit of God are not for entertainment, nor for indulgence, but for the common good of believers. The operation of Spiritual Gifts should always edify, encourage and uplift the company of God's people in the things concerning their walk and faith in their common Lord and Saviour.

A Variety of Manifestations (1 Corinthians 12:6–10)

So often this is forgotten and a sad sameness is found in the pattern and function of many churches. One could be forgiven for thinking that the only moving of the Spirit was in a small sphere of speaking with tongues and interpretation of tongues with the occasional use of the Gift of prophecy. The fresh awareness of the Spirit's power is being brought home to us again through the charismatic revival of today and with it comes again a reminder of the wonderful variety in the affairs of the Holy Spirit.

The Sovereignty of the Spirit

This must be recognized in the Gifts of the Spirit: "All these are inspired by one and the same Spirit, who apportions to each one individually as he wills" (1 Corinthians 12:11). Our privilege is to desire and to ask for Spiritual Gifts, always acknowledging the sovereignty of the Spirit. No man can give the Gifts of the Spirit. Jesus the Lord is the Baptizer and the prerogative in the Spirit's diversity of manifestation is the Spirit Himself. In matters of the Fruit of the Spirit the same sovereignty is to be recognized, for natural good taste and charm and cultivated manners may be had by human effort alone. The Spirit must be allowed His sovereign way in the life for the Fruit of the Spirit to be manifest.

The Involvement of the Body of Believers (1 Corinthians 12:27–31)

The biblical pattern for a Pentecostal gathering is not a feature of churches in many cases today. The same two or three operate Spiritual Gifts almost without any variety, but the ideal way is the involvement of the whole body of believers. The Baptism in the Spirit is not an attainment indicating that we have arrived, but rather an indication that we are beginning what ought to develop into a real usefulness in contributing to the upbuilding of the assembly. Today great effort is made to involve everyone in the witness churches should carry out. Equally so, everyone may play a part in ministering in the sphere of the Gifts of the Spirit to the company of believers meeting together week by week. The glorious variety of the Spirit's manifestation makes this possible and needful.

We see that the part dealing with the vital factor of love is placed in the middle of this passage concerning Spiritual Gifts. Chapter 12 deals with the importance and place of Spiritual Gifts in the Church. In chapter 14 we learn how the proper function and ordering of these Gifts should take place within the context of the fellowship of believers. The chapter on love which is placed between shows the essential motivating emotion of love, which is very necessary for the correct operation of Spiritual Gifts, as it is for every branch of service and activity in Christian life and witness. The apostle desires not just an orderly, legalistic approach, but the warmth of genuine love to be the guiding factor in assembly life. Not for him a clinical carefulness and insistence upon correct procedure carried out under the critical eye of an overbearing leadership, for the controlling force and governing influence which he desires above all is love.

Galatians 5:22,23 brings before us the ninefold nature of Fruit of the Spirit in born again people. This Fruit has to do with character. There are not nine separate fruits, but one Fruit which is produced by the Spirit in believers as the outworking of the inward work of the Spirit. Here is the deep spring of all our life and witness. Where the Holy Spirit holds sway in the lives of the saints, the manifestation of the Spirit in Spiritual Gifts will result in the glory of the name of Jesus the Lord, everything will be done decently and order, and the sum of our fellowship together will be profit to both local churches and the Church of God at large. So aim for love. It is that most excellent way in all of your Christian life and the only effective way to exercise Spiritual Gifts or to influence people to faith in Christ as Saviour.

Book Reviews

Young World Guitarist, by Fred Bock. Published by Marshall, Morgan and Scott, price 40p, postage and packing 5p extra.
THIS is a useful book for the Christian who plays the guitar, but you will need to know more than the basic chords for each key. The chord progressions are good, modern and a stimulating change from the old three chord routine. The chart at the back is helpful.

The melodies are new to this country, with the exception of a few well-used old ones. This book will help to raise the standard of guitar playing, but many of the verses would not stand up to theological inquiry. It is worth 40p for the music, however.

JIM DICK

Bible Characters and Doctrines – Bathsheba to Rehoboam, by E.M. Blaiklock. Published by Scripture Union, price 35p, postage and packing 6p extra.
THIS book is very readable and could be profitable to anyone, though I found the system of alternating subjects tended to make the reading seem patchy. I liked particularly the coalescing of Old and New Testament passages in the doctrinal section, showing unanimity of message.

I was surprised, however, by some omissions in the doctrinal section. For example, why in dealing with the origin of man is there virtually no reference to the theory of evolution, one of the most common problems with which young people especially have to contend? In the character section exposition sometimes gives way to imagination, e.g. whether Chimham (2 Samuel 19), Barzillai's son whom David received, set up a hospitable-shepherd dynasty which lasted a thousand years and welcomed David's Son!

JOHN HARRIS

Early Church History, by Stephen Benko and John J. O'Rourke. Published by Oliphants, price £3, postage and packing 14p extra.
THIS book is a symposium of papers on the theme of the Imperial Roman background of primitive Christianity. A scholarly book, it deals in a comprehensive fashion, amply documented, with the political, social, economic and religious aspects of the Roman Empire from Augustus to Hadrian.

One feels that the sub-title "The Roman Empire as the setting of primitive Christianity" describes the contents more accurately than "Early Church History", for it is Rome rather than the Church which is the dominant theme, particularly in the early chapters.

While the book may suggest some new lines of thought to students of Church History, there are other books at a lower price which would be more useful to those requiring a guide to the background of the New Testament.

A.D. HATHAWAY, B.A., A.K.C.

Prayer without pretending, by Anne J. Townsend. Published by Scripture Union, price 35p, postage and packing 5p extra.
THE author's smooth, easy style holds the reader from beginning to end. With obvious expertise, she tackles the vast subject of prayer and particularly intercessory prayer. She clearly expounds the eternal intellectual arguments on the why, what, who and how of prayer and deals a deft blow to them all as she relates her own spiritual emotions and reactions to various circumstances in her life which brought her to discover the reality of prayer and relationship with God. She is a missionary doctor in Thailand besides being a wife and mother. Every missionary will appreciate her frank treatment. Her forthright approach to prayer and fasting is most enlightening and I endorse her conclusions.

I heartily recommend the book to the younger generation as it is written in their terminology.

GLADYS M. GORTON

Understanding the Bible, by John R. W. Stott. Published by Scripture Union, price 50p, postage and packing 5p extra.
ARE you overweight, flabby? Are you undernourished, weedy? What you need is a well-balanced diet and essential exercise.

I am not reviewing a book about nutrition, but John Stott's latest – Understanding the Bible, an excellent book. At 50p for 250 pages it is worthwhile your obtaining a copy and reading it. The author, the Rector of All Souls, Langham Place, London for over twenty years, needs no introduction to well-informed evangelicals, his previous better known books being Basic Christianity and Christ the Controversialist.

Young people studying Scripture at school or college will find this book helpful. It is scholarly informative, yet easily understood. New converts will find it invaluable as an introduction to the Bible. Older Christians will find that it will give them a fresh stimulus to read and study God's Word.

Chapter 1 contains a good outline of the doctrine of Christ. Chapter 2 gives not only accurate geography, but Biblical geography in that it is linked with the sacred records. The author's brief reference to evolution in Chapter 3 is unfortunate and needs further explanation, if it is not to be misunderstood, as there are so many theories of evolution. A good summary of basic Christian doctrine is found in Chapter 5. . .but why not read it for yourselves! It is essentially an introductory book, but it certainly does help us in understanding the Bible.

The Quiet Captain, by Prescot Stephens. Published by Henry E. Walter Ltd. Price 40p, postage and packing 4p extra.
This is a delightful biographical account, written by his son, of an ordinary Christian naval officer who made extraordinary claims upon God. He was married to a Jewess. Their Bible-land exhibitions were honoured by God. Captain Stephens was instrumental in relieving suffering and rescuing young Jews during the World War II Nazi onslaught.

This dedicated life in retirement (until his ninety-second year) endeared himself to the Waldensian people. He travelled tirelessly by mule in the Italian Alps in company with his Salvationist friend. The centre for evangelism at Falerna Mare was dedicated in August, 1970 to the Captain's memory, linking his name with the great Waldensian pastor and martyr, Luigi Pascale.

Reading this book is an inspiration to launch out in God's will. The quiet captain glowed for God and men were warmed by his glowing.

Spirit-controlled Temperament, by Tim LaHaye. Published by Coverdale House Publishers Ltd., price 60p, postage and packing 8p extra.
THIS book gives a psycological analysis of human temperaments and then seeks to show the adequacy of the Spirit's work in relation to the strengths and weaknesses of each. All of us will catch a glimpse of ourselves in the analysis and could benefit greatly from the practical application of the Spirit's workings.

Sometimes, however, the curing of psycological illness has been over-simplified, e.g. when the practice of things which are part of every-day Christianity, such as confession and prayer, are presented as a quick and easy way out of depression (chapter 10 and 11). My main criticism is of theological deficiencies. "The sin that dwelled in him [Paul] was the natural weakness that he, like all human beings, inherited from his parents"; and "temperament is called in the Bible 'the flesh', 'the old man'", (p.11) are inadequate. The same criticism applies to the "cure" section, where the filling with the Spirit is equated with the sum total of the Fruit of the Spirit from Galatians 5. The filling is viewed as a process which involves self-examination, confession, submission, asking, believing and thanking, "independent of feeling" (pp.79-85).

JOHN HARRIS

The Kennedy Explosion, by E. Russell Chandler. Published by Coverdale House Publishers Ltd. Price 45p, postage and packing 6p extra.
This book recounts the amazing growth in membership of an American church from seventeen to 2,500 in ten years by regular door-to-door outreach by the Minister and his members. It should be read by all as a stimulus to fresh attempts a door-to-door evangelism and especially by those who hold that ministers and laity are two distinct sections of the Church, each with its own separate responsibilities.

A probationary period of 4½ months' theoretical and practical training is recommended before solo work is attempted. It is significant that hesitant workers became successful after the commencement of practical work.

One wonders whether the lack of such spectacular results in the British Isles is explained by the more favourable attitude of the American people to the gospel, but undoubtedly there is a need for vision, of training and of enthusiastic workers in our churches.

L. NORTHCOTE

Danger – Saints Still at Work, by Jean A. Rees. Published by Victory Press, price 45p, postage and packing 6p extra.
THIS is the book we have waited for, containing as it does "inside information on Christian outreach". Christian workers, personal soul-winners, ministers and chairmen, young and mature alike, will be amused and helped by the "pert sayings", "talks for the tactless" and the "pithy epigrams" it contains. Saints come in all sizes, leaping from every page, to snatch the chance of a life-time to work among those who never go to Church. "Coffee bar evangelism is a point of contact", but they soon realise that it is not fun venturing into the enemy camp". The advice given by the authoress on the hazardous enterprise of the unskilled attempting to witness to the "under-privileged spiritually" is doubly welcome because it is wholesome advice wrapped up in humourous language.

This little book on how not to do the work of God is the best I have ever read on how to do God's will sanely and correctly.

WILLIAM J. PATTERSON

Hope for Tomorrow, by Hazel B. Goddard. Published by Coverdale House Publishers Ltd., price 55p, postage and packing 8p extra.
THIS is a very interesting book, but it is not easy to read.

The Foreword by Dr. Paul Tournier requires deep concentration, but such effort is very rewarding. I was surprised that he declares himself to be "a hopeful pessimist". Can a Christian ever be a pessimist of any kind?

The book abounds with stories taken from the author's vast experience in dealing with people old and young and with the problems which beset them. The titles of a few of the chapters will show something of the nature and expanse of this book. "Can we love again?" deals with broken marriages and presents a possibility which many, no doubt, had thought to be impossible. "Alcoholics hopeless?" raises the important question, "Is commitment to God sufficient of itself?" The author's view is clearly stated and is one with which, I think, most ministers would agree. "The Search Generation" is a chapter on youth and its problems. In this is revealed a counsellor who is well-trained and highly skilled and who has a deeply sympathetic heart that feels and does.

For those who face the problems portrayed in this book it will surely prove to be a most hopeful message. For ministers and others engaged in seeking to help people with these difficulties, it must prove to be a most helpful book and confirm us still as "prisoners of hope" (Zechariah 9:12).

Left Behind

I HAD ample evidence at our recent Conference that Elim retains the family spirit, for I was overwhelmed with gifts and offers of clothing when it was discovered that we had left one of our suitcases behind in Salisbury.

My husband was no less kindly treated, for Pastor Leslie Wigglesworth loaned him a brand new suit. He was also given a new shirt and a very attractive tie, specially bought by a loving friend. It was both gratifying and comforting to be reassured by such tokens of love, which were to me a proof that the New Testament standards of caring and sharing are still upheld in our fellowship. In fact our final problem was that of packing all the extra gifts of clothing we had received so unexpectedly and I feel that it is appropriate here to say a BIG THANK YOU to all who helped us.

I suppose that one of the penalties of middle age is absent-mindedness and the development of an active "forgettery" in the brain cells. I have sometimes wondered if the Apostle Paul suffered in this way. I rather like the intimate personal glimpse we have of him in 2 Timothy 4:13 when he instructs his friend in the following words: "The cloak that I left at Troas with Carpus, when thou comest, bring with thee, and the books, but especially the parchments".

The articles he mentioned fall easily into three categories and suggest a sensible balance to keep when providing for the needs of our tripartite nature. The cloak or tunic Paul required reminds us of the necessity of caring for our physical well-being. The books mentioned surely emphasise the care of the mind, intellect and personality, developing in ways of uprightness and nobility of character, studying so that we may use our powers of thought and reason to be better men and women. The parchments which were especially precious and urgently needed, refer to portions of the Old Testament Scriptures, manuscripts, or even the apostle's note-books, all containing precious material vital to the spiritual welfare of the child of God. Body, soul and spirit, all need wise care; their steady growth and potential must be maintained if we are to serve God to the best of our ability.

Do not neglect your body; it can be the vehicle of God's power. Furnish your mind and soul with books which provoke wholesome thoughts; remember Phillipians 4:8. Most important, never forget the reading and consistent study of God's Word. Record your thoughts and points for future reference.

One Scripture quotation sums it all up. Our Lord said, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength: this is the first commandment".

Church Reports

CREWE Pastor: M.J. Epton

EASTER brought us to the climax of our week-long crusade, which terminated in an Easter week-end convention. At the beginning of our cursade we were expecting God to move in a wonderful way and our prayers and expectations were not without fulfilment of promise and fruit. One of the things we prayed for was not great numbers, but that the fruit might remain and grow. The Lord perfectly fulfilled His promise by signs and wonders following the preaching of the Word. We witnessed the healing of bodies and we praise God for this alone.

At the end of the crusade we discovered that there were a number of definite decisions for Christ and also a number of enquirers. Our evangelist for the week was David S. Williams, Pastor of our Silverdale Church. We thank God for his ministry and we look for a steady growth in the Church.

Pastor K.J. Hathaway revealed God's word to us in a very blessed, inspired way during our Easter convention.

J.D. TALBOT

SCARBOROUGH Pastor: S. Penney

THE lovely Scarborough holiday resort had according to statistics, a flourishing Easter, and it can be said that our Scarborough Church also flourished by the preaching of the Word and the praising of His name. Our building had had a "face-lift" in preparation for our annual convention and our members' faces had been uplifted in prayer, beseeching God to pour out His Spirit. In our first convention service on the Good Friday morning, God did just that. He set His seal upon our gatherings and we all experienced His nearness and the wonderful joy of His presence.

Our visiting preachers, Pastor J.H. Sainsbury and W. Hunter, brought challenging, inspiring messages and we were also blessed too by Pastor Hunter's anointed singing. The York male voice group served us well and our own musicians were inspired as together we magnified the Lord and sang heartily. It was good to enjoy the old-fashioned preaching of the Foursquare Gospel which satisifes and meets the need of all ages.

YOUTH PAGE

One Thing thou Lackest - Power

by D. D. Phillips,
Pastor of our Weoley Castle Church, Birmingham

"WHAT'S gone wrong?" cried my wife as the house went into total darkness. The answer was simple. "No power". Someone had decided to switch off the main supply.

Jesus looked at a rich man and said, "One thing thou lackest" (Mark 10:21), but that "one thing" was essential if he was to receive forgiveness of sins.

The promise of the risen Saviour to every Christian is "Ye shall receive power" (Acts 1:8), yet, as the searchlight of God penetrates our hearts, it seems as if God whispers to us, "One thing thou lackest – divine power".

The desperate Need

For every Christian to be powerful and dynamic for Jesus.

WE talk, we grumble, we criticize, we are full of excuses, yet we have been in these ruts for long enough. The message from God is that we can become powerful in the Holy Ghost.

For self-examination

Jesus gives us power to "walk in the Spirit", not to be carried. We can be ignorant of the condition of our hearts and unacquainted with the searching nature of God, because spiritual blindness is common even among professing Christians. Many flatter themselves that they are not too bad, but they are wrapped up in self-righteousness and their witness is weak. They are like the Church at Laodicea, "rich and increased with goods and have need of nothing" (Revelation 3:17). Self-satisfied they live and self-satisfied they will die. May God reveal the condition of your heart to you!

For us to realize the love of God

WE have so little honoured the Holy Spirit that our operations are but feeble compared with what He is able to do. "One thing" stopped this rich man from receiving eternal life, yet Mark 10:21 reveals, "Jesus beholding him, loved him". How much more does he love Christians, because we are his sons and daughters. Why are you then so feeble? What is stopping you from becoming powerful? Is it "one thing"?

Are you thirsty for God?

Be patient

"Wait for the promise" (Acts 1:4). Do you wish to be like the disciples of old? Then wait on the Lord, for He fills and fits you for service. It is far better for you to be "in the Spirit" than in yourself. Don't be "sprinkled", be "baptized". We need the demonstration of the Holy Spirit. "Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed?" (Acts 19:2).

Be refilled

"Be filled with the Spirit" (Ephesians 5:18). Some Christians seek the fulness of the Holy Spirit only once in a lifetime, but the devil attacks us not once a year, not once a month or a week, but daily. Therefore rise, men and women of God. "Be being filled daily with the Holy Spirit."

Be determined

To exercise the Gifts and to manifest the Fruit of the Spirit, be ready to see God work and to be involved in God's plan. God takes the sad condition of our Christian living to heart and He longs for us to come and lay our lives fully on the altar of sacrifice. Forsake all. The need is urgent. Receive divine power.

The hidden Killer

by Sheila C. Hall

A SMALL beetle with handsome red brown wings has brought the elm tree face to face with extinction. Although harmless in itself, the elm bark beetle lays its eggs in the bark of dead or dying elms. From the newly-hatched beetles, deadly spores of a yeast-like fungus, ceratacystis ulmi, are carried to living elms, where the fungus spreads its deadly poison.

It is tragic that, because of such a minute intruder, so many of England's trees are doomed despite every effort to save them. The Forestry Commission has tried to find a safe, practical cure without success. Even the grafting of new branches into affected trees has failed to halt the spread of the disease. The only remedy is for the affected trees to be felled or the diseased branches to be amputated and the infected wood burned.

That other hidden killer, sin, burrows its way into our lives. It poisons our whole beings with a virulent disease. Our prisons bear witness to its terrible consequences. We have failed to find a cure and to halt its spread.

We can take heart, however, despite our inability to find a remedy, since God has provided an antidote in the blood of Christ His Son (1 John 1:7). God loved the world so much that He was willing to sacrifice His only Son to provide this remedy and to save men from the consequence of sin (John 3:16).

Nevertheless God has given every man a free will and he can either accept the cure or reject it and suffer the everlasting result. See Revelation 20:15.

The Family Altar

Scripture Union Portions — Notes by L.E. Lambert

Monday, June 11th — Romans 8:1–8

"To be spiritually minded is life and peace" (v.6).

AFTER the dark picture of Romans 7, we come to the delightful possessions of Romans 8. We are to live in the Spirit. This is the dispensation of the Spirit. At the first Whitsun God sent the Holy Spirit into the world. Has He come to you? Have you been filled with the Holy Spirit, today?

To be spiritually minded is to let the Lord reign in the realm of the mind. Our thinking should be controlled by the Spirit of God. The very centre of our lives must be possessed by His power. This brings life to the soul and peace to the heart. We cannot stop the birds flying overhead, but we can stop them nesting in our hair. We cannot stop evil thoughts coming to the doors of our mind, but we can refuse them entrance.

Tuesday, June 12th — Romans 8:9–17

"The Spirit Himself" (v.16).

THIS is the real rendering of these words. The Holy Spirit is a Person, the blessed Third Person of the Trinity, God the Father, God the Son, God the Spirit. He dwells in us (v.11), quickens us (v.11), leads us (v.14), adopts us (v.15),witnesses to us (v.16).

In these days, when the Spirit is manifesting Himself in many ways and in many places, we need to be led by Him. Things that we would have thought impossible ten years ago are happening throughout the Christian Church. People of all denominations are being filled with power. May He have His way in our hearts, in our churches, in our movement!

Wednesday, June 13th — Romans 8:18–27

"Creation groaneth" (v.22); "ourselves groan" (v.23); "the Spirit . . . groanings" (v.26).

PAUL reveals here some of the deep things of God. He sees the pangs of a world burdened by the curse that followed the fall of man waiting for the release of Jesus' reign. He shows the pain of frail humanity blighted by the sin of many generations longing for its redemption at the rapture. He explains, too, the pleadings of the Holy Ghost in the realm of intercession. The Holy Spirit not only pleads with us and for us, but through us.

When Jesus comes, groans change to glory.

Thursday, June 14th — Romans 8:28–39

"More than conquerors" (v.37).

I AM surprised that no one has set these superlative Scriptures to some majestic music. Line by line they mount to a paean of praise and radiant revelation: "All things work together for good" (v.28); "If God be for us" (v.31); "Who shall lay any thing to the charge of God's elect?" (v.33); "Who shall separate us?" (v.35). It is more than conquerors IN all these things. Paul mentions seven kinds of afflictions (vv.35–37) in which we prove our victorious faith. Seven is the number of perfection: seven colours in the rainbow; seven notes in the scale; on the seventh day God rested. This speaks of perfect triumph: "More than conquerors".

Friday, June 15th — Romans 9:1–5

"I could wish that myself were accursed from Christ for my brethren" (v.3).

PAUL does not say, "I wish"; this is no death wish. He says, "I could wish", an expression of the intensity of his love for the lost, for others.

How strong is our longing for the lost to be saved? Do we care enough to pray long for them, to plead lovingly for them, to provide that others can go to tell them of Jesus? This love is not a natural thing; it is of the Spirit, as a result of fervent prayer and constant meditation.

Lord crucified, give me a heart like Thine,
Teach me to love the dying souls of men.

Saturday, June 16th — Romans 9:6–18

"I raised thee up, that I might shew My power in thee" (v.17).

THIS refers to Pharaoh; it was God's power of justice and judgment. Nevertheless the proclamation can become a promise. He hath raised us up, too (Ephesians 2), and His desire is to reveal His power through us. You might feel that you are no powerful potentate, but God can make even you into a power for His name. Through this chapter which deals with God's overruling power, let Him rule your life. You will then find that you will become mighty in God. People will take notice of you when you have been with Jesus. There will be a different note in your voice, an aura of authority about your influence. It's not power to witness, but power as you witness.

Sunday, June 17th — Romans 9:19–33

"Hath not the potter power over the clay?" (v.21).

THE mystery and majesty of God's sovereign will are explicitly set forth. We must study them alongside other Scriptures which declare human responsibility. God is the Potter; we are the clay. He is moulding us into vessels of His choosing. It will do no good whatsoever wishing all the time that you were someone different, doing something different, or living elsewhere. God has made you as He wants you to be. All that happens to us is by the hand of the Potter moulding a vessel He can use. Let Him fashion you and fill you with the Holy Ghost.

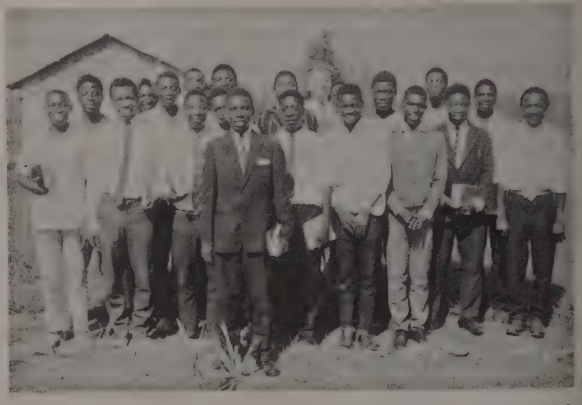
The Blood Collector

Pastor Emanueli Kazimoto remembers

THE rains had failed, the crops had withered and famine gripped my people. Bwana Bulu sent a message to the chiefs that he would feed the old, the women and the children. Many of the men had mustered their remaining strength and scattered into the surrounding tribes in a desperate search for food. "The old, the women and the children" – the people repeated the message one to another, as they huddled around the foodless fires.

"What shall we do? Even if our men find food it will be days before they return. Yes," they reasoned with each other. "Mama Bulu's medicine is very good, she is very kind. But who died? Whom did they kill? You can't start medicine without a sacrifice; human blood has been shed. This Mzungu [European] is Bwana Mumiani [the blood collector]. He wants our defenceless, old and weak women and our children to take their blood, of course. Why otherwise would he offer food to us, free?"

Increasing hunger drove them to a solution. "We will go there in numbers, at least four together for safety, and we will get away from him before the sun goes down," they decided.



The first to venture to the Mission came back with food. Some had eaten uncooked maize meal to give them walking strength. "The Mzungu said," they related, as all the village gathered around the filled cooking pots with their fragrant smells, "that his people on the other side of the world were sad because we were hungry. They had sent him to tell us about their God called Yesu Kristo."

"The food is good, we have never tasted maize like this" said the groups with hands eagerly dipping into the communal dishes. "What do we want with the Mzungu's god?" said one old man between mouthfuls. "We know that Wazungu are demons." "He said," replied those who had ventured to the Mission, "that without Yesu Kristo, you will be judged when you die."

When I Kazimoto, heard that, I laughed and reasoned with myself "Where is God? If I die, I am finished, how can I be judged? When I die, I shall become a pig; I can't be a man again. Around our grave-places are many pigs who used to be people. We have proof of this. Many years ago a leper, one of our people, was digging in his lonely hut. His nearest neighbours dragged and carried him in his mat to a nearby tree. They cut down the tree upon him and that was his grave. Some time after, a man killed a pig in that place. The pig had part of the leper's mat. Men become pigs. These Wazungu bring their own matters only suitable for white demons like themselves."

The famine drove hundreds of my people and eventually thousands to the Mission. Some even stopped to cook food there because they had no strength to return home, but they were very fearful. Strangely, many of the children liked the Wazungu. Some of the women even called their newborn babies "Bulu".

The years have gone by and my people talk so differently. They voice their regret that they did not appreciate all the kind help that they were given. They desire very much that the Wazungu would return and live among them once again. Some of them, like myself, have taken Bwana Yesu to be their only God and Saviour.

TWO of our Ministers have written concerning the quotation in the EVANGEL of May 19th in the feature, "Points for Preachers", in which C.H. Spurgeon is shown to have said, "If I go to the bank with a cheque, what do I want loafing about the premises for, when I have got the money?" and "Long prayers are often the result of unbelief".

One Pastor writes, "No doubt the incident has been recalled in order to illustrate the truth that God's promises can be immediately available to those who come to Him in faith. Nevertheless, the practice of spending much time in prayer (whether a special physical attitude is adopted or not) should, surely, be recommended rather than deprecated, however repugnant it might seem to Mr. Spurgeon!"

The other Minister wrote: "Are we suggesting that to spend time with God in prayer is loafing idly about His premises? Spurgeon regularly led the Metropolitan Tabernacle in seasons of prayer and fasting and attributed much of their outstanding blessing to prayer. In these days of 'instant', 'prepacked', 'ready made', we are in danger of expecting instant power through instant prayer." He cites comments by Wesley and Moody and adds, "We have conferences on the mechanics of evangelism, lectures on homiletics, seminars on counselling, but so little teaching on prayer. . . We must spend time with God and listen to His 'still, small voice' before we rush off in a frenzy of evangelistic activity. We must major in real earnest prayer if we want to receive and retain Pentecostal power and have effective evangelism".

Our contributor, J. Alexander Wright, replies to show that his quotation was quite in context, though of necessity brief, but he adds that he neither suggests nor believes that C.H.S. ridiculed long periods spent in prayer. The point is that God moves in different ways and there is a place for long seeking and a place for receiving an immediate answer, thankfully thus avoiding needly repetition. Adds Mr. Wright, "There are varied kinds of prayer - things for which we ask and we receive there and then, others for which we must earnestly seek and we shall find, and yet others that call for the persistent knock that it might be opened unto us".

Perhaps I might contribute to the discussion that there is also a great difference between public and private praying and the charge of "vain repetition" may stick more readily when it is applied to public intercession. Our language, too, could well be examined. "Those who are laid at one side on beds of sickness" is an example of the hackneyed expressions which fill so much of our public prayers. We would never dream of using such terms in ordinary, polite speech!

To make the point of the need for intercession at length, however, may we remind you of the next

SOUTH SHIELDS Pastor: A.P. Johnston

WE had a great Convention at Easter. God blessed us through the ministry of His Word. The church was filled to overflowing at the Saturday and Sunday evening services and on the Monday afternoon and evening. Tea was served on Monday to about 180 people. The giving of God's people here has been wonderful.

Join us in praying for God's continued blessing as we enter into our second year of service.

WIMBLEDON Pastor: F. Waite

ON April 12th 1972, (my thirty-third birthday) my husband, Alan, was re-admitted to St. George's Hospital, Tooting, London with cancer. Primarily in the anus, the growth had spread via the lymphatics to the groin and abdomen. The surgeon told me that Alan had a matter of months to live, but they were going to do extensive, radical surgery to alleviate his condition. Alan and I had turned to the Elim Pentecostal Church, Wimbledon, a short time previously, and were saved there by our blessed Lord. Little did we know what strength we were going to receive from our dear Lord in the trying months ahead.

Badly shocked at the news, I was sustained by prayer by the Elim Church, and by many good Christian friends of different denominations. From that moment I was actually spiritually elevated. During the whole week of Alan's operation I was so filled with the Lord, that I was insulated by the aura of prayer which surrounded me. I could actually feel it as a physical wave.

Needless to say, Alan made a miraculous recovery from the extensive operation and the surgeons were amazed at his continued progress. Today he is completely well and working.

On October 15th, I suddenly took a brain haemorrhage. I was admitted to hospital, where my condition deteriorated. I was unconscious for many days on a respirator – indeed my heart stopped at one point.

Once again my good Christian friends prayed for me and I overcame two brain operations, nightmares, delusions, and many other satanic tortures. When I came round I could not walk, talk, feed myself or remember. I was made whole again by the Lord Jesus, and, after many months, I returned home to my husband and three-year old son.

"You can throw the whole weight of your anxieties upon Him, for you are his personal concern" (1 Peter 5:7).

JANET HOPKINS

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA Pastor: A. Nicolson

"HE is risen from the dead and He is Lord" was sung many times as the joy and triumph of Calvary and the resurrection filled our hearts during our Easter Convention. It aptly reminded us of His position and work in the Church. Pastor Eldin R. Corsie was the special speaker for the weekend and his ministry was centred entirely on the cross and the Easter message. Many new facets were revealed in the old truths and we were challenged to surrender or to make a full dedication to Him so making Him truly Lord. The preached word was supported by testimonies by a variety of people. The majority had experienced conversion at an early age. Parents and Sunday school teachers were both encouraged and exhorted to continue in their good work. The musical ministry of The Foursquares from Becontree and the Kirby sisters from Great Wakering also contributed much to the weekend ministry. God's presence was truly evident.

On the following Saturday evening we had a visit from the local Salvation Army band and songsters. Captain West introduced the varied programme and concluded with a short exhortation.

PORTADOWN Pastor: S. Shaw

A MEMORIAL service was recently held for the late Mrs. Margaret ("Peggy") Irwin. About two hundred people filled the church to capacity for the service. Both old and young were present as a mark of respect for this faithful, beloved "mother in Israel" who, among other activities, had served as a Sunday school teacher for nearly thirty-nine years. Florence (Mrs. Irwin's daughter) read Psalm 27, one of her mother's favourite Psalms, and paid tribute to a good, faithful mother. Mr. Mercer, speaking on behalf of the Church Session and members, expressed appreciation to one who was devoted to her Lord and His Church. Mrs. F. Shaw sang, "He giveth more grace when the burdens grow greater". Miss Edith Martin reminded us in song that "There's not a Friend like the lowly Jesus". Pastor Shaw took as text Philippians 1:3 – "I thank my God upon every remembrance of you". Though he knew her for only six years, Mr. Shaw said that he would remember her by her smile, sincerity, service, sacrifice and salvation.

As one who was devoted to missionary work and delighted to entertain missionaries in her home, it was fitting that the offering received in the service should be designated for the mission field. The offering received amounted to over £62. Our sister is parted from us for only a little while. We await that glad reunion when the day of His appearing will come and the shadows flee away. This hope we cherish not in vain.

SHEFFIELD Pastor: A.V. Gorton

AT our Spring Bible week we had two speakers, Pastors F.H. Coleman and G. Harpin. Their ministry was enriching, encouraging and enlightening and the sense of God's presence was very real. Our Easter Convention began on Good Friday with a communion service. Our guest speakers were Pastors J. Tetchner and J.G. Cooper. The convention was well attended and the ministry of these brethren was of the best. Everyone was happy to renew fellowship with Pastor and Mrs. J. Tetchner, who served our assembly so well during the war years. Our mixed choir ministered throughout these services.

Our E.W.M.A. week-end was very blessed. Our Conveners were Mrs. G. Gorton and Mrs. Gregory, President and Vice-president of the Sisterhood. Our guest speakers were Pastor and Mrs. L. Wigglesworth. On Saturday and Sunday night the sisterhood ministered in song. We had testimonies from two ladies. The church was full. Mrs. Harvey, wife of the Pastor of our Mosborough Church, gave Mrs. Gorton £41 from their Sisterhood for E.W.M.A. It was a remarkable sum as they only commenced saving for E.W.M.A. last October. Two of our members who have been to Rhodesia visited the Elim mission station at Inyanga North. They brought us first hand news of the work there in the schools and hospital. Pastor Wigglesworth spoke of the blessing through the radio ministry in Brazil. We then had the missionary pageant and slides of all our Elim mission stations were shown.

Sunday was a great day. Before the breaking of bread Pastor Wigglesworth sang a beautiful solo. Mrs. Wigglesworth gave a short message. On Sunday night the church and the extension were packed.

Mrs. Gorton asked five ladies to testify to recent healing by the power of God. Mrs. Gorton handed Pastor Wigglesworth a cheque for £700, being the money raised by our E.W.M.A. She also said that she had been given another £100. One of our ladies, who works very hard for E.W.M.A., has given 25% of the money. Pastor Wigglesworth spoke of the wonderful conversions and healings taking place today on our Elim mission fields.

Our Church is in rich blessing. Every service is well attended, especially the prayer meetings. Recently several young people have come to the Lord. Our crusaders give out tracts before the Sunday evening service and they are eager to attend the prayer meeting.

Pastor and Mrs. Gorton have laboured earnestly in their efforts to bring souls to the Lord for which we praise the Lord.

"HELPS"

IT is now over two years since the Evangelistic Committee launched this splendid scheme and the benefit to new works so far has been marvellous. The magnificent response from our members has resulted in the following provisions:

£1,200 towards the church at SUNDERLAND;
£1,800 towards the church at PETERBOROUGH;
£1,800 towards the church at BROADSTAIRS.

The help that this has brought to these infant Churches is really considerable and we know that the friends in these churches would desire us to take this opportunity of expressing their appreciation to all "Helps" contributors.

Following the Birkenhead crusade we have opened this delightful building in Woodchurch Road:

It was originally a Welsh Presbyterian Chapel and was closed late in 1972. Now it is occupied by a keen Elim congregation under the able shepherding of Pastor P.A. Epton. It was necessary for considerable renovations to be undertaken before it was suitable for occupation, but the end result is most encouraging. The total cost of the venture is just about £8,000.

We are now sending out a CALL to our gallant band of "HELPS" and we know that they will not fail us. Every kind contribution will make it easier for this new Church to get on its feet and to pay its way.

It may well be that some reader has not joined this scheme so far. May I appeal to you to do so and to become a real, practical HELP in this work of establishing new churches.

Please complete this slip, cut it out and post it to me. Thank you in the name of Birkenhead and other causes as yet "unborn".

The Letter to the Romans

32. Practical (12:1—15:33) Continued

by J. Alexander Wright

IN chapter 15, verses 14–33 deal with matters personal and explanatory. We continue from v.26. In this loving gesture of the Greek Christians to their Jewish brethren at Jerusalem ("the poor saints"), a great principle concerning our material possessions is involved (v.27). "Carnal things" are material things. Blessing should evoke liberality and care.

"When I come . . . I shall come" (v.29). However he came, he came in fulness of blessing. No chains could fetter that! "Strive together" (v.30) means to agonise, a different word from that in v.20. "Prayer is work" is an old Christian saying (James 5:16, R.V.). "For the Lord Jesus Christ's sake, and for the love of the Spirit . . . prayers to God" (v.30) recalls: "God in three persons, blessed Trinity!". In the will of God there are always true joy (Psalm 40:8; Hebrews 10:7) and mutual refreshing (Romans 15:32). Christian experience begins in the realisation of the peace of God within (5:1) and continues in the realisation of the continued presence of the God of Peace (15:33).

So, with this brief benediction, the great Letter possibly concludes. Bible scholars are not sure that the sixteenth chapter which follows is part of the original Letter to the Romans. Some regard it as an appendage, either by accident or design, and some even think that it was written to the Church at Ephesus, not Rome. Without doubt it was written by Paul. Here, strangely enough, since he had never been to Rome, are the names of at least twenty-seven individuals of different races, classes and sexes, high and low, slaves and freemen, living there, with whom he was personally acquainted. What a revealing study it makes, to go down the corridors of the Bible, by-passing the main characters on whom the light is shining – those first violins who played so well – and some not so well – and then, in a passage like this, to meet these lesser-known, these "second fiddles", grand people, all of them. We might call this, "The neglected Chapter". What preacher ever attempts to expound it?

Appendage: The neglected Chapter

How wide and comprehensive was the apostle's love for and interest in people. "Phoebe" (16:1), a "deaconess" (R.S.V. and others), "an office-holder" (N.E.B.), bearer of this Letter from Corinth to Rome (see Article · 1), was apparently a lady of means. "Succourer" indicates one standing up for others; it has a legal connotation. Paul was one of those needy ones. "Priscilla and Aquila" (vv.3–5), now returned to Rome after their enforced exile (Acts 18:2), had established a Christian assembly in their home. This marvellous couple risked execution to save Paul's life. "Epaenetus" was the apostle's first convert in Asia (v.5). "Mary" (v.6) was just another Mary, one of the seven in the New Testament, and a hard worker too! "Andronicus and Junia" (v.7) are called "kinsmen", which could mean either Benjaminites, Jews, or relatives who were incarcerated with Paul in one of his many imprisonments (2 Corinthians 11:23). Saved before him, were they also apostles, or just well-known among the twelve? Several other apostles are spoken of in the New Testament. "Amplias" (v.8) was especially beloved, as was Epaenetus. "Urbane" (v.9) was called "fellow-worker" (lit.); thank God for all such "fellows"! "Stachys" was "my dear, dear friend" (A.S.Way). These last two bore slave-names. "Apelles" (v.10) means "approved"; may we all be (2 Timothy 2:15)! The household of Aristobulus are mentioned. He was possibly a grandson of Herod the Great and brother of Agrippa (Lightfoot). The greeting is not directed to him, but to the servants and slaves in his employ, likewise "the household of Narcissus" (v.11), a reputedly evil, rich man and friend of Nero. "Herodian" (v.11), as at v.7, probably refers to a Christian Jew.

ELIM MISSIONARY SOCIETY requires a secretary for Pastor L. W. Wigglesworth. Shorthand and/or audio experience essential. Write in first instance to Administrative Secretary, P.O. Box 38, Cheltenham.

ANOTHER SLANT

by Ken Smith,
Pastor of our Erdington Church, Birmingham

DO you ever get depressed? I am sure that many of you do. I do, often. After all that is written, read, said and done on the subject, it's all a matter of temperament and circumstance. For some it is almost inevitable. Those who are never afflicted need to be thankful and understanding of others, for it is easy to dismiss the matter glibly, as some do. This was my condition the other week. It sprang from my own longing expressed in Wesley's words: "Oh that the world might taste and see the riches of His grace", and from my having a handful to hear such a wonderful message. This is just one of a minister's frustrations!

It is good to have the opportunities that interviewing brings when I am in this particular condition. The week before the Conference I conducted my quarterly architects' survey. I interviewed the senior architect of a Midlands' local authority. As always, I sought to witness at the end of the interview. I explained that I was a Pentecostal Pastor. Imagine my surprise when he said, "Tell me about the baptism in the Spirit." After an hour's detailed interview on various aspects of the building industry it came as a shock, but what a joy it was to tell him. He was a Scotsman, a member of the Exclusive Brethren. He had found from the Word of God that they were wrong concerning the Holy Spirit. Because he had made this personal discovery, there was no need to convince him theologically, for the Spirit had done the work!

One felt that he expected a talk on how to get the baptism in the Spirit in seven lessons, easy or otherwise, but I explained that this was not mechanical, but spiritual. He would not visit a Pentecostal assembly, though he had prayed that he would be led to a Pentecostal believer, and there I was in the office. It was just like Peter and Cornelius, Philip and the eunuch, and Apollos and Aquila and Priscilla, who "expounded unto him the way of God more perfectly." Thank God, I knew more than Apollos, for he knew "only the baptism of John", but I knew another more wonderful experience. I told the Scot that he did not need to go to a Pentecostal church to receive this experience. Had we not had a number of interruptions I may have urged him to seek in his office. I assured him that his "Exclusive" label would go and that he would be glad to have fellowship with like-minded people should he receive this blessing. I put him in contact with Pastor Desmond Cartwright and I felt glad to have been there.

I interviewed another architect in Birmingham and started to witness. I discovered that in June he is going to Burnie, Tasmania, to stay with a Methodist family until his house is built. I told him that the co-pastor of the Methodist Church in Burnie, Tasmania is a retired Elim minister, our brother Pastor Robert Bradley, and I gave him Mr. Bradley's address. It is indeed a small world. May our brother have the joy of being another link in the chain leading to this man's salvation.

During the same week I had the opportunity of helping one member of the Assembly to get accommodation. She had spent over forty years in Erdington in a council house. How heartless it was to keep offering accommodation on the other side of the City with no-one whom she knew. This is beaurocracy without compassion or understanding. I wrote a private letter to the Housing Manager, pointing out the facts of the case. Within an hour of receiving the letter I had a 'phone call offering her a flat in the Erdington area and on the bus route passing the end of the road by our Church. It can be done, when someone prays and someone pushes!

I am sure that your Pastor would have done the same, for it's the "pastor's heart" I once wrote of, the "shepherd love" which is but a reflection of the loving concern of the Saviour for His sheep.

So the week proved to be worthwhile for others in spite of one's depression. God's word to me and to others afflicted is: "My grace is sufficient for thee". It is, thank God!

Snow White

by A. S. F. Horne, Pastor of our Ipswich Church

GOD'S snow-white dove, the Spirit of God, was actually seen by a man here on earth only once. This was possible because John the Baptist was the only man who was filled with that Spirit from birth (Luke 1:15). "I saw the Spirit come down from heaven as a dove and stay on Him" (John 1:32, Beck). The snow-white Dove of the Spirit of God has come to stay (John 14:17) and is the same yesterday, today and for ever.

The Holy Dove of God takes us back to the very dawn of creation. It also reveals the unchanging character of the Spirit. "The Spirit of God was moving [hovering, brooding] over the face of the earth" (Genesis 1:2, Amplified); or, as the Talmud paraphrases it: "The Spirit of God was borne over the water as a dove which broods over her young". The word in Genesis 1:2 is used in Deuteronomy 32:11 for the eagle "fluttering over her young". The Holy Spirit was the Holy Dove of God from the dawn of creation, brooding, germinating life, as the Lord's Giver of life. Just as He filled the Temple so that the priests could not enter, so He filled a sinless world, the holy temple of God. The opening of creation and the opening of redemption both behold the Spirit brooding as the Dove of God.

The revelation of the character of the Holy Spirit is important, for He is working that character into us. The very term "dove" runs through the Bible revelation of the Christian. Jesus said, "Lo, I am sending you out as sheep in the midst of wolves; be wary and wise as serpents, and be innocent, harmless, guileless and without falsity as doves" (Matthew 10:16, Amplified).

The Dove is the Bird of Love

The look of the Spirit is the look of love (Song of Solomon 1:15; 2:14). The dove is the only bird of the heavens which is domestic; it does not require to be caged as a prisoner in order to be kept among men. The Holy Spirit has alighted among us of His own free will at the impulse of love.

When an old church steeple was being pulled down, just as it began to tremble and sway from side to side, a beautiful, white dove was seen flying round. A hundred voices shouted, "See that dove! Poor thing!" The foreman thought that she must have young ones in the steeple. With each tug of the rope the distress of the poor dove became so great that everyone felt sorry for her. The bird hovered a moment, then at the instant that the creaking timbers began to topple over, she darted into the steeple and was hid from view. When the rubbish was cleared away, she was found lying between her young ones, all three crushed to death. So it was with the Lord, "who through the eternal Spirit offered Himself without spot to God". The Holy Spirit was the crushed Dove on Calvary, for the whole Spirit dwelt bodily on Jesus and the Spirit is love.

The Dove is Gentleness

The dove, unlike the eagle and the hawk, is utterly defenceless. It is shy, sensitive. It has no talons. Naturalists tell us that it has no gall. Repeatedly we are told in Scripture that the dove is gentle, e.g. "Like a dove I moan" (Isaiah 38:14, Berkeley). The Spirit wakes the sweet sorrow of the penitent soul: "Like doves of the valley, all of them moaning over their guilt" (Ezekiel 7:16, Berkeley).

The Spirit "helpeth our infirmity with groanings that cannot be uttered". It is God's indescribable sorrow over a lost world. Fenelon says, "We must lend an attentive ear, for His voice is soft and low and it is heard only by those who hear nothing else" – the sweet, low call of the Better Land.

The Holy Spirit is the very gentleness of God. The Chaldee paraphrase of Song of Solomon 2:12 reads: "The voice of the turtle-dove is heard in our land" – the voice of the Holy Spirit. When we resist the Holy Spirit, it is like taking the sweetest, gentlest, the most defenceless person we know and wantonly striking him in the face. It is driving away from us the Dove in whom is all life, love and salvation.

The Dove has always been the Emblem of Purity

It was so pure a bird, that it was not only classed as "clean", but it was also the only bird allowed on the altars of God (Leviticus 1:14). The mother of Jesus offered two white doves. On the altar of Calvary, both the Dove and the Lamb were offered. Our Lord Jesus "through the eternal Spirit offered Himself without spot unto God". Doves are remarkable for keenness of vision. The Spirit "searcheth all things." "Thou art of purer eyes than to behold evil, and canst not look on iniquity" (Habakkuk 1:13). All purity dwells in the Spirit of God; where He enters He brings purity – pure doctrine, imagination, motives, heart and, above all, pureness from guilt. "Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost?" (1 Corinthians 6:19).

E.W.M.A. "999" FUND

by Mrs. Gladys M. Gorton, E.W.M.A. Secretary

THE second year for the E.W.M.A. "Transmitting the Truth" project terminated at the great Missionary Rally during Conference week at Blackpool, when we broke all previous records by reaching a total around £7,300 – approximately £2,000 up on the previous year. Already £1,200 to £1,300 has been given by the E.W.M.A. to propagate the gospel through the media of radio broadcasts in Africa, South America, India and the Far East, and by cassettes, tapes, recordings and literature.

The amount reached this year is proof that more women are joining E.W.M.A. Thinking this over and conjecturing on the possibilities of most Elim churches having an E.W.M.A. branch contributing to the national project, we could soon reach a total of £22,000. Some call me an "incorrigible optimist", but surely this is a simple fact. With simple faith it is in the realm of achievement. Our previous projects included the purchasing of new church roofs, church buildings, typewriters, adding-machines, generators, a printing-press, literature, vehicles (apart from Green Shield stamp books) and all kinds of renovations and mission station aids for our missionaries. We know that even in the early stages of the "T.T.T." project, many souls have been saved, remarkable healings have taken place and churches have been formed through the radio broadcasts.

Now I introduce our new project: the "999 Fund". As you know 999 is the number one dials in an emergency, so priorities will be given to any emergencies, e.g. water shortage through drought and famine areas, etc. I quote from an article in the Daily Express entitled "The Battle for Survival": "Almost 1,000 million people live today in countries where there is not enough food to eat. For millions drought is a real fact of life. In India the real difficulty is that some States have had drought for several years in succession, which means the seeds crops shrivel up on barren land." Our missionaries are frequently in these conditions.

Besides the financial aspect of E.W.M.A. activities are the tremendous fellowship and prayer sessions experienced among E.W.M.A. members. Extracts from a few letters read: "Although only about six in number we continue to have much blessing. The Lord has blessed us and we feel that we are really helping our dear missionaries"; "We enjoy our E.W.M.A. meetings and rejoice in what has been accomplished so far"; "We didn't really set ourselves a target this year, though we naturally hoped to attain to last year's total. We did, however, have a spiritual aim, i.e. 'that in all things He might have the pre-eminence'. As you see we have surpassed our donation for last year and rejoice in the knowledge that it will help to spread the gospel in other lands. We look forward to our E.W.M.A. meetings and feel that they forge a bond between the women of the church which was not present before".

God (John 1:32,33). Just as Noah's dove going forth from the ark "found no rest for the sole of her foot" and "it returneth not again unto him any more", so the door would at last open and, blowing "where it listeth", the Spirit would come forth and abide upon the head of Messiah. God's Dove hovering over all mankind found only one resting-place – the head and heart of the Lamb. "God giveth not the Spirit by measure unto Him" (John 3:34). In Him alone dwelt "all the fulness of the Godhead bodily". It was not a crown which descended, but a Dove. All that is true of the Dove is also true of the Lamb. What joy is ours to know that the Holy Spirit, the Dove of God, finds a nest in the soul of born-again believers, with these exquisite results – joy, peace, longsuffering, kindness, goodness, temperance (Galatians 5:22). He also gives His wonderful Gifts. Since Pentecost "the Spirit and the bride say, Come". This is the massive foundation on which all rests; it is the one recorded cry to God of the Holy Spirit. He knows all things, all Gospel advance, all revival, and He says that there is only one solution for world problems – to come.

None but the Holy Spirit knows the deep things of God – the everlasting plans, the profound purposes, the unrevealed powers of God; yet, knowing all, He says that the one and only hope for the world is the return of Christ.

"There is a L

(John 6:9)

by P. L. Pov

P.L. Powell was born in South Wales, spent 7½ years in New Zealand, 2½ years in Australia, attended the Commonwealth Bible College in Brisbane, where during his last year as a student he carried out his first Pastorate, returned to Britain in 1961 and was Assistant Pastor of the Rotherham Pentecostal Church. Later he assisted W.T.H. Richards in his School of Evangelism as Evangelistic Secretary. Pastor of the Droylsden Assembly for the past ten years, where has been launched the interdenominational literature outreach through the Release Evangelistic paper and Release Bible Correspondence Course known as Bethel Publications Ltd., which is registered as a Charity. Has preached throughout Australia, on the Continent of Europe, throughout Britain and in U.S.A. and Canada.

EVERY miracle of Christ in the Gospels contains a sign and each of His declarations enfolds a guiding principle. In the feeding of the 5,000, Jesus not only met the emergency of the moment; He also set the pattern for the progress of His Church throughout the ages. Christ took a maximum of five loaves and two fishes and, with no extra source material, fed a minimum of 5,000 people. To accept the essential facts of the story and deny the literal miracle is neither logical nor honest. Far better that we deny the whole. If there were a hungry crowd and a small lad, five loaves and two fishes, a group of disciples who did not know what to do, a massive meal with twelve baskets of fragments left over and a satisfied group of men acknowledging that Jesus Christ was the promised prophet (v.14), then something supernatural must have taken place. This chapter records the miracle of the feeding of the 5,000. It also presents three graphic pictures representing the activity of the Church, the need of the world and the provision of Christ.

The serving Church represented by the Disciples

In each book of active service for Christ there is a prologue of passive presentation to God. Preparation precedes programmes. Training passes through trial to triumph and here can be seen the progress of the serving Church.

In Her Training: "there He sat with His disciples" (v.3)

How instructive it is to observe the occasions when Christ sat. He sat to teach (Matthew 5:1; Luke 5:3); He sat in the hour of crisis (John 8:2,6,8; Luke 22:14); He sat at the time of triumph (Hebrews 10:12). The sitting posture suggests control, composure, completion. Christ was always composed, for He was certain of His message, was in control of Himself under pressure and was assured of complete victory.

John 6:3 presents a beautiful picture of the local church in her preparation for true service, a group of believers with Christ in the midst. The local Church is a minimum of two or three gathered together, with Christ central to the gathering (Matthew 18:20). In this setting the group of believers is alerted to the real need of the crowd who gather. This is what the training of the Church is all about. How does it work?

First there comes a preoccupation with the greatness of Christ, who is in the midst. The Psalmist puts it: "Be still and know that I am God" (Psalm 46:10). The tragedy of our age is that so few things are still. The tragedy of the Church is that she is influenced by the spirit of the age. The emphasis is always on activity, most of which finds its expression in self-effort. We produce a state of preoccupation with self and human endeavour which leads to frustration and human breakdown. Preoccupation with the centrality and greatness of Christ produces the precise opposite. The psalmist says: "Be still", which is basically the same thing that Peter says. "Still" means "to cause to call away, to let go". Peter says, "Casting all your care upon Him, for He has you always in His care" (1 Peter 5:7).

In this state of being taken up with Christ and losing a consciousness of self, we are ready for true service. In the programme of witnessing, ordination always precedes commission. Those who were commanded in Mark 16:15, "Go into all the world and preach" were the men who were earlier called "to be with Him" (3:14). Even subsequent to the commission it is vitally important to heed the instruction, "Come ye apart and rest awhile" (Mark 6:31). If we don't "come apart", we may well fall apart.

In Her Trial: "He said unto Philip" (v.5).

The Church is seen as being on trial in the interviews of Christ with Philip and Andrew. In the question put by Jesus to Philip, the Church is alerted to the true need of the world. Philip succeeded in that he realised as a result of Christ's question, "Whence shall we buy bread that all these men may eat?", that the crowd had a need of Bread. He failed in thinking that the only way to meet this need was by natural means: "Two hundred Pennyworth of bread is not sufficient". With Andrew the matter is taken a step further. He, like Philip, alerted by Christ, was also conscious of the real need of the world, and, like Philip, he both succeeded and failed. He succeeded in that he embraced a principle of divine action in the progress of God's Kingdom: "There is a lad here which hath five barley loaves and two fishes" (v.9). God always works on the basis of what is available. Andrew failed in that his faith did not grasp the further truth that what is available with the blessing of Christ is always adequate. How often has the local church risen part of the way only to fall completely in that question of Andrew's: "But what are they among so many?". "If only we had more money, talent, property, people, a better building, better church officers, better Sunday school teachers, a better Pastor," we cry. God's principle of operation is to take what is available for this is always adequate.

In Her Triumph: "and the disciples distributed to them that were sat down."

What greater triumph for the Church than to be engaged in giving bread to the hungry, bread which Christ provided from what was available in her midst. This really is the only triumph of the Church. This is her supreme objective. Later in this chapter Christ clearly tells us: "I am that Bread of Life" (v.48). To be engaged in lesser things is to deny both calling and commission. We must see to it that we do not fall down halfway. We can only communicate Christ when we have fully received Him. There is much emphasis today on communication and little on communion. You cannot give away what you have not received. We may cry with gusto, "Give us a 'J'" etc., and when we have used all our Jesus stickers to what have we really witnessed? In certain instances we have simply protested our own folly and lack of consideration for other people and other people's property. The world does not need a loud portrayal of Jesus; it needs the Bread of Life.

The searching Crowd represented by the great Company

The multitude followed Jesus because of the miracles which He performed (v.2). Their desires were clear, but they were unconscious of their basic need. They sought the sensational, but Christ always provided the supernatural. There must be a definite division. The world, and often many in the Church, confuse the two. The supernatural is frequently sensational, but the sensational may not be supernatural. If we place emphasis upon the sensational we may be in danger of losing the truly supernatural. There is nothing less sensational and more supernatural than quietly lifting one's eyes to heaven and giving thanks and then breaking, and keeping on breaking, five loaves and two fishes until all are satisfied.

There are two reasons for Christ's instruction for the crowd to be seated (v.10): to bring order and composure to the sensation-seeking multitude, and to ensure that all could see the Christ at work. After the great picnic no one was heard to remark, "Didn't Peter or Andrew or John make a fine job of serving the bread and fish." All were taken up with Christ and many were heard to say, "This is of a truth that prophet" (v.14). May we see Christ as pre-eminent in every ministry and in every minister.

The supernatural Christ seen in Jesus Himself

The first temptation of Satan in the wilderness was for Christ to make bread (Luke 4:3). Christ overcame the devil not on the basis of His divine Sonship, but on the basis of His perfect Manhood. He laid claim to no weapon other than that available to all the sons of Adam - the Word of God. This was sufficient to overcome the devil.

The answer which He gave on the other side of Galilee in the feeding of the 5,000 lifted our Lord to a height of victory and glory which no son of Adam has ever achieved. He took the answer to the first temptation a stage further. May we paraphrase: "Alright, Satan, you have challenged Me to make bread. You have cast an aspersion upon My nature – 'if Thou be the Son of God'. Well, I am the Son of God. I will make Bread, but on My terms not on yours." This is precisely what Christ did in John 6:1-14 – He made bread, and thereby proved that He was the Son of God, not for self, but for others.

One thing has been overlooked. No provision was made for the disciples who have served. A needy world and a compassionate Christ demand of the Church all that she can give without thought for self, but Christ is not forgetful, He is not unmindful, "Gather the fragments that nothing be lost" (v.12), He said, and they gathered and returned with twelve baskets full. Count the baskets and count the disciples! The Church always receives her provision at the hands of Christ from her acts of service for Christ and for needy mankind.

10th Pentecostal World Conference

Seoul, Korea
September 18-23, 1973

MORE than 6,000 persons from other countries have already registered for the Tenth Pentecostal World Conference. Dr. Cho Yonggi, chairman of the local arrangements committee in Seoul and Pastor of Yoi-Do Full Gospel Central Church, asked about the areas represented thus far in advance registration, said that about 3,000 registrants are from the U.S., 1,500 from Japan, 500 from other countries in the Far East, 500 from Europe, and the remainder from other countries, including Africa. He emphasized that in light of the strong pre-registration trend, those planning to attend should mail housing requests and pre-registration fees as soon as possible.

Dr. Cho said that the Korean government is co-operating in many ways to extend a warm welcome to delegates. Special events, tours, and exhibits have been planned to give interesting and unusual insights into the country, its people and its culture.

Enthusiasm for the conference is running high in Korea, Dr. Cho said. His own congregation is currently building a new church which will seat 10,000, but the local committee now anticipates that it will not accommodate even the daytime crowds attending the conference. As an alternative, the Zang Chung Gymnasium, which seats 20,000, may be used.

Evening rallies will be held in Hyochang Stadium. On the final Sunday, when a crowd of several hundred thousand is expected, the closing rally will be held in Namsan Park, or in the May 16 Arena if available. The Arena can accommodate a million people.

Official languages of the Pentecostal Conference will be English and Korean. Translators are also preparing to translate into German, French, Scandinavian, and other languages as needed.

Thoughts from the Book of Genesis

30. Jacob at Bethel (Genesis 28:16)

by F. Lavender, Pastor of our Croydon Church

THERE was certainly sorrow in the heart of Jacob when He arrived at Luz, because he was conscious of being estranged from his father, Isaac, and also because he had been compelled to leave home for fear of his brother Esau. Luz, where he stayed for the night, was barren and uninviting and he had no consciousness of the presence of the Lord there. Yet in that desolate place and at that unhappy time God revealed Himself to Jacob and he came into a personal relationship with the God of Abraham. Jacob certainly had a great deal to learn, for his knowledge of the Lord was elementary, yet that was the place of consecration in response to divine revelation. Jacob renamed hard, stony Luz, "Bethel", the house of God.

So often down the ages, believers have come to a place of barrenness, hardness and distress, a place most unlikely to bring to them any new vision of the Lord and of His purpose, yet that has proved to be the place where God has revealed Himself to them and where they have consecrated themselves to Him. It may be that some of us have come to such a place. Perhaps the Lord has had to bring us there so that we might learn to trust Him rather than circumstances. The Lord is able to turn Luz into Bethel, the hard, hostile place into the very house of God. Look away from imperfect man and from our difficult circumstances. This can be the place of vision and consecration. Here we can enter into such a relationship with God that the whole course of our lives can be changed.

Mr. Kelly Does

by Sheila Price 1 Peter 2:2

MR. KELLY is a milkman. He gets up very early each morning to make his deliveries, for he knows how much his customers look forward to having fresh milk on their breakfast cereals.

One morning when Mr. Kelly went to the dairy for his supply of milk, he found that he had a few minutes to spare. He decided to have a look around.

At the far end of the dairy, some lorry drivers were unloading the churns that they had collected from the farms and passing the churns to Mr. Joe. Mr. Joe has one of the most important jobs in the dairy. He has to check each churn to make sure that the milk is fresh and free from impurities. When Mr. Joe has inspected the milk it is prepared for bottling.

Mr. Kelly was fascinated to see the bottles moving along the conveyor belt to be filled with milk and sealed with the gold, silver and red tops before being put into crates.

"This is where I take over," said Mr. Kelly, as he loaded the crates onto his milk float. Mr. Kelly's customers are fast asleep when he calls, but he leaves their milk on the doorstep and always makes sure that he has not forgotten anyone.

Mr. Kelly knows that milk is a necessary food. It refreshes and nourishes the body, and helps children to grow tall, strong and healthy. Mr. Kelly loves the Lord Jesus and he knows how important it is to grow spiritually strong and healthy. Every believer needs to feed daily on God's precious Word, the necessary food for every Christian. Mr. Kelly reads his Bible every day. Do you?

A Pastor reflects on the events leading to the opening of a new Church building.

"He is our Peace"

Ephesians 2:14

by D. D. Phillips,
Pastor of our Weoley Castle Church, Birmingham

PEACE can mean calm, repose, freedom from disturbance, war or hostilities, quietness of mind, harmony, It arises from the assurance of safety, enjoyment and security against want and misery. Because of sin, mankind is at enmity with God, in a state of war with heaven, so to be delivered from the guilt of sin is called, "PEACE WITH GOD". This peace is the gift of God through Jesus Christ.

Peace in Preparation

At Weoley Castle we saw that God was opening the way for a new church. Realising that there were many obstacles to overcome, we experienced a deep sense of peace from the Saviour Himself. As we saw these obstacles disappearing like hurdles under our feet, we were conscious that the Lord was preparing the way before us.

Preparation is an important part of the Christian life. Willingness to be moulded by the Lord brings peace and reward on earth and in heaven.

Peace in our Journeyings

At the beginning of our journeyings as a congregation, the vision of a new church building was clearly before us. Although we met in many different places in order to keep every department of the Church functioning, the deep sense of divine peace continued to rest on the congregation.

As each individual Christian travels through life's journey, confident in the resurrected Saviour, he will find God's promises to be true.

God hath promised
Strength for the day,
Rest for the labourer,
Light for the way,
Grace for the trials,
Help from above,
Unfailing sympathy,
Undying love.

— Selected

Peace in God's House

On entering our beautiful building our eyes saw the words that described what our hearts had experienced through the past months: "HE IS OUR PEACE". We realised afresh the faithfulness of our Saviour.

I exhort all Christians to dwell in the peace of God.

If you have not yet experienced the peace of Jesus, why not come to Him; He will not cast you out!

From T. H. Stevenson

TO bring home to EVANGEL readers the conditions which could face any of our beloved Elim members in Ireland at any time is beyond my ability within limited space. Over the border in Monaghan, Eire, all was quiet and peace as we enjoyed blessing in the town and country meeting places. Some vandalism on the modern lettering of the lovely new town church "just happened to be" while I was there.

From the birthplace of Elim to the mother church of Elim in the new church in Townsend Street, Belfast was quite a contrast. The building is erected on the peace line, where a new highway will be built. Let us trust that it will be of considerable width!

It is mid-week as I write recalling incidents that should make many thankful for their lot, and prayerful for Elim members and for Ireland. Yesterday morning the minister's wife returned home early from her part-time office work. A 300 lbs. bomb blast had completely shattered government and hospital authority offices. Though the structure remained, and warning was given, hospital records and official papers went sky high through shattered windows. On Sunday morning two little boys attending church had the previous day picked up a hand grenade after their father had been digging in the garden. The military men, called to the scene, told that a touch of the spade, or the pulling of a broken wire would have been fatal to their lives. A day earlier, a faithful elder whom I have known for thirty-five years, was hi-jacked with his car and taken to a house where I.R.A. members blindfolded him, sat him on the edge of a bed, and, under the direction of a woman, he was interrogated for nearly four hours. Some questions are unprintable and would be unmentionable in conversation. "Are you a Catholic or a Protestant?" was an inevitable query, to which our brother replied, "I am a Christian." The next question put was, "Do you know the game of Russian Roulette?" to which the answer was "Yes". The I.R.A. spokesman then added, "Christians are not afraid to die," accompanied by the brave answer, "That is true: I am not afraid to die." So the game of Russian Roulette began. Our brother heard the revolver being partly loaded, which was then put to the side of his head and the trigger released. The revolver fulfilled its action, but drew a blank. By the grace of God our brother's life was spared. Despite the shock, this faithful brother attended every service during a busy Sunday and each special mid-week meeting. None of these matters was related in church, perhaps because walls have ears. It must be said that these dear people seem to live with it, and, when they gather, they long for the blessing of God. Undoubtedly the few days described were beyond the normal pattern, but the unpredictable and unexpected are always there. The foregoing news has been eclipsed by the blessing of God. There have been great trophies of grace recently saved among formerly ungodly men and now we have rejoiced to see even such, with others, filled with the Holy Spirit.

Count your blessings and pray for the faithful believers here, for whom even journeys to church can present constant risks.

The Beaker People

TRAVELLING to the recent Elim Conference one found ample time for fellowship and satisfying conversation, for the coach took about six hours from Salisbury. A dear Baptist friend attending her first Elim Conference related a very interesting story to my husband.

This lady is a farmer's wife and hails from the Wiltshire village of Shrewton, where lectures are given by the Workers' Education Association. In this area of Wiltshire considerable interest is shown in archaeology, for Salisbury Plain is particularly rich in relics and other evidences of early man. There are some 345 barrows or ancient burial grounds in and around Stonehenge. Thus when an archaeologist took his audience back in thought to the Bronze Age and told of the ancient graves of the Beaker people, whose culture spread from North-West Europe, the folk of Shrewton were even more interested. The Beaker people were buried in an upright, sitting position, grasping in their hands bowls or jars containing corn seed, the implication being that, in the world beyond the grave, they would need the means with which to provide nourishment.

Our friend's farmer husband was highly intrigued when the lecturer showed an actual bowl, complete with seed, recovered from a grave. He begged some of the seed and planted it. Imagine his amazement when the precious seed produced a type of wheat bearing several bearded heads of grain – and this from seed gathered in roughly 2,000 B.C.! In the Revised Version of the Bible the word "spelt" is used to describe a crop and details given suggest that the plants grown in a Wiltshire village were similar to those mentioned in Exodus 9:32 and Isaiah 28:25. They are given the name "rie" in the Authorised Version. This was a hard, rough-grained, bearded wheat grown extensively in Ancient Egypt.

All this brings me to a fresh revelation of the great mystery of life and germination in a shrivelled seed. Only the great Creator knows the secret, yet we hesitate to sow the seed of God's Word, seed capable of producing life eternal. It is imperishable and effective, though imparted many centuries ago and is living and active today.

Sow in the morn thy seed,
At eve hold not thine hand;
To doubt and fear give thou no heed,
Broadcast it o'er the land.

Beside all waters sow,
The highway furrows stock,
Drop it where thorns and thistles grow,
Scatter it on the rock.

The good, the fruitful ground,
Expect not here nor there;
O'er hill and dale, by plots 'tis found;
Go forth, then, everywhere.

And duly shall appear,
In verdure, beauty, strength,
The tender blade, the stalk, the ear,
And the full corn at length.

Thou canst not toil in vain;
Cold, heat, and moist and dry,
Shall foster and mature the grain
For garners in the sky.

Thence, when the glorious end,
The day of God is come,
The angel reapers shall descend,
And heaven cry: Harvest home!

Crisis Point

by Maldwyn Jones, Pastor of our Beeston Church

THE attitudes of Jesus to incidents of life are amazing. He is human as well as divine. He fully understands us. To the sick "He was moved with compassion"; with the sorrowful "Jesus wept"; towards the unsaved rich young ruler "Jesus beholding him loved him," even though at crisis point he made the wrong decision.

Every day of our lives we are called upon to make decisions, some of which have a vital effect on the future. This young ruler had been trapped by his environment, social status, religion and wealth. His purpose in coming to Jesus was to find the way to eternal life. He was told: "Come, take up thy cross, and follow Me". This basic lesson in Christian discipleship was the key that unlocked this young man's cage of insecurity as to eternal matters, but here came the point of crisis, the moment of decision. He was given the opportunity to be set free spiritually, but the temporal blessings of life had too strong a hold on him.

Jesus said, "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly" (John 10:10). The door of our spiritual prison has been opened; all we have to do is to walk through it into the freedom of the Kingdom of God. To every man there comes the unreturning decisive moment. Shakespeare saw it: There is a tide in the affairs of men, which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune; omitted, all the voyage of their lives is bound in shallows and in miseries. The wasted life, the frustrated life, the discontented life, and often the tragic life, is the life of indecision.

To every man there openeth
A way and ways and a way;
The high soul treads the high way,
And the low soul gropes the low,
And in between on the misty flats,
The rest drift to and fro.

John Oxenham

The drifting life can never be happy or useful. This is specially true of Christian service and living. We need to be firmly anchored to Christ and to trust in Him daily.

If only the rich young ruler had made a decision like that of Moses, he would have faced the greatest crisis in life and as result of his choice experienced eternal bliss (Hebrews 11:24,25). In the Christian life, too, young people cannot afford to make a mistake on the question of choice. "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve. . .but as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord." (Joshua 24:15).

ONE WAY COFFEE BAR

LEAVESDEN ROAD, WATFORD

by Andrew Macfarlane

WHEN it was known that our Watford Church would be moving from Hillrise Avenue to St. Albans Road, to a building with ideal facilities for young people, the Church's Youth Committee caught a vision of what could be achieved for the Lord by opening a coffee bar. Many will not attend church services, but they are prepared to come to informal "get-togethers" in a coffee bar atmosphere.

After much prayer and preparation (which included a series of Bible Studies on personal evangelism), the opening date was fixed. What with young Christians all over the world identifying their faith in Christ by the One Way sign and with the premises being on a one way street, the choice of name was obvious – "One Way Coffee Bar." So, with tables constructed from old road signs, soft red lighting, a fish net hanging from the ceiling, and background music playing, the "One Way Coffee Bar" was opened.

Over the last few weeks, there has been much to praise God for. Not only has the Coffee Bar proved to be an effective means of evangelistic outreach, but it is also operating as a thoroughly integrated part of the Church fellowship. A considerable number of young people, having been challenged in the Church services, have been counselled more fully in the informality of the Coffee Bar. This has also given opportunity for those young people more established in the Christian life to share with and encourage those newly converted.

As the Coffee Bar goes on, the Lord continues to bless and to direct in all aspects of the work. At present "One Way" is open each Friday and Sunday from about 8.30 p.m. About once each month the Friday evening effort forms a special outreach when a gospel group presents the message in song in a relevant way. Christians use this night as something really different to which to bring their unconverted friends. We recently enjoyed a weekend with evangelists Don and Dan Moe, co-directors of Youth Ventures of Canada, who really communicated the truth of the gospel effectively, with the result that yet more young people trusted Christ as their Saviour.

Scripture Union Portions — Notes by L.E. Lambert

Monday, June 18th — Romans 10:1-13

"Going about to establish their own righteousness" (v.3).

THE hardest pill for the unsaved man to swallow is that he cannot save himself. When one asks folk on what they are basing their hopes for heaven, the vast majority reply, "I have done the best I can. I have never hurt anyone. I. . . I. . . I. . .". They are trying to establish their own righteousness. This is completely against the revealed way of salvation. We must submit ourselves to the righteousness of Christ. We must continually combat this pride of man. This is the way that seems right, but the ends thereof are the ways of death (Proverbs 14:12). It is not by trying, but by trusting.

Tuesday, June 19th — Romans 10:14-21

"How shall they hear?" (v.14).

WHICH is the best way to propagate the Gospel? Some prefer one way, some another: crusades, Christian concerts, tracts, in homes or halls, film, radio, literature, open-airs. We must use all means that we can sincerely pray about to reach the lost, but the most Scriptural and the most successful way of spreading the Good News is by word of mouth, personal commendation leading to personal conversion, one Christian sharing with another person what God has done for His soul and telling what Jesus can do for the individual. Will you vow to speak to someone today, otherwise how shall they hear?

Wednesday, June 20th — Romans 11:1-12

"There is a remnant" (v.5).

WE often feel that we are on our own as we stand for God. Elijah thought so, too (v.3), until God pointed out that there were seven thousand men who had not bowed to Baal (v.4). Today there are more people who love our Lord than we realise. We wish, however, that the seven thousand had made a bolder stand for their faith than they did. Secret discipleship may be necessary in some kinds of political societies, but people around us should know whose we are and whom we serve. If you stand, it will help others to do so.

Thursday, June 21st — Romans 11:13-24

"If the root be holy" (v.16).

HOLINESS is possible only if our thought life is pure. As a man thinketh in his heart so is he. In other words we are not what we think we are, but, what we think, we are. This is why there is much teaching in Scripture regarding this. In these days of psychology and psycho-analysis we need to remember that God's Book is always in advance of the time. Philippians 4:8 gives a good list of what to think about. If the roots are holy, the branches will be holy, and the opposite is true. If our thought life is right, our actions will follow the same course. Think on these things.

Friday, June 22nd — Romans 11:25-36

"There shall come out of Sion the Deliverer" (v.26).

ISRAEL has returned to her own land. We have seen the thrilling fulfilment of Bible prophecy. As yet, they are in unbelief. They are, however, looking for and expecting the imminent appearing of their Messiah, who shall be their Ruler and set up a world-wide kingdom of peace. The staggering thought is that their Messiah will be our Jesus. They shall look upon Him whom they pierced. A nation will be born in a day. He will be their Deliverer physically and spiritually, saving them from the hands of their enemies and from their sins (v.27). The BRANCH shall build the temple (Zechariah 6:12).

Saturday, June 23rd — Romans 12:1-8

"Not slothful in business" (v.11).

WE must not be so heavenly-minded that we are of no earthly use. We must not either be so mindful of earthly things that we are useless to God, but a Christian should always do his best. We should do all to the glory of God, being punctual in timekeeping, honourable in transactions, attentive at school, diligent at work. We must be our best for God. Slothfulness is a sin. Whether it is the Lord's business, or our earthly employer's, we should put our best into the task. There is no substitute for hard work. Whether you are pastoring or plastering, or whatever you do, be zealous. Jesus said, "I must be about my Father's business".

Sunday, June 24th — Romans 12:9-21

"Given to hospitality" (v.13).

HOW pleasant a thing it is to put our homes at God's disposal, to use what God has given to us for His glory. A nice home is a blessing; it can also be a blessing to others. The lonely could be welcomed. A Christian visitor coming to church while passing through the town can be invited home to dinner. Young folk who come from unsaved homes can find strength and fellowship. Do not give only to those who can give back; give for Jesus' sake. You might entertain angels unawares (Hebrews 13:1). The household of Stephanas addicted themselves to the ministry of the saints (1 Corinthians 16:15).

Book Reviews

"Why should the Devil have all the good Music?" by Larry Norman. Published by Marshall, Morgan and Scott Ltd., price 95p, postage and packing 4p extra.
LARRY Norman, who gave us the "One Way" sign, is probably the top solo artist of the Jesus Movement (Time magazine). He was a rock and roll musician before his conversion. He still is, for he presents Jesus through rock music, for "Jesus is the Rock and He rolled my blues away".

This songbook includes an in-depth interview with Larry, photos, and fourteen of his songs. Such familiars as, "I wish we'd all been ready" and "Sweet song of Salvation" are included. Serious Christian musicians under twenty-five – this book is for you.

In common with Charles Wesley, Larry's message is relevant to his generation. There is a similarity in length of hair as well!

David G. Woodfield

Pentecost is Dynamite, by W.T.H. Richards. Published by Marshall, Morgan and Scott Ltd., price 40p, postage and packing 4p extra.
PENTECOSTALS need to get this book; it is an eye-opener. It tells us that if Pentecost is still dynamite Pentecostalism is no longer so. The writer etches out the true nature of the Pentecostal person and Church using the New Testament as his tool. The book necessarily becomes a critique of ourselves today. In answer to the question, "Has the Pentecostal breeze subsided?" the author says': "As a Pentecostal minister, I write with a heavy heart. I have travelled extensively in Pentecostal circles and there is no doubt in my mind that the rot has set in and is spreading fast". He diagnoses the trouble. We would do well to consider his verdict. He leaves us with the encouraging fact that God still waits to use such as are willing to return to Him.

John Burgan

You Were Asking, by Denis Clark. Published by Victory Press, Price 25p, postage and packing 6p extra.
IN his second book of questions and answers, Mr. Clark has again come out very clearly on the side of evangelical truth. "Is there really such a place as Hell?"; "The unforgivable Sin", "Separation" – these and many other subjects are dealt with so clearly that none need be left in doubt. I found much interest in the chapter relating to the Holy Spirit. Mr. Clark's treatment is clear and to the point.

In a day when it is so essential to have an answer to every question this book will have a wide appeal. I recommended it.

A. D. Sandford

The Grace of Giving, by Stephen Olford. Published in the Lakeland Series, by Marshall, Morgan and Scott Ltd., price 35p, postage and packing 5p extra.
HERE is no dry-as-dust little volume on the important subject of Christian stewardship and accountability to the Lord for the way his money is used or mis-used. Instead we have a series of heart-warming sermons preached by Dr. Olford to his congregation in Calvary Baptist Chapel, New York City, U.S.A. In his introduction Stephen Olford tells us: "I discovered from the study of the New Testament that the Divine concept of giving is that it is a grace; hence the title of this book". Each chapter retains the structure and style of the sermon as preached to his congregation. For my part, this is an advantage, because one feels the warmth and glow of the preacher. All his arguments are soundly based on Scripture and almost all the illustrations have the excellent quality of being factual.

There is an extremely useful classified index of Scripture references and an extensive bibliography. All in all it is a thoroughly commendable book – and cheap at the price!

IT would not seem to be part of our duty to knock a man when he is down.

Our attitude should be to be trenchant with sin as we fearlessly proclaim Bible standards and provisions, but to love the sinner. We are all fallible. "All have sinned".

There are two aspects of the lordly resignations which are worth commenting on, however. One is that there would appear to be among at least some sections of the press a feeling that the only fault of the two gentlemen involved was to have been found out. The drift of some comment has been that this kind of thing goes on, that it has happened before and no doubt will occur again. The other sad aspect has been the way the media have chased the unfortunate people concerned, photographing them and their families and provoking comments from them.

It has to be seen that sin is in the world and the Palace of Westminster is not exempt from the general malaise which is affecting the whole country. If standards in general are low, then those in power will reflect those standards. Even if they are in the House of Lords, they are but a microcosm of the whole of our population.

This does not mean, though, that we should not uphold the right. It is not true compassion which trims the sails of our standards according to the winds of conventional behaviour. Right is right just as truth is truth. Christians believe that the Bible revelation provides us with the guide and the divine pattern for life. Those revelations are for the good of all men and are not only of application to Christians. This must be so, otherwise those standards are relative and not final.

Then again is it really a fact that we get the news we deserve, as is so often claimed? The media men, when faced with the muck-raking which occupies somuch space and time, tend always to say that they are selling newspapers, magazines, television, and thus must provide what their clientele will take. Does this mean that purveyors of news have no responsibilities? Are they implying that men are sinners, so let us realise this and regale them with as much sin as possible? The days of the crusading journalist seem long to have gone!

We must reflect, none the less, that Christians need ever to be watchful. Pride, jealousy, backbiting, pettiness, are sins as much as are other sins. We must take care not to regard some sins as greater than others simply because we do not indulge in them. All sin is sin and exceeding sinful in the sight of God.

It is refreshing to turn to Scripture and read passages like 1 Chronicles chapter 29. The whole tenor of David's thanksgiving is towards recognition of God's place and power and of men's place as His servants. I specially like verses 16-18.

Church Reports

BELFAST, Townsend Street Pastor: W.G. Mullan

YOU will have heard of the only two roads worth mentioning in Belfast, or indeed in Ulster, viz. "The Falls and The Shankill". Our Church is on the Shankill and is known as the Mother Church of the Elim Movement in Belfast. We have suffered slightly in the present troubles, but are thankful to know that this part of the Elim family is remembered in the prayers of our "relations" all over Britain. The leaders of our Sunshine Corner Department would like you to know a little about our work in a City of riots.

The average number of children who attend each Tuesday night is seventy. They are between the ages of two and fifteen. You might think we would have difficulty in keeping control of this number, but their behaviour is excellent, and the hour from 6.30 p.m. to 7.30 p.m. seems to be the shortest in the whole week. We fill it with enthusiastic singing, competition time and story. During the evening we collect the half-pennies hoarded from pocket money, and mothers' purses, not to mention fathers' pockets, and place them in our Elim Missionary Fund. Our Target this year was to be £20, but we have exceeded this amount.

Yvonne Thompson and Brenda McMullen handing to our President an envelope containing £22 for Elim Missionary Society.

The meeting ended, the children are shepherded across the busy Shankill Road by leaders. Often one wonders what impression we make on car drivers who are stopped at the traffic lights. May it remind them of days of old when they heard the gospel in its simplest form. Could these lovable children skipping home start thoughts in hearts which might otherwise be unmoved?

BARBARA SNOWDEN

ROMFORD Pastor: P.E. Streeter

THE dawning of Easter Day brings with it an air and atmosphere of expectancy. The Lord is risen! This anticipation of blessings associated with and derived from the resurrection day is enhanced and extended at Romford, because on this day, for the past few years, a baptismal service has been held. This year was no exception. During the evening service nine candidates followed their Lord through the waters of baptism, six of them having been converted since the induction of Philip E. Streeter as minister six months earlier. Among these nine were a mother and son, a young married couple, and an engaged couple. All nine testified to the reality of God's salvation, blessing and presence.

During the morning service, eleven received the right hand of fellowship as members of the church, a thrilling moment.

God is richly blessing the Romford Church under the anointed ministry of Pastor P.E. Streeter and oftentimes the seating capacity of the Church is fully utilised. To God be all the glory!

F.E. CROKER

LEICESTER Pastor: R. Morrell

THERE was a deep sense of appreciation as members and close friends gathered to say goodbye to Pastor and Mrs. R.R. Taylor after a little over ten years of dedicated Ministry among the Leicester Assembly. After an excellent farewell tea, the time of fellowship, when suitable choruses were sung to the accompaniment of the new Hammond organ, and tributes were paid, reflected on the achievements of the past decade. We praised God that His good hand had been upon us and rejoiced over the many benefits and blessings of the years.

On behalf of the Church, the Secretary presented Pastor Taylor with a substantial cheque and gave a gift to Mrs. Taylor, who also received a present from the Thursday Fellowship Meeting. Pastor Taylor said how happy he had been in Leicester and acknowledged the help and fellowship of the Diaconate and the members ever since his arrival in the City.

The tone of the concluding services on Sunday was tremendous and very blessed. It was a moving moment when, at the conclusion of the gospel service, the members of the Church Session joined Pastor Taylor on the platform and committed him to the Lord.

YORK Pastor: A. Brooks

THE two branch Sunday schools of the York church are held in the main halls of day schools at opposite ends of the City. The staff of each school have a busy time every Sunday afternoon, preparing for the hour in which the school is held. Everything has to be done in that hour – the preparation, the programme, and clearing up afterwards.

Pastor Burgan presenting the prizes

Some of the children who received prizes

I attended the prizegiving of our Acomb branch the other Sunday. The usual activity was taking place, but this time there was more to do. The prizes had to be displayed and extra seating to be arranged. Every member of the staff was occupied with some duty. A good number of parents came to the service and it was encouraging to see that every available chair and form in the hall had to be used in order to seat everyone.

The speaker was Pastor J. Burgan, who also presented the prizes. A good percentage of the prizes was Bibles, something I had taken note of at the local prizegiving a week or so earlier. The knowledge of the Bible shown by many of our children proves that they read and digest the Scriptures very well indeed.

ALEX LAWRENCE

EALING Pastor: F.F.L. Frost

WE are rejoicing in the Lord's blessing upon the work here through the anointed and dedicated ministry of Pastor and Mrs. F. Frost. We have received continual refreshing showers of the Holy Spirit since their arrival at Ealing at the end of last August and their loving, faithful ministry has endeared them to the hearts of all. The ministry of the Word of God, including the weekly Bible Studies, is bringing new light on many of the passages of Scriptures, revealing still deeper spiritual truths concerning our wonderful Saviour.

No Easter Convention was held this year, but we were led nearer to Calvary, for at the Bible Study on Maunday Thursday and on Good Friday morning we were led by our Pastor to meditate on the events leading up to and of Calvary itself. The keynote of the Easter Sunday services was Jesus the Victor over the grave and the Conqueror of death. At these meetings we welcomed Pastor and Mrs. Frost's daughter and family from Clacton on Sea and her rendering of messages in song greatly contributed to the blessing of the meetings.

Last Autumn thirty were received into membership. Some had been regular attenders. Following this a baptismal service was held when seven candidates were immersed by our Pastor.

The Sunday school under the Superintendentship of Mr. A. Blake and the branch Sunday School at Hanwell are flourishing, each comprising over one hundred children. The Ealing Bible Class under Mr. M. Fleckney and Mrs. P. Blake is also progressing. We give thanks to God for their faithful service and that of the Superintendent and the teachers.

TYLDESLEY CRUSADE

Over forty counselled in six nights

THE mid-week crusade held in Tyldesley will long be remembered for the Spirit-filled atmosphere in the theatre night after night. Many hands were raised for salvation and forty-two adults walked to the front and then went into the counselling room.

Suicide Case

Three weeks before the crusade a man tried to commit suicide. On the Monday night he was gloriously saved. On the Tuesday night he brought his wife and she gave her heart to the Lord.

The following report appeared in The Tyldesley Journal:

Good response to Tyldesley visit of evangelist

PEOPLE have responded "very favourably" to Alexander Tee's Bible prophecy and divine healing sessions in Tyldesley Little Theatre this week.

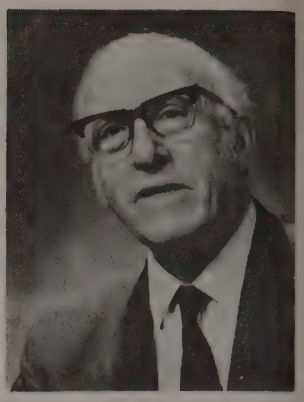
Mr. Tee, of the Southport Evangel Temple, began his Billy Graham-type services in the Little Theatre on Monday night and they continue until Saturday.

He travels from Southport each day and describes reaction from locals as "very favourable". In particular he said he had noticed how friendly the people were.

He has been campaigning for twenty years in Britain and overseas, but this is the first time he has been in Tyldesley. He said that several local people had already made their decisions for Christ.

One person whom, he says, seems to have benefitted from his divine healing is a middle-aged woman who went for prayers on Monday night, suffering from severe arthritis. At Tuesday's session, she bent down and touched her toes, of her own accord, to show how her condition had improved.

Already the Little Theatre has been packed on the first two nights. Special guests have been soloist Mr. Bill Hunter, an ex-opera singer, and Mr. Tee's own youth choir.



Mr. Tee has been in Southport for nine months and has been National Youth Director of the Elim Pentecostal Church.

The Letter to the Romans

33. Appendage: The Neglected Chapter (chapter 16) continued

by J. Alexander Wright

CONTINUING our look at the twenty-seven or so names mentioned, we come to a gentle touch of Pauline humour in v.12. "Tryphena and Tryphosa" were probably sisters, "Delicate" and "Dainty" by name, but withal sacrificially toiling in the service of the Lord. The word "labour" is intensive; so what's in a name? "Persis", another devoted sister in the Lord's work, "laboured much". Some work, and some work harder! "Rufus" (v.13), "that choice Christian" (Moffatt), "an outstanding follower" (N.E.B.) is identified by Christian tradition as the son of Simon the Cyrenian who carried the cross for Jesus (Mark 15:21). Mark was with Paul in Rome and probably wrote his Gospel from there. "His mother and mine" may simply mean that she was a "mother in Israel" to Paul.

When digging in a garden at the entrance to the Appian Way, a market-gardener discovered slabs of stone covering a large vault which bore the inscription: "Vaults for the members of Caesar's Household". It dates from the beginning of the Christian era to about A.D.66. Among the names recorded are: Urbane, Tryphena and Tryphosa, Hermes and Patrobas. Dean Howson speaks of his "start of pleasure" when he saw also listed Stachys, Philologus, and Julia (Romans 16: 14,15).

"All greet one another" (v.16). Hands on the other's shoulders and a kiss on each cheek is the immemorial greeting of the East, marking friends and equals. To kiss the hand meant submission. The sexes never mingled, however. "A hearty handshake all round" (Phillips and Living Letters) is not quite a translation of the Greek here, but it is a fair enough paraphrase for British folk; though John Murray says, "It betrays an unnecesary reserve, if not the loss of the ardour of the Church's first love, when the holy kiss is conspicuous by its absence in the Western Church" (Romans).

Ever the shepherd, with the well-being of the flock at heart, Paul now turns to give his readers a final warning concerning the peril ever before them (v.17). The great doctrines which he had been expounding had been challenged. There were those who were not willing to walk in the way of true holiness (v.18). "Slaves to their own base appetites" is how A.S. Way renders the strong Elizabethan English (Philippians 3: 19). They were of the Serpent (Romans 16:18); the true Christians were of the Dove (v.19). Satan is a defeated foe, for Eden's promise is continually fulfilled, and will have its final consummation at our Lord's Second Advent (v.20).

The brief and lovely benediction of Grace ends his message to them. The Amens of vv. 20,24, and 27, mean not merely, "May it be so", but, "It shall be so!".

Now Paul's companions add their greetings. How much Paul thought of "Timothy" (v.21) is seen in that he mentioned him in eleven of his Epistles. "Lucius" is Roman form of Luke, perhaps the beloved physician and evangelist. "Jason", who, like Priscilla and Aquila, risked his life to shelter Paul (Acts 17:5-9), "Sosipater" of Berea was one of the "noble" people (Acts 17:10, 11). A present-day Bible Reading Fellowship is named after them. Are you a true Berean? "Tertius" was the apostle's penman (Romans 16:22). His is not really a name, but is the Latin for "the third"; compare "Quartus" (v.23) i.e. "the fourth". Maybe one was a triplet and the other a quad! Tertius may have been but a slave, but his hand wrote what is surely one of the greatest Letters ever. "The unknown to whom we owe so much", remarked Dr. William Barclay here. "Add your name, Tertius!", Paul would have said to him.

Pentecost

1. A Movement

by

Geoffrey J. Feasey, Pastor of our Pontardulais Church

IN these last days, the closing days of time, one of the many signs and portents which is being revealed is the Joel prophecy of the outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon all flesh. We are seeing amazing scenes in the most unlikely nations of the world. From the western hemisphere of Mexico and Brazil to the eastern shores of Korea and Indonesia, even non-pentecostalists are having to take more than a superficial interest. Revivals among youth and in the historic denominations of our country are causing debates and commissions among the ecclesiastical high circles. All this causes wonder and praise to the God of Pentecost, who is no respecter of persons or barriers. All flesh shall see His glory and, what is more, all flesh shall see the outpouring of the Holy Spirit.

How should this affect the Pentecostal movement? Two sides of the picture clamour for attention.

On the one hand, we give God the glory that at last the historic churches, with their obsession as to pomp and dignity, are seeing the truth that was granted to us early in this century, that the Third Person of the Godhead is not a vague, impersonalised figurehead, but a live, pulsating Person – God in action. Praise God for the ministry of the Gifts between the liturgy and the collects. The worship and truth which the Pentecostal movement has experienced and enjoyed are now being made manifest upon all flesh.

On the other hand there can be great danger, danger that looms so large, that it causes concern in many hearts. We who claim the Spirit's fulness and liberty of worship, could be left behind in Pentecost. The newness and freedom of worship among the historic churches has to be seen to be believed. Prayer groups, miracles, books written by high church fathers and anglo-catholics giving teaching on how to conduct Pentecostal worship and the use of the Gifts abound, yet among many of our churches in Pentecost there is some fear of free expression. Have we become used to Pentecost?

Because of some extremism or slight excess in the past, some have built up barriers and defined what is in order and what is confusion, some have withdrawn themselves into shades of formalism and the liberty of the Gifts of the Spirit and the scope of Pentecost have become restricted instead of being the normal.

It is essential that we are Evangelical. It is basic that we are, and should remain, Fundamentalist. The plea of this article is that we should become more and more Pentecostal.

Older readers remember what have been loosely termed, "the old days"; the prayer must be, "Lord, give us Pentecost, else we die!". Only an increase in the warmth and vigour of worship can bring revival. Praise should be the natural outcome of sins forgiven, stemming from this should, nay must, come a deepening of worship. Some excess may have been seen in the past, but this must not deter us. No fear must be allowed to hinder our worship. If we ask for bread, will God give us a stone? This fear is implanted by the enemy of our souls.

We who as a movement pioneered the message of Pentecost must still be the leaders in example and standard. On our church notice-boards we claim to be the movement of Pentecost; our conduct inside must match what is outside. Freedom, spontaneity, expressions of love, gifts, fruit, power, Pentecost should characterise our every meeting.

Jesus the Scholar

Luke 2:52

Words and drawing by Sheila Price

"WHAT did you do at school today?" Mrs. Brown asked.

"I got two sums wrong," replied Carol, sadly.

"Never mind, dear," said her mother, "I am sure you will get them right next time".

"Did Jesus ever go to school, mummy?"

"Of course not," said Brian, "there were no schools in those days."

"Oh, but there were," said Mrs. Brown, "Jesus and His friends went to school every day. They did not sit at desks, as you do, but in a circle on the floor while their teacher taught the lessons."

"What sort of lessons did they have, mummy?"

"Well, they had history lessons, in which they learned what God had done for their country in the olden days. They had geography lessons and learned of other lands. In their singing lessons, the songs they sang were the Psalms. In the Old Testament we can read today the very same lessons that Jesus read and learned when He was at school."

"It must have been wonderful to go to school with Jesus," Brian sighed. "How proud His school friends must have been to sit next to Him during lessons!"

"Well," said Mrs. Brown, "the children thought of Jesus as one of themselves. To them, He was just an ordinary Nazareth boy learning lessons, singing songs and playing games. His schoolfriends knew no better. They did not know, as we do, that the young Nazareth Boy growing up among them was really the Lord of Heaven, learning all that He could and preparing for the time when He would bless the world for ever."

Thoughts from the Book of Genesis

31. Love's Inspiration

by F. Lavender, Pastor of our Croydon Church.

THIS chapter records one of the great love stories of the Bible. Jacob had been sent to find a wife for himself from among his mother's family and he had been led directly to the place where they lived. The first of his kinsfolk whom he met was the beautiful Rachel. It is clear that Jacob at once fell deeply in love with her. This was no "arranged" match, but – at least on Jacob's part – a case of love at first sight. When Laban, Rachel's father, asked Jacob what wages he should pay him, Jacob had no hesitation. He said that he would serve for seven years to obtain Rachel for his wife. So great was his love and such its inspiration, that we are told that the seven years which he served were like a few days.

This very human story has a practical, spiritual lesson. The Lord Jesus died on the cross because He loved us so much, though we do not understand why He should love us so deeply. He was able to endure the cross because of the joy which His love gave (Hebrews 12:2). It follows, therefore, that our responsive love to Him is to be the inspiration of our service: "We love Him, because He first loved us" (1 John 4:19). This love enabled apostles and martyrs to endure insults, torture and death. Love has sent His witnesses everywhere with burning hearts to proclaim to sinful men and women the mighty, redeeming love of God in Christ. Allow His wonderful love to fill your heart and to flood your life. That love will be the true inspiration of our service for Him, for one another, and for the dying souls of men and women.

Points for Preachers

by J. Alexander Wright

An Outline

The Text of the four Magnitudes
(Ephesians 3:18,19)

1. The Breadth of His Love: as wide as the limits of the universe, embracing all, "whosoever".

2. The Length of His Love: as long as eternity. "I have loved thee with an everlasting love".

3. The Depth of His Love: as deep as the abyss from which it has redeemed us. "My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?". "Many waters cannot quench [His] love, neither can the floods drown it". "Underneath are the everlasting arms".

4. The Height of His Love: high as the throne of God itself, where Christ reclines "in the bosom of the Father". "He is able to save to the uttermost".

Yet "it passeth knowledge that dear love of Thine", but, what the mind cannot grasp, the heart can feel.

An Open Letter

"Dear Pastor. . ."

YOU often say, "And now we will ask Brother X. to lead us in prayer" but you never do! Yet he does! Funny, isn't it? Why not really ask him, instead of only declaring your intention?

And those Benedictions, Pastor. Dr. William Sangster, in one of his fine books on preaching, urges preachers, when they undertake to "pronounce the Benediction", to PRONOUNCE it! How lovely it is to hear those grand benedictions and doxologies of the Bible quoted correctly in the sublime words of the A.V. or even in another. I wonder why we so rarely do? Could it be that pastors are slipshod here? Most we hear are hybrids!

Notes of the Address given on Easter Monday evening in the Royal Albert Hall, London

The Prototype Sermon

(Acts 2:38)

by Tom W. Walker

"GLORY, glory! Love is life and Death is dead" wrote J.S.B. Monsell. The astounding, powerful message of the Early Church was: JESUS IS ALIVE! Weak, vacillating, denying men, transformed by the power of the Holy Spirit, gave dynamic witness to the fact of Christ's resurrection and the overwhelming victory of the Master whom they had sadly deserted in His hour of need. Nowhere is the theology, the doctrine, which inspired the Church at its foundation more clearly propounded than in Acts chapter 2. "For after that in the wisdom of God the world by wisdom knew not God, it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe." (1 Corinthians 1:21), and the Church's first sermon – Peter's on the day of Pentecost, the very birthday of the Church – is the prototype.

The cause of the sermon is readily discernible. The staggering events earlier in the day had been noised abroad. There were not only the rushing, mighty wind of the sound from heaven and the cloven tongues like as of fire sitting upon each of them and their all speaking with other tongues as the Spirit gave them utterance, all within the secret place where the foundation members gathered in earnest desire, for soon it spilled over. As Acts 2:6,7 demonstrates, it quickly became public. Some suggest that the Galilean accent was difficult to understand any way, yet here were these, let us say, country bumpkins with their unusual accent even when they were supposed to be speaking the normal language, telling forth the praises and the wonderful works of God in many tongues readily appreciated by the gathered visitors from a variety of nations. What could it mean?

Why, the Church had suddenly sprung to life. The birth had happened. Previously it was as in John 20:9: "For as yet they knew not the scripture, that He must rise again from the dead." Now, however, they had seen Him, heard Him, touched Him. He was alive! He had been dead, but He was gloriously, triumphantly alive! It miraculously, spontaneously, suddenly all clicked into place. "When therefore He was risen from the dead, His disciples remembered that He had said this unto them; and they believed the Scripture, and the word which Jesus had said." (John 2:22).

With facts and with beautifully enunciated Scripture truth, rugged Peter, transformed by the Spirit's power, taught the teachers. The Church was launched on its mission and Peter showed the way to success and blessing in the fulfilment of its predestined task.

How did Peter answer the query, "What meaneth this?" Bear in mind that his audience at least largely consisted of orthodox, zealous, devout Jews. Bible background, rabbinical and pharisaical teaching were their very way of life. Was there ever a more difficult audience for a new preacher delivering his first sermon?

Peter's first appeal recalls Christ's first words in Nazareth's synagogue. They were as epoch-making. "The Spirit of the Lord is upon Me ... He hath anointed Me to preach ... This day is the Scripture fulfilled" Jesus had said (Luke 4:16–21). "This is that" declared Peter, and he updated Joel's prophecy by showing its immediate relevance and the beginning of its fulfilment.

Pentecost was a day of great joy. Even the allegation that the apostles were inebriated was understandable, as the comparison of Ephesians 5:18,19 patently infers. An intoxicated condition was no outlandish analogy. The Jews of the day celebrated Pentecost, among other things, as thanksgiving for the giving of the law. They reckoned that representatives of all the nations, which they computed to be seventy in number, that is all the nations to which the Jews had been dispersed, were among the celebrating crowds in Jerusalem. To witness happy, rejoicing folk would normally be no phenomenon, but they had never seen this before. What better day than this for the public unveiling of God's purpose in the Church? Heaven's public relations' department could have chosen no more opportune moment.

So Peter made his plea from the underlying, cherished ground of their belief, namely the ancient Hebrew, Bible prophecies. He did not interpret all the details, but merely recounted what Joel had written and said, in effect, "This is what is happening today", howbeit he wound up his quotation by adding the basic gospel text of them all, lifted, of course, from the same source, "Whosoever shall call on the name of the Lord shall be saved."

He then directed all attention to Jesus Christ. In explaining Pentecostal happenings he highlighted Jesus. 'Tis ever thus, or should be. This was the pattern, the trend, the mould. Though v.40 shows that more was said than was recorded, and though v.36 suggests that there was a break even in what was set down, we can be sure that his fundamental message was to preach Christ. The erstwhile denier became the powerful witness. Luke 24:46–49 was happening. The first witness was telling what he knew by experience and by revelation.

As to the content of the prototype sermon, the fisherman-apostle focussed attention on the fact that Christ's sign-attested ministry was undeniable (Acts 2:22,23). He further showed that the crucifixion was fore-ordained. "Seeing that we have such hope, we use great plainness of speech" (2 Corinthians 3:12) and, in the very place where it had happened and to the very nation who had brought it about, the fearless evangelist showed that their foul deed in hounding Christ to Calvary was part of the divine plan. The cross is unique. Everything else – resurrection, intercession, coming, reigning, all that looked forward to the one great, complete atonement and all that looks backward to it – is derivative. The cross is foundation.

Added the fiery speaker the rising again of great David's greater Son was entirely Scriptural and of penetrating revelation. See how he argues from the Bible (Acts 2:24-35). Christ MUST rise. David, king, patriarch, but also prophet, had revealed it and had indeed expected it. It happened! He did rise! Savour v.32: "This Jesus hath God raised up, whereof we all are witnesses."

There was more. Christ ascended and has manifested His regal power and authority, as again David had testified would be so (vv.35,35). So, "What meaneth this?". "HE HATH SHED FORTH THIS"; Jesus is the Baptiser in the Holy Ghost. There had been an earlier Baptist who baptised in water; here was the One who baptised in the Holy Ghost and with fire (Acts 1:5).

Surely v.36 is the greatest punchline in all history: "Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly, that God hath made that same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ." He had begun, "Jesus of Nazareth, a man" (v.22); now he perorates: "both Lord and Christ". "Whom say ye that I am?" Christ had asked this very man. "Thou are the Christ, the Son of the living God" Peter had replied in a sublime moment of revelation. Now he knew it completely, utterly. Here was the Lord Jesus Christ. He was undeniably, inevitably Messiah. He was the ground of the Church's witness and message. He was the source of the Church's authority.

The appeal came from the congregation. "What meaneth this?" they had inquired. Now it was personal. The sword had done its work. They were pricked in their hearts. What might have been a theoretical study, even a legalistic argument, had amazingly turned in upon them and they had to do something, personally. They were out of their depth. Counsel was needed. It came from a working-class nobody, to them an untrained, untried nonenity, but he had the words of eternal life. "What shall we do?" was their query.

The three-pronged answer is the definition of them all: "Repent . . . be baptised . . . ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost" (v.39). Lest there be any doubt we observe that v.39 shows that this is the truth for all the Church for all its witness throughout its ministry. Christendom often puts carts before horses: fruit before birth, knowledge before revelation, baptism before conversion, the baptism in the Spirit at conversion. Peter got it right.

The start was "Repent". As Professor J. Murray writes in The New Bible Dictionary: "In the New Testament repentance refers basically to change of mind, a radical transformation of thought, attitude, outlook and direction, a revolution in that which is most determinative in human personality and is the reflex in consciousness of the radical change wrought by the Holy Spirit in regeneration." Here is where it all begins. John the Baptist inaugurated it. "Repent" he cried. "O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come? Bring forth therefore fruits meet for repentance" he avowed (Matthew 3:7,8). Jesus commenced in the same way: "From that time Jesus began to preach and to say, Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." (Matthew 4:17). The Church started in precisely the same terms. "Repent" cried Peter and gave the Church its special word. Baptism in water and baptism in the Holy Spirit follow. The prototype sermon concerned itself not with decisions as such, but with the making of disciples, baptised and Spirit-filled.

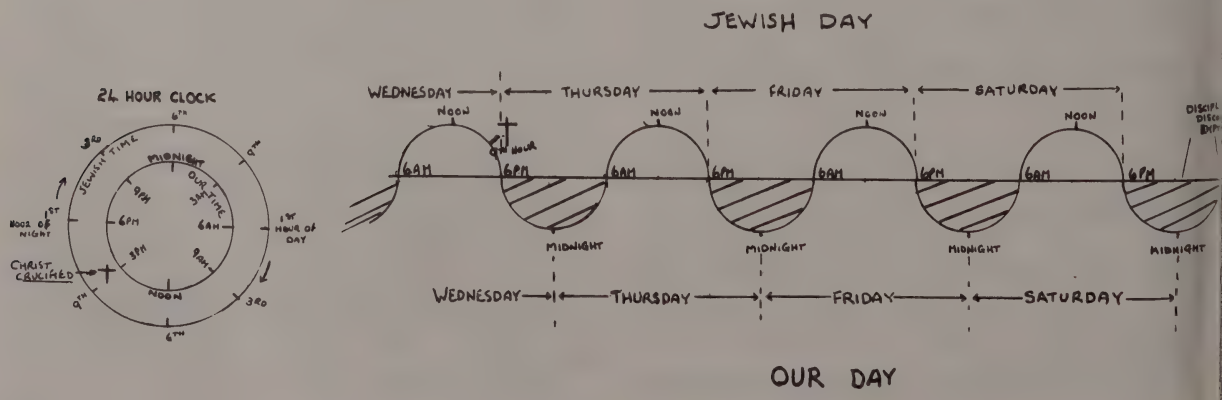
What's so Good about Friday?



by H. B. McGowan, Pastor of Elim Pentecostal Church, Dundee.

CHRISTENDOM traditionally teaches that Christ was crucified on "Good" Friday. The average Christian accepts this theory without question not realising that it has no Scriptural foundation. The words of the Apostles' Creed on this matter certainly fall in line with Paul's proclamation, "and that He rose again the third day", but not according to the Scriptures (1 Corinthians 15:3)!

If we count Friday (the day on which He was supposedly crucified), Saturday, then Sunday which was the first day of the week, as the three days referred to, then certainly our calculation is not according to the Scriptures. We have evidence that Jesus died at three o'clock in the afternoon, which was the ninth hour, for the first three writers of the gospel tell us this (see Matthew 26: 46-50 Mark 15:34-37; Luke 23: 44-46). Now the Jewish day was not from midnight to midnight as we observe today, but from sundown to sundown, which was six o'clock. So therefore if Jesus died at three o'clock on Friday there were only three hours of that day left.

Furthermore, the Word of God tells us that, "In the end of the sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary"(Matthew 28:1). Mary Magdalene visited the tomb at dawn and at that time the tomb was empty, for Christ had risen. Mark tells us: "Very early in the morning the first day of the week, they [the two Marys] came unto the sepulchre at the rising of the sun." (16:2), but again the grave was empty. Luke also gives us this information: "Now upon the first day of the week, very early in the morning, they came unto the sepulchre" (24:1) and John adds (20:1): "The first day of the week cometh Mary Magdalene early, when it was yet dark". Even when they rolled the stone away Christ had already gone. From these Scriptures we must conclude that Christ did not rise at sunrise, but before dawn, early on the first day of the week which would literally be our Saturday night.

Now let us consider the last three hours of the day of the crucifixion carefully, for they are of utmost importance, else the Holy Spirit would not have allowed the writers to give detail of them. Joseph of Arimathaea (Mark 15:42-46), after Christ had died, went to Pilate and craved the body of Jesus. Pilate did not take the word of this honourable man, but sent for the centurion and asked if "he had been any while dead". When the centurion (who must have been called from the scene of the crucifixion, for he could not have known otherwise) assured him that Jesus was dead, Pilate then gave the body to Joseph. The Arimathaean, we are then told, bought fine linen, took the Saviour's body down from the cross, and, in the company of Nicodemus embalmed the dead Christ (see also John 19:38-40). How long did all this take? We are not directly told in Scripture, but we must assume that it was a considerable time and that the body was not laid in the tomb until the end of that day. So therefore, according to the "Good Friday" theory, in the light of the Bible, Jesus only spent one night and one day in the tomb.

When our Saviour's divinity was questioned and they demanded proof of His claim, He said, "No sign shall be given. . . but the sign of the prophet Jonas; For as Jonas was three days and three nights in the whale's belly; so shall the Son of man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth." (Matthew 12:39,40). When Paul wrote in 1 Corinthians 15 that Christ rose again on the third day according to the Scriptures, he was referring to the Old Testament Scriptures in which, in typology, there are many references to substantiate his statement. The Christ of the Scriptures had to die and after three days and three nights triumph over death in resurrection fulness (Luke 24:25,26).

The Friday myth comes about by a misunderstanding of the Word of God. In Luke we have recorded concerning the day of the Lord's death: "And that day was the preparation and the sabbath drew on". In Mark's account we read (15:42): "And now when the even was come, because it was the preparation, that is, the day before the sabbath". From these verses we agree that the day after the crucifixion was the sabbath, but we must discover which sabbath. Every reference to the sabbath in the Bible does not necessarily refer to the weekly sabbath or seventh-day sabbath. Israel had many sabbaths to observe in the course of the year, apart from the rest which fell on the Saturday.

In Leviticus chapter 23 we have recorded the seven feasts which the Jews had to observe annually. Each of these feasts was also a sabbath or rest day for the people (see vv. 32,39). Now the sabbath following the death of Christ was not the weekly day of rest, the seventh day, but the Passover sabbath. John (19:14) confirms this when he tells us, "And it was the PREPARATION OF THE PASSOVER, and about the sixth hour: and he [Pilate] saith unto the Jews, Behold your King!" Furthermore, verse 31 leaves us in no doubt: "The Jews therefore, because it was the preparation, that the bodies should not remain on the cross on the sabbath day, (for that sabbath day was an HIGH DAY), besought Pilate that their legs might be broken, and that they might be taken away." The fact that it was not the ordinary sabbath is emphasised by the Apostle with the words "that sabbath was an high day". This was the sabbath which was the greatest day in the Jewish calendar and John tells us that it followed the day of crucifixion.

Our concern with the Jewish feasts is, for the moment, only with the first three. The Feast of the Passover was on the fourteenth day of the first month and, according to Scripture, the fifteenth was the sabbath of unleavened bread. If the disciples came to the tomb on the first day of the week, then the sixteenth day was the weekly sabbath, (the seventh day), therefore there were actually three sabbaths in that one week, something which would not happen again for many years. No wonder Paul says, "When the fulness of time was come, God sent forth His Son" (Galatians 4:4). God does nothing prematurely. This was planned in the counsels of eternity.

The Feast of Firstfruits was to be celebrated "on the morrow after the sabbath", when the priest waved a sheaf of the firstfruits before the Lord. Here we have a clear type of our Lord's resurrection from the dead, for Paul tells us that His resurrection was the firstfruits of the harvest of those who will be Christ's at His coming (1 Corinthians 15:23). As the "corn of wheat" (John 12:24), He was buried in Joseph's tomb, but as the "firstfruits" he has conquered death and the grave, triumphed over hell and is the surety of life for ever believer.

There is only one concluding fact. The Lord Jesus was crucified at three o'clock on the WEDNESDAY afternoon and was in the tomb for three whole days and nights according to the Scriptures.

Book Reviews

One Rap for Yes, by J.B. Donovan. Published by Scripture Union, price 35p, postage and packing 7p extra.

THIS well-planned book is aimed at teenagers. Descriptive, imaginative, written with insight and a thorough understanding of the subject, this novel is well able to bring youth to the conclusion that spiritism despite its popular, adventurous appeal, is, evil and consequently dangerous.

Describing a sincere, well-intentioned attempt on the parts of the characters, it deals with a situation imposed through tragedy and the eventualities of life. The effects produced from their investigations lead them to conclude that this phenomenon is not of God, that they are merely using this as a substitute for the true giver of guidance.

In an age when ouija boards and E.S.P. are condoned by schools, this book has much to offer.

R. Clarke, N.D.D., A.T.D.

Contemporary Old Testament Theologians, edited by Robert B. Lauria. Published by Marshall, Morgan and Scott Ltd., price £4.25, postage and packing 16p extra.

THIS book, as the title suggests, takes us into the field of Old Testament investigation. The editor, a teacher of the Old Testament, states in his Introduction: "I am a twentieth century man who believes the Old Testament can be a twentieth-century document. . . by speaking to twentieth-century questions in the midst of describing pre-Christian approaches to common problems". One is not surprised to find every page crammed with scholarly arguments. The opening sentence of the Foreword prepares one for this: "The idea for this book developed from classroom need".

The field of investigation deals with the researchings of seven prominent theologians, six of whom are European, the seventh being a Scot, George A.F. Knight. The others are influential scholars in their field: Walter Eichrodt, Gerhard von Rad, Otto Procksch, Theodorus C. Vriezen, Edmund Jacob and Paul van Imschoot. The latter was a Catholic theologian. The seven contributors, four of them American and the other three hailing from Cambridge and Oxford, reveal a wide knowledge of the writings of their particular character. This book, despite its high price and its sometimes doubtful material, is one which the Bible student who is prepared to dig could find helpful. Conservative evangelicals will not agree with all that is revealed from these investigations, but there are many things which make worthwhile reading.

W.J. Maybin, Th.D.

God's Frontiers, by John Eddison. Published by Scripture Union, price 40p, postage and packing 6p extra.

THIS is a revised and expanded version of the author's earlier Christian Standards and deals with the modern application of the ethical standards of the Ten Commandments. The opening chapters on "Absolute Standards" and "Situation Ethics" and the closing chapters on modern life and the relationship between Law and Love succinctly cover points untouched in the main exposition.

In under 120 pages the author cannot be expected to deal extensively with every aspect of ethics, yet hardly a problem is omitted. His remarkable economy of words and wise use of illustrations make this very readable.

Although the work is geared to the problems of Christian adolescents, older readers will find much to enlighten and challenge. This highly commendable publication could profitably be used as a text for a teen discussion group.

Ian R. Hall, B.D.

Moth-Balled Religion, by Gordon Bailey. Published by S.T.L., 9, London Road, Bromley, Kent. Price 30p, postage and packing 3p extra.

THIS is Gordon Bailey's second book of poems. One commentator says: "Knowing the author as a friend and seeing him as a gentle, loving person, I was surprised to read through this book and find him having a 'go' at the established church. Let me quickly say, however, that it isn't the church as a whole which is Gordon's target, but some of the people who comprise the church, for example, the vicars who preach dreary sermons, or dish out tea and sympathy, seemingly embarrassed by that part of their ministery which requires that they speak of the person of Christ, and the message of love, peace, and joy".

This book will provoke you to think thoughtfully about your Christian faith. It makes interesting, challenging and at times humorous reading. It has a clear message for the atheist, the non-religious man, the anarchist, right down to the person who gives out the church notices!

One of his "Perversery Rhymes" goes like this: "Baa baa black sheep have you any sin? Yes sir, yes sir, full of it within. Some shows in temper, some shows in greed, some shows when I withold my help from those in need. Baa baa black sheep tell me why you're black. Yes sir, Jesus came, and I just turned my back!"

John D. Henderson

Culture, Class and Christian Beliefs, by John Bennington, published by Scripture Union, price 60p, postage and packing 6p extra.

HOW do you get a working class convert to stay in the local church true to the faith? Accept him as he is and do not try to force him into your pre-conceived, pharisaical mould. This book brings present social science thinking and theory to bear on the question of the integration of converts into a locally established church. It offers views on how this may be done. Significantly, the Holy Spirit is not suggested as having an answer. Religion is often confused with Christianity and the working class as a whole is seen to have the norms of the younger generation. It presents a case which should provide food for thought, however, and suggests that a reappraisal of evangelistic method is necessary, particularly in industrial and inner-city areas.

Our visit to Guyana

by James and Vera Clarke, Members of our Neath Church

WE recently spent a month with the MacInnes' family in Guyana. It was wonderful to see how God has blessed His servants in that land. God has given them many souls for their labours and today there are many places where Elim people worship the Lord.

It was a joy to minister in these churches and to enjoy the fellowship of the dear people, who love the Lord with all their hearts. Pastor John H. MacInnes is now in process of buying land to build a church and a pastor's house. How thrilled we were as we stood in the midst of many houses in one place where they have been meeting under the houses, Guyanese properties being often built on stilts. Brother MacInnes has put down a deposit on the land and is trusting the Lord to provide the remaining money to enable them to finish the payments for the land for the church and house. We know that the Lord will not fail him.

Our photograph shows the youngest "usher" in the Elim work in Guyana! His name is Alwyn. He is two years old. After the meetings in Brother MacInnes's Church he goes round to pick up the hymn-books. May he grow up to serve the Lord in the years ahead.

With no medical help and no schools where there could be Christian teachers, Brother and Sister MacInnes have depended upon the Word of the Lord and the Lord has been faithful to them. Our hearts rejoiced as we saw how the Elim Family in Guyana has grown.

"To God be the glory, great things He hath done"!

Fishers of Men

"BUT the word of God grew and multiplied". In these eight simple words the writer of the Acts tells us of the miraculous growth of the Early Church. It all began with the Holy Spirit-empowered witness of twelve men, four, at least, fishermen, on the day of Pentecost. It is fitting that we should remember this. Though we do not slavishly follow the Church Calendar, especially now that Whitsuntide is no longer a national holiday, we regret that little mention is made of the birth of the Christian Church. It is very wonderful that, after almost 2,000 years of steady progress, the New Testament method is just as effective as ever.

Some of my readers may have heard Pastor J. Egyir-Paintsil tell of the band of Ghanaian fishermen who have been used of God to pioneer four new churches in the state of Liberia. It all began with a fishing trip along the gulf of Guinea. The men left the south–west coast of Ghana, fished along the coastal waters, and eventually came ashore at Monrovia, capital city of Liberia. On the Sunday morning they looked around for a Pentecostal church near the harbour. Finding none, they held an open-air meeting, singing, testifying and giving the gospel simply. So a witness was begun. As a result of their regular visits, a bamboo and palm-leaf canopy was erected and a nucleus formed of interested folk, new converts, all of whom had been attracted to and blessed by the joyful witness of the fishermen. Thus, in a truly New Testament way, the Church of Pentecost extended its work to reach Liberia and there are now four established assemblies, all because a band of illiterate fishermen with burning hearts told of their Saviour.

I remember some of these men, for they were pointed out to me at the great Nkaw-kaw Convention in 1970. How they sang and clapped and danced, particularly one fat, bald-headed man whose face was radiant and whose exuberance seemed almost at bursting point. I wonder to what heights of joyful praise he reached this year, when, at Easter in the Sunyani Convention he was able to greet a group of Liberian Christians from the four churches who had travelled for three days, 900 miles overland through Liberia, Ivory Coast and Western Ghana to participate in the services and fellowship?

It all began and developed because "unlearned and ignorant" men said to themselves, as did Peter and John of old, "We cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard" (Acts 4:20). They discovered that the baptism in the Holy Spirit gave them power from on high and enabled them to be effective witnesses even as our Lord had promised. We can read and write and are perfectly capable of communicating with others. Are we as zealous and eager to speak of Jesus wherever we go? It was for this that the Lord gave us our personal Pentecost.

The slowness of the progress of the Pentecostal Church in the British Isles and its smallness in comparison with so many other countries has often concerned our leaders. I wonder if the answer lies in that we have not followed the example of the Early Church and recognised that every Spirit-baptised believer should be a witness for Christ? Have we not tended to look only to gifted evangelists to pioneer the message? If all the Pentecostal believers who have moved to new towns and areas where there is no assembly had acted like these fishermen of Ghana, I think that we would have had a much larger, more virile Church in our land today. I pray that we may all catch that vision.

Inaugural Meeting of the Tyne-Tees Presbytery

THE inaugural meeting of the new Tyne-Tees Presbytery was held in Sunderland on Saturday, May 20th. At present there are seven churches in the new Presbytery, namely, Newcastle upon Tyne, South Shields, Sunderland, Bishop Auckland, Darlington, Stockton-on-Tees, and Grangetown (Teesside). All the churches were represented at the meeting which was marked by an excellent spirit of unity. Pastor Stanley Beresford acted as guest chairman. Among the Presbytery officers elected were Pastor David G. Woodfield as our District Superintendent, and Pastor Adrian L. Hawkes as Youth Commissioner.

About 200 people gathered for the evening rally in the Sunderland Church. The Holy Spirit's presence brought a wonderful sense of liberty and blessing. Each church represented made some contribution to the service by way of items. The ministry of the Word by Pastor Stanley Beresford was greatly blessed of the Lord to make a fitting climax to an inspiring day with God.

We extend to the brethren of the North-East Presbytery our sincere appreciation for their fellowship over the years and for their encouragement and assistance in the creation of the new Presbytery. It is planned for the two Presbyteries to work together in close liaison. The Bridlington Youth Camp will continue as a joint effort of the two groups.

As a Presbytery we covet your prayers for our plans and desires to reach out to this Tyne-Tees area with the Pentecostal message. The area is teeming with people – some 2¼ million – and possibilities. Plans are already in hand for our first Presbytery evangelistic effort in September.

DAVID G. HOLMES
PRESBYTERY SECRETARY

Why not say, "Yes!"?

by Frances Hawkins
(Burnham-on-Crouch)

A LONELY pair went down a road. One was mounted and one on foot. Weary and travel-worn they had come to a crowded city, but no one noticed that they had come. For them there was no cheering, thronging crowd. The only cries that reached their ears did nothing to quell their nagging fears. "Full up", "No room" were all that they heard. The only place that they could find was a stable and there that night the Lord of Glory came to our world. That lowly maiden had borne our Lord and the angels of heaven were heard by a handful of shepherds out in a field.

Another street came into mind. It was filled with laughter and thronging crowds for the Lord Jesus Christ was riding by on His way to the city. The streets were strewn with garments and palms and the people shouted, "Blessed be the King".

* * *

The road that next came into mind led to a hill. The Lord of Glory was passing by. He was on His way to die.

* * *

A couple walked down a dusty road, communed together and reasoned why their Lord and Master had to die. Another joined them and, as they journeyed, He thrilled their souls with His great learning. As they came to their home, "Do join us", they said, "for the day is far spent". He made Himself known in the breaking of bread. Their eyes were opened. Their hearts were on fire. The Lord of Glory had risen indeed. Back to the crowded city they went, filled with a joy that none could destroy.

* * *

The King is coming to earth quite soon. It may be midnight, it may be noon. For those washed clean by His precious blood, who now and down the ages have loved and longed for His coming, it will be the dawning of the perfect day, for He will come in power and glory to take His Church away.

* * *

God only knows the hour of that coming. We must be ready to hear that call and greet the Bridegroom. Many will wail, "Too late!" on that day, when Jesus shall come and pass them by. He still knocks, calls and offers forgiveness and salvation so great and free. While that grace is offered, say "Yes", oh say "Yes" to HIM!

"A Man sent from God"

by Maldwyn Jones, Pastor of our Beeston Church

THE mission of John the Baptist was to prepare the way for the coming of Christ. He came at a critical time in the history of his nation. The prophetic voice had been silent for several centuries and the people had turned away from God, but there is not a night that is so dark that the light of God cannot shine into it. So we read, "In those days came John the Baptist, preaching in the wilderness of Judea." He was God's man for the hour.

In him could be seen the hallmark of the true prophet; he was "a man sent from God". We must be careful not to venerate Biblical characters; after all is said and done, they were but human. Today, God is pleased to speak to us by men and women like ourselves. God gave John both his mission and his message. He wrought no miracle, but the strictness and purity of his life and teaching were plain indications that he was sent from God.

John did not pause to consider whether or not he fulfilled the Pharisaical conception of what a prophet should look like. His one concern was to prepare the people to receive the Messiah. Would to God that today preachers were less concerned with what people thought of them and more concerned with preparing sinners to receive Christ.

"John was clothed with camel's hair, and with a girdle of a skin about his loins; and he did eat locusts and wild honey." He lived on the bare necessities of life. He was totally unconcerned about those things which were so important to other people. Many Christians are burdened by conventions, traditions and standards set down for them by other Christians. John was not bound in this way. He lived according to the standards set for him by God. His was a life of self-denial. Jesus said, "If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross and follow Me". One commentator has said: "Self-denial is the fundamental law of admission into the school of Christ". John knew what this was all about. There was a fierceness about his appearance that must have reminded people of the Old Testament prophets, especially Amos. His was a stern, unbowed figure that prepared the way of the Lord by calling the people to repentance.

The preacher who has his message and mission from God does not attempt to philosophise after the manner of this world's thinking, but forthrightly declares the Word of God, for only the Word of God brings life. The duty of every Christian is to preach it (2 Timothy 4:1,2; Mark 16:15). The servant of God must be fearless in his preaching; John certainly was. The message that he declared was the same to every person whether rich, poor, high, low. He called the people to repentance.

Two things happen when a sinner repents: as a result of the convicting power of the Holy Spirit, he is sorry for his sin; he resolves to turn away from his sin and thus identify himself with God. Repentance is more than a mental assent to one's guilt. There must be a positive act of turning from sin to God. In preaching to the Pharisees and Sadducees John did not mince his words. He referred to them as a "generation of vipers" and called them to repent by bringing forth fruits meet for repentance (Matthew 3:8). Christianity is not a code of ethics, neither does it bind its followers by a long list of dos and don'ts. The only prerequisite to eternal life is a living, vital faith in Christ and the renunciation of sin. We do not earn our faith by our good works, but we reveal our faith by our good works. "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." (Matthew 5:16).

The Family Altar

Scripture Union Portions — Notes by L.E. Lambert

Monday, June 25th — Romans 13:1-7

"Tribute to whom tribute is due" (v.7).

INCOME tax collectors have never been popular. Right from Zacchaeus to this present day, they are among the unloved. The Lord Jesus taught both by example and precept that we must pay lawful tribute. We cannot go Scotch fishing and catch fish with coins inside, but we must render to Caesar what is Caesar's. This principle covers other things, too: filling in income tax claims forms honestly, obeying speed limits, truthfulness at the customs. One man put a Bible on top of his possessions, hoping that the customs' men would accept his word that he had nothing to declare. The Bible says that the day will declare it. Truth is fallen in the streets; do not kick it when it is down.

Tuesday, June 26th — Romans 13:8-14

"Love is the fulfilling of the law" (v.10).

"LOVE God and do as you like," someone said to me. I thought that it was wild and woolly advice, but when you think about it, the challenge is still there. If you really love God, you will do what He likes. The freedom becomes your framework. It is like this with the other great commandment, "Love thy neighbour as thyself." If we did this, we would not steal, or take his wife or her husband, or tell lies about them. Real, deep love for God and man would transform this vile society, because it would transform us. God is love.

Wednesday, June 27th — Romans 14:1-12

"Every one shall give an account of himself to God" (v.12).

GLADSTONE said that the most influential factor in his life was his personal accountability to God. How differently we would speak, act and think if we always remembered this. We will not have to give an account for our sins – Jesus did that, thank God, on the cross – but our work, our words, our motives will have to stand the holy fire of His gaze. When we meet Him, may we not be ashamed, but face Him with confidence. We are ambassadors. When an ambassador returns home, his first task is to meet the sovereign and give an account of his service in an alien land. That will be our task, too, in glory.

Thursday, June 28th — Romans 14:13-23

"No man put a stumbling block. . . in his brother's way" (v.13).

TO the Jews, the rigorous laws regarding food were binding. They were regarded as sacred; violation of them constituted sin. Remember Peter in Acts 10. To contravene the same could destroy their faith (Romans 14:15). To us, the truth might apply to other things than food, for the Christian is forbidden only blood and things strangled (Acts 15:20), but what about amusements, certain drinks, and keeping Sunday? "No man liveth unto himself". "All things are lawful," said Paul (1 Corinthians 6:12,13), "but all things are not expedient". We must ever seek to be stepping-stones to faith, not stumbling blocks in faith's way.

Friday, June 29th — Romans 15:1-6

"Christ pleased not Himself" (v.3).

CHAPTER headings are the insertions of man. Often they are helpful; sometimes they hinder. The latter is true here. Paul is continuing his argument that we must not offend the spiritual standing of others. "Christ pleased not Himself." "Not My will, but Thine," He prayed. We are told candidly to please our neighbours (v.2), so to live that our fellow-Christian, our unsaved friends, will be helped not hindered. The modern attitude to life is, "Do what you like, whatever others might think", but the Christian realises that this is not God's revealed will. Pleasing God might lead to a cross, but the cross meant the redemption of others.

Saturday, June 30th — Romans 15:7-13

"Glorify God for His mercy" (v.9).
